KING TELLS WHY HE FIGHTS FOR THRONE HE QUIT

Tribune Man Flies to Afghanistan.

High in the mountains of Asia at one of the world's great cross roads lies Afghanistan, a land of wild tribes, no railroads, and vast unexplored areas, but a land coveted by two nations who for many years have intrigued and fought for control of the east—Great Britain and Russia.

Afghanistan is now ruled by two kings, while several other chieftains, backed by tribal forces, are aspiring to occupy the throne. Following a successful revolt against his attempt to westernize his land Amanullah Khan abdicated on Jan. 14 in favor of his brother, Inayatulla Khan.

Within two days Inayatulla was driven out by Bacha Sakao, a former water boy, and Afghanistan's Robin Hood, who now holds Kabul, the capital. Amanullah raised his royal standard in Kandahar.

To obtain the full story of this civil war, The Tribune directed Larry Rue, its Vienna correspondent, to go to Afghanistan. His trip, largely by planes, was remarkable. His story, the first authentic account of what has been happening in Afghanistan, follows:

BY LARRY RUE.

TEHERAN, Persia, Feb. 23.—I have just returned from Kandahar, Afghanistan, where I have been a guest of King Amanullah Khan. I have brought back a statement from the king explaining his abdication and subsequent decision to fight to regain the throne at Kabul, his hopes and plans for the future. I also obtained numerous facts and observations regarding the civil war in Afghanistan, which has become a veritable no man's land.

The second day I was in Kandahar I exchanged greetings with the king, who was dressed in military uniform and seemed sufficiently jovial, considering past events. I was then turned over to Abdul Whabd, who said his majesty authorized him to find out what I wanted to know. I submitted a series of questions to which his majesty authorized the following statements:

Tells Why He Abdicated.

"I abdicated because when Kabul was first attacked I was told the attack was directed only at me personally," the king said. "I wanted the people to know I did not have any personal ambition to be king for the sake of the office, but only for the welfare of the country. Having the interests of my people at heart, I did not want bloodshed. I abdicated to prevent bloodshed.

"But when I learned the attacks were not directed only at me personally, but selfishly motivated by a robber [Bacha Sakao, the water boy], who himself wanted the kingship for the sake of the office, and bloodshed was inevitable anyway, it was quite clear the country needed me. Law and order must be enforced. As soon as I realized that those conspiring were not actuated by patriotic motives, had no intention to foster national prosperity nor human rights of the inhabitants, there was only one thing for me to do—regain hold of the reins of the government.

Wins Pledges of Loyalty.

"While my heart bleeds at the atrocities already perpetrated in the revolt of the last few months, it has had a purifying effect. Those once opposed to me personally because of my so-called western reforms are again pledging me their loyalty. God knows I am in no way responsible for the blood already shed, yet I must face the fact that more bloodshed will be necessary before Afghanistan is again a country of law, order and peace where life and property are safe."

The king refused in any way to support the accusations that Great Britain, through the activities of Col. T. E. Lawrence, alias Aircraftsman Shaw and known as the uncrowned king of Arabia, had inspired the revolt. He admitted Moslem priests had taken violent exception to his reforms which deprived them of traditional rights and privileges. The priests had dictated social, religious and even economic habits of the people, having supreme authority over believers in questions of marriage and charitable enterprises, owning villages, fields, and herds of sheep before Amanullah ended their domination. Naturally the

HEAD OF RANGE COMPANY SHOT BY HOLDUP MAN

William F. Traub, 63 years old, president of the William F. Traub Range company, stove and coffee urn manufacturer, was shot and seriously wounded early this morning when he resisted a youthful holdup man in the rear of his home at 6426 North Campbell avenue. The robber escaped without loot.

Mr. Traub had attended a meeting of the Royal league, of which he is president, at 538 South Clark street. He returned home shortly after midnight and had just put his automobile in the garage at the rear when the robber appeared with pistol drawn. When Traub refused to put up his hands the holdup man fired and fled.

The bullet struck the manufacturer in the chest. As he fell he called to his daughter, Beryl, who was sleeping in the house. Aroused by the shot and the cry, Miss Traub and her mother, Mrs. Adele Traub, rushed to the wounded man and with the help of neighbors carried him into the house. Rogers Park police were summoned and they took him to the St. Francis hospital in Evanston.

LINDY ON WAY TO MORROW HOME IN MEXICO CITY

Eagle Pass, Tex., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh landed here at 7:30 p. m. tonight en route to Mexico City. He said he would spend the night here and leave for the Mexican capital at daybreak.

Leaving Abilene, Kas., at 2:45 p. m., Lindbergh required four and a half hours to fly the 300 air miles here. A strong wind held him to 50 miles an hour much of the time, he said.

He declined to amplify his statement that he was going to Mexico City. Asked if he intended to marry his fiancée, Miss Anne Morrow, at this time, he preserved a stony silence.

Chicago Artist Wins First Prize in Texas Contest

Ernest M. Hennings, Chicago artist, last night was awarded the first prize of $3,000 in the Texas wild flower class of the annual Edgar B. Davis art competition, according to dispatches from San Antonio, Tex. Mr. Davis, founder of the competition, is a Texas oil millionaire. Mr. Hennings is well known in art circles here and at Taos, N. M., where he also maintains a residence. He studied in the Chicago Art Institute and in Munich, Germany. His residence here is at 4 East Ohio street.

Shall Chicago Go on Eastern Clock Basis?

Leading Chicagoans were questioned yesterday by a TRIBUNE reporter regarding their attitudes on the suggestion that Chicago's time should be changed to eastern standard time in order that New York and this city might transact business on an identical time schedule. While many were reluctant to express snap judgments, a majority were inclined to stress several defects in the idea.

Conflict with daylight saving time in both cities would result from the change, it was pointed out by all. Chicago, putting the clock forward one hour for eastern standard time, would be forced to set it forward another hour when New York daylight saving time went into effect. Then, during the summer, Chicagoans would be arising two hours ahead of sun time unless New York should coöperate by foregoing daylight saving in the summer, which is regarded as unlikely.

Traylor Against Change.

Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank, declared himself so well satisfied with daylight saving time as it has been put in effect here that he voted against any other time change. James D. Cunningham, president of the Illinois Manufacturers' association, declared the idea impractical. He also expressed himself in favor of daylight saving time as instituted here.

While Samuel P. Arnot, president of the Board of Trade, asked not to be quoted until he had given the matter thorough study, other board members pointed out that much confusion would result if the change were made. The board, as the central grain market of the country, coöperates with similar organizations in Omaha, Minneapolis, and Kansas City. The time there should be the same as in Chicago, it was explained.

Winans for Studying Idea.

Frank F. Winans, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, was another who declared that a careful and comprehensive study of the advantages and disadvantages of a change should be made before it could be commended or discarded.

"On first glance, the change would seem to be beneficial," he declared. "It certainly would facilitate the business operations of both cities if they worked at the same hours. However, it is problematical if the plan could be worked out practically. The daylight saving element should be considered. It would hardly be proper to give a definite opinion or possible to give an intelligent one until a thorough study is made of the entire idea."

Present System Best—Stevens.

Elmer Stevens, manager of the Stevens department store, was one of those who opposed the suggestion.

"Daylight saving time, as it is in operation now, is the best system," he said. "We'd better leave a good arrangement as it is."

Ald. Max Adamowski [33th] declared himself in favor of a referendum on the subject if the plan received public attention.

Railroad officials whose opinions were sought refused to discuss the proposal until it had been given a careful study.

TWO MEN SHOT IN SALOON RIOT AT FOREST PARK

Two men were shot, one of them probably fatally, in a riot at the Triangle café, 1812 Des Plaines avenue, Forest Park, early this morning. According to police reports a gang of hoodlums from McFadden's gardens, a rival resort in the town, went to the Triangle to "clean it out," in revenge for a beating given Frank McFadden, son of Edward McFadden, proprietor of McFadden's place, earlier in the night.

The invaders found Michael Rafferty, owner of the Triangle, in the automobile parking space near the café. Immediately bullets began to fly, and when the shooting was ended Rafferty was near death with a bullet through the abdomen, and Louis Roelle, 36 years old, 1247 Wisconsin street, Forest Park, a brother-in-law of Rafferty, was suffering from a slight wound in the head. Orders were sent out to arrest Edward McFadden and James McDonald as leaders of the gang.

Rafferty and Roelle were hurried to the Oak Park hospital, where physicians prepared to operate in an attempt to save Rafferty's life.

MISSING FINGER GIVES CLEW TO MURDER DRIVER

Police Sift Kidnap Story of Dentist.

Corroborated evidence last night pointed to the identification of Rocco Belcastro as chauffeur for the men who staged the Moran gang massacre. Statements to the police convinced them they were right in their accusations against a band led by Danny Vallo, old time Valley gangster. The investigators now believe the killings were planned and executed from the gang's northwest side headquarters, in the vicinity of Wood street and North avenue.

The new information spurred the police in their search for Vallo, Belcastro, and other members of the gang, whose names were brought into the investigation by the discovery of the slayers' dismantled automobile in a garage at 1723 North Wood street. Vallo, long known as chief of the Valley gang, was once chauffeur for "Ammunition Eddie" Wheed, who was hanged for murder. He succeeded to gang leadership when his superior, "Paddy the Bear" Ryan, was shot to death. He has a record with the police, as has Belcastro. The latter has several times faced burglary charges in the courts and once was put on probation for a year, but no other penalty appears against his name in the records of the bureau of identification.

Guard Several Witnesses.

Photographs of Belcastro were to be distributed throughout the police department today to have other witnesses add to the identifications already made. It was a secret no longer last night that several important witnesses are being held in seclusion, their names known to but few, their stories kept in strictest confidence, and their persons guarded with care.

Attempted intimidation of two women witnesses made it imperative, it was explained, that every precaution be taken to prevent harm or threats reaching those whose testimony, it is believed, will be of value to the state if the murderers are captured.

Missing Finger a Clew.

Most important of the information concerning Belcastro was the knowledge that the little finger of his right hand has been amputated. His name came into the inquiry through his association with men on whom suspicion descended when the Cadillac touring car believed to have been used by the killers was discovered in the midst of an attempt to destroy it. The police say this car was the one seen in front of the garage at 2122 North Clark street where seven men were slain on Valentine's day.

"The man who came out of that garage with his hands in the air, followed by two men in police uniforms and with drawn guns and who slid into the driver's seat of the death car had a little finger missing from his right hand," said a witness of whom nothing heretofore had been known except by a few of the chief investigators.

Another Witness Revealed.

"Belcastro drove a car that looked like a detective bureau Cadillac west in North avenue the day of the seven murders," said another person who gave information about the men who rallied to Danny Vallo's leadership. Everything this second witness had to say fitted into facts already known, it was said.

"I heard the man of the missing finger say, 'All right, Mac,' to one of the others as he got into the car," the first witness declared.

Assistant state's attorneys seeking Jack McGurn, machine gun gangster, as a suspect, believed the "Mac" addressed was McGurn.

And there was the circumstance that on July 6 of last year Belcastro was arrested in company with Raymond Schultz, whose name also was drawn into the murder inquiry through his associations.

Link Two Others to Case.

Last Monday a detective said he learned Schultz, Claude Maddox, and Tony Capizzio, part owner of the Circus café at 1857 West North avenue, were wearing overalls covered with grease and were seen coming from the vicinity of the death car garage at 1723 North Wood.

Maddox was involved through his having been arrested at 1859 West North avenue last month in a room where twelve overcoats were hanging on hooks and a machine gun drum was hidden. A further circumstance was that the man who rented the Wood street garage two days before the massacre gave 1859 West North

Sift Reports Canal Cinders Cost 4 Ways

Reports that the sanitary district trustees paid to have cinders hauled from the 39th street disposal station and then rebought the same cinders to construct the $1,062,438 bridle path paralleling the concrete road along the north shore canal, paying again for their cartage there, will be submitted to the grand jury at a special session tomorrow afternoon, it was announced yesterday by State's Attorney John A. Swanson.

At the same time, Mr. Swanson hopes to produce evidence of printing frauds which will warrant immediate indictment of all but one of the district trustees during the administration of Timothy J. Crowe as president.

Investigation has disclosed, it was announced, that the same cinders which left the 39th street plant in railroad cars subsequently found their way into the bridle path. The district paid $1.90 to $2 per cubic yard for the removal, it was reported, and the cinders were hauled to a siding at Evanston, but just how the sanitary board repurchased them once they reached there is a question which has not been definitely decided by Assistant State's Attorney Otho Fasig and Thomas D. Slusser, who are heading the investigation.

Vouchers Show Cartage Payments.

The prosecutors have found vouchers among the district records showing that favored trucking and cartage contractors received as high as $50 a day for the use of their vehicles to haul cinders from freight cars to the bridle path. Whether these payments included the reported purchase of the same cinders which the district had previously paid to remove from its south side plant or whether the district just paid exorbitant sums for cartage is the question to be solved before the grand jury.

"It looks very much like the district paid to remove its cinders; paid to ship them to a siding near Evanston; rebought them for more than it cost to remove them and then on top of it all paid for trucking of them to the bridle path," said one of the investigators. "We are not ready to make definite charges at this time, but we expect to prove these facts before the grand jury next week."

The staff of First Assistant State's Attorney Frank J. Loesch, who has conducted the investigation, has reported to Prosecutor Swanson, the latter admitted last night, that the cinders shipped from the 39th street plant were billed to certain cartage owners who hauled them from the siding in Evanston to the bridle path.

State Representative Lawrence C. O'Brien was among the favored cartage contractors during the year 1928. He received more than $70,000 from the district in 1928 for cartage, most of it being in connection with the construction of the bridle path. He received so many vouchers for less than $500 that the trustees suggested to him, it is reported, that he had better form some other company so that his name would not appear so frequently on the district records. He is reported to have immediately formed the Red Line Teaming company to shoulder some of the numerous vouchers.

George W. Miller, son of August W. Miller, a Crowe-Thompson trustee, is reported to head the South Western Cartage company, which received some $36,000 for cartage in 1918. His concern is also reported to have hauled cinders. Trustee Miller is reported to have said that he had no connection with his son's company.

Reopen Legislature Quiz.

In connection with the bridle path and road building project of the board the investigators have reopened the legislative quiz. They are attempting to connect up the passage of a bill by the legislature about the time the $1,350,000 road was built, and the fact that some 60 legislators appeared on the district pay rolls.

Rooming House Owner Shot to Death by Tenant

Fred Hardenberg, 35 years old, owner of a rooming house at 24 East Oak street, was shot and killed yesterday by Herman Krohn, 36 years old, his friend and roomer for ten years. Krohn was arrested shortly after the shooting. He told Chicago avenue police that he and Hardenberg had been drinking during the day and quarreled on their return home over a woman. When Hardenberg attempted to strike him, he drew a revolver and fired in self defense, Krohn said.

School of Sardines Sink Fifty Foot Fishing Boat

San Pedro, Cal., Feb. 23.—(AP)—The Toma, a 50 foot seine boat, was sunk yesterday by a school of sardines. The eight Japanese fishermen on board dropped a net for mackerel. The sardines, about 300 tons of them, swimming beneath the mackerel, filled the seine. Before the net lines could be cut the boat capsized and sunk a few minutes later. The fishermen were rescued.

MAYOR'S LABEL IS RED FLAG IN FIFTEEN WARDS

Fear Another Revolt at Polls Tuesday.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

The great enigma as Chicago's aldermanic election swept to a lurid climax last night, with rallies in nearly all the fifty wards, is whether the public uprising which overthrew the Crowe-Thompson machine last April and November will be on the spot again next Tuesday.

Hard battles are on in some 28 wards. In fifteen of them Thompsonism in varying aspects has been raised as the principal issue. On the fringes of the big fights are a dozen minor combats. The total of 222 candidates in the ring are making this the most fiercely fought aldermanic election in many years.

It's a weird melange of issues and battle lines. All the Thompson council leaders are up against determined opposition. In some wards, old Thompsonites have sought to put on new collars. They have blossomed out in new anti-Thompson haberdashery, and are wondering whether the public will see the old laundry marks. In other contests, rival candidates are trying to pin the tag of Thompsonism on each other.

Gangland Seeking Control.

In still other wards—racket and privilege baliwicks—there are contests based on a general cleanup. In some regions gangland is making an effort to get a more direct voice in government by pushing out good aldermen.

Complexities are added by the factional groups, especially among the Republicans. It appears that there is more partisanship in this non-partisan aldermanic election than at any time since the old days before party tags were taken off the ballot.

Back of it all in many wards the factional groups are in a tug of war that has for its real aim the election of ward committeemen a year hence. Fence building for the general election next year is in general progress.

And at the city hall, ever since November, the big topic among the aldermen has been: Will there be a hang-over of last year's popular revolt?

Majority Needed to Win.

"In the election Tuesday any candidate getting a majority of all votes cast is elected. If no one gets a majority, the two highest men run it off in a supplemental election, April 2. Last time eleven wards held run off elections and four years ago there were fourteen.

The most spectacular battles which stand out over all the combats are as follows:

Eighth—The battle here is between Ald. William D. Meyering, anti-Thompsonite, and Albert R. Brunker's civic safety commission. Meyering supporters said yesterday that the ward is being deluged with Brunker's placards, letters and literature, while over the radio the safeties have concentrated daily against Meyering. At a Meyering rally last night orators spoke of "the attempt at an absentee Lake Forest dictatorship."

Eaton vs. Grossman.

Fifth—Here ex-Ald. Charles Scribner Eaton is battling Ald. Leonard J. Grossman, ex-Democrat, who changed to Republican when Thompson was going strong and became one of the mayor's floor leaders. Eaton is supported by the followers of Roy O. West, secretary of the interior and Fidus Achates of Senator Charles S. Deneen, by the Democrats under State Representative Michael L. Igoe, who was Grossman's sponsor two years ago, and by Prof. Charles E. Merriam and others of the University of Chicago. Leo J. Canary is also making headway. Another factor is Charles Udell Turpin, the only Negro candidate, who is expected to get a heavy vote in the 22 Negro precincts, formerly Thompson-Grossman. Ward leaders say Grossman is sunk.

Twentieth—Here Morris Eller, city collector and member of the Thompson cabinet, is fighting Ald. A. J. Prignano, who the M. V. L. calls "the best alderman the ward has had in years." "Boss" Eller is supporting State Representative William V. Pacelli, who was recently pushed out of his job as ward superintendent for being "on too many pay rolls." Martin Klass, a nephew of Eller, is a third candidate. The M. V. L. says Klass and Pacelli are "unfit for the office." This ward is the jungle of Chicago politics. For a week booze racketeers have been reported coming back from Florida for the election.

Fight in Mayor's Home Ward.

Forty-sixth—Home of Mayor Thompson, and of his floor leader, Ald. Oscar

Nelson, a former Democrat who became a Republican and ran for sanitary trustee last November, but was defeated. This is a blistering battle. Nelson's leading opponent is Capt. A. F. W. Siebel who has the support of part of the Deneen group; of Senator Herman Haenisch, former Small adherent who beat the mayor for committeeman last April, with Deneen backing, and of the Democrats, led by State Representative Joseph L. Gill, brother-in-law of the late George E. Brennan. Other candidates are Arthur J. Damm, Carl E. Liedberg, and Edward P. Saltiel. The Brundage group has made no indorsements.

Forty-second—The near north side has one of its old fashioned battles, in which Richard Prendergast is opposing Ald. Dorsey Crowe on the issue "Clean up the ward." Prendergast is supported by the Deneen group and has the backing of Frank J. Loesch, first assistant state's attorney. The Thompson group, led by Charles Peace and Harbor Master Charles Agnew, is backing C. R. Palmer.

"Thompsonism" in Fiftieth.

Fiftieth—Ald. A. K. Mose and Curtis F. Mellin are hurling the charge of "Thompsonized candidate" at each other, while each proclaims that he is an anti-Thompsonite. Carl H. Lundquist, who ran well two years ago, is actively campaigning. Meanwhile Wiley K. Galloway, anti-Thompsonite and Deneen nonpartisan, is the beneficiary of the walloping which Mose and Mellin are giving each other. Galloway is rated by ward leaders as having the best prospects of landing in the run-off on April 2. Arthur W. Arneman and Harry A. Martin are other candidates.

Fortieth—Nine candidates are engaged in the struggle here. Ald. John W. Chapman is being attacked as a little brother of the Thompson machine by Dr. Joseph C. Ross and Dr. William Duncan McNally, for twenty years coroner's chemist. Chapman has the M. V. L. indorsement. Dr. Ross charges that Ald. Chapman, who was instrumental in electing Erick Nelson Linn as committeeman on an anti-Thompson platform last April, "prevailed on Linn to vote for Homer K. Galpin for county chairman, and since then Linn and Chapman have controlled the Thompson patronage." Meanwhile J. A. Schiller is getting strong nonpartisan and Democratic support. Yesterday ex-Mayor Dever indorsed Mr. Schiller as "a loyal, conscientious legislator."

Four Candidates in Second Ward.

Second—Ald. Louis B. Anderson, a Thompson floor leader, has three opponents, and the M. V. L. reports this stronghold of Thompsonism on the verge of an uprising. Earl B. Dickerson has the support of the Deneen organization, now led by Edward H. Wright, former commerce commissioner under Gov. Len Small. James G. Cotter says he is the only candidate who supported Swanson for state's attorney last year. Augustus L. Williams, an "original Deneen man," is running for the third time.

Forty-seventh—Ald. John J. Hoellen, who is styled "a close follower of Thompson" by the M. V. L., is being fought to a frazzle, with Matthew J. Schmidt making the chief onslaught. Hoellen was a protégé of County Commissioner John Gibson, the Thompson ward committeeman, and it is now rumored that Hoellen has ambitions to become committeeman himself. For weeks there has been quite a rift at the Thompson club. Eric A. Soderston, a third candidate, is expected to damage Hoellen more than Schmidt.

Forty-third—Something unique in aldermanic battles. Ald. Titus A. Haffa, who was convicted of a bootlegging conspiracy and sentenced last week, is out on $25,000 bond pending an appeal and is campaigning for reëlection against ex-Ald. Arthur Albert, who was ousted by the council two years ago after an election contest and his seat awarded to Haffa. There are two other candidates.

No Contest in Four Wards.

In addition to these headline battles there are many hard struggles. Only four aldermen have no rivals this year, the four being John J. Coughlin [1st], Joseph Cepak [22d], John S. Clark [30th], and Max Adamowski [38th].

The rest of the city may be surveyed briefly as follows:

NORTH SIDE

Seven of the nine north side wards are the scene of close fights. Besides the five already described, Ald. Albert F. Loescher, anti-Thompsonite, in the 44th, has three opponents—George Heppe, Marcus Kazan, and Joseph J. Miller. Loescher is a protégé of Circuit Court Clerk Thomas O. Wallace, the Brundage committeeman. The Wallace forces charge that Lincoln park patronage is being used against Loescher in behalf of Miller.

Ald. William H. Feigenbutz [45th], termed by the M. V. L. as "a consistent follower of Thompson," has for chief opponent, George W. Schmidt, who for seven years has been an expert in the income tax department of the U. S. revenue department. Paul Slivinski is also rated a strong candidate.

Ald. Eli Frankhauser [49th] has three opponents, but does not regard it as a real fight. His leading rival is J. Perry Quinlan, a coal dealer.

Ald. John A. Massen in the 48th has five opponents, but his managers say he will win without a run off. Robert W. Hommes, a highway engineer, declared he will get into a run-off election, as does Harry A. Hooker, a real estate developer.

SOUTH SIDE

Of the nineteen south side wards, at least eleven have well developed scrimmages. Three of these have already been outlined. An analysis of the others follows:

Ald. Robert R. Jackson [3rd] is regarded as well in the lead of his two opponents, Julius J. Link and Nathan S. Taylor.

In the 4th Ald. B. A. Cronson, a nephew of Corporation Counsel Samuel A. Ettelson, has four opponents. Alex Kieferstein has the support of the M. V. L. and of Julius Rosenwald. Ald. Cronson has the backing of the Harding-Passmore-Krutchkoff combine and has indorsements from many influential residents of the ward. Dr. George W. Prince, a Negro physician, is strongly supported.

Ald. Guy Guernsey [6th], a council leader, has five opponents. The issue has been raised of improvements for the ward. As a strong anti-Thompsonite, Ald. Guernsey has been met with the usual reprisals from the city hall in the way of cutting down on street cleaning and garbage removals. His leading opponents are Fred H. Burke and William Lee Bradshaw.

Fight for Woodhull's Job.

In the Seventh there is a hot struggle for the aldermanic shoes vacated by Ross A. Woodhull when he became sanitary trustee. Clement A. Nance has the backing of the Democrats and of the Deneen organization, including State's Attorney John A. Swanson and District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson. Morgan L. Fitch, a son-in-law of Charles Ringer, Thompson committeeman, is figured as Nance's chief rival. Fitch insists that he is independent. Harry E. Fisher is backed by a volunteer precinct organization. Walter J. O'Brien and George L. O'Hara are the other candidates.

Ald. Sheldon W. Govier has eight opponents in the Ninth, but is ready to wager that he will win on Tuesday without a runoff. The M. V. L. places him among the six or seven best members of the council.

In the Tenth Ald. William A. Rowan is opposed by Charles J. Johnson. Ald. John P. Wilson [11th], with five opponents, is not regarded as having much of a scrap.

Ald. Bryan Hartnett in the Twelfth has a struggle. Fred B. Heiser, former chief clerk to Attorney General Oscar Carlstrom, is cutting in and Alexander Bukowski is reported rolling up Polish votes. The other candidate is B. J. Zintak.

McDonough Sees Victory.

Ald. Joseph B. McDonough [13th] has Thompson-Crowe opposition, but expects to win hands down. The same is true of Ald. William R. O'Toole [14th], whose leading opponent is Joseph M. Fitzgerald, former county commissioner. Ald. Thomas F. Byrne [15th] has three rivals, but he has no cause for worry. Ald. T. F. Moran [16th] also has three opponents.

The Seventeenth is scene of a hot fight against Ald. James G. Coyle, who has followed the Thompson administration. Ex-Ald. Robert E. Barbee is the Deneen candidate. This is the home ward of Senator Deneen. In the Eighteenth Ald. P. F. Ryan, a Thompson follower, is being given a warm race by three rivals. Walter W. Morris has the M. V. L. indorsement.

The Nineteenth is one shining spot where the contest is nonpartisan. Leading candidates are Paul Herriott, O. E. Northrup, Robert C. Rohn, Peter J. Whalen and Frank McGlinn. There are five others.

WEST SIDE

In the 22 west side wards there are warm fights in twelve. Outside of those already sketched, the principal one is in the 36th, against Ald. Eugene L. Nusser, a Thompson follower and son-in-law of George Hitzman, Thompson committeeman and state grain inspector. Nusser is opposed by Capt. Leonard M. Rice, who bears the M. V. L. indorsement, and Lawrence J. Fenlon, who has indorsements from ex-Mayor Dever and Francis X. Busch, under whom he was an assistant corporation counsel. A fourth candidate is Charles A. Kirkwood.

In the 37th Ald. Wiley W. Mills has seven opponents, and its appears more than likely that the election will go to a run off. J. H. Taylor, Edward J. Finan and Irwin R. Hasen Jr. are regarded as Mills' most formidable rivals.

Ald. Frank R. Ringa [39th], "a Thompson follower with a poor record," so the M. V. L. tags him, is in a grueling battle. Frank J. Reilly and Leo J. Winiecki are reported pushing him hard, and six other candidates are cutting into the vote.

Ald. George Seif [35th] has eight opponents. Seif has been indorsed by the Deneen organization under Earl Juul. Ald. Frank A. Sloan [26th] has a great battle, his chief opponent being John M. Bolton. The campaigning has been attended with charges of intimidation.

Triangular Fight in 31st.

Ald. Stanley Adamkewicz [31st] is in the thick of a triangular combat with Joseph Przybylo and Frank E. Konkowski. Prof. Graham Taylor and Harriet E. Vittum are reported to have come out for the alderman.

In the 33d Ald. Joseph Petlak, a Thompsonised alderman, is being battled to the ropes by George M. Rosczynialski. In the 32d Ald. Joseph Higgins Smith is fighting it out with Joseph S. Kobrzynski.

The 41st has an interesting fight, Ald. Thomas J. Bowler, indorsed by the Deneen group, versus James A. Davis, a wholesale fish dealer, who has the backing of Leroy Millner, Thompson committeeman. A third candidate is Dr. Petra M. Dahl, the only woman entry in the aldermanic campaign. Bowler is regarded by ward leaders as the winner.

For the rest the west side seems fairly well bottled up in advance. Aldermen who are listed as almost certain of coming back are: D. A. Horan [21st], John Toman [23d], Jacob M. Arvey [24th], James B. Bowler [25th], H. C. Van Norman [27th], George M. Maypole [28th], Albert J. Horan [29th], Edward J. Kaindl [34th].

JUDGE JARECKI ASKS SPECIAL POLICE POLL GUARDS IN NINE WARDS

County Judge Jarecki and Chairman Fred V. Maguire of the election board took further steps yesterday to protect Tuesday's election from fraud and violence.

The county judge sent to Charles Center Case, attorney for the vote commissioners, a letter instructing him to organize his department, in such a way that expert legal talent will be immediately available throughout the day not only to pass on questions of law that are raised at the polls, but also to see that evidence of violations of the law is collected while the trail is still hot.

Chairman Maguire sent to Police Commissioner Russell a letter asking for particular police precautions in nine wards where the aldermanic contests are hot and where, according to past experiences, cheating, fighting, and kidnapings must be guarded against.

"I asked Commissioner Russell for special police precautions in the Second, Third, Eleventh, Twelfth, Twentieth, Twenty-sixth, Twenty-seventh, Forty-second and Forty-third wards," said Chairman Maguire. "I especially requested attention for the Twentieth and Twenty-sixth wards which have been trouble spots in the past, and we hope that two policemen will be assigned to each polling place in the Twentieth. In each of these nine wards, also, we expect there will be a number of squad cars. At the board rooms, we have asked for a reserve force of forty detectives."

KILLED BY FALL AT STEEL MILL.

Simon Urbina, 34 years old, 10632 Torrence avenue, fell while working on a mould in the Wisconsin Steel mills at 2701 East 116th street, yesterday, and was instantly killed.

INDORSES BONDS FOR EXTENSION OF LINCOLN PARK

Plan Group Urges Voters to Approve $2,000,000.

The Chicago Plan commission yesterday issued a statement indorsing the proposed $2,000,000 bond issue for the extension of the Lincoln park system northward along the lake front which will be submitted to the voters next Tuesday.

The statement included a boost from James Simpson, chairman of the commission, reading:

"Nothing which the residents and property owners of the Lincoln park district could do will result in more lasting benefit than the completion of the Lincoln park extension."

Plan Park to Montrose Avenue.

The proposed bond issue is intended to carry the land making and developing activities of the park board as far north as Montrose avenue. Present operations cover the extension from Addison street to Lawrence avenue.

"The lake front park development," said the plan commission's statement, "is one thing which all the world envies Chicago.

"Building park lands for the health and pleasure of the people needs little urging in an intensively built up city like Chicago, where air and sunshine and some contact with nature are essential to the public health.

"But when that park development also adds to the value of property throughout the park district, the human and business advantages together form an unanswerable argument for increasing the area of our lake front parks."

Comments on Bond Defeats.

The statement commented on the fate of the city bond issues rejected by the voters last year, saying:

"While he recognizes that twice last year the voters rejected bond issues proposed by the city, Mr. Simpson feels that the reasons responsible for that condition do not exist with regard to the Lincoln park proposition.

"As a matter of fact, the Lincoln park bond issues always have been approved by the voters of the district because they get the immediate and principal benefit from the money spent."

HOT PARK CAMPAIGN ON

Several improvement associations of the northwest side are making a spirited effort to elect James W. Hamilton and Paul H. Schleir commissioners of the Irving Park district at next Tuesday's election. They are opposing two incumbents, John E. Smith and Merrill J. Moffatt.

Hamilton and Schleir are making their campaign on the ground that the northern section of the park district, lying along Lawrence avenue, has been discriminated against in the matter of establishing parks and playgrounds. They insist that with its large annual expenditures the park commission should provide more playgrounds and other recreational facilities for the children of their part of the district.

The voters of the Ridge park district, in the Beverly Hills section, will pass on the question whether the maximum of bonding power shall be increased to 5 per cent of the taxable property in the district.

Norwegian Lutherans Open Semi-Annual Conference

Nearly 100 Lutheran laymen and clergymen gathered at the Trinity Lutheran church, Richmond street and Wabansia avenue, yesterday, to open the semi-annual conference of the thirty congregations which make up the Chicago circuit of the Norwegian Lutheran church of America. Only one service was held yesterday. The Rev. Herman Ausan of Oak Park and the Rev. Omer Brenne, Nazareth church, preached. Two services will be conducted today, one at 3:30 and the other at 7:45 p. m., and tomorrow the conference will close.

BANNOCKBURN TO VOTE MAR. 23 ON INCORPORATING

County Judge Perry L. Persons of Waukegan yesterday set March 23 as the date for an election to determine whether the village of Bannockburn shall be incorporated as an exclusive residential community where road houses and lunch stands will be prohibited.

All of the 123 householders in the area of two square miles, which the proposed village will comprise, have signed a petition for incorporation which was presented to Judge Persons yesterday. The proposed village embraces 1,228 acres of land adjoining Lake Forest, Highland Park and Deerfield in Deerfield township.

Over $1,000,000 has already been expended for paving, sewers, water mains, gas mains and electricity in the district, it is claimed. Further improvements are contemplated for this summer. The Chicago law firm of Zane, Morse and Norman drew up and filed the petition for incorporation.

New Radio, to Broadcast Council Action, Indicated

The radio apparatus over which council proceedings will be broadcast from the council chambers was dedicated yesterday by Ald. Oscar Nelson [46th], who obtained the order for its installation. The delay quieted the fears of numerous aldermen that the council sessions would be lengthened by campaign talks from those who realized that their speeches were being broadcast. There is no council meeting until after the aldermanic election on Tuesday.

HOOVER IS STILL BUSY ON CABINET AND HIS SPEECH

Surprises in Store for Washington Guessers.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—With only a week remaining before his inauguration and the capital humming with preparations for the great event, President Elect Hoover is still working out the problem of his cabinet appointments and has final revisions to make in his inaugural address.

He has plenty of splendid material for his official family, but the list is flexible and there are surprises still in store for the Washington cabinet guessers who make up daily lists and then have to discard them. Mr. Hoover is striving to put the seal of silence on his callers and has succeeded in a large measure, but a few who have talked with him have talked elsewhere and there is general agreement that two or three places may go unfilled until the last moment.

How Selections Are Made.

The only sure source of speculation centers around Mr. Hoover's callers, and he is confining this list largely now to the matter of appointments. It does not follow that men who are summoned to see "the chief," as Mr. Hoover is always called by those who work with him, are cabinet material themselves. The method of the selections is not so simple.

There was an original list of at least 150 availables, or prospects. Trusted friends of Mr. Hoover were sent out to look over the field and report on candidates, even to estimate personalities and temperaments, as well as open and hidden records. The list gradually narrowed with the retention of several men who might be shifted to any one of two or three positions.

Henry M. Robinson of Los Angeles, Edward Ricard of New York, A. W. Shaw of Chicago, and others have been consulted and have made reports. Mr. Robinson was with Mr. Hoover today.

Chicageans Are Discussed.

Senator Deneen of Illinois conferred with Mr. Hoover this afternoon. He refused to discuss the subject of the conference, but it is presumed to be appointments. In view of the retirement of Roy O. West as secretary of the interior, Mr. Hoover may wish to recognize Chicago and the middle west in his cabinet, but no decision has been reached.

It is reported that the commerce post is to go to a Chicagoan and that Dr. Julius Klein, who has been most frequently listed for this job, will be made one of Mr. Hoover's three White House secretaries. Julius Rosenwald's name has been used in this connection. Besides James W. Good's candidacy for attorney general, Chicago has two other names on that tentative list. They are Silas Strawn and Gen. William Nathan McChesney.

Borah Pays Visit.

Senator Borah of Idaho was a consultant on the entire problem of the attorney generalship and prohibition enforcement, his own specifications being considered ideal from the Hoover standpoint. The Idahoan was a visitor at the Hoover home again today. He took with him this time John W. Hart, former national committeeman from Idaho.

Judge Frank S. Dietrich of Boise, the man who sat in the Wheeler trial at Great Falls, when the Montana senator was prosecuted by the federal government and acquitted, is one of those known to be under consideration for attorney general.

Thomas D. Campbell, Montana wheat farmer, returned to Washington today from Russia and was in conference with Mr. Hoover this afternoon. While there has been a drive to have Mr. Campbell appointed secretary of agriculture, there is no assurance that he has been selected.

Senator Brookhart of Iowa, who is chairman of a special committee delving into the subject of patronage in the south, was one of Mr. Hoover's callers today. This committee is about southern states. Republican leaders to widen its investigation into several of the "new south" are convinced that the old methods of farming out federal jobs have been a curse to the party.

The latest supposedly inside report from Hoover headquarters is that Walter Brown of Toledo is definitely slated for the cabinet, probably as postmaster general, and that W. N. Doak of Virginia, vice president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, is the best bet for the labor portfolio.

EMMERSON WILL LEAD ILLINOISANS TO INAUGURATION

Special Train to Leave Thursday.

Gov. Louis L. Emmerson's special train to Washington will constitute the forefront of the Illinois delegation that will participate in the Hoover inaugural ceremonies and the accompanying festivities next week.

The Emmerson special will leave Springfield next Thursday as an official train, and so far as is known it will be the only one of that character from this state. There is no official train for either Chicago or Cook county, and the members of the local governments and political organizations probably will be scattered through several specials, most of which leave next Saturday.

A. of C. Charters Train.

Among these specials are those of the Chicago Association of Commerce and the Hamilton club, a Republican organization, which sees in the inauguration an opportunity for party celebration.

The commerce association's delegation will be led by its president, Frank F. Winans. Among those accompanying him will be William R. Dawes, former president of the organization, Charles Ward Seabury, W. Rufus Abbott, Thomas S. Hammond and Cornelius Lynde.

Hamilton Club Plans Train.

More than two hundred members of the Hamilton club are expected to leave on its special, according to President Will J. Bell. It will leave Chicago at 2:30 on Saturday and will be parked in Washington at a place convenient for its use as a substitute for a hotel.

The Hamilton club, it was announced, will have at least one car on the "Prosperity Special," a train chartered by private interests which is intended for the use of business and professional men not identified with organizations having their own train.

JOHN COOLIDGE HOPES SPOTLIGHT SHIFTS TO ALLAN HOOVER MAR. 4

Plainville, Conn., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—John Coolidge, who is the guest of Miss Florence Trumbull here for the week-end, today said he hoped the spotlight which plays upon the President's son will shift to Allan Hoover, after March 4.

"He is more than welcome to it all," said young Coolidge. In response to questions, he said he was not disappointed because his father would become a citizen in ten days.

He and Miss Trumbull agreed that they regard the engagement of Miss Anne Morrow and Lindbergh as "perfectly grand." They have sent their congratulations.

John said he is delighted at his experience in railroading and that he plans to make railroad operation his life work.

Bank Car Crew Fights Off Six Bandits; Kills One

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Six masked bandits and two guards of a bank's armored motor car shot it out in an outlying section of the city tonight in stage coach day fashion.

The bank employés won the battle and one of the bandits died in a hospital.

LEGION EXTENDS MEMBER DRIVE UNTIL MARCH 1

In compliance with a request from all post commanders in Cook county, the American Legion membership drive has been extended from Feb. 22 to March 1, state headquarters announced yesterday. Memberships and renewals are coming in rapidly, according to George Kellogg, county commander.

No accurate figures on new memberships are yet available, but legion officials say after the campaign is over the county will probably have in the neighborhood of 50,000 members.

OGDEN GOELET'S WIDOW, ONCE 400 LEADER, IS DEAD

Succumbs to Pneumonia at Age of 73.

New York, Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Mrs. Mary R. Goelet, widow of Ogden Goelet, died of pneumonia at the Savoy-Plaza hotel today. She was 73 years old. In failing health for some time, she became ill of influenza six days ago and pneumonia developed on Wednesday.

At her bedside were her son, Robert Goelet; her sister, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, and her nephew, Michael Herbert of London.

Mrs. Goelet was born in 1855, daughter of the late Richard T. Wilson, railroad pioneer and banker, and Mellissa Clementine Wilson, who came to New York from the south. She married Mr. Goelet, member of one of New York's prominent families, in 1878. The Goelet estate, along with the Gerry estate, derived from the realty holding in New York of Thomas B. Buchanan, who settled here early in the last century, was one of the largest of that age.

Put Wealth at Sixty Millions.

At Mr. Goelet's death on his steam yacht Virginia, at Cowes in 1897, his wealth was estimated at $60,000,000.

Mrs. Goelet was noted for her hospitality in the '80s and '90s, and was active socially until a few years ago. She and her husband entertained lavishly at Wimborne house, their London residence; at Ochre Court, their Newport villa; at their home here and on their yacht, the Mayflower. Among their guests they had counted Edward VII. when he was Prince of Wales.

Among Mrs. Goelet's friends were practically all the society leaders of the last two decades of the last century, both here and in England. Here she was often associated with the late Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, the late Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs, and the late Mrs. William Astor.

Relinquishes Her Leadership.

Mrs. Goelet relinquished her leadership of the 400 a number of years ago when she went to Europe and remained there several seasons. She had spent much of her time in recent years with her daughter, the Duchess of Roxburghe, formerly May Goelet, at Floors castle, Scotland.

The funeral will be held at the old Goelet mansion on Fifth avenue, one time scene of many brilliant social events, which has remained closed many seasons.

Motorist Given New Trial in Manslaughter Case

With no additions yesterday, Cook county's motor toll since Jan. 1 remained at 104. Andrew Knizner, 25 years old, a plumber, who was convicted on a manslaughter indictment growing out of a traffic collision, was granted a new trial yesterday by Judge Thomas J. Lynch. He was a driver in a crash that fatally injured Martin Dougherty, 24 years old, a salesman, who was riding in the second machine. Judge Lynch, in ruling on the motion for a new trial, held that the evidence did not warrant the jury's guilty verdict.

DEPUTY HELD FOR SHOOTING MAN.

Kenosha, Wis., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Frank Buttera, 26, deputy sheriff who admitted shooting Mike Sitars, 23, Thursday night, was charged with assault with a deadly weapon when he was arraigned in the Municipal court today. He pleaded not guilty and will face trial March 6.

WOMAN ASSUMES ALL BLAME FOR KIDNAPING GIRL; 3 OTHERS FREED

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Mrs. Edna Sharp, confessed kidnaper of four year old Doris Smith-Murphy, today absolved three other persons arrested in connection with the disappearance of the child from a playground a week ago.

In her confession Mrs. Sharp took the entire blame. She exonerated her husband, Charles Sharp, C. C. Bidwell, a radio salesman, who first suspected Doris' identity, and John A. Williams, 63, employé of the United States mint here.

Williams was arrested early in the investigation when it was disclosed he had made a practice of purchasing candy for children at the playground where little Doris was kidnaped.

The child was returned to her parents yesterday by Mrs. Sharp. She told police she took Doris from the playground on an impulse because she reminded her of her own child, who is being cared for by relatives.

Police Judge Sylvani Lazarus set Mrs. Sharp's case for hearing Feb. 27. She was taken to the city jail in lieu of $20,000 bail. Williams was freed by court, Sharp released on his own recognizance, and Bidwell was designed a material witness in the case.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Murphy, parents of baby Doris demanded that Mrs. Sharp be placed either in the state prison or an insane asylum.

DENIES OFFER TO END McCLINTOCK WILL LITIGATION

Attorney Weymouth Kirkland, chief of counsel for William D. Shepherd, denied last night that his client has offered $750,000 to settle the fight over the $1,300,000 estate of William McClintock. No amount has been mentioned in negotiations for settlement of the will fight, Mr. Kirkland said, and the litigation has no prospect of being settled for months.

Shepherd, who was tried and acquitted on a charge of murdering his young ward, McClintock, was made heir to the estate in the will with the exception of $3,000 a year deeded to Miss Isabelle Pope, McClintock's fiancée. Eight cousins filed suit to break the will and Miss Pope was said to have reached an agreement with them whereby she was to receive half of the estate if they won the suit.

Attorney Robert H. Stoll, also representing Shepherd, declared that the cousins had not yet been officially designated as heirs and that therefore no negotiations could be carried on with them.

POLITICS CURBS WORK OF POLICE, CITIZENS FIND

External Hardships Are Greatest, Report Says.

Politics and other external handicaps to efficient police work constitute one of the major problems which confronts the committee of eight, appointed to undertake an extensive survey of the police department, according to the report submitted yesterday. The report, a preliminary study of the situation which the committee will analyze, was made to four citizens placed in charge of the entire survey by Commissioner of Police William F. Russell.

Organization of the larger committee, which has direct charge of the work, was announced in the report. Dean John H. Wigmore, of the Northwestern University law school, has been elected chairman; Prof. Leonard D. White of the University of Chicago, vice president; and Frederic B. Crossley, secretary.

External Handicaps Greatest.

This committee has held two meetings and is at present, the report states, engaged in the preliminary survey. Later, an expert staff will be organized to do the actual survey work.

"Of greatest importance are the external handicaps to efficient police work," the report states. "These are conditions existing outside of the police department, but of prime significance in determining the efficiency of police work. Among them are:

"1. The influence of politics in selecting, promoting, assigning, and handling the police force, and in determining police policy.

"2. The adequacy or inadequacy of support given to the police by the local courts.

"3. The status of the criminal law.

"4. The division of police and authority between city, parks, and other districts.

"5. The lack of public sympathy toward the police department.

"6. The lack of proper connection with the sheriff and other law enforcing agencies, the police of other cities, and the absence of a state department of criminal identification."

Questions Recruiting System.

Another large group of problems, the report states, revolves around the recruiting and management of the police force. Included in these are such questions as the selective power of the examination, the quality of the character test, and the adequacy of the training school and the desirability of special training for sergeants and higher officers.

Methods of assignment and reassignment, of promotion and transfer, of discipline and removal, should be considered also in this group, according to the report. In addition there arises the questions of the effectiveness of the efficiency record, and the means of building up the morale of the force.

Internal organization and management of the police force is considered a major subject in the report. This portion of the survey should consider such questions as "Is the city properly districted and are these districts flexible?" "Is the department top-heavy, having too many supervisory officers?" "Is the commissioner of police properly safeguarded in his position and is there a police general staff?"

Integrity Under Scrutiny.

"Of fundamental importance is the question of the integrity of the police department," the report continues. "It is not the primary business of the proposed study to search out malefactors in the police department. It is important, however, to scrutinize the methods by which police delinquents are discovered and dealt with. If these methods are unsatisfactory the efficiency of the department is bound to suffer."

In the course of the survey, the committee will hold hearings at which any citizen who has information concerning the department will be invited to attend. To assist in the work a "police contact committee," consisting of policemen, and citizens' advisory committee will be appointed.

Loesch Heads Committee.

Commissioner Russell's committee, to whom the report was sent, consists of Frank J. Loesch, president of the Chicago Crime Commission; Walter Dill Scott, president of Northwestern university; Frederick C. Woodward, acting president of the University of Chicago, and Judge Andrew A. Bruce, president of the American Institute of Criminal Law and Criminology.

The committee of eight was appointed by the Russell group to take active charge of the work. Its members, besides its elected officers, consist of Mr. Bruce; Ernest W. Burgess, professor of sociology, University of Chicago; Ernst W. Puttkammer of the University of Chicago law school; George O. Fairweather, business manager of the University of Chicago, and Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director of the Chicago crime commission.

GIRL INJURED IN SALOON BRAWL; SEEK BARTENDER

Miss Emily Webb, 21 years old, 416 South 6th street, Maywood, was in critical condition at the Oak Park hospital last night while the police sought a bartender she accused of injuring her last Thursday night in a brawl in a saloon at Chicago and Homan avenues.

The girl's roommate, Miss Sylvia Decker, took her to the hospital. Physicians said she had been kicked and that an incision made in a recent operation had reopened, causing gangrene. They feared she would die.

The injured girl said her sweetheart, Roy Mendinger, had taken her to the saloon. Mendinger and the bartender, whom she heard called Walker, quarreled, she said. In the struggle she was knocked to the floor and kicked by Walker.

avenue as his address. Capizzio's Circus café, next door, is said to be one of the headquarters of the men Vallo had recruited into a new gang.

Belcastro, it was stated, was also connected with Tony Florentino, believed to be the man who was burned in the Wood street garage fire that was started to destroy the murder car. The fire victim was seen by Dr. James Galloway and Mrs. Myrtle Engles, a nurse at the North Avenue hospital. Other companions of Belcastro were said to be George Bousk, beer salesman and collector; Sam La Verde, who was taken into custody at the Circus, and others whose names are known by the police as members of this gang but were not revealed.

Dentist Tells of Kidnaping.

This phase of the investigation—now under way ten days—was interrupted last night by the return to Chicago of Dr. Loyal Tacker, a dentist, 420 Surf street, who related a story of being slugged and kidnaped because he had reported to police that he believed he could identify a man seen in front of the massacre garage at the time of the killings by the chauffeur for H. Wallace Caldwell, president of the board of education. One of this man's front teeth was missing, the chauffeur said.

At noon yesterday Dr. Tacker was found wandering in Detroit in a dazed condition. He exhibited a bruise on the head and marks on wrists and ankles where he said he had been tied after being slugged when he left his home Friday night.

Dr. Tacker entered the investigation when he told of having extracted an upper tooth of a man the night before the massacre. He was shown pictures and he picked out one as that of his patient. This man had been in the county jail since last November, according to Chief of Detectives John Egan.

Sticks to His Statement.

Newspapers did not print Dr. Tacker's name as a witness in the Moran case, but he expressed the opinion he had been abducted by the Moran gang killers because he had given a statement to the police, and he said the first intention of his kidnapers was to kill him. He declared that he could identify his kidnapers but he was unable to identify pictures of suspects in the Moran massacre shown to him last night.

Police learned that he had married last summer, but recently had been seeing his former wife. At one of his meetings with her, it was said, he received a scalp injury that necessitated surgical attention. Yet his story on his return from Detroit was straightforward and unshaken and it proved an unsolved puzzle last night.

Another man questioned was Oscar Klinger, cigar store owner and professional pugilist. Sergt. Shea said Klinger had been under the management of Claude Maddox and is believed to know Maddox's present hiding place.

Two Women Threatened.

Because of the statement of Dr. Tacker and the threatening letters sent to Mrs. Alphonsine Morin, 2125 North Clark street, and Mrs. Jeanette Landesman, 2124 North Clark street, who had seen men believed to have been the killers, the police were especially alert as the inquiry progressed.

Mrs. Morin's part in the investigation had to do with looking at pictures with the possibility in view of being able to identify men who engaged front rooms in her home from which it is believed they watched the garage across the street where the Moran gang assembled and where the seven were slain. Mrs. Landesman saw none of the killers, but, living next door to the garage, she had heard the shots and her curiosity resulted in the first call for the police.

Find Police Coat in Box Car.

A Chicago policeman's uniform overcoat was found yesterday in a railroad box car near Triumph, Ill. State's Attorney Russell O. Hanson of La Salle county notified the detective bureau. The buttons which bore the name and seal of the city of Chicago had been cut off and put in a pocket. The coat had been cut off around the bottom but not hemmed, indicating it was too long for the man who wore it last, the police said.

On the possibility that it had been used by one of the killers of the seven Moran followers, Deputy Commissioner Stege asked that it be sent here, together with affidavits concerning its discovery by William Landers, a farmer.

When the inquest was resumed yesterday Coroner Herman N. Bundesen said that because of the difficulties attending the investigation and the lack of necessity of having the testimony of the many witnesses now given publicly under oath he would continue the inquest to give the police more time to investigate.

Find Machine Gun Bullets.

The roadhouse of Joseph Wagner at Roosevelt road and Harlem avenue, Forest Park, was raided late last night by the county highway police under Sergts. Francis J. Caraher and Joseph Siebeck. They seized nine men and a woman and confiscated a supply of machine gun and automatic pistol bullets and several boxes of shells for automatic shotguns. In searching the men the police found a loaded .45 caliber automatic pistol on John Began, 4940 North Spaulding avenue, said by the police to be a friend of James "Fur" Sammons and William "Klondike" O'Donnell. Began denied any knowledge of the shells.

Several places in the city where police found violations of the recent closing order were raided.

Doctor Answers Call; Finds Robbers, Not Sick Woman

Dr. M. J. Naughton, residing at the Chicago hospital, 811 East 49th street, received a telephone call at the hospital last night asking him to come to an apartment at 723 Ellis avenue to attend a sick woman. He drove to the address, accompanied by Dr. B. P. Conway of the hospital, who remained in the automobile while Dr. Naughton entered the apartment. He was met inside by two armed men who held him up and robbed him of $14. The robbers escaped through a rear exit.

Negro Boy Confesses He Molested 14 Evanston Girls

Arrested on suspicion by Policemen Ernest Otto and William Johnson in Evanston last night, James Druitt, 14 year old Negro of 1802 Brown avenue, confessed to having molested 14 women and girls in Evanston in the last year, according to Lieut. Carl Ekman, who questioned him. Several women who had complained recently of molestation by a young Negro came to Evanston police headquarters and identified the boy, Lieut. Ekman said.

Policeman Awarded $10 for Capturing Two Robb

Policeman William F. Kaisf of the south park force yesterday was awarded $100 and commended for valor by the south park board for capturing two fleeing holdup men after he had wounded both in a short range revolver battle. The two robbers were fleeing in an automobile after holding up a store at 68th street and Stony Island avenue when Kais took up the chase. The bandits' car was halted by a traffic light; they attempted to shoot it out with the policeman as he approached in a commandeered automobile.

STEGE ANSWERS POLICE CRITICS WITH RECORDS

5 Murders, 350 Robberies Solved in Week.

Nettled over recent public criticism of the police department in connection with the north side gang massacre, Deputy Commissioner John Stege issued an announcement yesterday in which he asserted that the public lack of faith in its police is unjustified and that the Chicago department is as efficient as any other in the country.

Says Public Is Misled.

"Since those gang murders," Deputy Stege said, "the public has been willing to accept any rumor involving the police department in the crime. Not one real clue has developed justifying this attitude. The public mind, nevertheless, is convinced that the police were somehow involved.

"Of course such a crime gets the play in the press which a lesser crime could not hope to receive. But it is these smaller daily crimes of robbery, burglarly, stickup and racketeering which form the real foundation for a crime record. In their solution, the department has been signally efficient. During the last week no less than five murders and over 350 robberies were cleared up."

Cites Records of the Week.

In proof of his contention, Deputy Stege offered a partial list of the crimes solved by the police department during the week. The list follows:

Frank, James and George LeMoyne confessed to sixty-one robberies. They are also suspected of killing of Policeman Walter Lilly in a holdup several months ago.

Joseph Nash, James Wright and John Peacock confessed to 150 robberies of chain stores.

James Gamache, arrested here after he had participated in a pay roll stickup in Detroit, in which two policemen were killed. He confessed 30 Chicago robberies.

Oliver Baker and Fred Scheuerman confessed to 18 robberies.

Four Negro bandits, arrested by Sergt. Frank Reynolds. They confessed 53 robberies.

Fred Stella, Joseph Cichocki, his brother, Michael; Vincent Smith and Robert Stanley, captured by Sergt. Barney Corcoran, confessed 50 robberies. Stella, police say, is wanted in Knox county, Indiana for the murder of a sheriff.

Peter Allegrettio and Nicholas Pasquale confessed seven robberies.

Albert Weiner, Harold Puleris, Joe Herman, Anton Adamski and John Broekema, confessed to 7 robberies and an assault to murder.

Daniel Scagudino and his brother, Harold, confessed to 13 burglaries.

William Kramer, Joe Dowling, Jack Kane and Lawrence Harold confessed to 26 burglaries.

"Many of these men were ex-convicts and had long records," Deputy Stege asserted.

FAMILY AND ITS PETS FLEE MILL BLAZE

Loss Is $200,000

Damage amounting to $200,000 was caused by fire early yesterday in two wood working plants on the west and northwest sides. More than 1,000 spectators were attracted to the blaze which swept the Elston Mill and Sash plant at 4524 Elston avenue, with an estimated damage of $150,000. In an earlier fire at the Anton Clemetsen cabinet works, 3134 West Chicago avenue, the damage was $50,000.

CHICAGO'S CRIME HOTBED WITHIN A MILE OF LOOP

Sociologist "Zones" City's Lawlessness.

New York, Feb. 23.—[Special.]—More crime has originated within a mile of the loop district in Chicago than any other area of similar proportions in that city, according to Dr. Clifford R. Shaw, research sociologist of the Institute for Juvenile Research, Chicago, in an address at the annual meeting of the American Orthopsychiatric association at the Hotel Pennsylvania today. Dr. Shaw said that delinquent traditions in the area have been carried on irrespective of the nationality of the inhabitants.

In a study of the geographical distribution of juvenile and adult crime in Chicago, Dr. Shaw said, eight circular areas, extending from the "loop" were taken, each boundary being a mile beyond the other.

Highest Near Loop.

The highest rate of delinquency, 25 per cent, occurred in the territory immediately surrounding the loop district. In the second zone there was 18 per cent; in the third, 11 per cent; the fourth, 8 per cent; fifth, 5 per cent; sixth, 4 per cent; seventh, 3 per cent, and in the eighth zone, 2 per cent of delinquency.

Although the composition of populations of the different areas has changed, the rates of deliquency have remained constant, Dr. Shaw said. The area adjacent to the loop, he explained, was inhabited by German and Irish in 1900 and is now inhabited by an Italian, Polish and Negro populace.

As the German and Irish population moved out of the district, the percentage of delinquents among them decreased, according to Dr. Shaw's statistics. From 20 per cent in 1900, he said, the rate was reduced in 1928 among German delinquents to 2.5 per cent, while 18 per cent of delinquency among the Irish population in 1900 was reduced in 1928 to 1.2 per cent.

A Matter of Background.

"You can not say that one nationality is more delinquent than another," Dr. Shaw declared. "Tentatively, this seems to indicate that delinquency, to a certain extent, reflects the community background in which the delinquent lives. Gang delinquencies are largely products of the social disorganizations that result from the very rapid growth of the city."

He explained that the area adjacent to the "loop" in Chicago was in a process of transition in which there is a breakdown of the community. The community organization goes to pieces, he said, and results in personal disorganization and "it is in that area that gangs develop — behavior to a certain extent is determined by culture and social organization."

PLAN MONUMENT TO ALL ILLINOIS WAR VETERANS

A bill to appropriate $200,000 for a monument to perpetuate the memory of Illinois veterans of all wars in which the United States has participated will be discussed on March 6 by the state senate committe on appropriations and a committee appointed yesterday at a meeting of the Illinois Veterans Monument association. The bill is to be presented next Tuesday by Senator Lowell B. Mason and Representative R. E. Church.

Officials of George H. Thomas post, No. 5, G. A. R., who have been active in the association, pointed out that, although veterans of various wars have been honored by the erection of individual monuments, there has been no memorial raised to Illinois veterans as a body, regardless of the period in which they served.

Leading men in public life, including Vice President Charles G. Dawes, have endorsed the proposed memorial, according to James C. Thomas, adjutant of the post.

MAYOR IS NAMED CO-DEFENDANT IN 6TH PAVING SUIT

Mayor Thompson was named a codefendant yesterday in the sixth of a series of suits brought by the law firm of McKinney, Lynde & Grear, alleging that a paving contractors' ring, in connivance with the city administration, has cost the taxpayers thousands of dollars in excessive prices for street work.

Attorney Hayes McKinney said he will ask permission of the court to amend the five previously filed bills to include Thompson as a defendant.

Bidders Limited, Charge.

The mayor is brought into the picture on the theory that he is responsible for the situation in that he picked Michael J. Faherty as president of the board of local improvements.

The board of local improvements, it is alleged in this latest as well as in the former suits, allowed a combination of contractors to limit the number of bidders for street contracts. The complaint is brought ostensibly by Mary Cecelia Mead, a taxpayer.

Asks Recovery by City.

Yesterday's bill is directed at four paving contracts with a public benefit assessment totaling $204,000. Two of the jobs are for Milwaukee avenue, one for Kimball avenue, and the fourth for Peterson avenue. The complaint asks for an accounting and for a recovery for the city treasury of amounts alleged to have been paid in excess of a reasonable price for the work.

Besides the mayor and Faherty, the defendants include other members of the board of local improvements, the James A. Sackley Paving company, and Patrick H. Moynihan and John A. McGarry as president and secretary, respectively, of the Paving Contractors' association.

INDIAN HEIRESS FIGHTS TO VISIT DYING FATHER

Defeated in Court Battle for Her Liberty.

Inez Charging Hawk, 18 years old, reputed heir to a $1,000,000 estate from her Indian father, yesterday made an unsuccessful fight to get out of the House of the Good Shepherd.

The technical basis for her plea, presented in habeas corpus proceedings before Superior Judge Marcus Kavanagh, is that she is no longer a delinquent child, having reached the age of 18 on Jan. 14. The sympathetic plea was that her father, Sherman Charging Hawk, 72 years old, is dying with tuberculosis in Washington, D. C., where he is trying to arrange for the sale of his Oklahoma oil land through the department of the interior. She wishes to visit him, the court was told.

Judge Suggests Another Court.

On the question of law, Judge Kavanagh held that the girl is technically a child until she reaches the age of 21. On the appeal to his heart, the judge suggested that the girl petition the Juvenile court, which sent her to the House of the Good Shepherd.

Inez was not in court. She was represented by Attorney Mary Belle Spencer, who told the girl's story.

Almost twenty years ago Charging Hawk, a full blood Indian, was stopping in Chicago on a pleasure trip. He met Ethel O'Neil, who was then 20 years old. They were married, without the knowledge or consent of her parents.

Takes Bride to Reservation.

The middle aged Indian and his young white bride went to the reservation, near St. Francis Mission, Okla. The squaws of his tribe did not welcome the paleface.

"The squaws," said Attorney Spencer, "would stick knives through the walls of the tepee where Ethel was sleeping to frighten her away. Mrs. Charging Hawk was called Numbo, and it is as Ethel Numbo that she is now living in Chicago. She was finally forced to leave the reservation. The Indian remained with his people.

"When the daughter, Inez, was old enough to think for herself she followed her mother to Chicago. She fell upon evil ways and was arrested and on March 23, 1927, was sentenced for delinquency.

"Charging Hawk's brothers and sisters died of tuberculosis. He was left with the family's government allotment, a square mile of territory, once poor farm land and now rich oil fields. His estate is estimated at $2,000,000.

"Last month Charging Hawk came through Chicago on his way to Washington. On Jan. 25 I drew his will, dividing his estate equally between his estranged wife and his daughter. He was ill at that time. Now he is reported to be dying."

DOCTOR FIGHTS TO SAVE WIFE IN DEATH STUPOR

New York, Feb. 23.—Dr. F. W. Fletcher of Freeport, L. I., today stood at the bedside of his wife and hour after hour, with the use of oxygen tanks, kept her alive.

Mrs. Fletcher had been suffering from insomnia, according to the physician, and took a sedative. Evidently it was an extravagant overdose.

Efforts to wake her at breakfast time were unavailing. She slept on. Then Dr. Fletcher noticed that her respiration was slow and weak and at once applied the customary tests.

Realizing that Mrs. Fletcher was in a coma from which there was only a fighting chance to rouse her, he telephoned the Freeport fire department for a tank of oxygen.

It was rushed to his home and the fight with death began. The fire department exhausted its six tanks and a call was sent to Hempstead and two more were supplied from the fire department there.

Mrs. Fletcher continued in the stupor. All emergency measures failed to return her to consciousness, but she still breathed.

This afternoon a hurry demand was sent to New York for six more oxygen tanks.

Federal Prisoners Make Their Home Brew, Too

Hinton, W. Va., Feb. 23.—(AP)—United States Commissioner E. C. Eagle, after a hearing today, ruled that evidence showed home brew had been made by federal prisoners in the Summers county jail but that there was insufficient evidence upon which to hold any particular individual.

CHICAGO PRIMES GUNS FOR WAR ON GAS TAX BILL

Hopes Brighten as Battle Plan Is Drawn Up.

BY PUTNEY HAIGHT.

Prospects for a more equitable participation by Cook county in the proceeds from the proposed 3 cent gasoline tax than is provided in the bill now before the general assembly were heightened yesterday when the Cook county senators and representatives, in conference at the county building, determined upon a program of resistance to passage of the measure.

Two steps were decided upon to forestall passage of the bill next Wednesday, when it comes up for hearing and second reading before both houses of the assembly. The first was the appointment of a committee to wait upon Gov. Louis L. Emmerson and request delay, as a result of Gov. Emmerson's assertion on Friday that he is not unalterably for the bill as it stands and would be inclined to listen to suggestions for bettering it.

Will Draw Up Amendments.

The second step was the appointment of a committee of representatives and senators to formulate an amendment or amendments embodying the suggestions advanced by various legislators and civic bodies at yesterday's conference. The amendment suggestions are to be ready for consideration by the delegation caucus at Springfield on Wednesday at 9 o'clock.

Senator Thomas Courtney presided at the conference and at the conclusion appointed a committee consisting of himself and Senators Woods, Hughes and McDermott and Representatives E. J. Schnackenburg, Michael Igoe, James Boyle and John M. Lee, which on Monday afternoon in Chicago will hear all proposals for amendments and recommend one as an instrument for attacking the Emmerson measure.

"The progress of this bill has been so rapid that it has taken the Cook county delegation, at least, by surprise," Senator Courtney said, "and unless we have something besides just opposition to offer, it will probably pass both houses without a struggle.

United Front Necessary.

"I am certain that Gov. Emmerson does not want to jam this bill through without proper consideration, but I am equally sure that unless we can unite upon a definite remedy for the injustice to Cook county motorists and the public generally, it will pass as is.

"Gov. Emmerson has indicated that he is not unalterably committed to the provisions of this particular bill, but that he will not recede from his support of it until something he considers as good or better is presented. We all believe that a fusillade of amendments will be of no use."

While a diffusion of ideas on what an equitable gas tax measure ought to be existed in the conference, one or two conclusions come to the surface which indicated a possible uniformity of thought.

One was the general approval of the principle that the gas tax should be distributed one-third to the state, one-third to the counties and one-third to the cities. In this view the conference was in harmony with the proposal of Mayor George Bartlett of Evanston, representing the league of municipalities.

Schnackenburg Tells Plan.

Rep. Schnackenburg outlined his suggestion that the three way division of the tax embrace a reduction of the state license fee to $1 and that the wheel tax in Chicago be abolished. Ald. John S. Clark [30th], chairman of the city council finance committee, objected to the wheel tax suggestion, saying that the present funds from that source are only about a third of what is needed.

Rep. Igoe and Sidney S. Gorham, representing the Chicago Motor club, called attention to a difficulty in distributing the gas tax to cities and villages, pointing out that some hamlets would have only $100 or $200 due them, and that such small sums could not be expended in road improvements. Eugene Taylor, representing James Simpson and the Chicago plan commission, asked if it would not be possible to restrict such refunds to sizable cities.

"The act must be general," Mr. Igoe replied, "and unquestionably if a return of a third is to be made to cities a vast amount of gasoline tax money will not go into highway improvements."

Gorham Quotes Figures.

Attorney Gorham startled the group with some figures on the yield of the proposed gas tax and other motor fees.

"Under the terms of this bill and of the existing license fees, plus federal aid and the natural increase in the number of cars, a grand total of $71,625,000 can be estimated as the state's highway income for the current biennium," Mr. Gorham said.

"Deduct from that the $50,285,000 appropriated in the proposed bill for building bond issue roads, widening roads, separating grades and returning a third to the counties and the state will have a surplus of $21,340,000 at the close of the period.

"I have not proceeded so far in my education in highway matters as yet to understand what necessity there is for a surplus of $21,000,000 in our state highway fund, after all the work the state has laid out for the biennium has been completed."

The subcommittee to consider amendments and suggestions will have its hearing in the county board rooms at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon.

The committee to wait upon Gov. Emmerson is to consist of representatives of the city, county, League of Municipalities, plan commission, and Chicago Motor club.

SECOND 'TORCH' MURDER VICTIM FOUND IN JERSEY

Woman Slain and Clothing Set Ablaze.

Cranford, N. J., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—A secluded highway leading into this peaceful town yielded at dawn today the blazing body of a murdered woman. She had been shot to death and tossed in a roadside snowbank where the slayer had ignited the gasoline soaked clothing of his victim.

Tonight, more than 12 hours after a sleepy-eyed baker making his early rounds had discovered the body, the police were still without clews either to the identity of the woman or to her slayer. A glimpse of a blue coupe, the uncertain value of dental work, the tracing of cheap jewelry were the only leads open to the detectives seeking solution.

Second Torch Murder.

The discovery of the body started the police on their second hunt for a "torch" murderer. A year and three days ago the body of Miss Margaret Brown, a governess in Park avenue, was found in flames behind a refreshment stand on the Bernardsville-Summit road, 24 miles from the scene of today's slaying. The earlier murder was never solved, although the murderer, with impudent derision of the police, communicated with them by letter.

Union county detectives tonight professed to place no credence in a theory that both women died by the same hand. She may have been slain for revenge, they said, or to prevent her giving confirmation to the authorities. They failed, however, to settle on any one motive for the crime.

The slain woman was about 45 years old, with reddish brown hair beginning to turn gray. Her clothing was of cheap material, her well worn shoes had been patched and her garments had been mended. A plain band of platinum on her finger prompted the police to believe that she was married, although the ring seemed to suggest a guard rather than a wedding band.

Discovers Blazing "Bundle."

The murder was discovered at 5:30 a. m. by Thomas Boyle, driver of an automobile delivery truck for a bakery who came upon the blazing "bundle" by the road. It lay about six feet from the roadway in the snow. The body had fallen face downward. Owing to the point of entrance of the single .31 caliber steel nosed bullet that caused death, which was directly through the top of the head, the police said that perhaps the woman was shot after having been pitched to the snow.

Every label or tag on the victim's clothing had been either destroyed by the fire or else removed. She wore a dark brown velour coat edged with rabbit fur dyed black. Her dress was of black satin and was of a mode long since out of style.

PILOT SETS NEW SPEED MARK ON AIR MAIL ROUTE

Ruben Wagner, mail pilot for the Boeing Air transport, flew out of Omaha, Neb., an hour and a half late early yesterday morning and landed in Chicago an hour ahead of schedule, setting a new record for the Omaha-Chicago link in the transcontinental route, the Boeing company announced yesterday.

Wagner left Omaha at 1:50 a. m., flying 1,600 pounds of mail in a new Boeing "95" mail ship. He eliminated the stops at Des Moines and Iowa City and arrived in Chicago at 4:20 a. m., having covered the 430 miles in 2 hours and 30 minutes, 10 minutes better than the previous record. His average speed was 172 miles an hour.

Summerall Made Full U. S. General

Gen. Charles P. Summerall, chief of staff, who yesterday became full ranking general, the sixth in the history of the United States. [Harris & Ewing Photo.]

Sixth to Win Rank

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Gen. Charles P. Summerall, army chief of staff, today became the sixth American army officer to assume the full rank of general.

His promotion followed presidential approval of a bill providing that the chief of staff of the army shall hold the title and rank of general during the time he holds that office.

This legislation not only gives the chief of staff the highest rank of any officer of the army, but also settles the controversial question of precedence between the army chief of staff and the chief of operations of the navy.

By it the question of precedence between the officers holding the rank of chief of staff and chief of operations will be determined by the dates of their respective appointments.

Nothing in the act, however, changes the relative rank of Gen. Summerall and Admiral Charles F. Hughes, chief of naval operations, during the time they hold office.

Gen. Summerall's predecessors reaching the grade of general include George Washington, Ulysses S. Grant, William T. Sherman, Phil H. Sheridan, and John J. Pershing. During the world war Tasker H. Bliss and Peyton C. March were given the emergency rank of general.

C. G. Dawes Coming Home to Boost World's Fair

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—[U.P.]—Vice President Dawes disclosed today he plans to remain indefinitely in Chicago after March 4 to devote himself chiefly to advancing the Chicago World's Fair planned for 1933. The Vice President's brother, Rufus Dawes, is president of the Chicago Centennial World's Fair commission.

CAVALRY WILL TRY OUT NEW, SPEEDY TANK

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—A thorough service test of the light Christie tank has been ordered by the war department as the result of experiments conducted with this new weapon during the last few months. Instead of testing the Christie machine as a tank, the department plans to try out its usefulness as a medium weight cross country armored car for use with the cavalry.

Officials said today that if the new tests of the Christie machine proved as successful as those conducted during the last few months with this machine it will probably be adopted by the cavalry in place of the medium weight armored automobiles.

In recent tests it has developed a speed of more than forty miles an hour across country. On the road a speed of 100 miles an hour is claimed for the machine.

An Income of 6.15% AND Valuable Stock Purchase Warrants

THE Great Northwest is still a land of opportunity. Abundant natural resources, excellent climate and more than ample rail and water facilities are bringing an increasing number of diversified industries to this region and the adjacent Canadian territory.

Investors, familiar with the stability and earning power of well managed public utilities, cannot fail to appreciate that this section offers an unusual opportunity for the rapid and consistent growth of the companies which serve it.

THE NORTH AMERICAN GAS AND ELECTRIC COMPANY controls subsidiaries serving over 28,000 customers in the state of Washington and the southern part of the Province of Saskatchewan, Canada. Its properties are highly developed and of sufficient capacity to handle future requirements for quite some time. It renders electric light and power, manufactured gas, and water service.

The 6% Debentures of this company constitute its only funded debt. The total funded debt of the company and its subsidiaries, including this issue, aggregates less than 52% of the property valuation.

Moreover, these Debentures carry stock purchase warrants which give the holder attractive rights to purchase the Common Stock of the Company.

Earnings are more than 3 times annual interest requirements.

Through years of association, we are familiar with the ability of the men responsible for the progress of this company. Because of this and the very favorable location of the company's activities, we feel that the success and future growth of this company are assured.

These Debentures are offered, subject to prior sale and change in price, at 98.50 and accrued interest,

$24,000,000 DRY FUND MEETS 2D DEFEAT IN HOUSE

Prohibition Lobby Hit by Steam Roller.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Efforts of the southern dry church lobby to force an additional appropriation of $24,000,000 for Volstead enforcement into the pending second deficiency supply bill were smothered under a Republican steam roller in the house today.

Pushing ahead through seven hours of feverish debate and sometimes amidst wild confusion, the Republican machine smashed Democratic attempts to upset the budget bureau program, and as tentatively approved when the house adjourned tonight, the bill contains a relatively small increase of approximately $3,000,000 for prohibition activities.

Today's rebuke was the second dealt to the dry lobby within a few weeks. On Jan. 31 the house, by a vote of 240 to 141, disapproved the $24,000,000 proposal when it came from the senate as an amendment to the first deficiency bill.

The single exception to the budget bureau recommendations was the adoption of an amendment offered by Representative L. C. Cramton [Rep., Mich.], setting aside $250,000 for an investigation of "the problems of enforcement of law, including national prohibition" to be conducted by a commission appointed by President Elect Hoover.

Might Extend Quiz Here.

Under the Cramton amendment, the proposed commission would be expected to investigate the operation of all laws and law enforcement methods, without being restricted to prohibition, and friends of the amendment pointed out that it would give Mr. Hoover greater latitude in selecting the members of the commission.

"The President," one of them said, "will not be bound under this amendment to appoint fanatical drys to the commission, because the scope of the inquiry has been broadened to include a probe into the causes of the breakdown of law enforcement wherever such a situation exists—in Chicago, for instance."

Disorder that almost defied control broke out on the house floor following rejection of an amendment offered by Representative W. B. Bankhead [Dem., Ala.] to appropriate $24,000,000 for the prohibition bureau instead of the $1,719,654 increase recommended by the budget bureau.

Tirade Let Loose.

The Bankhead amendment was defeated by a vote of 131 to 74, and Representative R. A. Green [Dem., Fla.] launched a vitriolic attack upon the Republicans, accusing them of adopting gag rules and parliamentary trickery to frustrate the will of the people as expressed last November. Jeers and cat calls from the Republican side drowned out most of Green's tirade, but he continued even after Representative F. R. Lehlbach [Rep., N. J.], presiding, warned him his time had expired.

When order was finally restored Green resumed and refused to yield the floor until threatened with censure by the chairman.

"Does the gentleman from Florida desire the committee to rise so his conduct can be reported to the speaker of the house?" demanded Chairman Lehlbach, and Green sat down.

300,000,000 Dollars Next.

The Bankhead amendment had scarcely been disposed of when Representative F. H. La Guardia [Rep., N. Y.] proposed an increase of 300 million dollars for the dry bureau and demanded a vote. Only two members, Representative Edgar Howard [Dem., Neb.] and J. J. Mansfield [Dem., Tex.] voted with La Guardia for the 300 million dollar amendment.

The first test came almost as soon as the bill was brought up for reading, when Representative W. R. Wood [Rep., Ind.], in charge of the measure, offered an amendment to include the $150,000 recommended for the employment of additional assistant United States attorneys in each prohibition district. Representative Gordon Browning [Dem., Tenn.] proposed that the amount be increased to $1,000,000, and the fight was on.

The Browning proposal, denounced by Representative Cramton as a "mere political gesture" was defeated by a vote of 83 to 42.

Steam Roller Starts.

Then, in succession, every other proposal offered by the Democrats and some proposed by Republicans were defeated. Representative Hamilton Fish, Jr. [Rep. N. Y.], sought to add $200,000 for increased activity in narcotics law enforcement, but the move was defeated.

When the Bankhead $24,000,000 amendment was rejected the Democrats apparently lost heart, and Mr. Wood's next amendment, to increase the customs bureau appropriation by $707,800 to provide for nearly doubling the Canadian border rum patrol, was adopted without a vote. Representative J. W. Bryns [Dem., Tenn.] offered an amendment to give the coast guard an additional $1,000,000 for dry law enforcement, which was refused by a vote of 102 to 56.

Representative Byrns, who led the Democratic fight today, denied at the outset that the $24,000,000 amendment, originally proposed in the senate and added as a rider to the first deficiency bill, was intended to embarrass President Elect Hoover or rehabilitate the Democratic party in the dry south

First Bill Snagged.

The first deficiency bill snagged in a conference committee deadlock over the $24,000,000 amendment sponsored by Senator W. J. Harris [Dem., Ga.], and all of its noncontroversial items were carried over into the second deficiency bill, acted upon today.

Mr. Byrns insisted that supporters of the $24,000,000 proposal intended to "give the President Elect the tools with which to do the job he promised to do." He recalled that Prohibition Commissioner J. M. Doran asserted recently that an annual expenditure of at least $300,000,000 would be needed to make volsteadism effective and that Rear Admiral F. C. Billard and other officials charged with any phase of enforcement have complained of inadequate appropriations for their task.

"Are you willing to spend $300,000,000 a year to enforce this law?" asked Representative J. C. Shafer [Rep., Wis.].

"I have a reputation for economy, but I would spend any amount necessary to enforce this law?" answered Mr. Byrns.

"Why don't you offer an amendment proposing to appropriate $300,000,000?" asked Mr. Schafer.

"Would you vote for it?" countered Mr. Byrns.

"I would not," Mr. Schafer retorted; "I would not vote for such a monstrosity as that because I believe there are other sections of the constitution as sacred as the eighteenth amendment."

$2,700,000 Provided.

In addition to the small items for prohibition enforcement activities of the various bureaus included in the second deficiency bill by the apropriations committee before supplemental estimates were received, the bill as tentatively approved tonight includes an additional allotment of $2,727,914 recommended by the budget bureau and distributed as follows:

Customs bureau—to nearly double the border patrol now seeking to curb Canadian border rumrunners, $707,860.

Prohibition bureau—to provide for a substantial increase in the field agent forces, $1,719,654.

Department of justice—to provide 16 additional assistant United States attorneys to clear congested federal court dockets in as many districts, $150,400.

Civil service commission—to provide increased personnel to speed the examination and certification of dry agents, $150,000.

Jones Bill Strikes Snag.

Earlier in the afternoon, another prospective prohibition row was temporarily averted when the Jones five year Volstead penalty bill, recently passed by the senate, was sent to the house judiciary committee after important differences betwen the senate measure and the Stalker bill, favorably reported by the house committee as a companion measure, were pointed out.

House wets immediately laid plans to kill the Jones bill in committee. Representative J. C. Linthicum [Dem., Md.], leader of the wet bloc, announced that twenty-seven members of his group, including Representatives A. J. Sabath [Dem., Ill.], James T. Igoe [Dem., Ill.] and T. A. Doyle [Dem., Ill.] have signed a petition demanding that they be heard in opposition to the senate bill. The hope of the wets is to prolong the hearings and prevent consideration of the measure in the house before March 4, when the present congress will automatically die.

The Day in Congress

SENATE.

The naval appropriation bill was passed after the Dill amendment, added yesterday for the withdrawal of marines from Nicaragua, had been rejected, 32 to 48.

A unanimous consent agreement was obtained for a limitation of debate on the Edge Nicaraguan canal survey resolution on Monday.

Discussion of the case of William S. Vare, senator elect from Pennsylvania, was deferred until Monday.

The public lands committee failed to reach a decision on the question of continuing the investigation of Salt Creek oil leases.

HOUSE.

Amounts recommended by President Coolidge for additional prohibition enforcement funds were approved during consideration of the second deficiency appropriation bill.

Newsprint, lumber, and other items on the free list of the tariff law occupied the attention of the house ways and means committee.

PRINCE OF WALES 'GROWS UP'; ENDS FRIVOLOUS LIFE

British Throne Heir Digs Into Serious Business.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 23.—One of the most remarkable developments recently in British politics is the renewed popularity of the prince of Wales and the part he has been playing in developing public opinion.

As a boy and a young man the prince was popular. In the last few years, while that popularity continued in society and sporting circles, the majority of the British middle classes was annoyed at his apparent frivolity and demanded that he "grow up" and take his position seriously. They compared him, to his detriment, with his brother Albert, duke of York, who is a model family man and a conscientious worker in public affairs. When the king's illness became serious many gloomy prophecies were hinted about what might happen when the prince came to the throne. The spectacle of the prince's dash from the center of Africa to his father's bedside aroused universal sympathy.

Takes Duties Seriously.

Since then the prince has rewon the genuine respect of a large section of the people. The way he has thrown himself into his father's duties has commanded approval, and his other actions have increased the impression that he finally has decided to take up seriously his duties as heir to the throne.

One of these acts was his visit to the mining areas and his clearly expressed dissatisfaction with the conditions he found there. It is no secret that the prince's sympathies have always been with the under dog, and during the great mining strike of a couple of years ago he expressed his sympathy with the miners so warmly and so publicly that the government was embarrassed and had to ask him to keep quiet.

This time, however, he is not keeping quiet, and, in addition to telling the prime minister what he saw, he has been talking at every opportunity on the necessity for a new deal in British industry. His speech at Mansion house in London last week, in which he told the British manufacturers what he thought of British salesmanship and declared it to be their duty to the country to do better, has not pleased the manufacturers, at whom the speech was directed, but it has pleased the working classes and increased his popularity with the progressive elements.

Laborites Defend Prince.

The mine owners are particularly angry with the prince, whom they accuse of interfering with their affairs, but the miners are pleased. In the last few days there has been the remarkable sight of Laborites in parliament defending the prince from attacks by the Tories.

It is likely that the prince of Wales will continue to act for a long time as head of the British nation. King George, while he is progressing as well as can be expected, will be a long time in regaining his complete health, and he may have to spend many months abroad. It is also feared that in the future he will have to delegate permanently much of the work he formerly did, to his eldest son.

Reports from Craigwell house, near Bognor, on the Sussex coast, where the king is convalescing, say that, while his family and his attendants are much pleased with his progress, it is still too soon to say that the convalescent stage has been reached.

The sad faced prince watched the spirited bidding at the Leicester auction today for his twelve hunters. The sale realized a total of $20,984.25. His favorite mare, "Miss Muffit," fetched the highest price, $3,675. Numerous Americans were there, but none became owners of any of the animals.

FLIES FROM CANADA TO CUBA

"Rockefeller of Bulgaria" Ends Life After Reverses

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Andrea Zankov, often called the John D. Rockefeller of Bulgaria because he was the richest man in the country, ended his life today. A huge financial enterprise which he had been promoting recently collapsed.

Time 13 Hrs. 56 Mins.

HAVANA, Feb. 23.—(AP)—George Haldeman today linked Canada and Cuba by a single unbroken airplane flight. In taking off from the Walkersville airport, near Windsor, Ontario, at 3:49 a. m., the wheels of his airplane were deep in the snow. He set them down less than thirteen hours later on the tropical soil of Cuba.

Haldeman, accompanied by James F. Hayden, a mechanic, on his southward flight passed Cincinnati, Atlanta, Tampa at 1:12 p. m., and Key West at 3:35 p. m. His charted course of 1,404 miles was flown in twelve hours and fifty-six minutes. There remained in his Bellanca plane enough fuel to have carried him another 125 miles.

Haldeman succeeded where Leonard Flo of Ann Arbor, Mich., twice failed, once because of fog and once because of illness. Haldeman, who was pilot for Ruth Elder in her unsuccessful attempt to cross the Atlantic, showed no sign of fatigue. He said that the trip had been uneventful, with excellent flying conditions throughout. The aviator extended his flight to Cuba as a "sporting venture" when business called him to several Florida cities.

DIES OF SELF INFLICTED WOUNDS.

Daniel McNeal, 48 years old, 2901 Washington boulevard, who slashed his wrists and throat with a razor last Wednesday died yesterday at the county hospital.

SEIZE BARBER UNION CHIEFS AS RACKETEERS

Three officials of the Journeymen Barbers' International Union of America, local 548, were taken into police custody yesterday on charge of racketeering. They are Frank Rango, 40 years old, 1409 South Ridgeland avenue, Berwyn, secretary-treasurer of the union; James Rose, 39 years old, 1510 South Ridgeland avenue, Berwyn, and Frank Schiro, 40 years old, 740 North Hamlin avenue, business agents. A fourth official of the union is being sought.

The arrests followed the complaint of Stoycho Christoff, owner of a barber shop at 27 North Halsted street, that a stench bomb had been thrown into his home last Wednesday, two days after he had refused to join an organization of "flop" barber shop owners sponsored by the union officials. The new organization decreed the raising of prices from 25 to 50 cents for a haircut and from 15 to 25 cents for a shave. His patrons would not pay such prices Christoff said.

At the detective bureau Christoff identified Rose as the man who had threatened him when he refused to join the new organization while Schiro, he said, came to his shop and put up a notice advertising the new prices. Rango, Christoff's wife, Anna, told police, had collected $100 from them two years ago. Rose and Rango, police said, were accused of murder in '26, but were acquitted. Frank Aliotti, president of the Master Barbers' union and owner of a barber supply shop at 3155 Ogden avenue is being sought by police.

130,000 East Africa Natives Face Famine After Drought

NAIROBI, Kenya, British East Africa, Feb. 23.—(AP)—About 130,000 natives are facing famine conditions in this region because of a recent drought and the destruction of their remaining crops by locusts. The government is taking measures to meet the situation.

KING TELLS WHY HE FIGHTS FOR THRONE HE QUIT

Tribune Man Is First to Enter Afghanistan.

priests are against the king. At the offices of the Russian commission in Kandahar, Commissar Solleff told me he knew the British had paid the priests to make the campaign against the king, but Amanullah is inclined to believe they opposed him without receiving money.

Water Boy Meets British Envoy.

It is known that Bacha Sakao, who proclaimed himself King Habibullah before attacking Kabul at the time Amanullah abdicated, had two audiences with the British minister in the legation outside the city. Bacha Sakao attacked from the direction of the legation and Amanullah's troops were unable to fire against the opposing forces, fearing to hit the legation.

King Amanullah says probably the British minister only warned Bacha Sakao that British property and lives must be respected. Then there is the question of recognition.

The soviet government, according to M. Solleff, circumvented the problem by accepting Amanullah's recession of his abdication in the same spirit as his abdication, hence original recognition was obtained. The British were more leery. The fact that the British closed the Indian frontier, not allowing Amanullah's friends to come in from Chaman, only sixty miles from Kandahar, imparts the impression of unfriendliness.

However, from the king down, every one in Kandahar refused to endorse the charge that Amanullah's ministers abroad and the British were responsible for his present difficulties, and I am convinced, although originally I believed otherwise, that British influence was not the cause of bringing about the present civil war.

Denies Conniving with Russia.

To the question that perhaps the British suspected he was playing too much into the hands of the soviets and breeding trouble in India similar to that which occurred in China a year ago, the king's answer was:

"I have never submitted to violation of the sovereignty of my country by any nation. I have only wanted Afghanistan to become a strong, independent nation, capable of maintaining itself socially and economically according to modern civilized standards."

It is political rather than military strength that Amanullah is depending upon to overthrow Bacha Sakao. His majesty explains, "I am daily receiving delegations from all parts of the country informing me the people are behind me. From Kabul I am informed that Bacha Sakao is so unpopular that even my former enemies there are praying for my accession to power in that territory. It is unthinkable that Afghanistan accepts a common robber as king."

I requested the names, population and location of the tribes who have pledged their support and I was told I would get the list tomorrow. The first day the king is in bed with a cold, the second he must receive a new delegation, the third he is taking a bath, the fourth, but I refused to wait longer as I already know the answer, which the king himself does not know.

Flies 2,732 Miles to Kandahar.

The 2,732 mile trip to Afghanistan was made in a single motored Junkers plane over a country where both nature and man conspire to make a forced landing extremely dangerous, probably fatal.

The pilot of the plane, the mechanic and I had no papers from the Afghanistan representative permitting our entry or to aid us in any way in case of trouble. The Afghanistan minister to Teheran flatly refused to give us even an official letter. He called the flight to Afghanistan suicide owing to the fact that the entire country is overrun with robbers and bandits.

A German insurance company demanded an additional $400 insurance premium, nearly $100 daily on a $40,000 policy covering the value of the plane, and $10,000 each on the mechanic and pilot.

Frontier Closed by British.

The British by closing the Indian frontier have isolated both Kandahar and Kabul. We were informed that both Kandahar and Kabul lacked gasoline. German planes are forbidden to land in India, so it was necessary that we carry enough gasoline to give us a cruising radius of 931.5 miles. The plane was fitted with special tanks and we were forced to take off from Duzdap, the nearest Persian flying field, for Kandahar, with 400 pounds overweight.

The Persian government facilitated the trip by accepting the offer to send a Persian observer, as even the Persian government did not know what was occurring in Afghanistan. This permitted the plane to depart and return from the outlaw zone.

The weather was extremely unfavorable when we took off from Teheran. The plane was forced back about 100 miles by a mountain storm, the pilot, mechanic, and myself sleeping overnight in the tiny Junkers cabin at Miamei. The next day we managed to reach Meshed, but were stuck there hub deep in mud for twenty-four hours. The third day we picked up a Persian colonel at Birjand and flew to Duzdap, meaning "robber waters." The title is the result of its reputation.

Persia Fighting Bandits.

Duzdap was in a high state of excitement. Persian troops had been fighting bandits near Birjand, also along the Baluchistan frontier. The Persians lost sixty-five dead in action, including one colonel.

Duzdap did not know whether Amanullah still held Kandahar, but was certain banditry was rife in Afghanistan because a German who had come out three days before, after having lived there since the war, had told of being robbed of all his money and baggage. Officers told us that a hundred mounted robbers had engaged Persian troops, who had just driven them over the Afghanistan border.

The picture given us of conditions in Afghanistan was anything but reassuring as next morning we flew into the unknown. Despite the snow, rain and fogs we experienced more than an ordinary thrill as the airplane cleared the mountains and crossed the flooded salt wastes where the British, Indian, Afghanistan and Persian meet, and steered toward Kandahar. For an hour and a half we travel over this terrain. Finally we get over hard sand where for miles in every direction there is no sight of vegetation.

Recognize Walls of Kandahar.

Three and one half hours after leaving Duzdap we recognize from pictures, the square high wall bastioned city of Kandahar. Outside we see camel caravans and donkeys. Flying over we observe that the gates are open and people are passing in and out.

The flying field is six miles east. The field seemed deserted, but the pilot lands. The wind changed and the machine nearly tumbles in the ditch. In maneuvering the pilot kills the motor, although he had planned to keep the motor running until we found out whether the people were friendly or hostile. Realizing we were marooned, whether we were going to like it or not, I stepped out of the plane.

Fifty ragged natives, mostly in Indian dress, came racing toward us. But by the time the mob reached the plane a man on horseback, who turned out to be a captain of cavalry, also arrived and drove the natives back with a whip. The Persian colonel was able to make himself understood and we were assured that Amanullah was still in Kandahar and master of the situation there.

Welcomed by King.

A few minutes later ten soldiers in uniforms, although ragged, appeared on the scene to protect the airplane. A big Fiat limousine arrived to take us to the city.

We explained who we were to Abdul Whabd, who is an Oxford graduate, formerly master of ceremonies and now secretary and interpreter to the king. He disappeared to come back later with the court marshal, who assured us that the "king inquires about your health and bids you welcome."

A short time later he provided quarters for us in an old palace constructed by the first kings of the Duranic tribe.

BRITAIN DECIDES TO EVACUATE LEGATION FROM AFGHANISTAN

LONDON, Feb. 23.—(AP)—The British government, it was understood here tonight, has decided to withdraw its diplomatic mission from Afghanistan. Considerations of safety for the personnel and of possibly preventing untoward incidents which might adversely affect British relations with the mountain kingdom were given as the motives for the decision.

Sir Francis Humphreys, British minister at Kabul, recently agreed with other European representatives that the time had arrived for evacuation. British army planes were summoned from Peshawar, but a heavy fall of snow prevented the evacuation from commencing today.

FALLS FROM WINDOW; MAY DIE.

Losing his hold as he stepped out on a window ledge on the second floor of the Wrigley building, Felix Dzija, 43 years old, 1745 McReynolds court, a window washer, fell to the pavement yesterday and sustained injuries which may result in his death.

CROWDS CHEER AS STIMSON LEAVES THE PHILIPPINES

[Copyright: 1929: By the New York Times.]

MANILA, Feb. 23.—The departure of Gov. Gen. Henry L. Stimson today aboard the liner President Pierce, on his way to Washington to take his place in the Hoover cabinet, was marked by an unusual outburst of enthusiasm expressing the personal loyalty of the Filipinos. Cheering crowds lined the streets and a vast throng packed the pier and fought their way to the gangplank to gain a last glimpse of Col. Stimson and his wife, who were visibly moved by the warmth of the farewell.

A few minutes before he left the Malacanan, official residence of the governor general, a Filipino flag was presented to Col. Stimson by Manuel Quezon, the president of the senate, as the gift of the Philippine legislature. The presentation was made in the presence of cabinet members and other high government officials. After his arrival at the pier Col. Stimson received a military tribute from the Thirty-first infantry and a detachment of the Philippine constabulary, which presented arms.

On board the President Pierce, Col. Stimson and his wife had brief farewell talks with leaders of the legislature, including Señor Quezon and Manuel Roxas, speaker of the house of representatives. Consular representatives were there and many women were on hand, as Mrs. Stimson was popular among them.

Coxey's Army Limps Into London After Hard March

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 23.—With their numbers greatly depleted by exposure to the severe weather, 300 of Great Britain's unemployed who have marched from Scotland, South Wales and intermediate centers, limped into London today carrying red banners, in preparation for a huge demonstration in Trafalgar Square tomorrow. The men told of terrible hardships en route. They were forced to sleep in empty garages, barns and cattle sheds as the result of being refused accommodations by local authorities. They have marched in icy blizzards and snowstorms for the last fortnight.

OPEN MURDER OPENLY ARRIVED AT.

The men responsible for the crimes which distract Chicago and report it unfavorably to the world are known. They are in and out of the city, have their homes here and get their wealth by their criminal activities here. Motives for each crime can be seen. It may not be possible instantly to recognise the precise motive out of several for each crime and it may not be possible from the superficial evidence to pick the gangster who inspired or ordered the crime. But men and motives are known to be within certain well defined circles and groups.

No proof is obtained. Evidence is not gathered. Each crime can be reasoned out convincingly, but detection gets nowhere. It is possible to predict the next crime from the most recent. The finger points with that much certainty. By identification of the latest corpse the identity of the next victim can be discovered in advance. Anticipation is almost an exact police science. Nevertheless, neither federal nor the local police authorities are able or willing, as the case may be, to bring the criminals into court with proof of murder.

The federal prohibition agents know that most if not all these murders are committed in the great commercialized business of violating the prohibition law. Occasionally these agents get a big criminal on a petty charge, but chiefly they get petty offenders on serious charges. The gangs which are making money and committing murder are broken up, when they are, not by the agents of the law but by their own vendettas.

The enforcement agents have shot at pleasure boats, killed duck hunters, farmers who were making beer, and an occasional bootlegger who did not stop when they hailed him. They have killed innocent citizens, such as Jacob Hanson, have shot girls, and guiltless persons who thought they were highwaymen. They have not put an end to the activities of one bad gang of the murderers and criminals hatched out of the egg of Volstead, at least not in this region.

It is quite well known, from observation and experience, that the zealots of prohibition are satisfied with this. It is everywhere as it is in Michigan. If a few obscure wretches can be given life sentence the rum traffic of Detroit need not be disturbed. If a still in a South Chicago garage can be knocked down or a roadhouse keeper sent over the road, or a deputy sheriff shot in the leg the murder gangs of Chicago may continue to murder.

Prohibition, having bred these crimes, takes down another street. The federal government once had a reputation for inevitability in handling such crimes as came within its jurisdiction. It may still deserve this reputation in some of its detective work which has to do with old conceptions of law and order. If so, that is all obscured by the operations of its new army of agents.

Motives and men are out on the surface. Cause and effect are seen and can be foreseen, but neither the federal agents in their performance nor the local police in theirs can produce a case which they would have the nerve to carry even to a grand jury.

If they are to be conceded any desire to procure evidence then it is apparent that government work and police work are not provided with the means of doing the job. All any one can do is to guess whether it is lack of will or lack of ability. It easily could be both.

The police and the agents probably outnumber the criminals a hundred to one. The one stands off the hundred. The consequences are a blight on civilization, and they will probably continue to be until an outraged society throws into the work an agency of detection competent and determined to get the men.

FOOTBALL CHANGES AGAIN.

The new football rule is intended to minimize the advantage of getting the ball after a fumble. Under the old rule a man on the defensive side who picked up the fumbled ball was permitted to run with it. Under the new rule the ball is down at the point where it is recovered.

This is not a spectator's rule; it deprives the game of one of its exciting elements. It is not a rule which players, as a class, have desired or suggested. Fundamentally, it is a coach's rule. It is intended to take some of the hazards out of football. When a coach has a powerful team, as all coaches have at one time or another, he wants to be certain of being rewarded with victory and he doesn't want the bungling of some youngster on the field to deprive him of what he is entitled to.

Not all the coaches favor the rule. Some of them realize that it penalizes the quick thinking, quick acting, and well coached team and in a measure rewards the overanxious and excitable team. It adds another rule which is contrary to the logic of the game, which demands that the ball remain in play until the man who carries it is down.

AND NOW THE DOPE RACKET.

The American Medical association and the Illinois Medical society have joined in attacking the Barbour narcotic bill now before the state legislature. The bill is intended to supplement and is more severe than the federal narcotic acts. It provides that upon complaint of a policeman or private citizen, suspected addicts are to be brought before a judge. Upon the testimony of two reputable physicians that the prisoner is a drug addict, he must be confined for from eight months to two years and may be kept under surveillance and required to report periodically for the rest of his life.

The framers of the bill, in the opinion of the medical profession, do not understand the problems they are attempting to deal with. They do not understand drugs, drug addicts, or the means of preventing and curing drug addiction. We do not know what, if anything, Senator Barbour, who introduced the bill, knows about the subject; to our knowledge, he is without any special qualifications. The measure "is understood to have the support" of Capt. Richmond P. Hobson, president of the International Narcotic Educational association and secretary of the World Conference on Narcotic Education. Capt. Hobson was a naval officer who went into the prohibition business and left the prohibition business to go into the drug evil profession. The pattern of his thinking is revealed in the name of his society which stresses the word "education," but supports laws which, in effect, treat the addict as a criminal. Capt. Hobson is ill qualified for the task of law making.

The Barbour bill is a racketeering measure. Its enactment would be followed by demands for an enforcement division with a pay roll at public expense. The bill is opposed by the men who are in a position to know most about the evil it is intended to correct and it is favored by men who will be helped to hold their jobs if it is passed. A vote against this bill may be characterized by Capt. Hobson and his followers as a vote in favor of dope, but only a spineless or a stupid legislator would be stampeded by such an argument.

GALLOWAY FOR ALDERMAN.

Wiley K. Galloway is a candidate for alderman whom the voters of the Fiftieth ward may support with enthusiasm. Although Mr. Galloway has not before held a political position, his experience has trained him for public life and he enters the contest from good motives. He will not traffic with the present administration for purposes of expediency. He has the initiative, understanding, and ability to make a good record and faithfully to represent his constituents.

Mr. Galloway was born on a farm in La Salle county, Illinois, but he started his career in California, where he became foreman of a San Francisco printing shop. At the same time he studied law and was admitted to the bar. Not satisfied that his legal training was yet sufficient, he came to Chicago and completed a four year law course at Northwestern law school in three years while working full time as a linotype operator on THE TRIBUNE.

For three years Mr. Galloway served as chairman of the newspaper scale committee of the Chicago Typographical union, one of the most responsible positions in unionized labor in Chicago. Seven years ago he went into the practice of law and has been engaged in civil litigation.

Dean John H. Wigmore of Northwestern university law school, who is a qualified judge in the case of Mr. Galloway, said of the candidate: "A man of brains, industry, honesty, and independence who would honorably and effectively fill the position of alderman." The city would profit from the presence of Mr. Galloway in the city council. He is an opportunity for the Fiftieth ward.

Editorial of the Day

A FORMULA FOR CHICAGO.

[Marion Daily Republican.]

Six Chicago gangsters and one innocent man were mowed down in a massacre on Thursday. The gangsters died with from 20 to 30 bullets apiece in their bodies, in much the same manner that they probably killed others, but John May, an auto mechanic who happened to work in the garage where the massacre occurred, died because he would see too much.

When gangsters kill gangsters the public takes little interest, it seems, but when they go outside and "bump off" an innocent citizen, then public sentiment is aroused and results may come.

We know what we are talking about. It's not theory in Williamson county as to what gangsters will do and can do. We know how they rule and ruin and we also know that there is a way to stop them.

In Williamson county it took an election—the election of a sheriff who could and would enforce the law. A sheriff who could and would trace the murderers to their lair sent many of them to the pen and others to the gallows.

It's a formula that Chicago must use before they can expect to clean up. Williamson county's most horrible gang crime, the killing of Highway Patrolman Lory Price and wife, occurred after Oren Coleman became sheriff and was not entirely cleared up for two years, but every one of the participants in custody is now serving a life sentence for that crime.

Chicago has a new state's attorney, Judge John A. Swanson, and a new coroner, Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, in whom the people seem to have full confidence. Unless our information is wrong they also have a new chief of police, and now with a horrible crime on their hands—committed after they took office—they need to follow Williamson county's formula. Give the honest official a chance and he will send the guilty to the gallows or to the penitentiary.

As we said before, it is not theory here. It is a fact. We did it, with one honest official unafraid to do his duty. Chicago can do as much. Do they have the honest official who can and will?

THAT'S ENOUGH.

A LAYMAN'S RELIGIOUS CREED

BY JUDSON G. ROSEBUSH.

[President and Treasurer of the Patten Paper Company, Appleton, Wis.]

I have just turned fifty years of age and find that it is now thirty-four years since I began to be interested in the foundations of my religious faith. During all these years successively as college student, professor of economics in college, Sunday school teacher and superintendent, Young Men's Christian association worker and now for 18 years actively in business, I have been trying to find a creed that would satisfy my religious passion and my scientific outlook on life. No doubt many other laymen have been doing the same thing. I am accordingly presenting my statement of faith herewith in the hope that other business men will find it at least interesting when compared with their own religious convictions. My fundamental bases of religious truth and teaching have come in part out of the Bible, in part out of other literature and in part out of my own experience.

First, my creed in regard to the Old Testament is thus summarized:

I accept the statements in Genesis, "In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth," and in the Twenty-fourth Psalm, "The earth is the Lord's, and the fullness thereof; the world and they that dwell therein," as expressing the sound philosophy that God made this world; consequently that it is his property, and that our relation to it is one of stewardship, or caretaking, for which we are some day to be held accountable. I believe in following the scientific rather than the Genesis account of the method and order of creation. I believe the Pentateuch, the first five books of the Bible—Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy—was not written by Moses, but was a composition of a much later date, about 538 B. C. to 444 B. C. I believe that the twelve tribes of Israel did not come 600,000 strong out of Egypt at one time, but more likely that two tribes came in, numbering 15,000 to 20,000, under Joshua, and that this was followed by an infiltration of Bedouin Jews for decades thereafter. I believe the Canaanites were not exterminated in the first Hebrew invasion, but remained in Palestine, so that the native Baal worship and the worship of Jehovah, God of the Bible, were in constant conflict till Assyrian influence there came strong after 721 B. C., when the Assyrian religion became a competitor of the other two religions. I believe the book of the prophet Isaiah is really three books with possibly three authors, divided as follows: [1] Chapters 1 to 39; [2] Chapters 40 to 55; [3] Chapters 56 to the end. I also believe that the prophecy of the Messiah, the coming of the Christ, is not nearly as specific in Isaiah as older commentators have generally thought. I believe that Amos and Hosea, two Bible characters usually classed as minor prophets, are not such in a true sense but rank in the first order of prophets with a tremendous social message for modern civilization. I believe the story about Jonah and the whale was a parable written to overcome the provincialism of Nehemiah. I believe the Psalms were essentially the song book of the second temple in Jerusalem and most of the Psalms attributed to David were written after his death, many of them after the exile, about 536 B. C.

Secondly, my creed concerning the New Testament and Jesus I thus summarize:

I take no dogmatic stand regarding the virgin birth of Christ. I do not consider any definite stand concerning this doctrine is necessary to real Christianity. I consider the specific sayings of Jesus on social questions, not as inflexible rules for modern use, but rather as strongly colored illustrations of his central theme. To check one's hasty conclusions from the social sayings of Jesus compare St. Paul's interpretations as II. Tim., ii., 4: "No soldier on service entangleth himself in the affairs of this life; that he may please him who enrolled him as a soldier." I regard the miracles as in part explainable as natural phenomena, but in part as events which must either be accepted or rejected, but do not teach that belief in them is vital to a real Christian faith. We are always to remember that the event itself and the interpretations of the gospel writers may not be identical. I believe that the central theme of Jesus, and hence that the central theme of Christianity, is a way of life whereby men come to live in fellowship with all mankind, and in harmony with the leadings of a personal heavenly father. I believe in letting each man envisage the personality of Jesus in the way which brings to him the greatest comfort; i. e., either as God and the third member of the Trinity or only as the world's greatest genius, meaning by genius a man of "inexplicable and unique endowment." Personally I get the most comfort out of the second explanation. I accept unhesitatingly the fact of the resurrection of Jesus without being dogmatic as to whether it was a physical resurrection or a spiritual appearance. I incline to the view that St. John's gospel was written by some other John than the apostle St. John, but that it gives a true interpretation of the religious value that Jesus came to have to the church. I interpret St. Paul as a mystic genius giving expression to a rich religious experience.

In general my creed is:

I regard the Bible not as an infallible book but rather as a marvelous expression of the spiritual history of a deeply religious race. I emphasize the thought that life has its mystic side as well as its scientific side. I think of mysticism as a belief in the reality of a personal heavenly father immanent in human life. I strive as hard to express the mysticism in life as I would to know the ascertained facts of the universe. I accept the idea that God reveals himself anew to each age in a way that each age can understand; that each revelation is adequate for the current need; but that God gives and man gets a progressive and enlarging revelation of himself from age to age. I strive to get and to give an ever larger vision of God's personality at the heart of all religion. I engage daily in prayer to God, considering that prayer may be: Adoration and praise to him for his goodness and mercies, confession of daily failures to make adequate use of talents, petition for forgiveness for sins of omission or commission, request for his help in the use of talents in meeting life's problems, appeal for his using a higher law to meet a human situation which known laws seem inadequate to master.

Four things seem to me to be prominent in this creed of mine as follows:

First, I have accepted the results of sound biblical criticism as far as I am able to understand them. Second, I attach comparatively minor importance to many highly controverted theological questions. Third, I am in an attitude of suspended judgment on several moot points in the life of Jesus, primarily because I think the truth regarding them can never be known, though steadily rating him higher as the years come and go, as the world's greatest social teacher and the world's clearest and finest interpreter of God's personality. Fourth, I have a growing realization of the reality of a personal heavenly father who is both just and loving.

In thus stating my creed I am not attacking the creed of any other person.

FAVORITE HYMNS

BY WILLIAM WILLIAMS.

Guide me, O thou great Jehovah, pilgrim through this barren land;
I am weak, but thou art mighty; hold me with thy powerful hand:
Bread of heaven, bread of heaven, feed me till I want no more.

Open now the crystal fountain, whence the healing waters flow;
Let the fiery, cloudy pillar lead me all my journey through:
Strong deliv'rer, strong deliv'rer, be thou still my strength and shield.

When I tread the verge of Jordan, bid my anxious fears subside;
Bear me through the swelling current, land me safe on Canaan's side:
Songs of praises, songs of praises, I will ever give to thee.

(Clip this hymn and paste it in your Tribune scrap book and listen to it on W-G-N today from 1 to 1:30 p. m.)

T. B. IS DECREASING.

THE United States census office is authority for the statement that more country people than city people die of consumption. This they say has been the condition since 1920. In 1900 the city people paid far heavier tribute than did the country people, but the former group bestirred themselves and displaced their country cousins in the two decades.

Investigators working under the Millbank Memorial fund are disposed to dispute the first half of this statement. They say it is not true of twelve counties in rural New York. They are almost equally certain it is not true of New York as a whole. The reasons are several. A principal one is that there is a marked tendency for consumptives to leave the cities and go into rural districts, either entering sanitaria and hospitals or to live where the air is better and there is more sunlight.

They say the reported city consumption rates should be raised from 6 to 16 per cent to make them right. The rural rates should be lowered correspondingly. An interesting part of their report is that the consumption rate is declining in both city and country. The report for Cattaraugus county shows that at the end of 1928 the decline was keeping up.

They are not having the experience which Chicago seems to have had of having the decline stop in 1922.

However, the rate of decline has been very uneven in both the cities and in the rural districts in New York state and probably elsewhere. The great epidemic of influenza in 1918 was followed by a very marked drop in the consumption rate in city and country alike. Somewhere between 1922 and 1924 the period of very great improvement came to an end. There was substituted a period of slight yearly gain. Health authorities have not been able to agree as to whether the influenza of 1918 in some way changed consumption, or whether it killed off in one season all the prospective material of the next four to six years.

However, the study shows that even after allowing for the movement of consumptives from the city to the country the city rates are still improving faster than those of the rural districts. Perhaps one reason for this is the better development of health departments in the cities.

DIET FOR SOUR STOMACH.

M. C. B. writes: Will you give a suggestion as to diet for one troubled with too much acid of the stomach?

REPLY.

Dieting for sour stomach is of limited value. Eating simple foods in moderate quantity and avoiding all bad eating habits and difficult foods will help somewhat.

To accomplish much the cause must be found and avoided or removed. Among the causes are: Ulcers of the stomach or duodenum, gall stones, infected gall bladder, adhesions, perhaps chronic appendicitis, constipation and worry.

FRESH AIR AND DIET.

G. W. writes: 1. Is there a vaccine on the market to be used in the treatment of tuberculosis?

2. What is the standard treatment used by specialists in that line?

3. What value do you give creosote in the treatment of lung trouble?

REPLY.

1. There are such vaccines on the market but they are not used to any considerable extent.

2. Rest, fresh air, diet and medical supervision.

3. It has almost gone out of use.

SERA FOR PNEUMONIA.

J. C. writes: Sir George Hume of England is quoted as follows: "There is no specific cure for pneumonia." Do you agree with him?

REPLY.

Theoretically I do not.

There are several sera which are used as specifics in the cure of pneumonia. Some of these have been in use for several years. They are being improved year by year. Those in use several years ago contained a considerable dose of chill producing proteids and only a small dose of the specific. The improved sera contain but little shock producing proteid and the dose of specific substance is larger.

The practical difficulties in the use of these sera are still considerable. In fact they are not often used except in very highly staffed hospitals.

Vaccines are in more general use. In a sense, these are specific cures. They give results that are about as good as the sera.

LOUISVILLE.—The border state emancipation convention was addressed by Casper Butz of Chicago, who advocated instant emancipation without compensation and the division of confiscated lands among the freed slaves and Union soldiers. This proposal brought a spirited protest from the Rev. Mr. Harlan of Covington, but several other speakers supported it. The resolutions adopted state, among other things: "That slavery was the cause and now constitutes the strength of the rebellion. That we see no hope of permanent peace until the principles of freedom announced in the Declaration of Independence and the federal constitution are carried into practice. It is therefore proper that the constitution of the United States should be so amended as to secure freedom to every human being within its jurisdiction."

INDIANAPOLIS.—The Union state convention renominated Gov. Oliver P. Morton and recommended the reelection of President Lincoln, declaring: "We regard his reelection as essential to the speedy and triumphant end of the war."

MANILA.—There was some brisk fighting this morning between the insurgents and men from the Montana, Oregon and Minnesota regiments. The Americans killed a large number of their antagonists and scattered the remainder. Two of our men were killed and several wounded. Outside the city the Filipino forces made a concerted attack on Gen. MacArthur's front near Caloocan. The American artillery was brought into play and this, with deadly fire from the rifles, kept the rebels in check. Meanwhile other bands of natives were being fought off at Santa Cruz and San Nicolas.

WASHINGTON.—The war department has arranged to dispatch further reinforcements to Gen. Otis at Manila. The regiments selected are the 9th infantry, now at New York, and the 6th infantry, at San Antonio, Tex.

WASHINGTON.—Rear Admiral George Dewey is destined to become an admiral of the full grade and have his term of service extended ten years. OPERA AT A PRICE.

Chicago, Feb. 12.—A marvelous new opera house, an opera for the people of Chicago! What a farce! Instead of making music drama available to the average individual it is to become a treat for the favored few.

To quote from the circular: "There are 147 more seats selling at $8 at the box office and an entire new section selling at $5 . . . seats at the lower prices, from $1 to $2.50, are considerably reduced in number." I'll say they are. All I can see at $1 each are rows 14 to 16, three rows, to satisfy a music hungry mob with limited funds!

The price of tickets for the theater has advanced 100 per cent and that for good music has gone up in proportion! What's left? Of course, there's something for Chicago to be proud of—her gangsters! S. SIMON.

ARMY RESEARCH.

Chicago, Feb. 15.—For some time past I have been reading your editorials on the United States army. I am an ex-lieutenant of field artillery, regular army, having resigned my commission in 1926 after nine years' service, enlisted and commissioned, and such articles naturally have particular interest for me.

I am wondering where you get your information. Your writer should familiarize himself with the work being done at the various ordnance proving grounds on improved arms of all kinds, including automatic rifles. He should gain permission to look into the work being done at such places as Fort Bragg, N. C., where tests have been made during and ever since the late war of tractors of all kinds, 8 inch and 6 inch howitzers, 6 inch rifles, 75 mm. rifles, 155 mm. rifles, howitzers, etc. These tests are made with both tractor and horse outfits and careful comparisons made of the respective abilities of tractors and horses to accomplish the various tasks which arise in time of war.

As to private mounts, two horses are necessary for every army officer in maneuvers, if not more. Usually an officer uses government mounts, for the simple reason that, as indicated in your article of today, the poor devil can't scrape together enough money to buy any, certainly not more than one. Do not forget that the pay of the service has been increased only from 1 per cent to 11 per cent in the various grades since 1908 and the cost of living has increased 50 per cent in that time—to say nothing of the much higher scale of living prevailing today. H. H. JAMES.

FREE SERUM.

Riverdale, Ill., Feb. 12.—I read Mrs. B.'s letter regarding the diphtheria serum. This was my experience this winter. When the doctor said my year old baby had diphtheria he injected the serum in his back. He took it for granted we lived in Chicago. When we told him we were from out of the city limits he said he was only supposed to use it in Chicago, as it was given free to doctors to use for their patients, otherwise it would cost $8. But he said they probably wouldn't say anything to him about it since he had used it already. It seems to me that the welfare station wanted to make a few dollars. I thought they were for the good of the children. MRS. B. F.

MACHINERY MAKES JOBS.

Oak Park, Ill., Feb. 12.—In answer to T. B. Garsett's letter in the Voice of the People entitled "Men and Machinery," had he itemized a few more labor saving devices that American industry is turning out, he would have answered the very question he is asking. It is the labor saving devices that keep the wheels of industry moving in this country. When development and production of these devices stop, then we will have something to worry about.

If England were to place herself in a position where she could adopt American methods of mass production plus an extended credit plan to give her people an opportunity to consume what they produce, she would solve her unemployment problem. Herbert Hoover's attention to relief of unemployment during the slack periods of depression has no connection with the development and use of labor saving devices. Mr. Hoover is merely attempting to solve a problem which has been bothering us periodically for as far back as present day statisticians have been able to gather any data. G. F. B.

MORE MACHINES, MORE JOBS.

Evanston, Ill., Feb. 12.—In regard to "Men and Machinery" by Mr. T. B. Garsett, in the Voice of the People, I will say that he is not the only one who has expressed this false fear. The people of a country are like a family. They live on what they collectively produce. Logically, the more they produce the more they have to divide.

There were more idle workers in this country during the year of 1915, when we produced about 30 billions of dollars by using less machinery, than there were last year with a production of over 100 billions of dollars by using more machinery. Russia, with only man's power to produce, has more idle workers than any modern country. F. MOSSELL.

TEACHERS ON SICK LEAVE.

Chicago, Feb. 14.—For some time I have been connected with the Chicago public schools, and each year I am more amazed at the absolute ease with which teachers are able to secure leaves of absence with sick pay. Under the present ruling a teacher may be absent for two weeks with part salary. I have known teachers to develop a sudden illness over the week-end necessitating a trip to Florida or California. We know that many failures among pupils is due to too many substitute teachers. Why then do we have principals, district superintendents and superintendents who issue these leaves without more investigation as to whether the request is a legitimate one or not? When the schools are placed under the civil service rules of two weeks a year for sick leave there will be fewer needs for longer absences among teachers. L. B.

DELAY IN THE MAILS.

Chicago, Feb. 12.—A package was stamped Chicago, Feb. 7 and arrived at Ravenswood postoffice Feb. 12, taking five days to make the trip. BRUNO.

SPRING IS HERE.

Marengo, Ill., Feb. 12.—I'll go Miss Peterson one better. On Feb. 11 my friend and I, while walking to school, saw a robin perched high in a tree singing for all it's worth. I believe this is the first robin noticed in 1929. A. H. GRAY.

COOLIDGE WINS CONFIDENCE VOTE ON NICARAGUA

New Senate Action Keeps Marines There.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Administration Nicaraguan policies today figured in controversies on two measures which occupied the attention of the senate.

President Coolidge won a vote of confidence when the senate reversed its action of yesterday for the withdrawal of marines from Nicaragua.

The amendment of Senator C. C. Dill [Dem., Wash.] to the naval appropriation bill to prevent the use of funds for marines in Nicaragua was rejected, 32 to 48, after the President had taken a hand in the situation.

Yesterday it was approved, 38 to 30. The effect would have been to require the withdrawal of 3,500 marines from Nicaragua before July 1.

Nicaraguan Canal to Fore.

The other measure in which the same issue was raised was the resolution of Senator Walter E. Edge [Rep., N. J.] authorizing army engineers to make a survey of the feasibility of the construction of the Nicaraguan canal.

Senator Dill, during debate on the Edge resolution, continued the attacks which the radicals have directed against administration policies in Nicaragua.

He declared the Panama canal can be enlarged in such a way as to accommodate all the traffic which is likely to develop during the next 70 years; that the real purpose of the agitation for a new canal is to keep the marines in Nicaragua and that the marines "are to be used, as in the past, to enable those who have loans in Nicaragua to collect them."

Expect O. K. on Resolution.

The Edge resolution was before the senate for nearly three hours, the discussion becoming heated at times. After threatening to hold the senate in session tonight until the resolution was disposed of, Senator Edge finally obtained a unanimous consent agreement for a limitation of speeches to ten minutes after 4 p. m. Monday. This is expected to insure adoption of the resolution. Favorable action is anticipated in the house.

The senate yesterday passed the naval appropriation bill after the Nicaraguan amendment was eliminated. Included in the measure were amendments providing $12,370,000 to commence construction of naval cruisers as contemplated under the program laid down in the naval cruiser act. The bill now goes to conference. The senate and house leaders hope to have the conference report back in both houses in time to avert a filibuster against it in the closing days of the session.

Senators Called In.

The reversal of action on the Dill amendment was the direct result of influence brought to bear by the administration. President Coolidge and Secretary of State Frank G. Kellogg both interceded personally with senators who voted yesterday for the amendment.

Several senators were called to the White House and others were reached by telephone following a conference between the President and his secretary of state.

It was made evident that both President Coolidge and Secretary Kellogg were greatly concerned over the possible effect of the Dill amendment if permitted to stand. They pointed out to senators that the continued presence of American marines in Nicaragua has been requested by the new liberal administration, which was elected to office in that country in the elections supervised by the United States.

Might Foment Revolution.

It was insisted that compliance with the terms of the Dill amendment would threaten serious consequences. Not only might another revolution occur, it was declared, but the work now in progress of training the native constabulary would have to be suspended.

Thus far, officials pointed out, 1,500 marines and 300 bluejackets have been withdrawn from Nicaragua. The present force of 3,500 marines will be gradually reduced.

Several senators changed their votes as a result of the administration activity. Among them was Senator Wesley L. Jones [Rep., Wash.], who voted for the amendment of his colleague yesterday but announced on the floor today that while he would like to see the marines withdrawn as rapidly as possible, he was content to trust to President Coolidge and President Elect Hoover to act properly and wisely.

Senator William E. Borah [Rep., Idaho], chairman of the foreign relations committee, who acted as administration leader in pressing the Kellogg war renunciation treaty, refused to yield to administration influence today. He voted for the Dill amendment just as he did yesterday.

The thirty-two who voted for the Dill amendment today included eight Republicans and twenty-four Democrats. The eight Republicans were Senators Borah, John J. Blaine [Wis.], S. W. Brookhart [Ia.], Arthur Capper [Kas.], Lynn J. Frazier and G. P. Nye [N. D.], George W. Norris [Neb.], and W. H. McMaster [S. D.]. Most of them are identified with the radical group.

Among the forty-eight recorded against the amendment were thirty-four Republicans and fourteen Democrats.

Democrats Against Amendment.

The Democrats supporting the administration were Senators Henry F. Ashurst [Ariz.], Thomas F. Bayard [Del.], Cole Blease [S. C.], E. S. Broussard [La.], W. C. Bruce [Md.], Harry Hawes [Mo.], J. B. Kendrick [Wyo.], J. E. Ransdell [La.], James A. Reed [Mo.], E. D. Smith [S. C.], D. F. Steck [Ia.], M. E. Tydings [Md.], L. D. Tyson [Tenn.], and R. F. Wagner [N.Y.].

Senators Charles S. Deneen and Otis F. Glenn [Rep., Ill.] both supported the administration in opposition to the Dill amendment, as did Senators James Couzens and A. H. Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.], James E. Watson and Arthur Robinson [Rep., Ind.].

The senate rejected by a viva voce vote an amendment by Senator W. H. King [Dem., Utah] providing that no part of the funds should be used for military rule in Haiti.

Another amendment which was beaten was one by Senator J. Thomas Heflin [Dem., Ala.] prohibiting the flying of the naval church flag above the stars and stripes.

REPORT BRAZIL IN BATTLE WITH COLOMBIANS

PARA, Brazil, Feb. 23.—[U. P.]—Unconfirmed reports reaching here today said guards on the Brazil-Colombia frontier were attacked by an armed group of Colombians at the town of Japucachoeira.

The attackers were reported to have been led by Manuel Gomez, a Colombian.

Boundary markers near Japucachoeira were torn up by the attacking party. Japucachoeira is located in a remote part of the Amazon region.

THE new RADIOTROPE . . . . a marvelous all-dynamic radio in 4 distinctive models . . . . is introduced to the radio world today exclusively by Hartman's. Developed and produced by the U. S. Radio and Television Corporation, and marketed exclusively by Hartman's in those cities where the 30 great Hartman Stores are established, this remarkable achievement of radio engineering and auditory craftsmanship is destined to leadership wherever superlative reception and cabinet artistry is recognized and appreciated. RADIOTROPE, with its individual and distinctive features, offers marvelous performance through its 9-tube neutrodyne circuit and new ALL-Dynamic Speaker. RADIOTROPE, with its smart cabinet work, brings new beauty and style to the home.

If You Wish to See and Hear RADIOTROPE Monday or Tuesday Evening . . . . All Chicago Hartman Stores Are Open.

The RADIOTROPE is not an "accident"

The marvelous reception power of the RADIOTROPE didn't "just happen". It is the completed result of years of scientific research and experiment. Its conception and development would make pages and pages of interesting reading matter. But here in the advertisement we can only tell you WHAT RADIOTROPE IS . . . WHAT IT WILL DO . . . HOW LOW ITS PRICES ARE!

Why Hartman's Chose RADIOTROPE:

Hartman's choice of RADIOTROPE was not the result of snap judgment. Nor did the U. S. Radio and Television Corporation choose Hartman's as exclusive representatives, wherever Hartman stores are located, without thorough consideration. Hartman's, the leaders in radio retailing, after thorough, exhaustive tests, adjudged RADIOTROPE as being a triumph of an industry whose marvels even now are almost unbelievable.

ALL PARTS Made by RADIOTROPE:

The marvelous 9-tube RADIOTROPE is an achievement possible only by modern American methods of manufacture. The circuit, set, parts, chassis, wiring, and assembly are produced by one maker—the U. S. Radio and Television Corporation. The elimination of middle profits plus volume production bring RADIOTROPE to you at prices much below what they would be under any other principle of production.

Note These FEATURES of the Marvelous 9-TUBE RADIOTROPE:

Razor-edged Selectivity! The Radiotrope excels in tuning—a point of interest to those who experience difficulty in tuning through high powered, local broadcasting stations. The "Pick of the Air" is yours to choose with RADIOTROPE.

The All-Dynamic Power Speaker is an integral part of RADIOTROPE (with the exception of the Model D . . . equipped with the Multi-Magnetic speaker, and priced at $79.50).

RADIOTROPE sets are COMPLETELY SHIELDED . . . a great aid in sharp tuning and insuring protection against dust and dirt settling in delicate parts of mechanism.

De luxe cabinets . . . in smart, authentic, period styles are a feature of RADIOTROPE models. Beautifully matched walnut veneers over genuine American gumwood construction! Sliding panel doors offer added dignity and distinction.

RADIOTROPE engineers have eliminated the annoying "hum" so prevalent in most A. C. electric sets. You get nothing but clear, undistorted tone reception.

To supply the instantaneous demand for the new RADIOTROPE, we have 1000 of these marvelous receivers (4 models) in our warehouse ready for immediate delivery and installation.

RECONSTRUCTION IS CLAIM TO FAME OF RETIRING CHIEF

Coolidge Satisfied with Record as Term Ends.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—President Calvin Coolidge will leave the White House on March 4 confident that his administration has made a record of accomplishment, both in domestic and international affairs.

Critics and friends alike agree that economic readjustments designed to promote the prosperity of the nation form the outstanding feature of the administration.

Just what the future estimate of activities toward the promotion of peace and world stability will be is more uncertain. In the view of the President this phase of his work will show results rivalling his domestic achievements.

Clashes Often with Congress.

The five and one-half years that Mr. Coolidge has been in the White House have been marked by numerous clashes with congress, both over legislation and appointments. The President has met defeat and has been forced to compromise. Radicals in congress have delighted in making trouble for him. Early in his administration the scandals inherited from the Harding régime kept things in a turmoil. Despite all this, the President's friends feel confident that the administration will go down in history as one of progress.

The economic readjustments have included the reconstruction of public finances under the leadership of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, the reduction of expenditures by something like two billion dollars since 1921, three tax reductions on top of one during the Harding administration, the refunding of Liberty bonds, and the funding of the war debts owed by European nations. Herbert Hoover, as secretary of commerce, had a hand in various economic readjustments, including foreign trade promotion activities, the working out of unemployment problems, inland waterway development, the elimination of industrial waste and reconstruction work following the Mississippi flood and other disasters.

Laws for Economic Needs.

Legislation designed to facilitate economic readjustments which had the support of the administration included the immigration restriction act, the Mississippi flood control act, the alien property act, providing for the return of alien property and the financing of awards to American citizens on claims against Germany, the railroad mediation act, the White merchant marine act, the McFadden branch banking act and the commercial aviation act.

Administrative acts of the President contributing toward economic adjustments have included changes in duties under the flexible tariff and encouragement of financing schemes to aid agriculture in various sections.

The President has been under fire for failure to approve the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill which was designed to restore prosperity to agriculture. The farm situation is the principal economic problem which Mr. Coolidge will pass on to his successor.

As the President goes out of office, the shipping board will have made unexpected progress toward the sale of the government ships to private interests, one of the matters in which he has been particularly interested. The President has tried unsuccessfully to obtain legislation for the leasing of the Muscle Shoals war time plant, another phase of his policy of keeping the government out of business. He has failed to get other legislation which he has repeatedly recommended, including a bill dealing with the coal problem, and a bill to encourage railroad consolidation.

Kellogg Treaty Claim to Fame.

In the field of foreign activities, the President is relying upon the Kellogg war renunciation treaty to furnish his chief claim to fame. Despite the skepticism of many who fear that this treaty will prove futile as a practical means of preventing war the President believes it will accomplish more in this direction than any action ever taken by the nations.

The President's success in obtaining approval by the senate of American participation in the affairs of the world court was regarded as one of his principal achievements, but has been virtually nullified by the refusal of other nations to accept the American reservations.

Other activities of the administration in international affairs have included the adjustment of difficulties with Mexico under the guidance of Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, the restoration of order and the setting up of a stable government in Nicaragua and efforts toward the establishment of peace and orderly government in China.

While refraining from official participation in European affairs the administration had an unofficial part in the setting up of the Dawes plan and other measures that have helped to put the war ridden countries back on their feet. In his first message to congress, Mr. Coolidge stated he regarded the attempt to put the United States into the league of nations a closed incident but it has been his policy to coöperate in some of the league's activities.

Disarm Record Not So Good.

The movement toward limitation of armament by leading nations, which was initiated by President Harding, has been continued by President Coolidge with indifferent success. A naval armament conference at Geneva in 1927 resulted in failure.

The principal pieces of legislation on which congress and the President have clashed were the soldiers' bonus bill, which was passed over his veto in May, 1924, the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill which he vetoed in February, 1927, and again in May, 1928, the Muscle Shoals bill which he killed by a pocket veto in 1928, tax reduction bills in which he met defeat on a number of different items, the Mississippi flood control bill on which he had to accept a compromise and the recent naval cruiser legislation which provided for commencing construction within specified periods despite his insistence that the time clause be eliminated.

Used His Veto Power Often.

President Coolidge vetoed many bills and in a number of instances congress overrode his veto. In a single session he vetoed a total of 13 bills, eight of them on a single day.

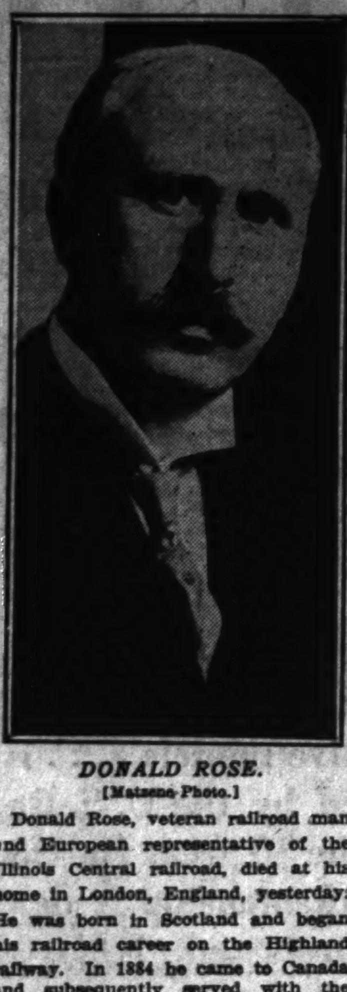
At practically every session the President has had difficulty in obtaining the confirmation of appointments. The rejection by the senate of his nomination of Charles B. Warren for attorney general in March, 1925, was the first adverse action on a cabinet appointment since 1868.

President Coolidge is given credit for appointing a high grade of diplomats at foreign capitals. Dwight Morrow, ambassador to Mexico, was one of his outstanding appointments. For many of the diplomatic posts he selected "career" men in the service, thereby creating a problem for his successor as to whether to continue these officials in their places or make new appointments as ordinarily has been done by each new President.

Fortunate in Politics.

The President was fortunate in a political way. He succeeded to the presidency in August, 1923, upon the death of President Harding. In 1924 he was renominated for the presidency without a serious convention contest. While the La Follette third party ticket presented complications in the 1924 election, Mr. Coolidge won overwhelmingly. If he had chosen to seek a third term he unquestionably could have been nominated without difficulty. The third term issue would have been raised against him in the election and just what the outcome might have been is a matter of speculation.

RAILROADER DIES



DONALD ROSE.

[Matzene Photo.]

Donald Rose, veteran railroad man and European representative of the Illinois Central railroad, died at his home in London, England, yesterday. He was born in Scotland and began his railroad career on the Highland railway. In 1884 he came to Canada and subsequently served with the Grand Trunk, Santa Fé, and Rock Island roads, entering the service of the Illinois Central in 1890. In 1904 he was sent to England as foreign representative.

LILY LANGTRY IS LAID TO REST ON JERSEY ISLAND

JERSEY, Channel Islands, Feb. 23.—(AP)—In this island famous for its lilies, after which she was named, the body of Lily Langtry, famous English actress, was laid to rest today.

Services were held at St. Saviour's church, after which the body was interred in the family grave. Among the mourners were Lady Malcolm, only child of the actress, George Malcolm, a grandchild, and Mrs. Peat, for many years the "Jersey Lily's" companion.

Lily Langtry, whose marriage name was Lady de Bathe, died at Monte Carlo on Feb. 12.

William Wolff Will Be Buried in N. Y. Tomorrow

ROME AND PARIS CALL COOLIDGE'S SWAN SONG BUNK

Liken It to Drunkard's Sermon on Sobriety.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Feb. 23.—President Calvin Coolidge's farewell address at George Washington university yesterday drew a hot retort today from the conservative newspaper, La Tribuna, under the title, "A Policy of Control," in which the President's speech is characterized as "placid bravado." The paper comments that the attitude of the United States, as delineated by Mr. Coolidge, means participation in the affairs of all the European countries, but refusal to accept any responsibilities in return.

"The reaffirmation of the principle of limitation of armaments which President Calvin Coolidge has declared as the principal policy of the United States is, since the appropriation by the American senate of money for the construction of fifteen 10,000 ton cruisers, worth just about as much as a drunkard's sermon in favor of sobriety," says the fiery editorial.

Attacks U. S. Militarism.

The paper paints a terrifying picture of America as militarily formidable, while her geographical position and the wealth of her industrial organization make it possible for her to invite all the nations to disarm while she herself remains best prepared for war.

"The foreign policy reiterated by President Coolidge coincides exactly with the financial position of the United States: debtors to no one, creditors of all the world," says the paper. "This is a foreign policy which was already roughly shaped in the war debt question at the end of the Paris conference, where that false prophet, President Woodrow Wilson, staged his social idyl. The isolation of the United States is not an estrangement but a retention of the maximum interference in the affairs of the entire world without the corresponding obligations."

The paper concludes by saying that the American break with soviet Russia, which Mr. Coolidge mentions "only as a footnote," is indicative of the whole American policy. America is sitting back, permitting the Russians to make financial advances and allowing Americans to do business in Russia, but refusing to accept diplomatic responsibilities until she finds it to her advantage to do so, the editorial charges.

Paris Scoffs at Speech.

[Copyright: 1929: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Feb. 23.—The part of President Coolidge's Washington's birthday speech most commented on here today was that relating to America's foreign policy and the advantages she has derived from isolation in her efforts for world peace.

"Mr. Coolidge's declaration appears impressive," observed the Temps, "but it is far from demonstrative that the services the United States has been able thus to render the cause of world peace have been able to compensate for those which they would have rendered if, following the war, they had remained associated with the powers which fought for a common victory and which were left alone to assure the execution of the peace treaty."

As regards American relations in South America, the Temps comments:

"It is natural that Mr. Coolidge in making his swan song should want in every way to show how the United States has progressed under his administration."

"Mr. Coolidge makes a profession of faith in the principle of Washington, that the government should not engage in permanent political alliances and that it should defend the independent sovereignty of the United States but never forget that all nations have natural and inalienable rights," says the Temps.

Raps Monroe Doctrine.

"This is evidently a very noble policy, but there are certain principles which have been accommodated to it, such as the Monroe doctrine, which has been made at certain times the pretext for justifying American direct or indirect intervention in the affairs of South and Central American republics.

"Mr. Coolidge's relations with these republics are better than they have been for twenty-five years. But it must be said that the discussions of the Pan-American congress met with difficulties each time questions were brought up regarding the solidarity of all American states. This would tend to indicate that the South American republics, particularly the Argentine, are determined in every way possible to emphasize absolute independence in every way from the United States."

NEW REPORT HITS NINE FOOT CHANNEL ON UPPER MISSISSIPPI

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Col. George C. Lambert, chairman of the executive committee of the Mississippi Valley association, announced today he had received word that Maj. Charles L. Hall, army engineer, had made a second adverse report on the proposed nine foot channel for the upper Mississippi river.

A meeting of the executive committee of the association will be called immediately, Col. Lambert said, to prepare an appeal to the army board of engineers in Washington.

Maj. Hall's first report said there was not sufficient commerce in prospect for the upper river to justify the cost of deepening the channel. His latest report, made after he had heard additional testimony, Col. Lambert said, declared he had found no reasons for exceptions to his original conclusions.

REPORT GERMAN FINDS CHEAP WAY TO PURIFY WATER

BERLIN, Feb. 23.—(AP)—A special dispatch from Munich to the Mittag Zeitung says that Dr. Georg Krause, an engineer, has invented a process for purifying water by the introduction of specially treated silver. The dispatch says that Prof. Rudolf Dekwitz, an authority on hygienics at Freifswald university, has certified Dr. Krause's results.

By injecting 1½ grams of prepared silver, it is stated that about two billion five hundred million gallons of water can be disinfected. The process costs little and can be applied to any quantity of water. It also is described as functioning independent of temperature.

Works Three Years on Invention.

MUNICH, Bavaria, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Dr. Georg Krause, head of the South German Serum Institute of Munich, who is credited with development of a new process for purifying water, has been working on the problem for the past three years. Scientific circles here regard his new method as an important step forward in the science of disinfection. It is claimed that his process lasts for years while others are comparatively shortlived.

Clarence Perfitt, Former Chicago Hotel Man, Dies

Funeral services for Clarence John Perfitt, 41 years old, a native of Chicago and for many years manager of the Belden and Stratford hotels, who died of heart disease in San Diego, Cal., on Thursday, were held yesterday in San Diego. Mr. Perfitt left Chicago last month. He is survived by his widow, Genevieve, and one son. Mr. Perfitt was the organizer and first commander of the Consumers' Company post of the American Legion and was a first lieutenant in the reserve corps of the United States army.

Robert W. Patton Dies in Highland Park Home

Funeral services for Robert W. Patton, former Chicagoan, who died on Wednesday at his home in Highland Park at the age of 74, will be held on Monday from his home. Mr. Patton served for many years on the board of trustees of the Chicago Theological seminary and on the board of the Chicago Missionary society. He was a member of the Union League club and a charter member of the Exmoor Country club. His widow, three sons, and nine grandchildren survive.

Fire Destroys Gymnasium at College; Loss $65,000

Fire early yesterday destroyed the gymnasium of the North Central college campus at Naperville, causing a damage of $65,000. The fire, which started in the basement of the building from unknown causes, was reported by students in the men's dormitory nearby. The building, which was erected 35 years ago, will be replaced by a new $350,000 structure, to be erected on the new Fort Hill campus of the college, according to F. W. Umbreit, treasurer of the college.

YANKS SLAIN AS MEXICAN TROOPS FIGHT KIDNAPERS

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Newspaper dispatches from Guanajuato tonight said J. M. Underwood and C. C. Aisthorpe, American mining engineers, were killed last night while federal troops were engaged in a battle with their kidnapers.

The band of 25 or 30 men which took the two Americans from their quarters at the Bustos mines on Thursday night were said by the correspondent of El Universal to have been overtaken by military police commanded by Maj. Salome Araujo on Friday evening. A battle followed, in which five of the bandits were killed as well as an alleged Catholic priest named Lozano, who was said to have accompanied them.

Maj. Araujo was quoted as reporting that in pursuit of the bandits after their dispersal the troops came upon the bodies of the engineers a short distance from where the conflict took place. Their bodies bore wounds indicating that they had been stabbed to death. The leader of the bandits was said to be former miner named Padron, who, on several other occasions, has extorted money from American mining companies in that region.

Robbers Berate Clerk Because Loot Is Small

Disappointed because they obtained only $30 from the cash register, two armed men who entered the Dixie shoe store at 321 West Madison street last night forced John Cohen, 4718 North Drake avenue, the clerk, to open the safe. Finding that empty, the robbers berated Cohen for his inability to provide them with a larger haul. The men entered the place as customers, then drew revolvers and held him up, Cohen said.

GERMANY LOSES HOPE FOR FINAL DEBT SOLUTION

Decides to Be Satisfied with Temporary Deal.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Copyright: 1929: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BERLIN, Feb. 23.—Official Germany is beginning to lose hope that a definite and final solution of the reparations question will be found by the experts committee in Paris, and she is endeavoring to reconcile herself to the possibility of a temporary solution. The German commission in Paris has been instructed to concentrate its efforts in obtaining protective transfer measures for German currency, regardless of the amounts Germany must pay.

The hope of reaching a compromise with the allies dwindled after Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, presented Germany's concrete reparations offer last Wednesday and met such a virulent protest.

The total figure offered by Germany is almost 60 per cent lower than what France, England, Italy and Belgium are demanding. It is only through Chairman Owen D. Young, American delegate, that a rupture was avoided. Dr. Schacht's reports to Berlin are pessimistic.

Allies Stick Together.

"France, England, Italy and Belgium stick together as closely as the fingers of a hand," he says. "They have made up their minds as to what they want and they will try to enforce it, regardless of fact and common sense."

Germany fears that in the long run the allies will be stronger than Mr. Young, who, the Germans say, is zealously endeavoring to find out the truth in order to be able to pass a just sentence.

On account of the difficulties, the German foreign office has not yet extended an official invitation to the Young committee to proceed to Berlin. The German Socialists are anxious to have the experts, especially the Americans, come to Germany and to have them travel through the country incognito, visit factories unheralded and investigate the German assertion that business is poor.

In the meanwhile Gustav Stresemann, foreign minister, is trying to reconcile the political parties and form a new coalition cabinet. On Friday he leaves for Geneva to battle at the meeting of the league of nations for a fair treatment of Europe's minorities. He wants a strong government with a broad parliamentary basis behind him when he arrives at Geneva.

Submit New Plan Tomorrow.

PARIS, Feb. 23.—(AP)—All fourteen delegates to the experts committee on reparations spent the entire day in earnest efforts to figure out the next move in the stalemate in the committee's work which has existed for the last week.

The annuities, or Germany's capacity to pay, which among the nations engaged in the deliberations will take the initiative in defining the annuities, and what total amount of reparations must be paid were the three questions which took up the complete day.

Late this afternoon M. Gutt of Belgium, Dr. Hjalmar Schacht of Germany, and Sir Josiah Stamp of Great Britain met to draw up a definite and final proposal of the method of procedure to be placed before a full session of the experts Monday morning.

All the delegations agree that a crucial week in the negotiations will open on Monday. If the subcommittee presents a report acceptable to the plenary session, then the outlook will be favorable for continuance of the deliberations in an atmosphere conducive to reaching an understanding. On the other hand, should the final report of the subcommittee be found unacceptable, then it is felt that a successful conclusion of the present conference will be greatly endangered.

Girls Fight Mystery Poison

Given Rare Serum

Three young women, reported dying at the Wesley Memorial hospital Friday night from a mysterious poisoning, were said yesterday to be on the way to recovery, following the administration of a rare serum rushed here by airplane from the University of Illinois at Champaign. The girls became ill Wednesday night after partaking of a meal they had prepared in their apartment at 6318 Kenwood avenue.

Possibility that the girls were poisoned by fluid leaking from the apparatus in an electric refrigerator into food which they ate was being investigated. This fluid contains methylchloride, which was said not to be dangerous unless taken in large doses. Samples of the girls' blood were sent to Coroner's Chemist William D. McNally for examination.

The girls who became ill are Catherine Whaley, 21 years old; Lucille Cummings, 19 years old; and Wilhemina Heckel, 18 years old.

WOMAN HELD IN WOMAN'S DEATH.

Mrs. Maria Zwienczac, 42 years old, 6800 South Francisco avenue, was held to the grand jury on a murder charge yesterday at the recommendation of a conorer's jury, which found that Anna Easio, 7224 South Paulina street, had died from the effects of an illegal operation alleged to have been performed by Mrs. Zwienczac.

GERMANY SEEKS 'MAN OF IRON' TO RESCUE NATION

And Would-Be Dictators Arise by Score.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Copyright: 1929: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BERLIN, Feb. 23. — While the financial magnates of the world are bickering about the billions of gold dollars of reparations which Germany must pay, a new wave of unrest has seized the country and, as in the postwar days of turmoil and revolt, the Germans are casting about for a "German Mussolini," a dictator powerful enough to lead the country out of it's financial and political entanglements.

Right now the reichstag leaders are talking about dissolving the reichstag to create a working majority for the government. This comprises the parliamentary system, in the eyes of the masses, and skyrockets the chances for a dictatorship in Germany.

Candidates for the post of dictator are numerous, both self-styled and proclaimed by a ring of admirers, who are working to bring about the proclamation of their idols as dictator.

Mourn War Dead Tomorrow.

Tomorrow Germany will mourn her war dead. All parts of the country will be exploited by propagandists and would-be dictators. These pigmy Mussolini's are not purely of nationalistic growth. They emerge from all walks of life, but iron fists are most numerous among the reactionary monarchists.

The millionaire publisher, Hugenberg; the loyal backer of the former kaiser, Gen. von Lettow-Vorbeck; Seldt, the manufacturer of liquor; Gen. von Seeckt; the Fascist Hitler; Crown Prince Rupprecht, his son, or the son of the former crown prince, are among the would-be dictators.

There also is Arthur Mahroun, chief of the Young German order, who preaches old Germanic ideas, to whom a million full fledged members of the order look in absolute blind faith. There are the socialists—former Minister of War Noske; present Minister of the Interior Severing; Otto Braun, premier of Prussia, who became a close friend of President von Hindenburg. And there is Max Hoelz. The communists boast that he is the ideal man to bring about better days.

Ready to Strike.

Hugenberg, Seldt, Lettow-Vorbeck, and Hoelz are the most powerful of these would-be Cæsars. They are ready to pounce as soon as they feel that the government is losing control of the nation.

Hugenberg, with his net of newspapers and magazines, his huge news service and photographic service, scores of films and his Ufa company, is hammering into the minds of millions of his customers that "all Germany needs is a strong man." He constantly derides the government for the "craze for fulfilling the orders of the former enemies, who want to draw Germany's life blood."

The impoverished middle classes are his special meat. He tells them how the "allies roll in wealth, money paid by Germany as reparations which it does not owe, since the guilt for the war was not Germany's. Germany need not suffer to pay reparations if only the right real man was at the head of her government."

Hugenberg is a fanatical supporter of the former kaiser.

"Efficiency"—Von Seeckt.

Efficiency is the main drawing card of Gen. Von Seeckt, whom many consider the most brilliant brain of the old German general staff. He won admiration for the work he did in the Reichswehr the first year after the war.

Efficiency is also the by-word used by backers of Lettow-Vorbeck. They depict him as "a national hero who showed his mettle defending and reorganizing German southwest Africa in the days of the world war."

Seldt, the Magdeburg liquor manufacturer, bosses a million men in the "steel helmet" association and is convinced he could boss Germany with equal success. He has gone so far in his conviction that he dared President von Hindenburg this week, openly announcing that the steel helmet would find its own men to reestablish the iron law of obedience and order in the German empire.

Million Germans Back Mahraun.

Another million Germans are grouped behind Mahraun, the idealist, who, after the war, when the masses had become lawless, welded groups together and taught them again the joys that lie in the work of helping their fellow citizens. He gave them insignia and titles taken from old Germanic traditions and created a hard working body of a million men and women who obey his orders implicitly.

The former crown prince's son, Prince Wilhelm, is seen as the future dictator of Germany by the diehard monarchists, and he takes his duty to the future crown seriously. Though young, he scarcely ever smiles. Dignity is his motto, and with dignity he is waiting. He appears at meetings to inflame enthusiasm in old timers for the Hohenzollern cause.

More fire is shown by the Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria, the dashing former field marshal. His son is considered one of the most brilliant princes in Germany. They, too, are surrounded by a group of followers who see them as the future "Mussolinis of Germany," and are working zealously for their cause.

Reds Have Strong Leader.

The Socialist Noske won confidence in wide circles when he reëstablished order in Berlin after the revolution. His party colleague, Severing, now minister of the interior, is an ardent Republican who would not hesitate to seize the power if he deemed the republic in danger.

The communists have only one man whom they are grooming for dictator, but that is a proof of strength. An organized body of 4,000,000 men and women are supporting the communists' dictatorial candidate. Hoelz has been traveling to all parts of Germany since he was released from jail, and all over he has received honors worthy of a potentate of yore. Hoelz is the strongest of all the would-be dictators in Germany.

NAB WOMAN, 60, IN RUM RAID.

Mrs. Meronide Accidio, 60 years old, accused of having wounded a policeman a year ago when he attempted to enter her flat at 6612 Oconto avenue without a search warrant, was arrested yesterday by detectives who raided the flat with a warrant and found four barrels of wine and a quantity of moonshine.

BURN SNOW and put pep into your COAL

During extreme cold weather the moisture is frozen from the coal. If you will wet it, you will BURN LESS, ELIMINATE OBJECTIONABLE SMOKE and get BETTER RESULTS. The simple way right now is to shovel snow, when available, on your coal pile, which melts slowly, moistening the coal. Moisture is absolutely necessary to get the best results.

FIGHT MOVE TO BAR IMPORTED PRINT PAPERS

The Tribune and Other Publishers Protest.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Opposition to proposals of domestic paper manufacturers which would tend to prevent improvement in the quality of newsprint used by American newspapers was expressed today at tariff hearings before the house ways and means committee.

Those appearing before the committee included E. M. Antrim, assistant business manager; John Park, production manager, and M. C. Martin, attorney for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE; J. W. Barnhart, business manager of the New York Daily News; Elisha Hanson, attorney, and L. B. Palmer, general manager of the American Newspaper Publishers' association, and Col. W. M. Day of the Scripps-Howard newspapers.

The proposal of the domestic paper manufacturers to which the newspaper representatives objected provides for a definition of newsprint paper, now on the tariff free list, which would have the effect of making dutiable all paper which failed to come within the narrow limits prescribed, even though used in the manufacture of newspapers.

Would Bar Importation.

Under its terms there would be further restrictions upon the chemical contents of the paper, its weight, and the size of rolls and sheets, on which limitations already have been prescribed by the treasury department, and also upon the thickness of the paper, as well as changes in the form of tests of quality and the inclusion of a retaliatory provision.

Information was presented to the committee showing that American newspaper publishers are forced to depend upon foreign production for about 60 per cent of their newsprint paper. In 1928 domestic production supplied 39.1 per cent of the newsprint used in this country; Canadian production, 54.4 per cent; Newfoundland production, 3.2 per cent; and European production, 3.3 per cent. It was stated that THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE is the largest individual user of newsprint paper in the United States, and that THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and the New York Daily News together use a quantity of newsprint paper equal to one-sixth of the total amount manufactured in the United States last year.

Mr. Antrim told the committee that if the proposal of the domestic paper manufacturers were to be incorporated in the law, American publishers would be forced by economic reasons to use newsprint of inferior grades in order to avoid the payment of duty on a commodity which congress for many years has intended should not be subject to duty He urged that no definition should be approved which makes the test of what is newsprint paper anything other than its use in the printing of daily, Sunday, and weekly newspapers.

"Congress, many years ago, foresaw the limit of American production because of the rapidly decreasing supply of raw materials," said Mr. Antrim. "It then, in the interests of conservation, laid down the policy of admitting, free of duty, newsprint paper, and the component elements thereof.

Need World's Best Paper.

"The American public is more than ever demanding accuracy of detail in newspaper reporting. The newspaper publishers are attempting to meet this demand by supplementing the printed news stories with reproductions of photographs in ever increasing numbers. The quality of reproduction of pictures in a newspaper depends primarily upon the kind and quality of paper used. The demand for pictorial presentation of news, therefore, requires an increasing improvement in the quality of paper if the wishes of the public are to be met.

"The quality of newsprint paper used in the United States has lagged far behind the quality used in England. American newspapers and the American people should not be satisfied with the present quality of newsprint used, but should proceed rapidly to equal or surpass the best newsprint paper in the world, so as to give better illustrations, clearer type, and be easier on the eyes of the reader.

"The proposed amendment to the paragraph of the law describing printing paper will utterly prevent any improvement in the quality of newsprint."

Mr. Antrim exhibited a copy of the London Morning Post, printed on a better quality of newsprint than ordinarily used by American newspapers.

"Under the proposed amendment to the law," said Mr. Antrim, "newsprint of the kind and quality used by this English publication could not be imported by American newspaper publishers without duty."

Mr. Antrim said that a great variety of newsprint is used by American newspapers, and that there is a great variance in the quality.

"The acceptance by congress of such a restrictive definition as has been proposed for printing paper would have the effect not only of preventing a natural and proper improvement in the art of newspaper publishing, but would actually result in a deterioration of the art by reason of the inability of the newspaper publishers to make use of the newsprint now available," continued Mr. Antrim. "In other words, much of the newsprint now used by American publishers, and which is imported by them, will not meet the tests prescribed by the rewording of paragraph 1301 as proposed by the domestic manufacturers, due to the fact that the finish is higher than that proposed to be allowed for newsprint, the ash content is greater, and for other reasons."

Park Gives Views.

Mr. Park asserted that the whole question should be approached "solely on the basis of the use to which the newsprint paper is put, and in the last analysis that basis is the basis of the best possible service to the public.

"It is my opinion as the result of my experience," said Mr. Park, "that it would be unwise, in the light of the development of the newspaper business in the United States, to put limitations upon the physical qualities, dimensions and thickness of newsprint paper which in any way would prevent the development of the newspaper publishing business in a manner advantageous to the public."

SEEK BROTHER OF DEAD MAN.

Police yesterday were searching their records in an effort to find the brother of John Kelly, 38 years old, who died at the South View hospital in Milwaukee, Friday. Kelly said that he had a brother on the Chicago police force.

BORRELLI ASKS HELP TO SOLVE COURT PROBLEM

After sitting for ten weeks in the Morals court, Municipal Judge Francis Borrelli yesterday addressed a letter to Chief Justice Harry Olson in which he asked Judge Olson to meet with him and others interested in the problem presented by the women who daily come before that branch.

"Command me at your convenience," Judge Borrelli wrote, "to meet with you and others to devise some means other than those which have been used with complete failure, to at least diminish these terrible conditions to the end that such a group might work out a program of an affective nature, whereby, in lieu of the present fine and imprisonment of offenders something of a curative nature rather than a punitive might be established."

The judge pointed out that women are first of all those with whom the court has to deal.

BELLS RING AS FRANCE HONORS JOAN OF ARC

[Copyright: 1929: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Feb. 23.—All the bells in the department of the Meuse, those bells in whose chimes she heard the voices of the saints, rang out this afternoon at 4 o'clock to celebrate that day and minute five centuries ago when Joan of Arc rode out from Vaucouleurs for Chinon to begin that great adventure which crowned King Charles at Rheims, liberated France and ended for her on the burning faggots in the market place of Rouen.

With a half dozen men at arms she went riding, astride for the first time in her life on a farm horse, through the wood by little lanes, forsaking the roads and fording the rivers, as all the bridges were held by the Burgundians. She went 400 miles across country to Chinon, where the Dauphin was living like a rat in a hole, afraid to fight, despised by his court, surrounded by treachery and uncrowned.

WHEN BETTER AUTOMOBILES ARE BUILT . . . BUICK WILL BUILD THEM

The 1929 Oldsmobile is winning even greater admiration from owners, because it is DESIGNED TO DO ALL THINGS WELL

It is a relatively simple engineering task to design a car which emphasizes only a few qualities at the sacrifice of others.

It is an engineering achievement, however, to combine all desirable qualities to an outstanding degree in a balanced whole. Yet that is exactly what Oldsmobile engineers have accomplished in the new 1929 Oldsmobile.

How well they have succeeded is evidenced by the tremendous gains Oldsmobile has made in public acceptance—and by the enthusiasm of owners everywhere.

Every phase of performance has been developed to a remarkable degree in this finer Oldsmobile. You have only to drive it to realize what brilliant speed—what mighty power—what thrilling getaway it provides. You have only to try it to know how smooth it is—how quiet—how easy to drive or to park. And when you examine Oldsmobile's big 62 horsepower high-compression engine you will find many indications of its progressive engineering—such as pressure-lubricated piston pins, a feature formerly characteristic of high-priced cars.

In appearance, this finer Oldsmobile is as beautiful and as smart as any car on automobile row. Its grace of line—its perfection of detail—its harmony of color—all bespeak the artistry of Fisher craftsmanship. The interiors are luxuriously appointed and richly upholstered—yet they are roomy and comfortable as well. The seats are soft and deep-cushioned. Restful riding ease is assured by four Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers. And the new Fisher adjustable front seat, combined with Oldsmobile's adjustable steering wheel, makes the driving position a matter of individual preference.

And as the months and miles roll by, Oldsmobile delivers not only the advantages of this balanced design—but adds to them the satisfaction of dependability, economy of operation, and long life.

Visit your nearest dealer. Take a drive in the 1929 Oldsmobile. Enjoy the results of full development of all the qualities that contribute to motoring pleasure. Check Oldsmobile's new lower prices. Then judge its value for yourself.

PEACE IN EUROPE NEVER WAS MORE COSTLY THAN NOW

Nations Spend Fourth of Revenue on Armaments.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Feb. 23.—Despite the Locarno treaty and the Kellogg pact, peace in Europe never cost as much as today. France spends a billion more francs yearly on national defense than she did before the war. She and her European allies devote from one-third to one-fourth of their entire revenues for this purpose.

Although France has reduced her armament budget somewhat, she still devotes 25 per cent of the total on her army and navy. The peace strength of her army is 600,000. Her reserves bring this figure up to 3,500,000 war strength. On her regular pay roll are 30,000 officers. The peace equipment of her army includes 34,000 machine guns, 3,200 cannon, 2,500 tanks, and as many war planes.

Poland Spends Third on Army.

Poland expends 33.5 per cent of her total budget for military purposes. Her army at war strength totals 1,000,000 men, 220 war planes and 160 tanks. Roumania and Jugo-Slavia spent 20 per cent and 21 per cent of their total budgets on military armaments, and have standing armies of 125,000 and 115,000, respectively, and war strength of one and one-half million.

Roumanian equipment includes 4,500 machine guns, 1,100 cannon, 90 tanks, 200 war planes. Jugo-Slavian equipment includes 2,050 machine guns, 900 cannon and 350 war planes.

Czecho-Slovakia spends only 17 per cent of her national revenues on self-defense, but with her reserves she can produce a standing army of 600,000 men equipped with 500 war planes and sixty tanks. Italy spends 24 per cent of her budget on armaments, and has a potential war strength of 3,500,000 men, exactly that of France. Officially, however, she is much weaker in equipment, having only 750 war planes and 200 tanks.

German Army of 100,000 Men.

Against this formidable array of arms pledged to the service of fulfillment of the peace treaties is Germany, Austria, Hungary, and Russia, in no way natural allies, especially since Hungary has signed a treaty with Poland, on the instigation of British pressure, directed against Russia.

Germany with 64,000,000 inhabitants, with her hundreds of miles of open frontiers, is allowed an army of only 100,000 men, no tanks and no war planes, and also forbidden to experiment with gas warfare.

Austria is allowed an army of 30,000, Hungary an army of 35,000 men. But like Germany, they have a restricted number of machine guns, heavy artillery, and are allowed no tanks or war planes.

But already the budgets have shown the results. Only 8 per cent of Germany's revenue is used for armament; Austria spends only 5.6 per cent of her income on the army, although Hungary spends 11 per cent for this purpose.

Russia Spends $325,000,000.

Russia, the enigma in peace programs in Europe, spends about the same as France on her armies, $325,000,000—that is, 22 per cent of her national budget.

France, Belgium, Italy, and the hero nations, Poland, Czecho-Slovakia, Roumania, and Jugo-Slavia, spend a total to 830 million dollars annually for national defense. This is what it costs them to force the fulfillment of the peace treaties.

HELD TO JURY ON 17 CHARGES.

Tells of Kidnaping

CAROL LAVOLD.

H. S. GIRL HOME; SAYS GUNMAN KIDNAPED HER

Asserting that she had been kidnaped, Carol Lavold, 16 years old, a student at the Proviso High school in Maywood, returned to her home at 662 North Fourth avenue, Maywood, yesterday from Elkhorn, Wis., in company with her father. She had been missing 24 hours.

The girl said she drove to a Maywood store Friday night in the family car and was held up by a gunman about 22 years old as she started to return home. The youth, she said, got into the car beside her and ordered her to drive toward Antioch, Ill.

As they neared the town, the girl declared, she stopped the car and told her abductor a tire was punctured. When he got out to examine the wheels, she drove on to Elkhorn. The sheriff at Elkhorn notified her father of her arrival there yesterday. Deputy sheriffs along the highway were searching for the alleged kidnaper last night.

Report Pope Pius to Hold Consistory on March 18

ROME, Feb. 23.—(AP)—The newspaper La Tribuna says that Pope Pius is likely to hold a consistory on March 18 "for the creation of Italian and foreign cardinals." The paper adds that presumably the pontiff also will ask formal approval by a sitting of the cardinals of the recently signed Lateran treaty.

SHYSTER BREAKS OLD TRADITION OF FRENCH WEDLOCK

Tempter Urges Divorce on Installment Plan.

BY ALEX SMALL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Feb. 23.—Divorce is not increasing rapidly in this country, evidently; for the last two years, statistics of which are available, it has been about 16 per cent of the number of marriages celebrated in those years. But it has given rise to a sordid traffic, one which it is not pleasant to contemplate.

If the divorce rate is not rising swiftly, it is at least far greater than it was before the war. The general disorganization of society attendant on the war and the promiscuity of the industrial age is reckoned the chief cause. To any one who has ever seen French marriage procedure, it might seem impossible that any one in this country ever could contract marriage lightly, but such apparently is what is being done.

Law and Customs More Lax.

The law is more lax than it formerly was, and so are customs. Twenty years ago, from the highest to the lowest strata of French society, marriage was a very serious affair. Even among workers, where the dowry was infinitesimal, interminable family councils had to be held before the happy couple could be alone at last.

The young people took this as quite in the order of things. And, once it had been done, one was generally married for life. Among the humble, divorce was too expensive; among the respectable, it was an unthinkable scandal. It required great force of character to defy opinion enough to sue for divorce, no matter what the ground might be.

Casual Contacts Frequent.

The old French family, which made marriage such a serious business, has not relaxed its discipline, in general, but in the huge anonymity of Paris are thousands of people at loose ends.

Now that women have a place in industry, casual contacts are possible. The old business of having to meet a girl at a party and then call on the parents and having one's "intentions" made known through intermediaries is unnecessary. Besides, most of these people are deracinated and there are no parents on whom to call.

Now that consent is no longer obligatory, these people can, with a little patience, get married, and they do it frequently enough. And frequently enough, also, as everywhere, the affair, as the French put it, does not march.

Divorce on Installment Plan.

In the old days one just put up with it and did the best one could. But now when poverty and bad temper and volatile affections do their work, many think of divorce. The ancient prejudice against it, at least in certain classes, has disappeared.

And there at hand is the tempter—the firm of shyster lawyers who send around circulars offering divorces on the installment plan.

Those who let themselves be persuaded are in for it. They are naturally poor devils who cannot afford gilt edged lawyers. They little know what they have undertaken—how much stamped paper there must be and how many preliminary fees. Often they get discouraged and leave their divorce in midair. But most get to the "reconciliation" stage.

A Sad Lot.

They are a sad lot as they are herded into a waiting room of the courts, each couple waiting their turn to go before a magistrate and announce solemnly that they canot live together any more. The stories are the most banal on earth—usually of drunken quarrels.

All this business is arranged by smooth lawyers. But there is the money. The dowry has usually been invested in such a way that it cannot be liquidated. Then the children have to be provided for. Then the matter can be appealed, if one of the conjugal pair is determined to annoy the other, so that, with delays and inquests, the divorce may be dragged out for five or more years.

Scandals Rare in Divorce Suit.

Among the substantial people scandals are rare in connection with divorce. Many grounds are valid in France, and the bourgeoisie, still attached to its ancient taboos, always dignified, will seldom admit what is the true cause of the trouble. The man may have been a drunken sot and débauché or the wife a common trollop, but this must not be declared officially. It is something else, like violence of character—not nice, to be sure, but still not ungenteel.

Only through fiction can the French people get some idea of just what goes on in some of these respectable Parisian bourgeois families. For the flaring divorce story known in the United States ("finds wife in love nest"—"he wanted to play sugar daddy"—"what did the French dolls see?") cannot be printed in the newspapers. The judgments alone can be published, in the most colorless form.

The Landaulet Sedan Body by Fisher

You'll be proud to drive it—no matter where you go

MANY FINE THINGS are being said of the New Pontiac Big Six. That is only natural. For it represents something entirely new in low-priced automobiles. It is a big car, in that it offers every desirable big car quality. And it's a car you can be proud to drive wherever you choose to go.

The New Pontiac Big Six was designed for people who want to be proud of their automobiles. And it's finding its greatest market among those up-and-coming men and women who refuse to be content with just any kind of car. It has the style and beauty of a big car. It has the flaring fenders and the lines and proportions of a big car. It is roomy and luxuriously appointed, as becomes a big car. And close examination will reveal that its bodies have all the permanence and perfection of big car bodies, for they are Fisher's contribution to this great new automobile.

Nor is that all. The manner in which the New Pontiac Big Six performs is enough to make any owner proud. It offers real big car performance because it embodies such features as a big, new L-head engine, a counter-weighted crankshaft, the Harmonic Balancer, precisely balanced rotating parts from fan to rear axle and noiseless dirt-and-weather-proof internal brakes.

Surely all this represents a lot for the money. A lot more than was ever before available in the low-priced field. That's why the New Pontiac Big Six is enjoying such favor among those forward looking buyers who want to step up the quality of their automobiles—without any great drain on their purse.

Prices $745 and up, f. o. b. factory, plus delivery charges. Bumpers and rear fender guards regular equipment at slight extra cost. Check Oakland-Pontiac delivered prices—they include lowest handling charges. General Motors Time Payment Plan available at minimum rate.

CHINESE CRISIS GROWS AS 15,000 TROOPS REVOLT

Foreign Forces May Be Landed in Chefoo.

BY CHARLES DAILEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PEKING, Feb. 23.—The situation in the province of Shantung is rapidly getting worse, while disorders are increasing in the other provinces. Not only is Chefoo in danger, but troops including bandits and fanatics are marching on the Tsingtao region. With the arrival of U. S. S. Trenton a sufficient foreign landing force is available to prevent extensive looting should Chefoo fall into the hands of the rebels. The hordes are encouraged by Chang Chung-chang, former governor of Shantung, who is financing the attacking force in the west. The Japanese report to him to be with other troops in the east, who are marching towards Tsingtao.

Authentic telegrams from Chefoo report that 15,000 troops guarding the motor road to the railway at Weihsien have renounced the Nanking government, raised the flag of Chang Chung-chang, and are marching on Chefoo tonight.

Defeated Rebels Renew Battle.

The first encounter, in which 26,000 troops attacked Chefoo, resulted in a temporary victory for Gen. Liu Chen-nien, who holds a line 26 miles west of Chefoo. The attackers left 200 dead and 300 prisoners, thousands of rifles and fifteen machine guns, but immediately were massed for a new attack. Gen Liu Chen-nien's force on that line is only 7,000, hence the foreign consuls fear that Chefoo will soon be lost.

Diplomats are paying the closest attention to the developments in Shantung since the negotiations between Dr. C. T. Wang, Chinese Nationalist foreign minister, and Kenkichi Yoshizawa, Japanese minister, have fallen through. As a consequence, Japan is certain to maintain her armies in the Shantung province.

Announces Third Victory.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 23.—[U.P.]—Several hundred were killed and wounded in an 18 hour battle at Ku Hsien-Chi, advices received here today said. Gen. Liu Chen-Nien, commandant of the Chefoo Nationalist forces, compelled the insurgents to surrender. He captured 800 prisoners.

The battle followed an attack by Gen. Chang Chung-Chang, Chinese war lord, on Ku Hsien-Chi.

The victory was the third Gen. Liu Chen-Nien has won in three days. After the battle he returned to Chefoo and announced the danger of an attack was ended and the city and its residents safe.

Americans Ask Gunboat.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Consul Walter A. Adams, at Hankow, China, in a dispatch dated Feb. 21, to the state department today, said representatives of the various American interests at Changsha had requested the protection of an American gunboat because of a new outbreak of fighting. Minister MacMurray at Peking said the request had been transmitted to the commander of the Yangtze patrol. The principal American interests are those of the Standard Oil company, Liggett & Myers Tobacco company, and Yale college in China which had been closed for some time but whose preparatory school recently was reopened. Other dispatches reaching Washington indicate the fighting in progress at Changsha was between Gen. Lu Ti Ping, who is a Hunanese, and Yeh Chi, who represent the Kwangsi group at Hankow.

Caught as Bigamist

DOROTHY ANDERSON.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Arrested in Los Angeles several days ago after a two year search by police, Dorothy Anderson, 23 years old, was returned to Chicago yesterday where she will answer to bigamy charges preferred against her by two men. She is charged with having married Robert Mandell in September, 1925, and also John B. Massoth in June, 1926, without first having obtained a divorce from Mandell. She denied having ever married Mandell, but admitted to police that she had married Massoth. She will be arraigned tomorrow.

THIS IS NEWS! NO BELLS OR DIVORCE FOR PEGGY JOYCE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CANNES, France, Feb. 23.—For the first time in years, Peggy Hopkins Joyce is contemplating neither marriage nor divorce.

"I am not engaged," the former Countess Gosta Morner said here today, "and there is no prospect in sight, either. Lord Northesk? Why, that's old news. Everybody knows that's over, with no regrets on either side. I am here for some months of solid rest and recreation, but I have not been out of the hotel since my arrival on the Riviera, since I don't know anybody. Now you will have to excuse me; I must get dressed. A gentleman and I are going to the Casino for dinner."

Plane with Nitroglycerine Just Misses Forced Landing

Great Falls, Mont., Feb. 23.—(AP)—An airplane loaded with nitroglycerine faced a forced landing at Calgary yesterday when the fuel supply ran low, but the ship came through safely at its destination. The plane had just enough gasoline to carry it 20 feet farther when it halted. Capt. F. R. McCall, Canadian war ace, was the pilot.

Phone Operator Ends Life by Taking Drug in Home

Miss Vera Daley, 24 years old, a telephone operator, committed suicide by swallowing poison in her home, 8735 South Union avenue, last night. She was found dead on the floor of the bathroom by her father, James. He said she may have been despondent because of a love affair.

15 ELLER AIDS FAIL IN MOVE TO DODGE TRIAL

Judge Overrules All Technical Motions.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Ben Tower, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in Pontiac reformatory by Judge John J. Sullivan.

Stanley Ropes, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life in the penitentiary; Joseph Hodges, manslaughter, sentenced to 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary by Judge Thomas Taylor.

Thurman Pierce, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in Pontiac reformatory by Judge Frank Comerford.

Harry Williams, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the epnitentiary; John Jackson, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in Pontiac reformatory by Judge Charles Williams.

Andrew Willis, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary; Steve Piniak and John Weininski, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life each in Pontiac reformatory by Judge Thomas J. Lynch.

Frank De Mario, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life in the penitentiary by Judge D. J. Normoyle.

John Torrelli, burglary, sentenced to 1 year to life in Pontiac reformatory by Judge Harry B. Miller.

Fifteen henchmen of Morris Eller, city collector, and his son, Judge Emanuel Eller, failed to dodge trial yesterday by technicalities. Judge Frank Comerford of the Criminal court overruled all the technical motions made by the battery of defense lawyers which were designed to throw out the indictments against the men, who are now charged with kidnaping and assault to murder.

The attorneys for the defense argued that the crimes of kidnaping and assault to murder could not be joined in one indictment. They said the charges were inconsistent—that if the defendants intended to kill the Chicago Bar association watchers on primary day, April 10, 1928, they could not at the same time contemplate the crime of kidnaping. The judge, however, ruled that the charges are not inconsistent and that the men must face a jury in his court on March 18.

Attorneys Michael Ahern and George Guenther indicated that at that time they would file a plea of former jeopardy. They will contend they said, that the men are in reality being tried twice on the same charge.

The Ellers are not co-defendants in the case. They are still waiting trial on the conspiracy indictment.

TRAIN HITS TRUCK; BOY KILLED.

Dixon, Ill., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—John Torti Jr., 7 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Torti, farmers, was killed, and John Fassler, 20, was seriously injured today when a Chicago and Northwestern passenger train struck a truck in which they were riding at a crossing in Nachusa, six miles east of Dixon.

Called Kidnaper

REX CARZOLI.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Rex Carzoli, 23 years old, 518 North Drake avenue, was being held by Racine avenue police yesterday pending investigation of charges of kidnaping and extortion brought against him by Frank Wadycki, 908 North Fairfield avenue. Carzoli, according to Wadycki, kidnaped his son, Joseph, 17 years old, last September, and released him after a ransom of $50 was paid. Wadycki told the police Friday night that the man threatened to kidnap the boy again if $100 was not paid him yesterday. The police arrested Carzoli when he appeared at the Wadycke home yesterday. They are investigating the father's story and an admission by Carzoli that he was a member of a bootlegging gang.

CHOKES A WOLF TO DEATH WITH HIS BARE HANDS

Menominee, Mich., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Autti Hakariner of Daggett, Mich., collected $15 bounty today on a big timber wolf which he had choked to death with his bare hands.

Hakariner was skiing when he saw the wolf and gave chase down a long hill. Almost before he knew it he had swooped down upon his prey. He struck the wolf broadside.

When Hakariner recovered from the mixup he found the wolf laid out gasping for breath. As his skiis had gotten away and slid to the bottom of the hill and as there was nothing available he could use as a club, Hakariner proceeded to choke the wolf with his hands.

BRAINS GYRATE AT CONVENTION OF PUZZLE FANS

They All Know How Old Ann Is.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 23.—[Special.]—The play boys and girls of puzzledom are in town with their spring stock of cryptograms, chronograms, antigrams, rebuses, rhomboids, and charades. They have come, two hundred strong, from every section of the country and as far away as Canada for the semi-annual convention of the National Puzzlers' league.

Today they were bumping their heads together at Hotel Martinique over the most obscure specimens of their art the puzzlers have been able to produce. In between times they have been settling some of the ills of the puzzle world and turning the remaining ones over to their new president, Mrs. J. F. Kobus of Camden, N. J.

The emblem of the league is the sphinx, but the doctors, lawyers, teachers, bankers, clergymen, and students who compose its membership have nothing to do with silence. They will talk to any one about anything, for they have dropped their conventional names for three days and are using nom de plumes that are the badge of the true puzzler.

Use Weird Names.

Here assembled to test their skill on the fifty-seven varieties—for there are more different kinds of puzzles than pickles—are such curiously named persons as Dan D. Lyon, Alec Sander, Tim Iddity, N. J. Ineer, P. Nurious, and M. T. Head, to say nothing of a host of others.

All puzzledom is divided into two parts, these staid bankers and educators will tell you the moment you poke your head into their reception room. These are the forms and the flats. The flats include such word acrobatics as anagrams, charades, cryptograms, and poetic puzzles. The forms usually are in the shape of geometric figures, like the pentagon, rhomboid, and isocahedron.

The cryptogrammists are intent on figuring out that old problem: Who really wrote Shakespeare—the bard or Bacon? Just to make it interesting a $500 prize has been put up by L. Z. Harrison, an Oklahoma oil man who dabbles in puzzles on the side. The whole thing was thrown open to the public today.

Some Fancy Anagrams.

Jack O'Lantern set Willie Wildwave, Tim Iddity, and all the rest of them to racking their brains this afternoon with his latest transposition, changing "dangerous" into "noseguard" and then into "groundsea," all containing the same letters.

This same Jack O'Lantern is the champion anagram changer of the convention. He brought down the house when he changed "every cent paid me" to "received payment."

While the "flats" were busy changing "moonstarer" to "astronomer" the "form" section of the convention was puzzling over a brain twister produced by Robert Anderson, a founder of the league in 1883. He had a geometrical one for them. This is the problem:

Take any triangle and erect upon its sides equilateral triangles. Bisect all the angles of these triangles. If the three points at which these bisecting lines cross one another are connected, the result will be an equilateral triangle.

$2,000 Reward for Return of $225,000 Stolen Checks

The Pioneer Trust and Savings bank at Crawford and North avenues posted a $2,000 reward yesterday for the return of canceled checks with a written but not negotiable value of $225,000, which three robbers seized last Monday after slugging the bank watchman. The Illinois Bankers' association has already posted a $5,000 reward for the arrest and conviction of the robbers.

ORDERS SPECIAL KENOSHA INQUIRY ON CRIME WAVE

Grand Jury Called to Sift Many Cases.

Kenosha, Wis., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Kenosha today turned to a grand jury, seldom used in Wisconsin, to bring a halt to the wave of disorder and crime that has continued unchecked the last year.

Circuit Judge E. B. Belden ordered a special grand jury to convene Monday to investigate the shootings, bombings, and other acts of violence, in response to a petition signed by 3,000 citizens who pleaded such action was necessary in the face of the failure of the ordinary legal machinery to bring the guilty to justice.

An Emergency Action.

The grand jury system of criminal investigation was supplanted many years ago in the state courts of Wisconsin by arrests made on informatin and belief, with a magistrate determining whether there was sufficient evidence to warrant a trial. A state grand jury is resorted to only in emergency.

Police have held that much disorder resulted directly from strife that followed the strike or lockout of more than 300 employés of the Allen A company a year ago and which still is in effect. Bootlegging activities are believed to have resulted in two murders—those of Eugene Russo, who was "taken for a ride," and Anton Lanzilotti, shot down with a machine gun Sunday near a church.

Law Machinery Crippled.

In granting the plea of business and labor interests, as well as citizens disinterested in the Allen A controversy, Judge Belden asserted that the county law enforcement machinery was unable to function with sufficient efficiency, making a grand jury necessary.

During the year hundreds of persons were arrested on various charges, but no convictions were obtained and few suspects were taken for the long list of bombings, sluggings, kidnapings and shooting affrays which finally stirred the citizens to demand drastic steps be taken to stop the era of violence.

CLOSE ONE EYE AND GET MORE OUT OF A MOVIE, WE'RE TOLD!

New York, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Spectators at movies, by closing one eye, may get added realism in form of depth, a joint meeting of the American Physical and Optical societies was told today.

Watching with one eye tends to give the impression that the distant objects in the picture actually are far back of the screen, as if it were merely a window through which the audience gazes.

I. G. Priest of the United States bureau of standards, told of the single eye trick during a discussion of research into the methods of making three dimensional pictures.

Another trick of interest to movie fans is that cameras in motion may give a much better resemblance of the actual three dimensions of nature than cameras standing still.

ATHLETE SHOT BY GANGSTERS IN CRITICAL STATE

John C. Acher, 22 years old, former Northwestern university student and football player, shot by Chicago gangsters last November, is in a critical condition at the home of his parents, Dr. and Mrs. A. E. Acher in Fort Dodge, Ia., it was learned yesterday. Infection has developed in his wound it was said. An operation performed some weeks ago gave only temporary relief, the message stated. Acher and his younger brother, Chester, were returning home from a football celebration when their automobile scraped the fender of another containing four hoodlums. In the resultant argument Acher was shot in the spine. The injury caused almost complete paralysis.

CHICAGO LADY LAUDS KONJOLA FOR ITS DEEDS

After Seven Years Is Freed from Indigestion and Neuritis by Modern Medicine.

No sooner than Konjola, the new medicine, is put to the test wherever it is introduced, there begin to pour in happy indorsements from men and women who find in this super-compound, this modern and different medicine, the first relief they have had.

MRS. WILLIAM J. GIBBENS.

No matter what medicines and treatments have failed; no matter how long the suffering, Konjola, with its 32 ingredients—22 of them the juices of roots and herbs—welcomes the test. Just how this amazing medicine—the most talked of remedy in America—works, is being explained by six Konjola Men in Chicago. There is one near you; you will find them at the Walgreen drug store, Randolph and State; Walgreen drug store, Wabash and Van Buren; Walgreen drug store, Washington and State; the Economical drug store, Lawrence and Lincoln; the Walgreen drug store, 63rd and Cottage Grove, the Walgreen drug store, Madison and Kedzie, and Walgreen drug store, 634 Davis St., Evanston.

The Konjola Men are not in Chicago primarily to sell Konjola, but to tell of the marvelous record of this medicine for the stomach, liver and bowels, and for rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. The Konjola Man does not deal in promises and claims, but in actual, proved and undisputed facts of Konjola's splendid triumphs over cases that have defied and baffled all else tried. Konjola goes to the source of the ailment; it goes after causes; it attacks disease at its very fount and source. Konjola is emphatically a medicine of deeds, not words. After all, the test of any medicine is the experiences of those who know its worth. Take, for instance, the case of Mrs. William J. Gibbens, 1331 Loyola avenue, Chicago, who said to the Konjola Man at Walgreen's, Randolph and State streets, a few days ago:

"Konjola is the medicine I should have had in the first place. For seven years I suffered the tortures of indigestion. As my system was filled with poisons neuritis very naturally followed, and as the result of indigestion and the terrible pains of neuritis I became extremely nervous. My general health was badly undermined; my feet and ankles swelled to twice their natural size, and pains pierced my back and limbs. Nothing, however light my diet, agreed with me, and after every meal came gas, bloating and heart palpitation.

"I was discouraged and disheartened, for everything I tried failed. A friend in another city wrote me about Konjola, and I determined to put this new medicine to the test. What a surprise was in store for me! Just as I was told it would do, Konjola went to work immediately. Even the first bottle brought such relief that I knew I was on the right track at last. In just one month, in which time I took four bottles, I was like a new person. My digestion is fine; I can eat anything. Gone is the neuritis and I am picking up in weight and strength. Just think! after seven years of suffering to be made completely well in four weeks! Surely Konjola deserves to be called the master medicine of them all!"

Thus Konjola works quickly and thoroughly. This new medicine is not designed to give mere temporary relief, but new, complete and glorious health. Give Konjola a chance to prove its merits—that's the convincing way.

Meet the Konjola Man nearest you . . . at Walgreen drug store, Randolph and State; the Walgreen drug store, Wabash and Van Buren; the Walgreen drug store, Washington and State; the Economical drug store, Lawrence and Lincoln; the Walgreen drug store, 63rd and Cottage Grove, and the Walgreen drug store, Madison street and Kedzie avenue, and the Walgreen drug store, 634 Davis street, Evanston.

No obligation—just the opportunity to know what Konjola means to all who are ill and would be well again.

New Chrysler "65" 4-Door Sedan $1145

CHRYSLER engineers from the outset disregarded all other performance standards and all other design. They set themselves to establish definitely the most modern principles and fundamentals of engineering and to apply them in a brand new way.

The same processes which based the new Chrysler style on the canons of classic beauty worked step by step to provide performance unlike any other in the industry—founded on a new and fresh interpretation of the basic principles of engineering design.

It is because of this Chrysler plan and the achievement of this plan, that an entirely new motor car performance has been brought into being.

The extraordinary acceleration, smooth speed, ease of handling and control, compactness, comfort, durability and long life, together with the unusual safety and stamina which characterize Chrysler, have all been combined in a car whose qualities can only be approached by other cars costing hundreds, yes, even a thousand dollars more.

It is no wonder that Chrysler engineers working with that singleness of idea and surety of approach to every problem, should create a product built as none ever built before and better than any other.

New Chrysler "65"—Six body styles, $1040 to $1145. New Chrysler "75"—Nine body styles, $1535 to $2345. New Chrysler Imperial—Five custom body styles, $2675 to $3475. All prices f. o. b. factory.

VATICAN TREATY STIRS FRENCH IRE AGAINST ITALY

Paris Claims Rome Seeks Control in Colonies.

BY WAVERLEY ROOT.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1929: By The Chicago Tribune.]

ROME, Feb. 23.—For the reader between the lines there is vast significance in the bitter controversy that has raged throughout Europe during the last week as a result of the concordat signed between the Italian government and the Holy See. Approval or disapproval of the agreement might have been expected to have been expressed along the lines of religious divisions. Instead, the opinions differ in accordance with nationality.

The severest criticism of the action of the pope in concluding an agreement with the Italian state comes from France. Bitter replies to those criticisms come from the Italian press. This antagonism of the two countries on the question is a symptom of the fact that France no longer looks towards Germany when she votes thumping big appropriations for her army and navy. France has turned her eyes from the Rhine towards the Alps.

Five Power Pact Impossible.

It follows inevitably, according to diplomats, that even if Great Britain and the United States succeed in resolving the difficulties in the way of a naval agreement, that another five power convention is impossible, for the demands of France and Italy are irreconciliable and intransigeant.

With the announcement of the signing of the concordat, which was unanimously applauded by the rest of the Roman Catholic world, France immediately burst into a storm of protest, headed by the conservative Paris evening newspaper Le Temps, while the non-Catholics, like Edouard Herriot, the Socialist deputy, foamed at the mouth. Why? The answer is simple.

While the Vatican remained in a position of passive hostility toward the Italian government, France saw an element of possible weakness in the Italian position, according to a prominent Italian. Now, by a move which was a triumph of diplomacy both for the church and the state, the difficulties are consolidated and Italy stands firm and united. France, naturally, is not pleased at this success of a potential rival.

Not Actuated by Religion.

That the French Roman Catholics are really actuated by other than their religious motives in protesting at the concordat is shown first by the weakness of their arguments, which are easily confuted by the Italian press; and, second, by the tendency of the rest of France actually to argue in the same direction.

On a lesser scale, the French government took the same attitude as the Italian when they proposed to restore the rights of the monastic orders some months ago. At that time their action was explained on the grounds of political expediency, because the French missions in the colonial possessions were passing into the control of foreign priests. By "foreign" the French meant Italian. Now they are accusing Italy of exactly the same motive—a desire to control the colonial missions.

Easily seen through the smoke screen of France's arguments, is her claims to naval strength equal to Italy's. France points out that she has two coasts to defend, the Mediterranean and the Atlantic, while her African colonies make it necessary to insure a free passage over the Mediterranean, and therefore she demands equal strength with any other Mediterranean power—meaning Italy—for a southern fleet, plus additional strength on the Atlantic.

Italy Demands Bigger Navy.

Italy, however, insists on a navy stronger than that of any other Mediterranean power — meaning France — and Italy is not so naive as to imagine that in case of war France would refuse to make use of her Atlantic fleet in Mediterranean waters.

Italy's geographical position is peculiar. With a short land frontier, she has a long coast line in a sea that can easily be stopped at Gibraltar and at the Dardanelles. Italy has always sensed the danger of a blockade and insists on a sufficient force to insure keeping open the shipping routes.

At present the French fleet has a considerable advantage over the Italian. The French naval strength today is 130,000 tons of warships and 35,000 tons of submarines, while Italy has only 59,000 tons of warships and 12,000 tons of submarines. According to the present building program, the French strength in 1934 will be 210,000 tons of warships and 90,000 tons of submarines, while Italy will have 167,000 tons of warships and 27,000 tons of submarines.

HIS CASTLES ARE ALL IN AIR; BRIDE WINS ANNULMENT

Wooer's Imagination Too Good, Judge Rules.

A degree of imaginative fiction can be forgiven a youth in courting his beloved, but Superior Judge William N. Gemmill held yesterday when the wooer oversteps the bounds of reason in exaggerating his financial prospects the castles in the air constitute fraud upon the wooed.

On the basis of this opinion the court granted a decree to Miss Barbara Alter, 19 years old, 1333 Ardmore avenue, annulling her marriage on Aug. 1 to Harvey B. Johnson, 22 years old, 6170 Broadway.

Miss Alter, who is a stenographer, met Johnson at a dance. He called at her home a few nights later. He made frequent visits and asked her to become his wife.

"My father is a $75,000 a year executive in the rubber industry," Miss Alter quoted Johnson as having told her. "He will give us a trip around the world for a honeymoon and provide us with a Gold Coast apartment."

Miss Alter accepted his proposal and together they visited a department store and picked out $3,000 worth of furniture, she related. A sumptuous wedding was held at the Edgewater Beach hotel and the newlyweds occupied the bridal suite.

The honeymoon was not forthcoming. Harvey postponed departure from one day to the next. She became worried and then suspicious. On close questioning, he confessed that his total capital was $2, that he was without a job, and that his father was a clerk on a limited salary, she told the court. She withdrew her $500 savings from the bank, paid the hotel bill, and left him, she testified.

WILSON AND THE PEACE PACT AS SEEN BY BRITON

Churchill's Book Tells of Deeds and Errors.

The article which follows, the second of two, taken from Winston Spencer Churchill's forthcoming volume on "The World Crisis: The Aftermath," is the British statesman's contribution to the controversy around Woodrow Wilson and American policy in the world settlement. Mr. Churchill deals with characteristic vigor with the literature of the peace conference and devotes special attention to Ray Stannard Baker's work, based on the papers of the late President Wilson. In an article published last Sunday Mr. Churchill related his story of the framing of the league of nations.

BY WINSTON S. CHURCHILL.

[Copyright: 1929: By the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

The literature upon the Peace Conference, represented in almost every known language, is large, and that upon the peace itself far larger. The first place must be assigned to Dr. Temperley's monumental work. Although Dr. Temperley did not feel at liberty to publish all the information and documents at his disposal, his six volumes hold their place as the unique and indispensable guide for any student.

Of French books, M. Tardieu's "The Truth About the Treaty" is the most important, partly because he was one of those who acted for France at the conference, and partly because he publishes many documents which have not appeared elsewhere. M. Mermeix has also in his "Combat des Trois" printed important extracts from the secret minutes of the Supreme council and from those of the Council of Four. The principal Italian contribution is comprised in three volumes from Signor Nitti. The American point of view is represented first by Ray Stannard Baker's "Woodrow Wilson and World Settlement," of which more later; secondly, in Colonel House's papers, edited by Mr. Seymour, and thirdly by Mr. Lansing's "Peace Negotiations." There is also the admirable and scholarly "Drafting of the Covenant," by David Hunter Miller; and on the Russian aspect Dennis' "Foreign Policy of Soviet Russia and Russian-American Relations," compiled by Messrs. Cumming and Pettit.

Trunks of Material.

Ray Stannard Baker's work is distinguished from all these publications, both by the wealth of secret information at his disposal and the peculiar manner in which he has used it. President Wilson at the end of 1920 placed at the disposal of this gentleman, formerly the head of his press bureau while in Paris, two trunks and three steel boxes containing all his records of the peace conference. "I plunked them into the trunk in Paris," he wrote, "and have not had time or physical energy even to sort or arrange them." Mr. Baker lost little time in presenting these treasures to the world in the form of a sustained defense of the President's conduct and policy. In his object of vindicating his honored chief, Mr. Baker will be supported by the sympathy of the allied nations; and certainly it is not from them that much harsh criticism has come.

Every one recognises the high motives which inspired Mr. Wilson's action, his remarkable abilities, his comprehensive good will, and his readiness to arrive at practical solutions. He was a good friend not only to the allies but to Europe.

A "Scenario" of the Conference.

But Mr. Baker detracts from the vindication of his hero by the absurd scenario picture which he has chosen to paint. Wilson's share in the peace conference, his hopes, his mistakes, his achievements, his compromises, and his disasters are worthy of something better than the Hollywood setting with which we are provided.

For this purpose the President is represented as a stainless Sir Galahad championing the superior ideals of the American people and brought to infinite distress by contact with the awful depravity of Europe and its statesmen.

The plot is certainly sensational, but it hardly represents what actually happened. It is difficult to believe that the European emigrants by whom America has been populated took away with them all the virtues and left behind them all the vices of the races from which they had sprung; or that a few generations of residence on the other side of the Atlantic ocean is sufficient to create an order of beings definitely superior in morals, in culture, and in humanity to their prototypes in Europe.

Part of the American People.

The American populace fell as far short of their chief in disinterested generosity to the world as the peoples of the allied countries exceeded their own leaders in severity to the enemy. The President, himself was without a majority both in the senate and in the newly elected congress. Already ex-President Roosevelt had brutally proclaimed, "Our allies and our enemies and Mr. Wilson himself should all understand that Mr. Wilson has no authority whatever to speak for the American people at this time." Much lower and cruder views than this were to prevail on both sides of the Atlantic. The allies were destined to settle their affairs among themselves. The agreements to which President Wilson sought to commit the United States, for which the allies would be asked to concede many grave things, were to be swiftly repudiated by the American senate and electors. After immense delays and false hopes that only aggravated her difficulties, Europe was to be left to scramble out of the world disaster as best she could, and the United States, which had lost but 125,000 lives in the whole struggle, was to settle down upon the basis of receiving through one channel or another something like three-fourths of the reparations paid by Germany to the countries she had devastated or whose manhood she had slain.

If Wilson had been either simply an idealist or a caucus politician he might have succeeded. His attempt to run the two in double harness was the cause of his undoing. The spacious philanthropy which he exhaled upon Europe stopped quite sharply at the coasts of his own country. There he was in every main decision a party politician, calculating and brazen. A tithe of the fine principles and generous sentiments he lavished upon Europe, applied during 1918 to his Republican opponents in the United States, would have made him in truth the leader of a nation. His sense of proportion operated in separate watertight compartments. The differences in Europe between France and Germany seemed trivial, petty, easy to be adjusted by a little good sense and charity. But the differences between Democrat and Republican in the United States—here were really grave quarrels.

He could not understand why the French should not be more forgiving to their beaten enemy, nor why the American Republicans should not respond more enthusiastically to Democratic administration. His gaze was fixed with equal earnestness upon the destiny of mankind and the fortunes of his party candidates. Peace and good will among all nations abroad, but no truck with the Republican party at home. That was his ticket and that was his ruin, and the ruin of much else as well.

The Return to Europe.

It was a different President Wilson that crossed the Atlantic in the George Washington for the second time. He had had a rough time in the United States. The White House dinner to the senate foreign relations committee had revealed to him the implacable party rancor which he had provoked and by which he was pursued. "Senators Knox and Lodge remained perfectly silent, refusing to ask any questions or to act in the spirit in which the dinner was given." The Republicans had raised the spirit of Monroe against the league of nations. If a quarrel arose between Spain and Brazil, or between England and Venezuela, and the league of nations said Brazil or Venezuela were in the wrong, was the United States to be compelled to take sides with a European power simply because of impartial justice? This was a hard blow, and the President bent under it.

On his first voyage all his moral indignation had been concentrated upon the old world, on the second at least two-thirds of it was generously distributed to the new. There his purpose had been to compel the policies of Europe to his views; now it was the senate of the United States which stood in need of discipline. Indeed he had almost a fellow feeling for those European statesmen and diplomatists who, like him, were at grips with unfair intractable forces. Was it not time they should help each other? How would any solutions of world affairs be reached if mobs and senates and 500 gifted journalists interfered? Three or four men talking quietly on the dead level might avert breakdown and chaos if they acted quickly.

Far from Pleased with House.

After all, Lloyd George and Clémenceau, the trusted, acclaimed leaders of immense parliamentary and democratic majorities, were not unworthy comrades. He had met them now and he understood their quality and the causes of their strength. He envied them their national credentials. They were conciliatory, considerate, earnestly desirous of his good-will, and yet resolute in their countries' cause. He might not be able to give justice to the world, or even to define it in set terms, but the three together could give peace.

There is no authority for saying that these were the reflections of President Wilson on his voyage; all that is known is that on his arrival he was far from pleased with Col. House. House had already adapted himself to the relaxing atmosphere of Europe. All sorts of unauthorized ideas like "We must settle something," "We must face facts," "Every one must concede a lot," had laid hold of the colonel's calm, benevolent and extremely practical mind. Wilson had not wished to see on his second arrival at Brest, House's finger pointing the path which he had probably already himself resolved to tread. So he said to House, "Your dinner [i. e., the dinner you suggested] to the senate foreign relations committee was a failure as far as getting together was concerned."

What had happened while he had been away? Mr. Lloyd George had gone home. M. Clémenceau was, on Feb. 19, fired at and wounded by an anarchist. He was for some weeks incapacitated.

The commission appointed in February, on President Wilson's motion, to draw up preliminary naval, military and air terms for Germany had been expected to report "within forty-eight hours." They had, however, found the task vastly more difficult than the President had expected. A whole month had passed and the generals and admirals were still in the midst of their labors. Meanwhile, however, Mr. Balfour, who in the absence of the three heads of the governments became naturally the leading figure at the conference, had made an immense effort to hasten and conclude the work of the commissions upon the rest of the peace treaty. On Feb. 22 he told the supreme council that "a general feeling of impatience was now becoming manifest in all countries on account of the apparent slow progress the conference was making in the direction of final peace." Supported by Lansing and House and with the assent of the still prostrate Clemenceau, he obtained from the conference a resolution of which the first clause ran:

> 1. Without prejudice to the decision of the supreme war council to present naval, military and air conditions of peace to Germany at an early date, the conference agrees that it is desirable to proceed without delay to the consideration of other preliminary peace terms with Germany, and to press on the necessary investigations with all possible speed.

Work Advances Rapidly.

The whole of the real work of the conference, driven forward insistently from above, now began to advance with remarkable rapidity. The commissions which had hitherto been wandering off indefinitely into inquiries and discussions now rallied to precise commands to produce conclusions forthwith. From every quarter early in March they began to present reports. By the time Wilson returned, most of the great territorial issues had reached the point when final decisions could be taken by the chiefs. But the military terms, which were to have been so speedily disposed of, were still lagging on the road.

There is no doubt that Mr. Balfour had during his three weeks of virtual ascendancy achieved an extraordinary transformation in the whole position. President Wilson at no time challenged the decisions taken in his absence. On the contrary he approved with increasing cordiality the work of the "Balfour period;" he saw how scrupulously his own position had been safeguarded by the steady and dexterous hands into which the conference had fallen. He realized that all the main issues were now presented uncompromised, intact, and ripe for decision.

Wilson and Clémenceau.

Clémenceau and Wilson had long been ripening for a trial of strength. House has made us aware of the immortal interchange which arose on March 28 out of the discussions about the Saar Valley coalfields. "Then if France does not get what she wishes," said the President, "she will refuse to act with us. In that event do you wish me to return home?" "I do not wish you to go home," said Clémenceau, "but I intend to do so myself," and left the house.

"In this drastic and violent fashion did the Tiger deal with his opponent. Moreover, he had only to go around the corner. But Wilson's position was very different. To recross the Atlantic was final and irrevocable. Nevertheless, in the face of Clemenceau's continued threat to withdraw the French delegation from the conference, and in the despondency following an attack of influenza the President telegraphed on April 7 for the George Washington to return to France. His fairthful secretary, Mr. Tumulty, who remained on guard at home, warned the President in the bluntest terms that his exodus would be looked upon by friends and foes in America "as an act of impatience and petulance . . . not accepted here in good faith . . . most unwise and fraught with most dangerous possibilities . . . a desertion." This was decisive. He could not quit; he must go through with it. And meanwhile Clémenceau had said no more about withdrawal, and continued his daily attendance upon the conference.

Writes Famous Memorandum.

Mr. Lloyd George had consented to remain in France, but while the Council of Ten were fading away, and the meetings of the four were gradually assuming a formal character, withdrew himself for several days to Fontainebleau. There he wrote his famous Memorandum of March 25.

Mr. Baker had the Lloyd George memorandum before him when he wrote his history. He admired it greatly.

"A peace resting upon military coercion could never," he felt, "be anything but a curse to the world."

"No finer expression of this feeling," he wrote, "based on a farsighted preception of the verities of the situation can be found than in a memorandum sent to President Wilson by Gen. Tasker H. Bliss on March 25. It was called "Some Considerations for the Peace Conference Before They Finally Draft Their Terms."

"Gen. Bliss," he continues, "was one of the few members of the conference that never lost his sense of perspective, and who saw that there was a great danger of ruining the whole work of peace if the conference should produce a treaty against which the mass of German opinion would at once revolt."

An Astonishing Blunder.

This is probably the most astonishing blunder which any man claiming to write a standard history, and armed for that purpose with a mass of exclusive official and authentic information, has ever committed. Little did Mr Baker dream when he penned his tributes to Gen. Bliss that they should really have been directed to another address. Bitter must have been his chagrin when he realized that his praise belongs not to the distinguished American soldier whom all respect, but to an unregenerate old world politician. Indeed, it was lucky for our historian that he did not discover the true authorship of the document until some time had passed.

THE RECORD-BREAKING NEW NASH "400" from 9th to 4th place in just 6 months!

IN DOLLARS AND CENTS VOLUME, ACCORDING TO OFFICIAL FIGURES
(Ford Excluded)

ON July 1, 1928, Nash stood ninth in dollars and cents volume of sales, exclusive of Ford, according to the official figures for the year ending at that date.

On January 1, 1929, just six months later, according to the same official figures, Nash stood fourth.

In this very brief period of time the new Nash "400" has completely changed the automobile picture of America.

With unmistakable enthusiasm, motorists everywhere have placed their stamp of approval upon this new Nash—making it, by a tremendous margin, the outstanding motor car success of modern automobile history.

Why? Because Nash gives them the Twin-Ignition motor . . . gives them cars equipped with the Bijur centralized chassis lubrication system . . . with hydraulic shock absorbers . . . with bumpers front and rear . . . spare tire lock . . . cars completely, luxuriously equipped . . . at no extra cost.

Ninth to fourth place in just six months, because the new Nash "400" is the only car of all the new cars with every new and progressive feature!

The New NASH "400"
Leads the World in Motor Car Value

SARGENT TELLS CAUSE OF DELAY IN U. S. COURTS

Two Main Reasons of Long Waits.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Provisions of the statute which permits persons arrested in one judicial district to fight removal to another for trial were cited by Attorney General John G. Sargent tonight as one of the principal causes for delay in the administration of criminal justice. Other causes mentioned in an address before the Federal Bar association included an insufficient number of federal judges and lax judicial procedure in some federal courts.

The attorney general urged the passage of legislation supplying additional judges but warned against the introduction of new laws to reform judicial procedure and practice. The courts themselves, including the judges and attorneys, should voluntarily improve their own procedure and check delays, Mr Sargent asserted.

Two of Main Causes.

"Delays which occur in the administration of criminal laws, the trial and termination of criminal cases in the federal courts, are due almost entirely to two causes," Mr. Sargent said. "One is the provision of our statute for removal of indicted persons from a judicial district where found and arrested to the judicial district in which the indictment is found and pending. The other source of delay in bringing violators of the criminal law to justice is the inadequate force of judges in some districts.

"If a respondent has plenty of means—and ingenious counsel willing to receive a part of them—he may keep the prosecuting officers busy for two years or more in hearings in every grade of tribunal from United States commissioner to the Supreme court, before he can be taken from Chevy Chase, Md., into the District of Columbia for trial, though he has no defense whatever to the charge against him; for two years or more before he can be taken across the line between Brooklyn and New York City; from Maine to California; from any judicial district to another.

Opposed to Long Argument.

"A bill to remedy it by empowering the judge of any United States court to issue a bench warrant founded on an indictment returned to his court, which shall be served in any judicial district, has passed the house, is now on the senate calendar upon a favorable report of the judiciary committee, and I have no doubt will become a law before the end of the seventieth congress, to its everlasting credit."

Mr. Sargent criticized the tendency of certain judges to permit lawyers to use up "dictionaryfuls of words" in stating matters before the court when the matter could be presented in a few sentences. He asserted that both the judges and courts could greatly aid criminal justice by expediting business.

Coast Guard Cadet Corps to Receive Applications

Applicants for appointment to the cadet corps of the United States Coast Guard academy, New London, Conn., may file their applications in the offices of the coast guard at 537 South Dearborn street, it was announced yesterday. The examinations will be held in that office June 26 to June 28. Applicants must be between the ages of 18 and 22, and must have had an education equal to four years in high school. During their three year training the cadets receive the same pay as do midshipmen in the navy.

GERMAN ARTISTS SING BRILLIANTLY IN WAGNER OPERA

'Der Ring des Nibelungen' Is Chicago Farewell.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

With afternoon and evening performances of "Die Götterdämmerung," the German Grand Opera company went away from the Auditorium yesterday, having successfully concluded two complete renditions of the most magnificent set of musical variations ever composed, Wagner's "Der Ring des Nibelungen."

It has been twelve years since the "Ring" was last heard at the Auditorium and some half a dozen since another German company presented it at the Great Northern. Two of its separate items, "Die Walkuere" and "Siegfried" have had presentation since, but without the unity of the complete series. The silence has been too long for works of such magnitude, but Manager Hurok promises that less time will elapse before the company next returns.

One has decidedly kindly memories toward the organization, for it lived up to all it promised and a bit more besides. In all cases it has been entirely competent in what it was attempting to do; in individual cases the comfortable warmth of adequacy has heightened to gleams of brilliancy.

The most important lesson it has taught in how to make changes for the future relates chiefly to the expert use of blue pencils. An original promise, which was something of a threat and was afterwards altered, was to present the "Ring" in its uncut version. This is a fine prospect at Baireuth, where one devotes half the afternoon and all the evening to a performance, but it is a little too much for evening performances in America.

It is submitted, for instance, that the first act of "Die Götterdämmerung," running, as it did yesterday afternoon, an hour and thirty-five minutes by careful timing, is quite a bit of time for one act. At that it was cut. If it had been put on as Wagner left it, it would have run two hours.

Alertness Is Shown.

But the same alertness, the same manner that was present in the three earlier operas was present in this act and the acts that followed it. Juliette Lippe, a splendid singer and a definite personality of the Wagnerian stage, was the Brünnhilde and an excellent one. Another fine singer and personality, Mme. Johanna Gadski, followed her in the evening performance.

Willy Zilken, who, as in the previous "Siegfried," needed only to learn how to focus his voice to be a commanding figure in Wagner, was the Siegfried of the afternoon performance. Carl Braun, as Hagen, gave his best performance of the week, with a good deal of Chaliapin in his appearance and at times an approach to the Chaliapin voice and manner. Gunther, Gutrune, Alberich, all the rest, did their parts well, and for the first time the company's chorus appeared another example of what can be done well with comparatively small forces under good training. Walter Rabl conducted in the afternoon and Ernest Knoch in the evening.

100 Motorists Marooned in Kentucky Snowdrift

Somerset, Ky., Feb. 23.—[U. P.]—Nearly 100 automobiles were reported stalled in snowdrifts on mountain roads near Corbin, Ky., today. Snow was 24 inches deep at Corbin and in places drifted to a depth of nine feet, reports said.

Reports from Corbin said a pilot machine, with several others trailing, was forcing its way to the marooned autoists, some of whom were stalled when returning from Florida.

OFFICIAL WEATHER FORECAST

The official forecast for today and tomorrow and yesterday's table of records follow:

Power increased 24%—Above 70 miles an hour—Four hydraulic shock absorbers—New type double action four-wheel brakes—Large, fine bodies—Easier steering—Greater economy.

Twice now . . in 30 days . . production has had to be increased

Essex the Challenger sweeps aside the barriers of price class. It challenges the performance, the style, the luxurious roomy comfort of any car at any price, on the basis that no other car gives you back so much for every dollar you put in.

A glance at its 76 advanced features reveals at once why Essex excepts no car in its challenge. For point after point in fine car construction, performance and detail, brings you directly to costliest cars to find comparison.

With above 70 miles an hour top speed, Essex the Challenger, in thousands of demonstrations, is proving the endurance and ability to do 60 miles an hour all day long.

It is the finest, largest, roomiest, most brilliantly performing Essex ever built, and the price the lowest for which Essex ever sold—but little above the lowest priced cars on the market.

That is why the acceptance of Essex the Challenger is the talk of motordom. Join the van of 1,000,000 Super-Six owners who are demonstrating its right and ability to challenge the best that motordom offers.

BAYER ASPIRIN is like an old friend, tried and true. There can never be a satisfactory substitute for either one. Bayer Aspirin is genuine. Without that name you can never be sure. Why have the doctors endorsed Bayer Aspirin for a quarter century? Because they know it's safe. Why does the public turn more and more to Bayer Aspirin every year? Simply because they have found it dependable. To break a cold in a hurry, to dispel the headache that goes with it; to ease a sore throat by gargling. For quick comfort when there's neuralgia or other deep-seated pain. Nothing in the whole realm of medicine can take the place of Bayer Aspirin! STARTS INQUIRY OF COP'S FAILURE TO IDENTIFY TRIO

Judge to Test Power of Disciplining Witness.

An open court investigation into the conduct of Policeman Walter Hoder of the Chicago avenue station, who refused to make an identification of three men acquitted Friday of murder, is to be started tomorrow morning, it was announced yesterday by Judge John P. McGoorty. The judge ordered the policeman into his court, as well as a man who Hoder said had sent him certain telegrams while he was on his way to California to identify the men after their arrest there.

The summoning of Policeman Hoder into court is to be a test, it was said, of how far a Criminal court judge can go in disciplining witnesses who hide behind the answers of "I don't know" or "I don't remember."

Shot by Three Men.

Policeman Hoder was shot on Sept. 1, 1928, when he attempted to question three men who had just left a North Clark street garage. The next night the same men returned to the garage to kill John Brown, an attendant, who had witnessed the shooting, but by mistake shot Albert Pratt.

Before leaving for California, Policeman Hoder identified photographs of two of the men as his assailants. On the way to the western coast he received two telegrams and made a long distance telephone call and from that time on his attitude changed, it is charged.

Trio Freed by Jury.

Last week when called to the witness stand he refused to identify any of the defendants, Michael Reilly, William Clifford, or George Barker, alleged labor racketeers.

Two brothers of Reilly and Robert Robinson and Ray O'Laughlin, who were arrested outside the courtroom of Judge McGoorty just before the verdict, were discharged when arraigned yesterday before Judge Joseph L. McCarthy of the Chicago avenue court.

PLANE TO HUNT FIVE FISHERMEN MISSING AT SEA

Boston, Mass., Feb. 23.—(AP)—A naval seaplane will take off from the Squantum naval reserve air base at daybreak tomorrow to search for five missing Portland, Me., fishermen, officials of the Boston navy yard said today. A search will be made from the air of the waters from Cape Ann to Portland.

Orders to start the search were received from Washington today by the naval authorities here. Inability to obtain a pilot prevented a search immediately. The missing fishermen were members of the crew of the schooner Abberance which became lost during trawling operations in the heavy snowstorms Thursday.

ALLEGED LIQUOR RUNNER IS SHOT BY STATE POLICE

Fired in Self-Defense, Says Michigan Dry.

Monroe, Mich., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Investigation into the circumstances of the shooting yesterday of Walter "Slim" Butler, an alleged rum runner, by Corporal Lawrence Dann of the South Rockwood detachment of the state police was begun today by Capt. J. C. Cleghorn, Lieut. Orva Jackson, head of the South Rockwood post and William Mcaran, prosecuting attorney of Monroe county.

Butler's condition still is so serious that officers have not been permitted to interview him and even his wife, who has been at the Monroe hospital continuously since late Friday, has been unable to talk to him. Butler, who also is known as Cunningham, is not expected to survive.

Butler is accused of having attempted to shoot Dann and the warrant charges him with shooting with intent to kill. Here is Dann's story, corroborated by Modders:

"We were driving down Swan creek on the ice toward Lake Erie when we saw two cars out about a mile on the lake. When we got near the man driving the pilot car turned and drove alongside of us and motioned the load to go back.' He blocked us off and the load started down the lake shore.

"Butler, who was driving the pilot car, shot at our car and hit the radiator. Modders and I both jumped out and said, 'We are state police.'

"Butler said, 'I don't care who you are, if you take another step I'll let you have it.' He had a repeating rifle in his hand but we kept on walking towards him and he shot in the ice. The bullet went between my legs.

"Then he pointed the gun at my partner and I figured he was going to shoot again so I shot him.

"After I hit Butler, he asked why I shot him. He said: 'I thought you fellows were hi-jackers, that was why I stopped you.'

"We took Butler to the hospital right away and let the load go."

Capt. McLane Made Acting Division Fire Marshal

Capt. Horace A. McLane, chief of the 16th battalion of the city fire department, was elevated to the temporary position of division fire marshal with headquarters at 14th street and Michigan boulevard, by order of Fire Commisisoner A. W. Goodrich, last night. The post is that of Division Chief John Smith, who has been ill for a year and continues on a temporary disability basis.

HERRIN EX-MAYOR SENT TO PRISON FOR TWO YEARS

East St. Louis, Ill., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Three former officials of Herrin, Ill., sentenced today to prison terms for conspiracy to violate the national prohibition act, left tonight for Leavenworth federal penitentiary in the custoday of United States marshals. They will begin their terms tomorrow.

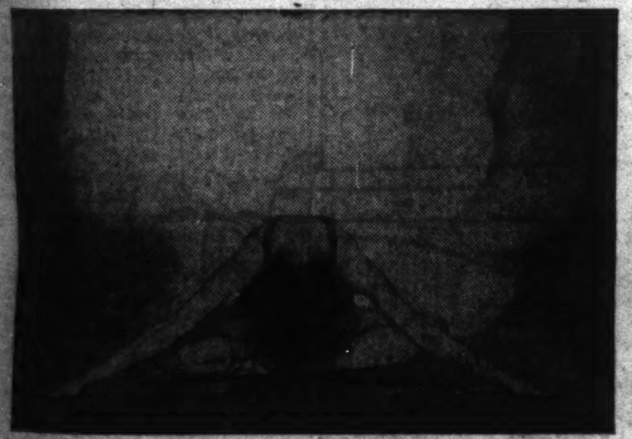
The three are former Mayor Marshall McCormack, sentenced to two years imprisonment and fined $3,000; his brother, Elmer, formerly a Herrin patrolman, one year and a day and $500, and John Stamm, former chief of police, eighteen months and $1,000.

Alvin Misker, water superintendent of Herrin, who pleaded guilty to the conspiracy and turned government witness, escaped a penitentiary term. Federal Judge Fred Wham this afternoon fined Misker $500 and released him on probation with one year allowed to pay the fine.

All four men were accused of collusion with the Charlie Birger gang and other bootleggers and rum runners in wholesale liquor trafficking in southern Illinois. The three were convicted a week ago and resigned their offices last week.

In passing sentences, Judge Wham branded the former mayor as a "betrayer of public trust," and declared that the jury's verdict of guilty was justified. None of the defendants made any comment. Their attorneys announced that no appeals would be taken and all three were surrendered immediately to the marshal's office to be taken to prison.

Five former public officials of Williamson county now are under penitentiary sentences for liquor conspiracy in connection with gang warfare and mob violence of recent years. Another is awaiting sentence. Arlie O. Boswell, former state's attorney, and George Bell, former coroner, are in prison.



SOME HUSBANDS ARE WORTH HOLDING

ELIZABETH ARDEN'S new Plastic Exercise not only models the figure into lines of chic but develops that unconscious grace which makes movement a thing of beauty. "Mere beauty of face may win a husband but it takes more to hold one in this day of competition." The loveliest lady we know asserts it.

She is in Cannes now, basking deliciously in ultra violet rays and Chiaparelli's newest bathing suit. Even in the all-revealing glare of the Riviera sun she is exquisite, flawless.

When one is young and light-hearted, it is comparatively easy to be lovely. But when one has tripped lightly through as many brim-full years as this bewitching person and still is gloriously beautiful, she is headier subject for the poets.

She has kept a wondrous glamour . . . and the belief that all things worth the having are worth the holding . . . including husbands.

But not her imperious will, nor all her persuasive charm could retain Youth, unassisted. One day she discovered the precious secret at the fashionable Elizabeth Arden Salon in Paris. Subsequently she has sought out an Arden establishment in every city of her smart itinerary.

Here she regains whatever time or fatigue has robbed her of, by means of the wonderful Muscle-Strapping Treatments combined with whatever other of the exclusive Arden Treatments are found to be right for her.

BADGERS WHIP WILDCATS, 31-25; MAROONS END LOSING STREAK

Purple Basket Eye Missing; 23 Fouls Are Called.

BY HARLAND ROHM.

Northwestern's inability to ring free throws and set-up shots against Wisconsin at Patten gym last night cost it a Big Ten basketball game. The result gave the Badgers their second victory within a week over the Wildcats and kept them out in front in the conference race. The score was 31 to 25.

The game was a rough and tumble affair, with 23 personal fouls called, and even then the officials didn't get all of them. There was no intentional roughness, but it was far from a parlor game and at one time almost developed into a fist fight.

Marshall had spilled Chmielewski, as he had Ellerman at Madison Monday, and Chmielewski fell on his head and was knocked out. Ellerman rushed up to Marshall, his right hand pulled back, but Gergherm intervened and the row was over. Shmielewski was the second Badger to be stretched out, as Foster had gone down and out early in the first half.

Both Teams Miss.

Northwestern's pitiful attempts to shoot were matched by Wisconsin from the floor in the first half. Both teams missed all kinds of shots, from midfloor bangs at the basket to sleeper pot shots. But that shooting from the floor was less than half of it. The Wildcats missed seven consecutive free throws while the Badgers connected on only two out of nine.

Northwestern had one spurt early in the second half. Starting on the short end of a 12 to 8 score, it ran the count up to 14 to 12 before it again began to wobble. After that Wisconsin pulled steadily ahead.

In baskets the two teams were alike with eleven each, though Northwestern had more good shots, but the free throws told the difference in the final score. Northwestern finally ended with three counted out of thirteen, while Wisconsin made nine out of [illegible].

Riel, whose floor game helped the Purple a lot in getting more shots than the Badgers, counted the first two points on an under the basket shot and Foster equalled it with a toss from [illegible] feet out. Gleichmann, playing with a bandaged knee, a recurrence of an early season injury that slowed him and apparently found him "asleep" on some passes because he couldn't start fast, added a follow on Marshall's long shot. Matthusen added one of two foul shots and Bergherm dropped a sleeper through the hoop on [illegible]'s pass.

Purple Takes Early Lead.

Northwestern led, 6 to 3, but Wisconsin began to count a few of their shots and ran the count to 12 to 6 before Bergherm counted a long shot from the side just before the end of the half. Foster grabbed the ball on a foul line jump, pivoted, and counted it. This was just before he was knocked out under his own basket. After first aid he got back on his feet and immediately hit the hoop with another shot from the corner, and Ellerman dribbled through to make a push shot count. Tenhopen got a pass from Foster under the basket and scored and Foster added a foul before Bergherman's long shot was good. Walter, also with a bandaged knee, had gone in for Gleichmann but he was no better. Tenhopen went out on his fourth personal foul just before the end of the half, but Riel missed the try.

Starting the second half the Wildcats found themselves for a moment and apparently stepped back into the role of giant killers. Walter's short Chicago Outplays Minnesota to Win, 33-25.

Chicago won its first Big Ten basketball game last night, defeating Minnesota, 33 to 25, at Bartlett gymnasium. The result put both in a tie for the cellar post with one victory and nine defeats apiece.

The Maroons were a fairly well balanced team last night. The passing was steady, all players following up their shots and made a good percentage of their tosses. The game marked the final appearance of Capt. Virgil Gist and Bob Kaplan of the Maroons at Bartlett gymnasium.

Changnon Is High Scorer.

Harry Changnon, Chicago forward, was high scorer with five field goals and four free throws for a total of fourteen points. Nelson, Gopher center, was best for his team, tossing three baskets and two efforts from the charity line for eight points. Nelson and Engebretson, another Gopher, were ejected in the second period for personal fouls.

Chicago led, 15-10, in the middle of the first half, but Minnesota put on a spurt to tie it up at 18 all at rest time.

Maroons Take Lead.

The Maroons went out in front at the start of the last half with baskets by Gist, Changnon and Kaplan and a free throw by Gist, while Minnesota was held to one jump shot by Nelson. With the score 25-20, Chicago eased up and Minnesota pulled up to within one point. Then the Maroons broke loose again and, playing a stalling delayed offense, ran their score to 33, while Minnesota was stopped with a single free throw for a total of 25 points. Lineup:

Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Michigan regained its early season form which placed it atop the Big Ten standings for the first half of the campaign and defeated Iowa here tonight by a score of 25 to 18.

The victory definitely eliminated the Hawkeyes and established the Wolverines in a threatening position, as their two closest rivals, Wisconsin and Purdue, oppose each other Monday night.

Buyers, Sellers Know Nothing of Giants' Deal

New York, Feb. 23.—[Special.]—A $4,000,000 offer for the New York Giants, reported in dispatches from Miami, Fla., as having been made by the Madison Square Garden corporation through William F. Carey, vice president of the corporation, and Richard F. Hoyt, majority stockholder, was emphatically denied here tonight, first by Col. John S. Hammond, acting general manager of the Garden, and then by Mr. Hoyt.

John J. McGraw, manager of the Giants and a stockholder in the National Exhibition company, which controls the Giants and the Polo grounds, added an even more emphatic denial to the story, just before he departed this evening for the Giants' training camp at San Antonio, Tex.

"The Bunk," Says McGraw.

"It is all bunk," said McGraw. "It is so much bunk that I don't want to dignify it with denial."

Mr. Hoyt was asked: "Did you and Mr. Carey and Mr. McGraw attend a conference in Miami last Saturday to discuss the sale?"

"I certainly did not attend any such conference. I did not talk with McGraw," was his reply.

"Have you ever discussed the purchase of the Giants by your corporation with Mr. Charles A. Stoneham?"

Never Discussed It.

"I never discussed the proposition with Mr. Stoneham in my life." Mr. Hoyt added:

"Off and on for the last two years the Madison Square Garden corporation has negotiated for the purchase of the Giants. These negotiations were instituted by the late Tex Rickard, but since his death they have not been continued. So far as the Madison Square Garden corporation is concerned, they will not be resumed, unless Mr. Stoneham approaches us."

Arkansas Wins Fourth Southwest Cage Title

Fayetteville, Ark., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Arkansas university gained its fourth straight southwest conference basketball title by defeating the Texas Aggies, 38 to 29, in the final game here tonight. The Razorbacks finished their schedule with 11 victories and one defeat.

Sharkey-Stribling Bout on Velvet; Lures Best People

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 23.—Jack Sharkey, Bostonian of Lithuanian-American parentage, and W. L. (Young) Stribling II. of Macon, Ga., will meet Wednesday night at Flamingo Park arena before an assemblage of approximately 35,000 persons for the honor of becoming leading contender for the heavyweight title surrendered by Gene Tunney at his retirement.

This assemblage, sitting more or less comfortably upon newly erected board benches, will comprise the most notable gathering which ever graced a pugilistic contest in which a title was not involved. It is doubtful indeed whether any title contest ever attracted so many persons of prominence, business, political, or social. That is because these persons are spending their vacations at "America's playground" and at that playground it is the proper thing to attend the fight.

Expenses Total $250,000.

Any lingering doubt that the venture would come a financial cropper has been dissipated by official announcement that sales of tickets from this time on will be "velvet," which, in the sporting vernacular, means profit. As expenses are in the neighborhood of $250,000, that means present ticket sales are about $275,000, with the addenda uncertain because the promoters never before have held a big fight here and have not experience as a guide. The greatest ticket demand has been for those of the $25 and $5 varieties, with slacker business for the $10, $15, and $20 locations.

All things connected with this bout, even the training sessions, are in a strange setting. Everywhere is amusement and pleasure. It is difficult to erase this holiday spirit. As Sharkey and Stribling work in their respective quarters before admiring or curious spectators you see among the onlookers men and women in bathing suits, men in white flannels and women in filmy dresses, and you see a few of the usual run of pugilistic followers. But these crowds are not of the usual type which infest boxers' quarters.

Sharkey Looks Like Fighter.

If there be contrast between these crowds and the usual crowds one associates with pugilism, so, too, there is a contrast in physique and in handling between Sharkey and Stribling.

Measurements

SHARKEY.		STRIBLING.
189 pounds	Weight	182 pounds
27 years	Age	24 years
6 feet	Height	6 feet 1 in.
72 inches	Reach	72 inches
42 inches	Chest, normal	39 inches
46 inches	Chest, expanded	44½ inches
34 inches	Waist	32 inches
23½ inches	Thigh	22¾ inches
13¾ inches	Biceps	14½ inches
16½ inches	Neck	16½ inches
15 inches	Calf	14¾ inches

Sharkey, in appearance and in his staff, more closely approximates the professional pugilist, although good looking personally and far more agreeable and good natured than formerly.

Young Stribling's physique is that of a college football tackle—tall, with good legs and waist small in comparison to his chest. Except for powerful biceps and forearms, it would seem a pity to place him against the more powerful appearing Bostonian. Apparently ten pounds difference in weight accentuates this contrast.

Again, Young Stribling is strictly a family possession. Pa Stribling is manager and trainer. Ma Stribling watches his diet and often acts as his timekeeper. Mrs. Young Stribling, who comes from a prominent Macon family, a pretty and refined looking young woman, and her two children, W. L. III. and his baby sister, are on the scene and watch the workouts, while Baby Stribling, so-called, a younger brother of Young Stribling, who battles in the lightweight class, completes the Stribling ménage.

Performed in Vaudeville.

Pa and Ma Stribling, Young Stribling, and Baby Stribling once performed in vaudeville as an acrobatic troupe under the name of the "Four Grahams." Possibly the danger of their original calling explains why they have no aversion to the scions of the house taking up ring life. Possibly his A B C's in acrobatics explains why Young Stribling is so shifty in the ring, why he knows tricks of leverage which enable him to turn and twist his sparring partners around in their training bouts.

Whether because of their stage experience or because of natural cordiality, the entire Stribling family creates such favorable impression that almost un-

Notre Dame Beats Purple in Dual Meet

Notre Dame, Ind., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Northwestern dropped its first dual meet of the indoor season to Notre Dame here tonight by a score of 55 1-3 to 25 2-3. The meet was featured by the work of Tom Warne, Wildcat pole vaulter, who swung himself over the bar at 13 feet 3⅝ inches, setting a new gym record. The former gym record was 12 feet 10 inches, and was made by F. Glaser of Marquette in 1927.

Capt. Jack Elder, although he tied the world's record of :06.2 in his heat of the 60 yard dash, yielded to Boagni, a teammate, in the finals.

Capt. Gorby of Northwestern was nosed out by Sylvester of the Ramblers in the 880 yard run, but the Irish were disqualified in this event, giving the Evanston outfit a slam.

MILE RUN—Won by Brennan [N. D.]; Brown [N. D.], second; Wolf [N. W.], third. Time, 4:30.2.

60 YARD DASH—Won by Boagni [N. D.]; Elder [N. D.], second; Nichols [N. D.], third. Time, :06.6.

440 YARD DASH—Won by Quigley [N. D.]; McAuliffe [N. W.], second; Kelly [N. D.], third. Time, :53.6.

60 YARD HIGH HURDLES—Won by Costin [N. D.]; O'Brien [N. D.], second; Morris [N. W.], third. Time, :08.2.

POLE VAULT—Won by Warne [N. W.]; Klarr [N. W.], Ingle [N. W.], and Slattery tied for second. Heigth, 13 feet 3⅝ inches. [New gym record.]

880 YARD RUN—Won by Gorby [N. W.]; Wolf [N. W.], second; Rapp [N. W.], third. Time, 2:04.6. [Notre Dame disqualified.]

SHOT PUT—Won by Hoffman [N. D.], Herwitt [N. D.], second; Walsh [N. D.], third. Distance, 40 feet 8 inches.

HIGH JUMP—Hoffman [N. W.] and Welchons [N. D.], tied for first; Reiman [N. D.], third. Height, 5 feet 9 inches.

TWO MILE RUN—Won by Vaichulis [N. D.], J. Brown [N. D.], second; Connors [N. D.], third. Time, 9:49.

ONE MILE RELAY—Won by Northwestern [McAuliffe, Fox, Bloomberg, and Gorby]. Time, 3:36.4.

TO YOU WHO HELPED ON GOLDEN GLOVES

THE TRIBUNE'S sport department is indebted deeply to the officials who served so efficiently, the city departments which worked so faithfully, in fact, to all who were assigned any job at the Golden Gloves tournament. The tournament's success is due to their sincere efforts.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

With thousands shouting their approval of one of the greatest amateur boxing shows ever held in Chicago, THE TRIBUNE Golden Gloves winners, who will meet New York in an intercity series of matches next month, fought their way to championships last night at the Coliseum.

The four day tourney drew approximately 25,000 to the Coliseum. The receipts were about $35,000.

The net proceeds of the tournament which closed last night will be given to the Forty and Eight, an honorary organization of ex-service men. Last year THE TRIBUNE meet cleared $10,000. With this the Forty and Eight built a home at Orland Park, Ill., where convalescent veterans are given a chance to work in gardens, raise chickens and hogs, and through employment out of doors, more rapidly regain health.

Nine thousand jammed their way into the Coliseum to see the final contests. It was an orderly crowd which appreciated the efforts of the fighters, who tried hard to make the Chicago team which will meet winners of the New York Daily News tournament scheduled for March 13.

Thrills for Everybody.

Last night's crowd saw knockouts and knockdowns. The spectators saw fights lost on technicalities. In fact, the fans saw everything the dyed-in-wool boxing fan craves. All were convinced that Chicago will be represented by a strong team when the bouts are held in Madison Square Garden next month.

Team honors of the tourney went to the Edmille Health club, which scored 10 points. The Belle Plaine A. C. was second with 8 points, while Paddy Harmon's Chicago Stadium club and Barry gymnasium tied for second place with 7 points each. Sixteen teams broke into the point column. Almost 300 boxers from seven states took part in the tournament.

Jimmy Chase of the Belle Plaine A. C., winner of the 112 pound title a year ago, retained his laurels. He was given a hard fight by Alex Kazlo, also of the Belle Plaines, in the final bout. Chase won the decision at the end of three rounds, but the margin was not impressive. In fact, many thought the bout should have gone an extra round. Chase, however, is a strong representative in his class. In the intercity bouts with New York last year, Jimmy was knocked down in the first round, but came back in the final two sessions to score enough points to win the decision.

New Champion Crowned.

A new champion was uncovered in the 118 pound class. Harry Garbell of the Edmille Health club stopped Chester Brown, an unattached boxer, in the third round. Harry can hit with either hand and is hailed as a promising fighter.

Barney Ross, another pupil of Jack Elle of Edmille's, took the title in the featherweight class. Ross won the Golden Gloves by taking the three round decision from Jackie Davis of Springfield, Ill. Ross is a two fisted puncher who intends to turn professional after the intercity matches with New York.

Roosevelt Haines, colored boxer of the Chicago Stadium club, had to show his best to win the three decision over Tommy Williams, also colored and representative of the Garfield Park Eagles. He did it and took the lightweight title. It was a close fight all the way and there was little to choose between them at the finish. Both men should be strong opponents for the best New York can produce next month.

Hammer Shows Punch.

Bud Hammer of the Brockman Boosters should be able to take care of any opponent in the 147 pound class. In the final of the welter division, Hammer flattened Nick Fosco of the Barry gymnasium in the first round. Fosco won the welterweight title of the tourney a year ago. Hammer is aggressive and packs a great punch in either hand.

Johnny Ross of the Southtown A. C., Central A. A. U. middleweight champion, took the honors in the 160 pound class. In the fight for the title Ross stopped O. E. Robinson of Champaign, Ill., in the third round. Johnny is a hard right hand hitter. Robinson took a great deal of punishment, but finally succumbed to a series of right crosses.

Wills Wins 175 Pound Title.

Edward Wills, colored boxer of the Hippodrome club, took the title in the light heavyweight division by winning the three round decision from Buck Everett of the Gary, Ind., Y. M. C. A. Wills was a trifle more aggressive and the verdict met with the crowd's approval.

In the heavyweight division George Meyer of Quincy, Ill., won the title by stopping Bill Maddux of the Barry gymnasium in two rounds. In the opening round both were content to hold and clinch. In the second session both opened up, and finally Meyer shot a right cross to the jaw and Maddux took the count. Meyer is very aggressive and a willing mixer.

In the semi-final round Charley Retzlaff of Duluth-Superior was stopped by Maddux in a technical manner. Retz-

Title Bouts

112 POUNDS—Jimmy Chase, Belle Plaine A. C., beat Alex Kazlo, Belle Plaine A. C. [3].

118 POUNDS—Harry Garbell, Edmille Health club, stopped Chester Brown, unattached [3].

126 POUNDS—Barney Ross, Edmille Health club, beat Jackie Davis, Springfield, Ill. [3].

135 POUNDS — Roosevelt Haines, Chicago Stadium club, beat Tommy Williams, Garfield Park Eagles [3].

147 POUNDS — Bud Hammer, Brockman Boosters, stopped Nick Fosco, Barry's gym. [1].

160 POUNDS—Johnny Ross, Southtown A. C., stopped O. E. Robinson, Champaign, Ill. [3].

175 POUNDS—Edward Wills, Hippodrome club, beat Buck Everett, Gary Y. M. C. A. [3].

HEAVYWEIGHT—George Meyer, Quincy, Ill., stopped Bill Maddux, Barry's gym [2].

CONSOLATION BOUTS.

112 POUNDS—Nick Clementi, Barry's gym, stopped Emil Scharite, Brockman Boosters. [1].

118 POUNDS—Robert Wilson, Ottawa, Ill., won by default from Joe Bunak, Belle's gym, Blue Island.

126 POUNDS—Art Donovan, Steel Works club, Joliet, Ill., won by default from Charles Carminaro, Garfield Park Eagles.

135 POUNDS—Lawrence Rago, Brockman Boosters, won by default from Louis Conti, Rochester, N. Y.

175 POUNDS—Vic Becker, Chicago Stadium club, won by default from E. Hoody, Chicago Stadium club.

HEAVYWEIGHT—Charles Retzlaff, Duluth, Minn., won by default from Jack Machin, Barry's gym.

laff was knocked down by Maddux in the first round. Charley started to get up and then went down without being hit. Referee Davie Miller then awarded the fight to Maddux, a just decision, according to all rules of boxing.

The winners of first and second places will compose the Chicago team which will meet New York next month. The winners and runners-up will be schooled by experts and the trip to New York made in private cars. The tourney last year resulted in a tie. Each team won eight fights.

It was 12:04 a. m. when a bugle in the distant balcony sounded taps. The second annual Gold Gloves tournament was ended.

SEMI-FINAL BOUTS

In the flyweight semi-finals Jimmy Chase won easily in his bout with Emil Scharite of the Brockman Boosters and Alex Kazlo outboxed Nick Clementi.

Harry Garbell of the Edmille Health club and Chester Brown, unattached, were the semi-final winners in the 118 pound class.

Garbell had a shade over Joe Bozak, last year's Golden Glove winner, and Brown stepped in the finals by gaining a four round decision over a plucky kid named Robert Wilcox. Robert, who hails from Ottawa, Ill., put up a good battle.

Decision to Fosco.

Nick Fosco, dark haired iron molder, who won his Golden Gloves last year, found the road to a welter title this year almost blocked by sturdy Phil Ross of the Southtown A. C. They went three rounds to a draw, but Fosco had a shade in the fourth and won the decision.

Jimmy Brock of the Southtown A. C. and Bud Hammer, Brockman Booster, fought a three round thriller in the other 147 pound semi-final. Hammer knocked Brock down twice for a 9 count, only to have Brock get up and launch a new attack each time.

The semi-finals for the 160 pounders started off brilliantly, with O. E. Robinson, lacing out a victory over Dusky Charley Kerr from the Chicago Stdium club. The crowd was brought up cheering when Johnny Ross and Al Keegan, Chicago Stadium entrant, slammed one another around the ring with great abandon. Ross slammed the harder and won the right to meet Robinson.

Booker Stubborn Foe.

Buck Everett, Gary entrant in the light heavyweight class, had a difficult time beating Victor Booker, colored. Both slugged, and Everett's body blows lowered Booker's morale in the third round.

Eddie Wills of the Hippodrome club stopped Richard Monty in the second round of the other 175 pound semi-final.

The sensation of the night's tournament came in the first bout of the heavyweight semi-finals when Charley Retzlaff, highly touted Duluth boxer, went down without being hit in the first minute of action. Bill Maddux, last year's intercity winner, clipped Retzlaff on the chin. Charley went down on one knee, grinned, got up, and then got down again. Referee Davy Miller immediately disqualified Retzlaff and, with the crowd booing, raised Maddux's hand.

George Meyer from Quincy was cheated out of a knockout over John Mackin of Coulon's gym when the bell clanged in the third round with Mackin on the floor and evidently out.

Last night's results follow:

112 POUND SEMI-FINALS.
Alex Kazlo beat Nick Olementi [3].
Jimmy Chase beat Emil Scharite [3].

118 POUND SEMI-FINALS.
Harry Garbell beat Joe Bozak [3].
Chester Brown beat William Wilcox [4].

126 POUND SEMI-FINALS.
Jackie Davis beat Charles Cerminaro [3].
Barney Ross beat Art Donovan [3].

135 POUND SEMI-FINAL:
Thomas Williams beat Lawrence Rago [3].
Roosevelt Haines won by default from Louis Conti.

147 POUND SEMI-FINALS:
Nick Fosco beat Phil Ross [4].
Bud Hammer beat Jimmy Brock [3].

160 POUND SEMI-FINALS:
O. E. Robinson beat Charley Kerr [3].

George Meyer beat John Mackin [3].

35,000 to See Sharkey and Stribling Box

consciously you wish their hopes for a heavyweight champion may be realized. It is easy to understand their popularity in the south and why 5,000 tickets for this fight were sold in Macon, a city of about 75,000 population.

Sharkey Is Favorite.

Experts from New York and Boston tell you Stribling has no chance against Sharkey with his more rugged body, his greater experience in big bouts, and his present splendid condition. Sharkey is 7 to 5 favorite in the betting.

These odds are partly because New York likes Sharkey and New Yorkers are heavier betters than the southerners. Another question has been raised whether the Georgian has not trained until he has become "too fine" in the physical sense. There seems hardly an ounce of surplus fat to take off in the few remaining days. On the other hand, Sharkey, while lower in weight than Manager Buckley approves, has a few little flesh pads yet in reserve. He looks in perfect condition. Stribling looks equally well, if he is not overtrained, and that is a moot question between his father-manager and several other experienced conditioners.

Flamingo Park arena, erected by Michael Carey, brother of William Carey of Madison Square Garden corporation, which is sponsoring the bout, is practically ready. All the seats are placed and only the finishing touches are to be added. Its speedy erection surprised local skeptics who had thought it couldn't be done so rapidly.

This arena, an eight-sided polygon, offers a good view from practically every seat. Its extreme dimensions are 560 feet across. The ring proper is placed at an elevation of four feet. All ringside seats are on the ground.

O'DOUL SIGNS WITH PHILLIES.

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Frank J. "Lefty" O'Doul, outfielder, who came to the Philadelphia Nationals in a trade with the New York Giants, has signed a contract for the coming season with the Phillies. He had been reported dissatisfied with the terms of his salary.

Pick New Date for Opening of Stadium

The opening of the $7,000,000 Chicago stadium on the west side was set back from March 13 to March 28 yesterday at a meeting of the directors of the Stadium corporation. The official announcement made by President Paddy Harmon follows:

"We have received reports from the architect and general contractor for the stadium and from independent engineers to the effect that the building could be made ready for a boxing contest on March 13, but that it would not be in a finished condition.

"Inasmuch as we regard the Chicago stadium as a civic enterprise, we have today decided that it should not be opened to the public until it is finished. We find it can be completed by March 23, but to insure completion we have fixed March 28 as the opening date. The proposed Loughran-Walker boxing contest will be held at that time."

Tommy Loughran yesterday agreed to the change in date and also approved the contracts prepared by the Stadium corporation lawyers. The actual signing of the contracts must await the arrival of Jack Kearns and Mickey Walker on Wednesday or Thursday.

The six day bicycle race scheduled for March 16 to 23 in the stadium will be switched to the Coliseum. Harmon and Johnny Chapman have a three year lease on the bike race dates at the Coliseum.

Sooners Beat Kansas Ags, 41-28; Clinch Big Six Tie

Norman, Okla., Feb. 23.—(AP)—The University of Oklahoma clinched at least a tie hold on the first Big Six basketball championship by defeating the Kansas Aggies, 41 to 28.

New York Visitors Says Chicago Has Corking Fighters

Here's what Paul Gallico, sports editor of the New York Daily News, had to say at the end of the Golden Gloves bouts last night:

"Chicago has corking boys in all classes, especially Barney Ross, Buddy Hammer, Jimmy Chase, Johnny Ross, Roosevelt Haines, and your heavyweights. If our boys can measure up to the standards you have set tonight the second annual intercity bouts in New York in March will be the greatest series ever seen. Best wishes and good luck—until you come to New York."

FOURTEEN FIVES START CHICAGO OPEN CAGE MEET

The Chicago open basketball tournament started last night at the Hippodrome with 14 teams going into action on the first day of play. The tourney is open to all independent cage fives in Chicago. Yesterday's results:

Cicero All Stars, 26; Revell Blues, 17.
Harder Boosters, 30; St. Johns, 15.
Irving Cohn Jewelers, 36; First M. E., 14
Skokie Reds, 33; Jesse Billiards, 25.
Murphy Wards, 21; Long Beach Center, 15.
Hannon's Collegians, 27; George O'Hare Boosters, 18.
Trinity Wa Pals, 22; Humboldt Park, 11.

Chicago Y.M.C.A. Player Wins Illinois Checker Title

Champaign, Ill., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Basil G. Case, present champion of the Wabash Avenue Y. M. C. A., Chicago, tonight won the Illinois state checker championship by defeating Del Carpenter of Rockford by two points.

Mullen Seeks Ring Substitute for Bud Taylor

Outside of finding a substitute to replace Bud Taylor, who is incapacitated by an injured hand, Promoter James Mullen is all set for his boxing show at the Coliseum Tuesday night, when Tony Cannoneri and Ignacio Fernandez clash in the feature ten round bout.

Taylor was scheduled to have met Eddie Shea and would have gone through with the match but for his manager, who insisted he would be in no shape to box. Taylor hurt his hand while sparring at a local gymnasium. As a result Mullen is seeking a battler to replace the scrappy Hoosier, who will also be out a return engagement with Al Singer at New York March 15.

Cannoneri worked four fast rounds with Sammy Ward yesterday. Fernandez worked out with Joey Medill, who meets Spug Myers in a ten round on the same card. Earl Mastro and Eddie Nemo make the fourth bout on the program.

Cochrane and Connie Mack Agree on Contract Terms

Philadelphia, Feb. 23.—[U.P.]—Mickey Cochrane, star backstop of the Philadelphia Athletics, most valuable player of 1928 in the American league and a holdout so far this season, announced today he and manager Connie Mack had come to terms over his contract.

Cochrane said he had received a satisfactory contract from Mack but would not divulge the terms. The catcher had asked for a $3,000 increase over the figure which Mack first offered. Cochrane said he would leave for the Fort Myers, Fla. training camp tomorrow night.

PURJE DISTANCES RIVALS IN TITLE TRACK TOURNEY

Nurmi Is Suspended for Failure to Appear.

New York, Feb. 23.—[Special.]—The failure of Paavo Nurmi to put in appearance for the two mile steeplechase race, his subsequent suspension by the registration committee of the A. A. U., and the triumph of Eino Purje of Finland in the steeplechase in record time featured the national track and field championships at Madison Square Garden tonight before a crowd of 7,000.

When the field of six lined up for the steeplechase the thinning blond thatch of Nurmi was conspicuous by its absence, but the newest of the flying Finns, Purje, built very much on the Nurmi mold, was jogging up and down on the starting line. Just as a low rumble of disapproval began to swell from the crowd as it noted Nurmi's absence, an announcement was made that he had notified the games committee at 9 p. m. that he would not compete. No excuse was given. The only message was a curt one of withdrawal.

Peeved at Purje.

The only explanation offered was that Nurmi had learned that Purje would not run in the two mile flat race but over the obstacles of the steeplechase and that was sufficient to cause his withdrawal. Credence was given to this when Ove Anderson, a close friend of Nurmi, battled Purje for most of the race, refused to let him set the pace, forced him to run around him and harrassed him continually.

Even at that Purje ran the distance in 9:55 2-5, four full seconds better than the old world's record of Willie Ritola. Edwin Wide of Sweden won the two mile race.

Conger Beats Martin.

Ray Conger of the Illinois A. C. brought a cessation to Sam Martin's string of six consecutive victories to retain his 1,000 yard crown. Coming up to the bell lap with a terrific kick such as left Nurmi in his wake two weeks ago, Conger flew past Martin in the second turn from the last and then drew away from him to win by twelve yards in 2:13 1-5, only two-fifths of a second behind Lloyd Hahn's world mark.

Giants' Second Team Ties Regulars, 6-6, in 11 Innings

San Antonio, Tex., Feb. 23.—(AP)—In their first practice game of the season today the New York Giants' first and second teams went eleven innings to a 6-6 tie. Schalk's triple in the ninth tied the score for the regulars.

Cub Batteries Anticipate Arrival of Swat Squad

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Avalon, Catalina Island, Cal., Feb. 23.—Joe McCarthy's brigade of pitchers bore down heavier than ever today in contemplation of the arrival of the Cub powerhouse squad here next Tuesday noon.

JOE M'CARTHY.

Joe feels that he has his throwers just enough ahead of his incoming batters to make things interesting for all concerned, beginning with the first workout of the entire ensemble next Wednesday morning. Accordingly, he declared a holiday for the Sabbath.

The newcomers will not wait long to get in formal action, for this morning Manager Joseph sent out word that he desired to schedule a game for next Sunday with a team from the navy. Most of the battleships currently are out of neighboring waters but there are a few around here and the game is considered as good as scheduled.

Pat Resorts to Rubber Shirt.

The end of the week found all the pitchers in excellent condition although Pat Malone finally was forced to climb into a rubber shirt to get under 200. Tom Angley, rookie catcher, still is fighting with the scale but is surprisingly fast despite his tremendous tonnage.

Sheriff Blake, counted upon to be the ace of the club staff, had just lost the six pounds he gained during the winter months, using many, many games of tennis to augment his work on the practice field.

SECOND SQUAD LEAVES.

Cub getaways, like patronage during the regular seasons, grow bigger and better. There were only ten of them to make up the second squad that set sail yesterday afternoon for the Catalina camp, but those ten were enough to draw into the Santa Fé train shed about five hundred frostbitten bugs who literally climbed over one another to get autographs, handshakes, or closeups of the diamond notables.

Mr. Rogers Hornsby, the newcomer into Cub circles, naturally was the object in which the interest of the mob was centered. Mr. Hornsby was so completely surrounded several times that he looked around for assistance and finally his mates dragged him aboard.

Cuyler and Wilson in Party.

Included in the party, besides Hornsby, were Cuyler, Wilson, Stephenson, Heathcote, English, Taylor, Moore, Blair, McMillan, Tolson, who belongs to the Los Angeles club, and Chaperon Dan Cahill, who wished it to be known that he was starting out with a new hat and a keen appetite, as usual.

Capt. Grimm was picked up at Kansas City early this morning, and Beck will join up Tuesday morning at Los Angeles. Every other man on the club roster has been accounted for.

Chicago Nips Indiana Swim Team, 38 to 33

Bloomington, Ind., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—University of Chicago swimming team defeated Indiana university 38 to 33 in a Western Conference meet in the Hoosier pool this afternoon. The Maroons took firsts in the 235 yard relay, 50-yard swim, 440-yard swim, 150-yard back stroke and 260 yard medley relay, leaving Indiana premier honors in the 200 yard breast stroke, 100 yard swim and fancy diving.

The Indiana pool record of 2:09 in the 235 yard relay was broken by the visitors who turned in a time of 2:05.6. Summary:

BADGERS BEAT PURDUE

Lafayette, Ind., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Purdue's swimming and water polo teams broke even here this afternoon with Wisconsin. Badger swimmers won, 47 to 24, while the Boilermaker water poloists took a 6 to 3 victory.

SONNENBERG HAS NARROW ESCAPE IN MAT PRACTICE

The heavyweight wrestling championship battle between Gus Sonnenberg, the Dartmouth football player and present titleholder, and Stanislaus Stasiak of Poland, scheduled for the Coliseum tomorrow night, was nearly wrecked yesterday during an exhibition match at the Chicago Athletic association.

GUS SONNENBERG.

Sonnenberg, in attempting to put on the famous "flying tackle" hold, missed big Dan Koloff, who also appears on the Coliseum card against some spectators.

Later Sonnenberg hit Koloff with the much disputed tackle and crashed the big Bulgarian into a corner post. Koloff was stunned, and the champion, seeing his distress, discontinued the attack.

WILDCATS SIGN COAST STAR TO COACH BACK FIELD

Spud Lewis Succeeds Herb Steger.

Lawrence Spud Lewis, for the last three years varsity quarter back at Leland Stanford, yesterday was appointed back field coach of the Northwestern university football team to succeed Herbert Steger, resigned. Lewis, who will report Sept. 15 is only 22 years old. He will graduate from the Stanford coaching school this summer and is at present assisting Pop Warner in spring practice out on the coast. The announcement was made by Director of Athletics K. L. [Tug] Wilson.

Warner, of whose system Dick Hanley of Northwestern is a strict disciple, regards Lewis as one of the greatest quarter backs Warner ever developed and it was chiefly upon this recommendation that he was chosen.

Has Fine Playing Record.

Besides his basic knowledge of the Warner style of play, Lewis has an excellent playing record. He has played every position in the Stanford back field, won his three letters and last season, despite the presence of the brilliant Fleishhacker on the squad played more than half the time in nearly every game.

He is a product of the Portland, Ore., high schools, weighs 173 pounds and is five foot ten in height. He will be an all year round man at Northwestern.

Steger, whom he replaces, came to Northwestern in 1925 from Michigan, where he was an all Western back. However, his business interests have made greater and greater inroads upon his time.

Helped Build Wildcats.

When it was decided to make the assistant coach's position a full time job, he found he did not care to devote that much time to football. During his four years at Northwestern he has met with success and helped build the Wildcats' greatest stars.

Therefore negotiations were opened with Lewis while Hanley was on the coast last month and the formal contract was received at Evanston yesterday. Although it is considered likely that several other changes will be made in the Purple staff before fall, no official announcements have been made as yet.

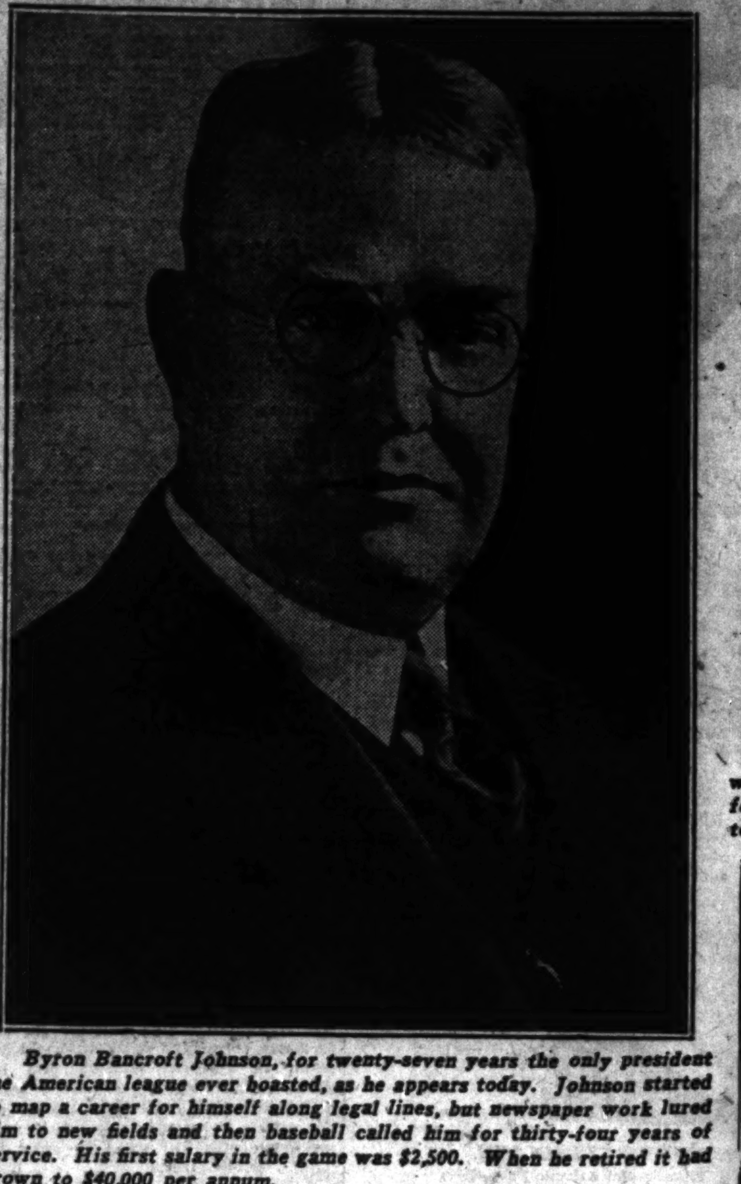
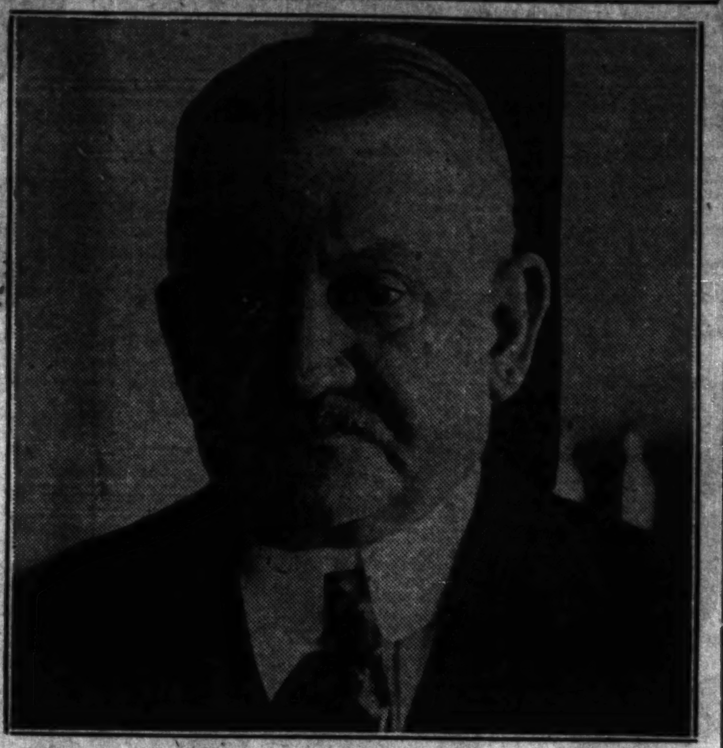
THIRTY-FOUR YEARS IN BASEBALL—THE STORY OF BAN JOHNSON'S LIFE

THEY MADE BASEBALL HISTORY



Byron Bancroft Johnson, for twenty-seven years the only president the American league ever boasted, as he appears today. Johnson started to map a career for himself along legal lines, but newspaper work lured him to new fields and then baseball called him for thirty-four years of service. His first salary in the game was $2,500. When he retired it had grown to $40,000 per annum.



August Garry Herrmann, former president of the Cincinnati Reds, who served as chairman of the National commission from the day of its formation in 1903 until he resigned in 1920, when the body was dissolved to make room for a one man government of baseball.

Charles W. Somers of Cleveland as he looked to the camera man in the days when money was needed to carry the American league to success. Much of the money came from Somers.

Veteran President Describes Formation of American League, Early Days

Wars with National Owners

ARTICLE I.

CLOSE to two years ago when I made my final gesture in baseball, laying aside the presidency of the American league and walking out of the league's office in Chicago a private citizen, I carried with me a determination never to heed the pleas of those who sought my story of 34 years in the game.

I felt that a record of never having wavered where the welfare of the game was at stake was sufficient and I was willing to leave the future to my successors. I had no desire for publicity. I never had sought publicity. The happenings of 34 years—strife, intrigue, planning—were a jumble in my mind. My sole wish was to dismiss baseball entirely that I might more easily regain the health I had tossed aside by remaining too long at the helm.

Now after rest and complete dissociation from the game I can talk of what remains with me as the highlights of a stormy career—the little moves that became matters of consequence, the battles for power, the strategy employed to protect what we had gained or to capture what we needed and the gradual change of the game.

Price of Honest Baseball Is Unceasing Vigilance.

Certain of these things now stand out in my mind in bold relief, but I still place ahead of everything, just as I did from the day the American league expanded, that the price of clean, honest baseball is eternal vigilance.

On this thought the American league was raised from an infant of uncertain future into the giant of today. Faithful adherence to this thought banished rowdyism from baseball throughout the land; closed up bars in the ball parks and elevated the game to a point where it was so soundly established that its security and safety wasn't even threatened when the league's first scandal—the treachery of eight White Sox players in the world's series of 1919—was revealed. Through the years we had built up a public confidence. When the test came the public didn't desert.

Today there is a new order of things. The caliber of owner has changed. There is a smug complacency being displayed by those who occupy positions as guardians of the game. The vigilance that built up the American league to where it could shake off what otherwise might have been a death blow not alone to the league but to baseball in its entirety, has been relaxed but it is important to warn those in command that they are on thin ice.

Commissioner's Salary Is No Trouble Insurance.

The evil doers who continually menace not only baseball but all sports, are not awed by tomfoolery such as is prevalent. The bigger the sport the farther these menaces will reach to accomplish a purpose. The evils I mention are the same that broke through the barrier in the series of 1919. Only an unceasing watch can dam up these sources of pollution. But the average owner of today is not concerned over these pitfalls. He foolishly believes a $65,000 annual salary for a baseball commissioner is ironclad insurance against trouble.

There is still another menace that sooner or later is going to disturb those who believe their position is unassailable. A third major league is in the not distant future. It may not succeed, but it will come and will be costly. The survivors will be the ones who have the public confidence.

It had been my original intention to retire with the completion of our building program that put modern structures in every city of the circuit. With the finish of this building program there was nothing left to do. We were playing in million dollar parks, whereas we had started in wooden layouts costing only a few thousand dollars each. We were an organization with a bulging war chest and paying its executive $40,000 annually. But it is no easy matter for a man to lay aside the reins; so I delayed my departure from year to year until my health was broken and retirement became not a matter of choice but of necessity.

Money for Third League, Millions, Is Available.

Had I stepped out earlier, it is likely that there would be in existence today a third major league. A proposal to launch such a venture was put before me several years ago when it became evident that I was not in sympathy with the fashion in which baseball was being conducted. This was a proposal that had millions of dollars behind it, but when it was first made I rejected it and when it was renewed, after my resignation, I was battling for my life and in no position to assume so great a burden.

The money for a venture such as this is still available, but it is a task for a younger man. Eventually it will come. Baseball's success, its display of wealth and extravagance, invites it. Then baseball's house, cunningly built to resist disturbance from within, but with no thought of possible resistance from without, will display its weaknesses.

The complexion of the American league underwent a change because the owners wanted it. In our expansion days when we successfully challenged the seemingly secure position of the National league, I was associated with men who had the ideals of real sportsmen. With them the game was first, the dollar second. I speak of such as Charles Somers at Cleveland, William H. Yawkey at Detroit, Gen. Charles Taylor at Boston, Ben Shibe at Philadelphia, Robert Hedges at St. Louis, Frank Farrell at New York, and Tom Noyes and Ben Minor at Washington.

These men gave whole heartedly of time and money either in our assault that cost the National about fifty of its best players, or aided in laying the foundation on which the league was built up. This old order has been displaced by greed, selfishness and petty jealousies. Brought up with ideas that differed from these it was only natural that I should not adjust myself to the change. I always have maintained that the game belongs to the people and must be kept clean to prevent its decline. It cannot be kept clean unless its crimes are exposed and summarily dealth with. Covering up will invite disaster.

The American league's first serious problem arose in Boston around 1917 and '18. The activities of the gamblers became intolerable and the league put investigators to work. The National was asked to assist in this matter, but took the view that there was nothing over which to become alarmed. However, we did uncover much that was wrong with two National league players, and if the old league had taken an active hand in this case when requested it might have been the means of avoiding the frameup of 1919. Boston was the birthplace of no little amount of this crooked activity.

BAN BLAMES NATIONAL

Some years later in a joint meeting, at which Commissioner Landis presided, I brought up the subject of maintaining close watch over the welfare of the game. I referred back to the Boston affair and laced the tar out of the National league for its indifferent attitude when we asked them to coöperate with us. They tried to suppress me, but I ceased talking only after I had recited the full story to them. What we had asked of them was to share the expense of hiring detectives to watch what was going on in Boston.

What our Boston investigation really revealed was the conspiracy that resulted in the permanent banishment from the game of Hal Chase and Lee Magee. They were charged, while playing with the Cincinnati team, with having plotted to throw a game to the Braves at Boston, but the scheme went wrong and the Reds won the game because some player hit a home run unexpectedly. This was the second charge against Chase. The National winked in the other case.

Part of the advance agreement was that the two players put up money of their own. The gamblers asked this as a means of keeping the conspirators from changing their minds at the last moment. Magee's money was in the form of a check that proved worthless and the gambler who held the worthless paper was the one who squealed. He exposed the entire story to one of our operatives. I believe the gambler's name was Costello. Magee, after being permanently barred by the National league, went to court to protect himself, but was beaten.

The National league's peculiar attitude that baseball was above reproach and that nothing dishonest could possibly happen to it came up again in connection with the alleged throwing of a game between the Cubs and Phillies at Chicago in August of 1920. The gambling ring participating in this extended through the middle west from Kansas City to Pittsburgh. Frank Navin, president of the Detroit club, learned of the conspiracy and promptly communicated with me.

Big Clubs in Saddle; Petty Jealousies Exist.

In his letter Navin mentioned the name of a Pittsburgh club pitcher who was supposed to be on the gamblers' calling list. I forwarded the letter to President Heydler of the National league, merely with the idea of protecting that league. When Barney Dreyfuss, the Pittsburgh owner, learned one of his players had been mentioned in connection with crookedness he didn't pen Navin a note of thanks, but threatened to sue him. It later developed that the frameup was true, although no Pittsburgh player was involved so far as ever was learned. It was this affair that precipitated the Black Sox exposure, which will be discussed later.

It has been said repeatedly that baseball was saved in 1920 because Landis was installed as commissioner and that its house is in better order today than ever before. As a matter of fact there is discontent. The big money clubs that were responsible for Landis are in the saddle and the weaker clubs are forced to ride along.

The actual under current of feeling made itself evident four or five years ago. The American league owners after assuring Landis that an attack I had made on him was nothing to worry about turned around and voluntarily raised my salary from $30,000 to $40,000. The Landis crowd regarded this as a hostile gesture, so to retaliate engineered a move to increase Landis' salary from $50,000 to $65,000.

In the fall of 1893 baseball was at a low ebb. The Western league, which was a development of the one time Northwestern league, and later the Western association, had blown up. There had been no Western league in 1893.

Ban Heads Western League; Salary $2,500.

At this time I was engaged in newspaper work at Cincinnati. Prior to this I had spent two years at Marietta college and then switched to the Cincinnati Law school. I had always believed a boy should make his own way and after a year as a law student I decided I'd seek labor in the newspaper field. I started as a suburban correspondent and soon attracted the attention of the city editor.

Shortly after I was offered a staff job which I regarded as the ultimate, so I abandoned my law studies for regular employment. That was in 1886. I wrote politics, did night police for two years, dabbled in sports, became city editor and finally drifted back into sports, to remain there until I turned to a new field which was to take the next 34 years of my life.

It was while doing baseball in Cincinnati that I became friendly with Comiskey, who was manager of the team at the time. From him I learned that a move was afoot to reorganize the Western league. He told me about a meeting to be held and that a president would be elected.

The meeting Comiskey told me about was held at Indianapolis, in November, 1893. I attended and went back to Cincinnati with the title of president, secretary and treasurer of the Western league. Actually I was president, secretary and treasurer of nothing. My salary was to be $2,500 a year. I intended to continue with my newspaper work, which by this time I had learned to love.

At that meeting it was decided to make up a circuit of Milwaukee, Kansas City, Sioux City, Minneapolis, Toledo, Detroit, Grand Rapids and Indianapolis. Detroit wasn't represented, but one of the others present received a wire from George Vanderbeck, a wealthy Detroit man who was in California at the time. He asked to be considered for the Detroit franchise and it was awarded to him. Later he came east and I went with him to Detroit to select a park site near Belle Isle. This was the first move of what in a few years developed into the Detroit American league club.

Comiskey Gets League's Franchise in St. Paul.

Our first season [1894] with the revived Western league developed a championship for Sioux City, which was managed by W. H. Watkins, but the city failed to support its team. Before the 1895 season started we had moved the Sioux City franchise to St. Paul and awarded it to Comiskey, who shortly before had finished his career as a player and was ambitious to branch out as managing owner.

In November of 1894 I called a Western league meeting at the old Wellington hotel in Chicago. I went there with the purpose in mind of resigning. I liked my newspaper associates and conditions in Cincinnati. I thought my future was in the newspaper game. I had already been in it for eight years. One year in baseball had convinced me it was mainly a matter of grief.

Before we went into the meeting room Jimmy Manning of the Kansas City club came to me and whispered something about being with me tooth and nail. George Ellis, who represented Grand Rapids, Mich., assured me of his club's fidelity. Several others made similar remarks.

Not a soul in the world knew of my intention to resign, so I couldn't understand what these men were talking about. I made inquiry and soon learned there had been active campaigning to unseat me. It developed that John T. Brush, who was president of the Cincinnati club of the National league and who had an interest in the Indianapolis franchise of our league, had been working against my reëlection. It was this little matter that changed my entire life and it was the start of a feud between Brush and myself that carried on until a few months before his death.

Brush probably wished to oust me from my Western league job as a way to avenge things I may have written about his Cincinnati team. Anyway, as soon as I heard I had opposition my love for battle was aroused. I said to myself that nobody could railroad me out of a job and I resolved to stick. Brush attended the meeting and introduced some harmless resolutions merely to test his strength. He was voted down 7 to 1 on everything he suggested. The seven other clubs wanted to show him where he stood. He made no attempt to nominate his candidate for my job. Shortly after this I abandoned my newspaper work and moved the league offices to Chicago.

Before this meeting broke up we sent out and located Comiskey. He came into the room and formal transfer of the Sioux City club to St. Paul took place with Comiskey the new owner. Meanwhile, Brush, nettled over the manner in which his scheme had been wrecked had returned to the lobby of the hotel.

Comiskey Refuses Offer to Continue with Brush.

After Comiskey had been given the St. Paul franchise I went down stairs for a breath of fresh air and the first man I encountered was Brush. He didn't know that I had knowledge of what he had figured on doing to me and my $2,500 job. But he did know that Comiskey was up in our meeting room.

Brush said he wanted to talk to Comiskey, so Commy came downstairs to determine what it was about. They were friendly and the friendship never was broken. What Brush had in mind was to offer Comiskey the Cincinnati club management for another year. Comiskey had been there three seasons but knew he was through because of the poor showing of the Reds and acted on this knowledge when he took the St. Paul franchise. Brush merely wanted to keep him from getting into our league. He figured by doing this he could embarrass me. Comiskey decided to go through with the St. Paul venture.

In mid season of 1895 the Toledo club fell down as a drawing card so Danny Long moved over to Terre Haute where he figured business would be better. He made this move without the consent of the league so at the close of the season was fired and the franchise was transferred. Grand Rapids also dropped out to make room for Omaha and eventually St. Paul developed into a weak member. It was this St. Paul condition that created the ambition to go into Chicago territory, held sacred by the National league. A couple of years later another change in the circuit brought in Cleveland.

I discussed the Chicago territory with National league men and finally convinced them that the city was large enough to support two ball clubs. The sole opponent to the idea was the late James A. Hart, then president of the National league team on the west side. Hart consented to withdraw his objection when our league, which the year previous had changed its name from Western to American, promised to abide by certain restrictions.

LEAGUE INVADES CHICAGO

A meeting was held to thrash out this matter in the Hollenden hotel at Cleveland. The National was represented by Hart, Robinson, Brush and Soden of Boston. In consideration of permission to play in Chicago the American league, which then was regarded even by ourselves as a minor, agreed not to build a park farther north than 35th street and to permit the Chicago National league club to draft two players each fall from the Chicago American league team. Thus the American league opened in Chicago for the season of 1900 in a park built at 39th street and Wentworth avenue. Comiskey's team at St. Paul had been known as the "Apostles," but when he moved to Chicago it was decided they be known as the "White Sox." This was a variation of "White Stockings," under which the Chicago National league team had operated until Anson was succeeded by Burns in 1898.

With the invasion of Chicago and other changes that had taken place we had a circuit of Buffalo, Cleveland, Detroit, and Indianapolis in the east and Milwaukee, Chicago, Kansas City, and Minneapolis in the west.

Prior to the close of the 1900 season we had discussed among ourselves the advisability of expanding and making our bid as a major league. Various conditions at the time were irritating to our peace of mind.

The rules then existing permitted the National league to draft from us on a wholesale scale. It could step in and take an entire ball team for $500 per man. There was one year when Jimmy Manning lost five players this way after winning a championship at Kansas City. One of the men so drafted was Jimmy Callahan. The Chicago National league team took him. Later he and Clark Griffith "jumped" to Comiskey's White Sox.

National League Refuses Proposed Draft Limit.

What we wanted was to limit the National league on the draft but the latter refused to negotiate. We even offered to buy their surplus players.

We also wanted to take over territory the National league had abandoned. It had reduced from a twelve to an eight club league after the 1899 season, leaving Louisville and Cleveland vacant in the west and Baltimore and Washington in the east. We were willing to buy into the cities we wanted. The National would not consent.

These efforts weren't made with the idea of waging war on the National. Our chief concern was the threatened formation of a new American association that would have invaded our cities. Our own life was at stake and we held numerous conferences at various places before determining our course. It finally appeared as if the American association would become a fact so the American league held a meeting in Chicago, Oct. 14, 1900. A five year working agreement under which the eight clubs of the league operated, was to expire a few days hence so the business of the old circuit was wound up and a decision reached to spread out and take in Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Washington in the east. A fourth city was to be selected at a later date.

There still was no thought of war with the National league. The cities we decided to take into the circuit were not National territory, excepting Philadelphia. There had been opposition there at all times, so we did not anticipate any objection from the National in this. But we had agreed to go through with the expansion either with or without the consent of the National.

National Owners Ignore Johnson's Proposals.

Having made our decision I purposely neglected to renew the American league's national agreement membership for 1901. A week after our expansion move in Chicago I received notice from the national board to forward the membership fees.

I replied that the plan of the American league to occupy eastern territory had been well defined. I explained that we were menaced by the possible formation of a new league detrimental to our interests and that new conditions must alter, in part, our relations with the National league.

A couple weeks later [Nov. 1900], the National league met in New York. My request for new working conditions was put before the owners, but they were unanimous in their decision to ignore my demands. I was in Philadelphia at the time, hoping to be summoned by the National leaguers to whom I wished to explain our stand. They sent back word that I could stay there until hell froze over.

Thought National Owners Were Aiding New League.

The action of the National showed it was willing to war if anybody would carry the fight to them. They had underestimated our strength. Some of the men involved in that decision told me later that they had no idea the American league would not recede from its expansion declaration but there never was a moment when either myself or my associates gave even a thought to deviating from the course mapped out at our expansion meeting in Chicago in Oct., 1900.

The war broke in earnest shortly after. We moved cautiously thinking the National would alter its attitude. Then the threatened American association, which we had regarded as a menace, actually blossomed into being. A meeting of the A. A. supporters was held in Chicago and a temporary organization effected. They aimed to confer with the National league relative to admission under the national agreement. To us it looked as if the National leaguers hoping to choke off the expanding American league were actually aiding in the launching of the new organization. We decided we would go even farther than originally intended.

The first thing we did was to abandon Buffalo as one of our four eastern cities and substitute Boston. Charles Somers of Cleveland acquired a site for a ball park and had the stand in readiness for the opening of the 1901 season. Somers operated this club during 1901 and 1902 and then sold out to a Milwaukee syndicate headed by the late Henry Killilea. This group operated the club until Gen. Taylor stepped forth in 1904.

McGraw Asks American for Franchise; Gets It.

At the expansion meeting in Chicago the Philadelphia franchise had been awarded to Connie Mack, who then was manager at Milwaukee. Somers, whom I had interested in the Grand Rapids, Mich., club back in the season of 1894, came to the rescue at Philadelphia. He financed the Philadelphia park, giving an option to Ben Shibe. We opened there in 1901 and drew about 16,000 people with about 5,000 turned away. It was when Shibe saw this vast turnout that he made his now famous remark: "Count me in; count me in."

At our Chicago expansion meeting John McGraw appeared and made a plea for the Baltimore franchise. He had backing. Something had happened to him that made him want to "desert" to the American league. He was given the place and when he opened the season in 1901 he had with him such players as Joe Kelly, Bresnahan, McGann, Gilbert, Seymour, Donlin and Robinson. The Washington club was placed in the hands of Jimmy Manning.

It was no easy matter locating sites for our parks in Washington and Baltimore. When the National league deserted these two cities after the 1899 season the parks were destroyed. Washington was particularly barren of sites. We finally located well out from the center of the city and some time elapsed before the present Florida avenue grounds became available.

Raids for Players Gut National Clubs.

The National league didn't really awaken to the importance and seriousness of our venture until we started the war in earnest by raiding for players. Those were the most trying days of my 34 years in baseball. I or my representatives moved into a city under cover of darkness and out again before daylight. We were watched almost constantly but seldom did the National's system of espionage prove effective against us.

Our raids weren't conducted in a hit or miss fashion. When the National league spurned me by telling me to stay in Philadelphia until hell froze over I called a meeting for Jan. 1901 in Chicago. The session was conducted in the Grand Pacific hotel. At this conference we decided just how many men were to be "stolen" from the National and who they were to be. Each club was given the names of the players it was to capture if possible.

At this same meeting, January, 1901, the circuit of the league was altered to include the four eastern cities mentioned above and Milwaukee, Chicago, Cleveland, and Detroit in the west. It also was voted to place ground leases and 51 per cent of all club stocks in my hands along with an option on plant and franchise. This was done as a matter of protection. We had reason to fear that without proper safeguards the National might buy in and attempt to undermine our organization. Thus my powers were almost unlimited and I was forced to exercise them before many months had elapsed.

In our raids we almost "gutted" certain clubs. From the Boston Nationals we took Jimmy Collins, La Chance, Chick Stahl, Dougherty and others for our new Boston team. We grabbed Dineen, Young Criger, Ferris, Hickman. The team finished second in the 1901 race.

Then Comes Court War; American Step Ahead.

Connie Mack captured Lajoie, Frasier, and Bernhard from the Philadelphia Nationals. Comiskey took Callahan and Griffith from the Chicago Nationals, White from the Phillies, Davis from the Giants, and some others. Later we invaded the St. Louis and Pittsburgh clubs for five or six players each. The National league owners were sitting up nights wondering where the next blow would land.

When Mack shattered the ranks of the Phillies, Col. John Rogers, an official of the latter club, swung into action. Prior to this he had taken the view that his position in Philadelphia was invulnerable. When he heard we were going to place a club there he laughed it off with a remark about there not being a site in the city large enough for a park. As a matter of fact the park was already under construction, but he didn't know it.

His first move was to go into court to sue for an injunction restraining Lajoie, Bernhard, and Fraser from deserting his club. A lower court decided against him on the grounds of a reserve clause being illegal, but a higher court reversed the verdict. The American league then transferred the players to the Cleveland club. Rogers filed another suit in Ohio, but lost. The three players, however, never appeared in Philadelphia and traveled through Pennsylvania only under cover of darkness.

Milwaukee Club Sent to St. Louis in Fight.

By the end of the 1901 season we had demonstrated to the National league that the American league as a major had come to stay. We were so well patronized that there was no doubt about there being room for two leagues, but the National still professed to be in the mood for war. Confident as the result of our first season we attacked the old league in the west. We invaded St. Louis, and as part of the invasion swept up a portion of the best players belonging to the St. Louis National league team. President Robinson went to court to recover his players, but the verdict was again in favor of the American league.

To invade St. Louis we transferred the Milwaukee club. It had fared poorly in 1901, finishing eighth under Hugh Duffy's management. Henry and Matt Killilea, owners at Milwaukee, consented to the transfer, selling their interests prior to the 1902 season to a group headed by Robert Hedges, who remained with the league until the absorption of the Federal league in 1915.

Hedges $60,000 Brings Return of $425,000.

We conducted our raid on the St. Louis Nationals even before we had a park in which our proposed St. Louis team could play. This matter was rapidly overcome, however. One site we considered was a corner that years later was occupied by the Federal league. It was centrally located, but we feared objections might be raised by a church across the street. So we signed a lease on Sportsmen's park, where Chris von der Ahe's old teams had played. There wasn't a stick of timber on the lot, but Hedges put his shoulder to the wheel and a stand was ready by the time the season opened.

When Hedges decided to take a flyer in baseball he was a manufacturer in Cincinnati. His investment at the start was a $30,000 he had paid the Milwaukee club for franchise and players, and possibly another $30,000 for park and advances to men stolen from the National. When Hedges finally sold out to Phil Ball in the 1915 Fed settlement he was paid $425,000 for his holdings.

The assault on the St. Louis club was conducted so quietly and quickly that the National had no time to combat the move. Only a few of the better players from the weak Milwaukee team of 1901 were to be transferred to St. Louis. The other positions were to be filled by the men we expected to take from the National. This gave us players who were well known and popular in the city in which we hoped to and did build up a great following.

GETS 'EM ALL

I had directed practically all the raids on the National league up to this time and continued to act in the matter of capturing St. Louis players. James McAleer was manager of the Cleveland club in 1901 and was not to be retained for the following season. He had been helpful and faithful to the league in various ways and I wanted to repay him just as I afterward repaid many of those who had cast their fortunes with us in the days of the league's infancy.

I summoned McAleer to my office in Chicago. I told him that he was through in Cleveland and asked what he intended to do. I knew that he was the man for the job I had in mind.

"Guess I'll go back to the haberdashery in Youngstown," he replied.

"Would you like to make $500," I asked.

He welcomed the opportunity so I unfolded my plans. I informed him of the prospective raid and its purpose. I gave him a list of the St. Louis players we wanted. He knew all of them personally. I warned him not to take Heidrick, an outfielder. I knew Heidrick was under contract at the time.

McAleer left for St. Louis and in a few days was back in my office.

"Well, I got all of them, including Heidrick," was his greeting.

Then McAleer Is Given Job of Managing St. Louis.

I reminded him that I had cautioned him against this player and he told me that he appreciated my wishes but that the other players had refused to jump unless Heidrick was permitted to jump with them. McAleer said he figured it better to take a chance on Heidrick than to lose everybody. It worked out all right. Heidrick played with the Browns for several years. Among the others McAleer signed Pitchers Powell, Sudhoff and Harper, Infielders Bobby Wallace and Dick Padden and Outfield Burkett.

The next thing McAleer told me was that the players had informed him they wanted him for manager. I reminded him of what he had said about going back to the haberdashery store, but he replied he could forget that if there was a managerial job available. I arranged for him to get the position and he remained in St. Louis until close to the end of the 1909 season when he resigned because of the poor showing of the Browns. The place was given to Jack O'Connor, who previously had done important work, which I will mention later.

The American league as a major and foe of the National league proceeded almost unmolested and secure until about mid-season of 1902. Then the treachery of John McGraw and John Brush hit us. We regarded it as treachery at that time. On the part of Brush I later conceded that it was only what we were trying to do and had been doing to him and his associates. McGraw a year prior to this had asked us to let him in because he was peeved about something and that, from my viewpoint, made his case different from that of Brush.

McGraw threw what then seemed a bomb into our ranks when he conducted some business procedure that included transfer in saloon holdings and the leap of himself and five ball players to the New York Giants. Two of the players he took with him (Kelly and Seymour) were later transferred to Cincinnati. To the Giants, he took McGinnity, Cronin, McGann and Bresnahan. It developed later that $15,000 not an insignificant amount in those days had been involved.

Umpire Baiting Common to National League.

I knew, at least suspected almost instantly, that this was another outcropping of Brush's animosity toward a rival. Brush at that time was just working his way into the New York club. He also was in the midst of a campaign to gain control of the entire National league. Andy Friedman was the actual president of the New York Giants. About the same period A. G. Spalding was endeavoring to reorganize the National. Spalding had talked to me and explained his purpose. I agreed to a thirty day truce so as to make his task easier. He could not induce the National league factions to inter their differences.

As a matter of fact the National league was by this time weary of the conflict the American was waging against it. We had taken almost ever player we wanted and the old league had been able to strike back only in a couple instances. We hit the public fancy right from the outset and almost equaled the National in drawing power. Our slogan from the start had been "Snappy Baseball at Popular Prices."

In our first season as a major I put into effect my plan to make the umpire supreme on the ball field. There was a tendency on the part of the players stolen from the National league to indulge in umpire baiting. In the National there had been practically no semblance of discipline. With my umpires—Cantillon, Sheridan, Connolly, Manassau and Haskell—cloaked in an armor of authority, troubles were reduced to a minimum in 1901. Only three or four serious rows broke out. In one of these McGraw was involved. He was promptly and properly disciplined. He resented being curbed in this fashion. This resentment smoldered until, about a year later, he answered the siren call of the National league. McGraw figured his desertion would deal the American league a body blow. In reality it led to our invasion of New York.

Decision Is Made to Enter New York City.

McGraw's defection was accompanied by a transfer of Baltimore club stock to the National league interests. This stock was a controlling share. This sale took place before the actual leap of the Baltimore players to the Giants. When the players vanished the minority stockholders of the Baltimore club set up a complaint, and I promptly exercised my authority under the league rules and assumed charge of the club. The players were lost, but after one day (July 17, 1902), in which Baltimore forfeited a game to St. Louis because of being unable to put a team on the field, the club resumed and finished the season with men gathered from other clubs.

Before the 1902 season drew to a close it was apparent that Baltimore would not come up to our expectations as a baseball city. New York City was considered the logical place. We made our decision, recruited a team by raiding the Pittsburgh Pirates, and located a park site before the National league awoke to the fact that mischief was afoot.

The raid on the Pittsburgh club formed one of the most spectacular and interesting chapters in the history of our expansion. The championship season of 1902 was still under way. Charles Somers and myself started from Cleveland for Atlantic City. Prior to this we had had dealings with Jack O'Connor, then a Pirate catcher, and he had agreed to act as our agent in lining up the players we intended to lift from Dreyfuss' team.

As we were to pass through Pittsburgh on our way to Atlantic City, we wired O'Connor to be at the depot. We wanted to learn just what progress he had made. As we stepped off the train at Pittsburgh O'Connor walked past us and mumbled under his breath that he was being watched and that we should go immediately to the Lincoln hotel. We abandoned the idea of going to Atlantic City, as it was apparent by O'Connor's anxiety that Dreyfuss had knowledge of our plans and that we'd never get the players unless we acted.

O'Connor Is Fired, but American Pays Salary.

Shortly after we had registered at the hotel designated, O'Connor came into our suite. He informed us that Dreyfuss hadn't signed his players but was becoming suspicious and that if we expected to succeed we would have to strike that same night. O'Connor left, promising to round up the players and send them to the hotel. Inside of an hour the first of them appeared. We worked until four o'clock in the morning. We signed O'Connor Jess Tannehill, Tommy Leach, Wid Conroy, Outfielder Davis, and Jack Chesbro. Before the season closed Dreyfuss fired O'Connor for having dealings with the enemy but the American league paid the salary he otherwise would have received from the Pittsburgh club. This was about $900.

The Baltimore plant which was the property of the American league was disposed of and in the early fall of 1902 I moved into New York with the aim of locating a site for a park. I worked for a month or more without being discovered. Then, early one Sunday morning, I was sitting in a restaurant and two newspapermen—the late Jim Price and Bill Hanna—with whom I was acquainted walked in.

"What are you doing around here, Ban?" said Hanna.

"I'm trying to locate a park site for our New York club," was my reply. For a moment neither of them took my declaration seriously and then Hanna asked where we'd ever find a piece of land big enough for a park and where we'd get the team to play in it.

STORY WAS "SPIKED"

I assured him that the park would be ready for the 1903 opening and that the team had already been signed.

"Can you name some of the players?" said Hanna who still was a bit doubtful.

I told him that I could and proceeded to mention the men we had shortly before lifted from the Pittsburgh club. There was no further need for secrecy as we had the players safely under our wing and the National knew of our intention to in-

COMMERCE HEAD WILL ROLL FIRST BALL AT PIN MEET

Expect 500,000 Spectators at A. B. C. Classic.

John L. Coyne, vice president of the Chicago Association of Commerce and head of its committee on local business, has been selected to open the American Bowling congress at Dexter pavilion next Saturday. Mr. Coyne will launch the six weeks' battle among the country's leading tenpin artists by bowling the first ball as a member of the Association of Commerce booster team. Other members of the inaugural quintent are James P. Haynes, executive vice president of the association; Col. H. F. Miller, director of its trade department; William J. Hennessy, manager of its bureau of conventions, and Frederick J. Ashley, its director of publicity.

A. L. Langtry of Milwaukee, Wis., national secretary of the congress, arrived in Chicago yesterday and met with the Chicago bowling tournament committee.

It was estimated the A. B. C. meet this year will attract 500,000 spectators during the 38 days.

The property office of the U. S. veterans bureau upset 1998 pins last week on the Waukegan alleys while losing two to the O. T. Department team. The latter quintet had a total of 2,152 for the three games.

The Cuneo Press quintet won a special match from the Santa Fe R. R. team on the Bensinger alleys at 235 South Wabash. The Press team won all three games. They had totals of 915, 959 and 882. The Santa Fe team rolled counts of 838, 879 and 826.

Frank Schwartz, a policeman of the Oak Park department was elected head of the new bowling league organized by members of the Forrest Park, River Forest, Berwyn and Oak Park police departments. The opening games will be rolled Wednesday.

Illness of Ad Carlson forced the postponement of his All Star match Thursday with Bill Brennan.

In the Hawthorne Women's league, the Production quintet leads with 38 won and 19 lost. Operating No. 2 team is second with 38 won and 19 lost. Gertrude Koeger has the highest average of the league, a mark of 160.

The Jiruska Stars are five games to the good in the Windy City league. E. Kurth has been the star throughout the season. He has averaged 201 over a stretch of 60 games. Most of the fight and interest in the race is centered in the battle for second place between the Patterson Pies and the Pinkert State Bank team. Each has won 39 and lost 21. F. Nigg of the lowly Manuel Cigars is on top in the individual column with a 208 average after upsetting 7,493 pins in 36 games. L. Bukovnik of Patterson Pies is crowding him with a 206 average made over a stretch of 60 games.

Another league with the interest and scrap centered around second place is the Royal Arcanum circuit. The Maplewood and North Shore teams are tied with 39 wins and 21 defeats, while the Illinois quintet is one game to the rear and coming fast. The Medora No. 1 team is on top by a margin of seven games.

The gap between the White City team, leaders in the White City Junior league, and the second place Cunninghams widened as a result of the games last week. The leaders took two from the Mique Malloys and now have won 35 and lost 19. The Cunninghams dropped two to the Benensohns and are six games behind the leaders.

RANKIN BEATS JOE FLIGER IN BOWLING MATCH

Fred Rankin won 6 out of 9 games from Joe Fliger in an all star match yesterday at the Bensinger Randolph alleys. Rankin hit a fast pace to win the first three games before Fliger could control his ball sufficiently to break into the win column. Rankin also finished fast, rolling his high game of the series in his last effort. It was a 247 count. Fliger had 229 in the next to his last effort for his high mark. He averaged 206 and Rankin's average was 209. Score:

RANKIN—
208 212 212 161 196 203 209 221 247
Total—1,881.
FLIGER—
178 192 209 216 182 228 223 229 218
Total—1,855.

CORNELL CAGERS WHIP MONMOUTH BY 26-16 SCORE

Mount Vernon, Ia., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—The Cornell college basketball team won another midwest conference game here this evening when it upset Monmouth, 26 to 16. The battle was fast throughout, with the score tied twice, but the visitors were never allowed to take the lead. Led by O'Connor, Cornell pulled away to a 14 to 9 advantage at the half.

Boilermaker Matmen Beat Western Reserve Team

Lafayette, Ind., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Purdue's wrestlers flattened Western Reserve tonight, 31 to 3, in a dual meet. Purdue's only loss came in the 115 pound class, where Preston, Western Reserve, won the decision over Weintraub.

Ban Johnson Tells Story of Baseball Life

vade New York but was sitting back in its usual confident manner and letting us search unmolested for a park site. The league's agents had reported that there wasn't a spot vacant in which we possibly could build. As a matter of fact we had three sites under consideration.

Before leaving me the two writers assured me I had given them a "hell of a story." The following morning Price's paper appeared with the story of the American league's proposed invasion of New York and its successful raid on the Pittsburgh club. Hanna's paper didn't carry a line. Hanna had written the yarn but his editor thought it was fiction and spiked it. But the story held up down to the last detail although peace between the two leagues was signed before the opening of the 1903 season.

Bransfield Breaks Word; Costs Him Job Later.

Later this same winter I went from New York to Wooster, Mass., with the purpose of signing Kitty Bransfield who was one of the Pirates we hadn't landed in our raid of several months previous. We figured on him as a first baseman for our New York club. I advised him of my visit in a telegram to whicfh I signed a fictitious name. I met him and we talked terms. He agreed to come to Boston advance salary. I waited around the the next day, sign and receive $500 Parker house in Boston all the next day but Bransfield failed to appear.

Determined not to lose my man I went back to Wooster, accompanied by Silk O'Loughlin. We learned that Harry Pulliam, just elected president of the National league, had been in Wooster that day and signed Bransfield for the Pirates. The National league in some way had found out about my move. Years later Bransfield approached me in regard to a job as umpire in the American league. I reminded him that he once had broken his word with me.

One of the sites we had under consideration in New York was in the vicinity of 142d street and the Harlem river. We worked on this for five weeks, finally abandoning it when we learned a street couldn't be closed.

We turned to a site in the Bronx, and were assured by the politicians that a street which divided the ground could be closed for $25,000. They would give us no guarantee as to how long the street would remain closed so we kept the $25,000 and looked elsewhere.

(In next Sunday's installment Mr. Johnson will tell of the selection of a park site in New York and the end of the war with the National league. During this time the junior circuit built up its firm organization that later withstood the shock of baseball's greatest scandal.)

Schang and Rookie Depart for Browns' Camp Tonight

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Although the St. Louis Browns are expected to open training at West Palm Beach, Fla., Tuesday morning, only two of them will leave from here tomorrow night. They are Wallie Schang, veteran catcher, and Tulsa's young third base graduate, Eddie Grimes. The rest are to report to Manager Dan Howley, who has been in West Palm Beach for a month.

NOBODY'S BUSINESS

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

New York, Feb. 23.—The prize fighters, ball players and professional amateurs of tennis make so much noise the year around that it is easy to forget that there is such a thing as genuine amateur athletics in this country. But, on fall days, when I am covering the training of the football teams at West Point, New Haven, Cambridge or Princeton I see veritable pageants of sport, a part of the regular afternoon routine, which remind me that sport has not yet become entirely a matter of guarantees, contracts and expense accounts.

This is a great realm of athletics which the people outside the colleges do not seem to wot of. The reason probably is that a copy desk cannot build a head on a story which merely states that the young men who sleep in a certain corridor at the United States Military academy have this day scored a stirring victory over the inmates of another hall in a game of soccer, polo or quoits.

It is much easier to support the banner line across the sport page with a story intimating that William T. Tilden II. has been declared no amateur again upon his conviction on a charge of journalism in the first degree.

Jack Dempsey can command the banner lines in all the sport pages by announcing that he is thinking of going into training, although he has fought only fifty-six rounds in the last ten years. On the same day five thousand students playing in intramural football games cannot command a whisper in print.

One day last fall I waited just inside the gymnasium doors at the military academy for the varsity football team to come out for practice and watched a parade of athletes pass by, like the figures on a frieze depicting athletes in our time.

There were boxers who would box more in one month than Dempsey and Tunney boxed in their combined reigns as champions bound for the gym. There were fencers and gymnasts, polo men in breeches and helmets, soccer men and track men in shorts, lacrosse men in their armor with their curious snowshoe bats on their shoulders, tennis players and golfers and whole companies, it seemed, of football players of various squads and teams hurrying to their practice or their matches at various points on the reservation.

At Cambridge I waited by the fieldhouse one afternoon for Arnold Horween and saw a scattering of young runners in rather motheaten green shirts and dilapidated track shoes leaving the dressing rooms on a run. There were some alien football players, too, charging out of the locker rooms and hurrying away to one of the fields outside the main stadium.

"Who are these fellows?" I asked.

Well, the track men were down from St. something or other college in New Hampshire to run in a meet with one of the Harvard class teams, and the football players were the varsity from some other minor college off in the hills keeping a date with the Harvard sophomores.

Polo men were passing, walking their ponies, to the fields across the road. A hundred students were playing tennis. Football men by the dozen hurried by, scuffing gravel with their cleats. A pistol was popping over yonder somewhere as a squad of sprinters practiced starts.

As I crossed the bridge returning to town at dusk the last of the oarsmen were drawing their shells on to the float.

But only the varsity team was making the sport pages that night.

I wonder what is my idea in going into all this. Can it be that I am trying to make the people think?

Jack Dempsey can command the banner-lines in all the sport pages by announcing that he is thinking of going into training.

SEPPALA DRIVES DOGS TO VICTORY IN QUEBEC DERBY

QUEBEC, Que., Feb. 23.—[U. P.]—Leonhardt Seppala of Alaska won the 1929 Quebec dog derby when his team of seven Siberian huskies flashed to the fore early this afternoon to show the remainder of the field the way home. His elapsed time for the day was 3:43:42, and his three day total was 11:06:33.

The team of seven Siberians piloted by the Alaskan finished fresh and galloped down the last mile in wonderful style, while Seppala, bareheaded despite the zero weather, smiled as he passed the finishing post.

Kieckhefer Holds Lead in Billiard League Play

Augie Kieckhefer of the Kieckhefer Recreation, still leads the Chicago Billiard league with 20 won and 6 lost. Kieckhefer's high run of 10 is unequaled. Joseph Wright, Sheridan Recreation, has second high run of 9, and is second in the standing with 18 victories and 10 defeats. Charles Le Gros is third with 16 wins and 10 defeats.

Joe Mathes Will Manage Springfield Baseball Club

Springfield, Mo., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Joe Mathes, former major league infielder and later manager of several minor league clubs, has been named by the St. Louis Browns to manage the Springfield Western Association club, it was announced here today by President A. G. Eckert. The Browns purchased the local club recently.

shot was clearly in the basket and then spun out, but Reil caged one on an out of bounds play. Walter tried another one, Bergherm tried to tap it through, and Walter leaped up for the third push, which was good and tied the score. Marshall dribbled through for a one handed shot that slipped through the hoop and Northwestern led for the first time since the early minutes.

Badgers Come Back Fast.

It didn't last long, however, for after a Wisconsin time out, the big Badgers came back fast. Foster got a free throw, Kowalcyzk, dribbled in and counted a push up and the two foul throws he got on the shot. Foster took a pass from that same chap of the unpronounceable name and scored, before Marshall counted again for Northwestern after a long dribble. At this point came Chmielewski's crash, but he recovered sufficiently to score both his free throws, Kowalcyak got a basket from an angle, after Chmielewski's dribble and pass, and Foster scored from under the basket, following Miller's long try.

Riel added a point on a foul and Ellerman, who had spilled Marshall a minute before, tried it again but Marshall missed both free throws. The Purple guard scored a long shot a minute later but Miller matched him with a shot try. Schultz got a foul point and Miller two on Schultz's fourth foul, which sent Schultz out and weakened Northwestern's defense a lot.

Then came Chmielewski with a basket for the book. Driving through to intercept a pass in the corner, he took the pass on one hand and flipped it toward the hop with one sweep of his arm, while traveling just about as fast as he can and that's fast. It went through without even touching the rim. That ended Wisconsin's scoring and they began to stall. Marshall added a free throw and Riel and Gleichmann scored long shot baskets before the final gun.

GIVE THE QUAIL A CHANCE, URGE ORNITHOLOGISTS

Game Birds Are Shorn of Natural Shelter.

BY BOB BECKER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Thomasville, Ga., Feb. 23.—If the sportsmen, conservationists and bird lovers of the upper Mississippi Valley want to increase the quail population in their states they must provide that all important factor in quail propagation: suitable environment. And "suitable environment" means thickets, bramble patches, weeds, hedge rows, and other vegetation commonly called "cover."

This is the message which Herbert L. Stoddart, head of the U. S. Biological survey and head of the coöperative quail investigation, gave us today when we asked him what we in the north must do to keep the Bob White population at a more or less constant level.

Stoddart and his associates can speak with authority. They know what they are talking about because these keen young scientists have been studying the Bob Whites for three years. Today these ornithologists know more about the quail, its life history, food habits, natural enemies, and needs than any other group in the world because they have swept aside all conjectures about the cheery Bob White and by dint of three years of hard work amassed a wealth of facts regarding this popular game bird.

England Has Right Idea.

Stoddart, who is familiar with northern game conditions because he was formerly connected with the Field Museum of Natural History and has spent much time in northern game fields, says that states like Illinois are not giving the quail a chance because we are destroying what he calls the "quail environment."

"If you went to England," he said, "and told the farmers to eliminate the hedge rows along the fences and plow up all thickets and weed patches at the ends of the fields they would refuse to do it. They would tell you that such places are for the game, because such cover provides both shelter and food.

"The quail needs cover. This game bird requires small patches of weeds, hedge rows overgrown with vegetation or a corner of a woodlot which has been left to grow wild.

Save the Thicket.

"But what does the quail get in most farming communities in the north? Intensive cultivation of the land with the elimination of much of the cover which the bird needs. When a farmer cuts down his osage orange hedge or eliminates thickets in the corners of his fields he virtually destroys a covey of quail because the birds cannot live without cover."

If northern sportsmen with the coöperation of the landowners will provide suitable environment for quail and then wage a war on roving house cats, they can have plenty of these birds in our coverts. After studying the natural enemies of the Bob Whites, Stoddart ranks the house cat as the greatest enemy of the birds in northern farming communities.

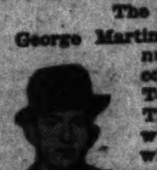
Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question Al Ashley, 4060 West Jackson-blvd., was awarded $5.

The Question.

Who do you think will win the Big Ten basketball title?

The Answers.



George Martin, 7724 Haskins avenue, salesman—Wisconsin will win the Big Ten basketball title. The Badgers have a wonderful offense, which is matched by a great defense. Wisconsin lost but one game to Michigan. But they'll make that up when they tackle the Wolverines at Ann Arbor a week from tomorrow.

Miles Gavigan, 1612 West 87th street, circulation—I favor the Badgers. That's probably because Wisconsin is my home state. However, the Badgers have beaten everybody but Michigan and lead the Big Ten. I think the Wisconsin-Michigan game at Ann Arbor will settle the race, and my guess is that Wisconsin will be the winner.

Herbert W. Karsa, 2142 West 22d street, radio salesman.—Purdue looks good to me. Chicago had a better team than they're generally given credit for, but they lost several games by narrow margins. I think they'll upset Wisconsin next Saturday to give Purdue the title, or at least tie for it.

H. S. Hershman, 7706 North Hermitage avenue, clerk.—Michigan is my choice, I think the Wolverines will beat the Badgers to put the two in a tie for the lead and that Chicago will beat Wisconsin at Madison to give Michigan the championship.

Samuel Albert, 5435 Woodlawn avenue, manager.—It will be either Michigan or Wisconsin. I don't think the Purdue Boilermakers will make the grade. The championship probably will be decided in the Michigan-Wisconsin game at Ann Arbor a week from tomorrow.

NEBRASKA TRACK SQUAD DEFEATS IOWA STATE MEN

Each Team Takes Firsts in Six Events.

Lincoln, Neb., Feb. 23.—[illegible]—Nebraska track team won its [illegible] indoor meet of the season this afternoon by defeating Iowa State college 59 to 45. 55TH KENTUCKY DERBY DRAWS A FIELD OF 159

Coughlin's Crack Pair Is Entered.

BY FRENCH LANE.

EARL SANDE.

The Kentucky Derby entries were announced yesterday by Col. Matt J. Winn, executive director of the Churchill Downs track in Louisville, where the annual turf classic will be renewed for the fifty-fifth time next May 18.

The field includes 159 three year olds from all parts of America. It is somewhat smaller than in other years, but includes all the great two year old stake winners of last season with but one exception. Jack High, owned by George D. Widener, and generally ranked with the top notchers, was not made eligible for the race.

High Strung, owned jointly by Marshall Field and Robert T. Garry, and the winner of the Belmont and Pimlico Futurities of last season, was nominated. So were Edward R. Bradley's speedy Blue Larkspur, John J. Coughlin's Roguish Eye and Karl Eitel, Herbert Gardner's Clyde Van Dusen, Edward B. McLean's Neddie, and Walter J. Salmon's Dr. Freeland.

Vermajo Heads List.

The Three D's Stock farm of Texas, whose horses are trained by C. E. Durnell, led in the number of nominations with nine. The Texan named Vermajo for the race. This colt recently won the $25,000 New Orleans handicap, and is now at Tia Juana awaiting engagements in the Tia Juana Derby and the $100,000 Coffroth handicap.

Among other owners whose silks are familiar on all tracks to make nominations were Harry Payne Whitney, Audley farm, Belair stud, Johnson N. Camden, Desha Breckinridge, Walter J. Salmon, Samuel D. Riddle, Gifford A. Cochran, W. R. Coe, Mrs. Graham Fair Vanderbilt, Mrs. James B. Brown, Hal Price Headley, Edward B. McLean, Nevada Stock farm, Rancocas stable, Lawrence Waterbury, and Baron Long.

The latter nominated the sensational western colt Ervast, which only recently rolled up his eighth straight victory at Tia Juana. Ervast is still in the west awaiting a clash with Vermajo in the Tia Juana Derby. He will be sent east soon after the running of the Tia Juana Derby on March 3, as it is not intended that he be sent after the Coffroth handicap, a grind at a mile and a quarter, so early in the season.

Reigh Count Won Last Year.

Reigh Count, the Chicago colt owned by Mrs. John D. Hertz, won last year's Derby. If the Chicago victory is to be repeated it seems to be up to Alderman John J. Coughlin or Fred M. Grabner to provide the winner. In Roguish Eye and Karl Eitel Coughlin has a dangerous pair of contenders. They frequently showed their heels to the best 2 year olds last season, and Roguish Eye was beaten only a head in the Futurity at Belmont by High Strung. Grabner's Windy City developed late in his juvenile year and showed signs of being one of the highest class youngsters of the season.

There are numerous other Chicago owned colts eligible to race but if any of them capture the Derby it will come as a great surprise, although this is possible, because the Derby shapes up as one of the most open races in years.

Sande Nominates Three.

Earl Sande, who rode Zev to victory in the 1923 Derby and came back in 1925 and sent Flying Ebony first past the line of finish, appears in the Derby picture this year as an owner, having nominated three thoroughbreds for the race.

The Maryland Jockey club recently amended its rules to permit Sande to ride his own horses. The Kentucky Jockey club may take similar action before Derby day and in this event Sande will be wearing his own silks and be in the saddle on one of his own horses in this year's Derby. He can easily make the Derby weight of 126 pounds despite his absence from the saddle for so many months.

94 NAMED FOR PREAKNESS

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Nominations for the $50,000 Preakness stakes to be run on May 10 were announced here today by the officials of the Pimlico track. They numbered 94 and represent 51 owners. High Strung, Blue Larkspur, Battleship Gray, Twink, Neddie, Mayor Walker, and Dr. Freeland are among the more prominent colts made eligible for the race. Most of the western owners passed up the Preakness this year, the names of Roguish Eye, Ervast, Clyde Van Dusen, and Vermajo being among the prominent absentees. Jack High was the only prominent eastern three year old not nominated. It is understood he will be reserved to fill engagements in the Belmont stakes and American Derby, which will not be run until the latter part of June.

DETROIT SOCCER TEAM TO BATTLE SPARTA TODAY

The Sparta soccer team, champion of the Midwest league and winners of the Peel cup, will meet the All-Scots of Detroit, Mich., the second round of national cup competition, at Kostner park, 22d street and Kostner avenue, here this afternoon.

The Motor City eleven, last year's winners of the state championship, contains several players famous in Scottish soccer. Julius Hjulian, Swedish goalie, will be in the lineup for the Chicago team after several months of idleness. Today's winner will meet the Bricklayers in the next round.

HIGH SCHOOL BASKETBALL.

Hillsboro, 20; Witt, 22.
Farmersville, 23; Waggoner, 13.

SMOLDERING, AT 9 TO 1, CAPTURES ELM HALL STAKE

Leads Marshal Ney Home by Half Length.

New Orleans, La., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—A. B. Letellier's Smoldering, a son of Campfire, ran a game race at Jefferson Park today to capture the Elm Hall stake. Half a length behind was Marshal Ney, the favorite, while Mineralogist got the short end of the purse a head farther back. Hot Time, the early leader, was crowded out of the money by a head because he could not hold his advantage and stave off the rush of other horses.

Eight in all started, with Golden Mac showing in front for a stride only, to finish last eventually. This caused a good deal of disappointment, as he was a well played second choice. When Golden Mac fell back, Smoldering, Hot Time, and Marshal Ney rushed for the lead, with the eventual winner getting his head in front of Hot Time. But Hot Time turned on a burst of speed and showed in front for a brief period, only to fold up when Smoldering would not crack.

Marshal Ney Rallies.

Meantime Marshal Ney held on gamely, and came on to make more contention for Smoldering when Hot Time tired. In the stretch run Mineralogist closed with a rush and passed the tired Hot Time to land the short end of the purse.

The winner paid $20.70 for a $2 ticket in the mutuels and carried 110 pounds over a heavy track, to be timed in 1:17 1-5 for the six furlongs.

Tony Pascuma and Laurie, from the Jadell stable, proved a winning combination in the Boston purse that was fifth on the card. Laurie, a double winner at the Fair Grounds, scored his first victory of the meeting when he led Buddy Basil to the tape in 1:50 1-5 for a mile and seventy yards. Butter John was third.

Deprema Scores Triple.

Jockey R. Deprema scored a triple on the day and concluded a very fine week of riding. It was his second triple of the week, and in all he has had ten winners since Monday. Deprema had the leg up on Maxie in the second race, Shasta Orange in the third, and Counsellor Connelly in the eighth.

Troye Takes Ski Event in Badger Meet

Madison, Wis., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Hans Troye of the University of Wisconsin defeated two members of the Norge club, Chicago, to take first place in the ski meet which featured the Badger winter sports carnival this afternoon. More than 2,000 spectators flanked the slide and overflowed onto the ice of Lake Mendota.

Troye's total was 18.488, while Alf Jansen of the Chicago club was only a fraction of a point behind with 18.388. Karl Nielsen of the Norge club finished third with 17.60.

Jansen turned in the longest class A jump with a leap of 77 feet, but a class B entry, Joe Maurin of Milwaukee, soared one foot farther for the best jump of the afternoon.

Navy Basketball Team Defeats Harvard, 43-40

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Navy wound up its basketball season with a 43 to 40 victory today over Harvard, although in the last half a Harvard spurt overcame Navy's early lead and had the score tied at one time only a few minutes before the final whistle. Colestock, Middie center, rolled up 20 points of the score. Navy netted 14 field goals, two more than Harvard. By the victory Navy broke even in its season with eight victories and as many defeats.

BUCKEYE PREP FIVE DEFEATS NEW TRIER, 37-21

Stivers High school of Dayton, O., concluded its invasion of the Chicago district last night with a 37-21 victory over the New Trier heavyweight five on the latter's floor. Colburn and Hoskett led the attack for the winners, while Saxton featured for New Trier with fifteen points. Stivers led at the half, 25 to 3, due to New Trier's inability to get its attack under way.

CULVER ACADEMY IS TRACK VICTOR OVER LANE TECH

Culver, Ind., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Scoring slams in four events and breaking three local indoor records, the Culver military academy's track team won with ease this afternoon from Lane Tech of Chicago, 73 to 22. Cadet Bibb, the highest ranking student in the senior class, was the outstanding performer. He won three firsts and ran anchor man on the winning relay team. In winning the 220 in :24 4-5, Bibb clipped 2-5 of a second from the track record.

Taylor Trunks Play for Cage Title Tonight

The Taylor Trunks girl basketball team will play its second game of a three game series with the Cleveland Allerton Aces at the Broadway armory tonight for the girls' national title. The third game will be played in Cleveland, O. The Trunks defeated the Aces in their first game here Jan. 2, 16 to 8.

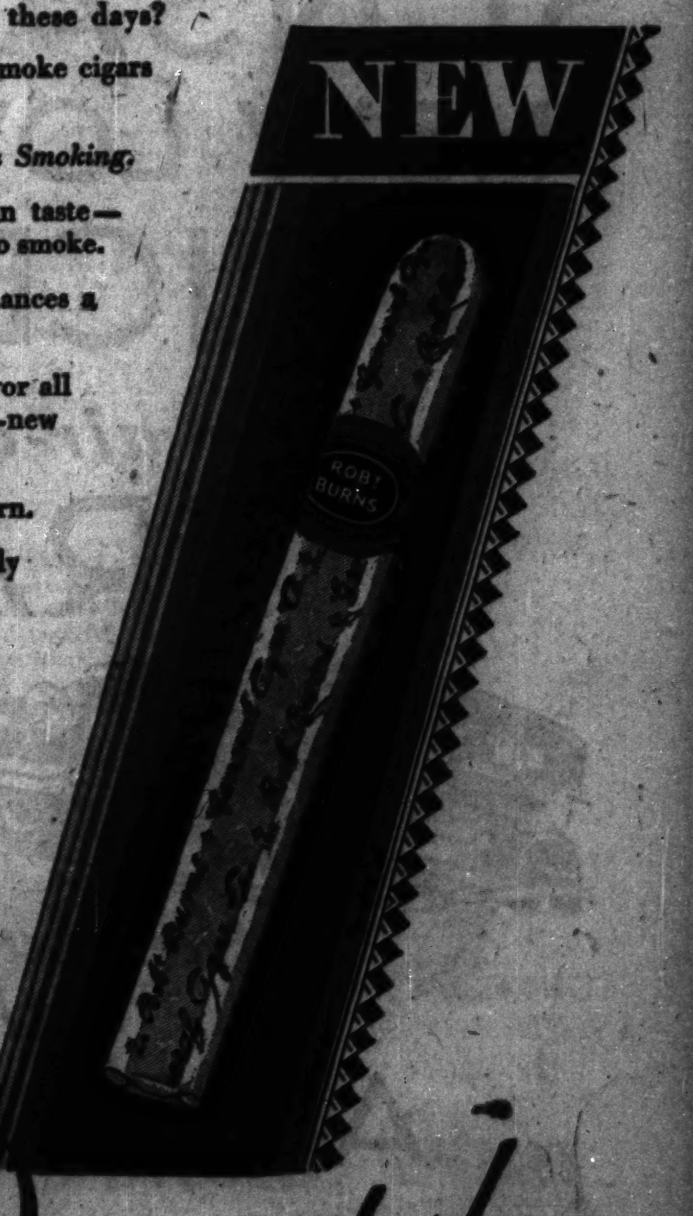
The full series, however, must be played to determine the winner, as the total number of points scored in the three games is the deciding factor.

Tonight's game will be the first Sunday game ever played by the Trunks and was necessitated by the fact that the Buckeye girls were unable to come here during the week.

In addition to the title which the Trunks are seeking the team also will be battling to keep clear a long record of consecutive victories. To date the Trunks are undefeated this year after playing nineteen games. In addition to that it has a record of fifty-six straight wins.

Chicago Latin Defeats Milwaukee Day Five, 19-13

Chicago Latin's basketball squad yesterday defeated Milwaukee Country Day, 19 to 13, on the Chicago team's floor. Trayner starred for the winners with 11 points.



AN AMAZING REVELATION

. . . of what every man can see at a glance

Have you noticed the many men smoking cigars these days?

Look again—and you'll see men you've never seen smoke cigars are smoking a long, graceful cigar.

It is the Robt. Burns Panatela — The New Idea in Smoking.

This distinctive cigar—pleasing in look—pleasing in taste—bespeaking refinement—is the 1929 model of what to smoke.

Its lithe elegance suits the clear cut, alert face—enhances a well groomed appearance.

New in shape—new in extra mildness yet with a flavor all its own—it belongs with new fashions—new sports—new smoking tastes.

That's how and why it attracts men who set the pattern.

Cuba's choicest Havana Filler gives it an especially mild, yet intriguing taste.

Take smoking out of the ruck of sameness. Join the men who have made the Robt. Burns Panatela the New Idea in Smoking.

HERE'S WHAT CAR OWNER CAN SAVE ON INCOME TAXES

Many Deductible Items for Business Autos.

Deductions from the gross income allowed car owners under the regulations of the bureau of internal revenue on account of automobile ownership and operation are outlined in a statement by the American Automobile association.

First, the car owner may deduct from his gross income all sums paid during the calendar year in the form of registration fees, drivers' licenses, state personal property taxes, and municipal taxes.

Second, the gasoline tax may be deducted in all cases where it is a "consumers' tax" under the state law, but not where it is specifically enacted as a "distributors' tax."

Interest Is Deductible.

Third, the interest on money borrowed for the purchase of an automobile is deductible, irrespective of whether the car is used for business purposes or for pleasure. If the taxpayer keeps his accounts on a cash basis such interest will be deductible only for the year in which paid. If accounts are kept on an accrued basis interest may be deducted as it accrues.

Fourth, if a passenger car is used wholly for business purposes all expenses incident to maintenance, including depreciation at the rate of 20 per cent per annum, may be deducted. Where the car is used "chiefly" or more than 50 per cent for business and incidentally for pleasure the expense may be deducted on a pro rata basis.

Fifth, loss sustained by reason of damage to a passenger automobile while being used for pleasure is deductible. The loss, however, must be an actual loss to the person claiming the deduction. In other words, if it is compensated for by insurance or otherwise it is not deductible.

No Ruling on Fines.

Sixth, the bureau has ruled that where a motorist paid damages for injury to a pedestrian such amount is deductible, provided at the time the injury occurred the car was being used for business. There has never been a decision, however, on whether a fine paid by a motorist might be deducted as a business expense where at the time the expense was incurred the car was being used for business or professional purposes.

Seventh, loss when sustained where an automobile used for business purposes is traded in for a new car may be deducted.

Eighth, the amount paid for insurance on automobiles used for business purposes, and also the amount of finance charges on a purchased car which covers interest and risk on the loan, but not the amount covering the premium on insurance to protect the finance company's interest.

Cost Not Deductible.

The A. A. A. points out that in no case is a loss deductible where it is sustained when an automobile used for pleasure is traded in for a new car. At the same time, it is stated that in no case is the amount paid for an automobile used for either business or pleasure allowed as a deduction. This is regarded by the bureau as a capital investment, but is subject to claim for depreciation when used for business purposes. In the case of purchase by a farmer for strictly farm use only the expense incident to operation is deductible, as in the case of any other business or professional use.

How can a motorist determine whether or not he is entitled to the advantages set forth in the clause dealing with deductions of maintenance costs for cars used wholly for business? On this point the national motoring body says:

"When a passenger automobile is used primarily for professional or business purposes and incidentally for pleasure ordinary expenditures for maintenance and repairs may be prorated according to use and deducted, provided the car is used 'chiefly' in the pursuit of a business or profession. 'Chiefly' is interpreted by the bureau to mean more than fifty per cent. If business constitutes a minor usage and pleasure the major part the expense cannot be prorated or deducted. If the chief use is for business the items of depreciation, gasoline, oil, repairs, chauffeur's salary, garage rent, as well as any other legitimate expenses, may be prorated according to the usage and the portion applicable to business purposes deducted."

GOOD MANNERS FOR MOTORISTS

Any well mannered motorist will be considerate enough of fellow drivers to take his position in traffic which will be the least bothersome to others when making a turnout. In this case, with a right hand turn in view, a courteous driver will maneuver into the position indicated. Just before reaching the turning point he will give notice by arm signal that he intends to deviate from straight ahead. At the left is a car properly placed for a left turn when the light changes.

H. M. Albright Is Made New Chief of U. S. Parks

WASHINGTON. — Appointment of Horace M. Albright as director of the national park service to succeed Stephen T. Mather, whose resignation has been accepted, was announced recently by the secretary of the interior, Roy O. West.

MOTOR DEATHS HIGH.

A total of 63 cities of more than 100,000 population report 3,543 fatal motor accidents for the first eight months of 1928. New York City leads with 656 fatal accidents, or more than one-fifth of the total.

R. R.-BUS SERVICE TO REACH MANY CANADIAN POINTS

Working arrangements with railway companies whereby auto buses will act as feeders for the railroads by serving districts remote from the track are in prospect in eastern Canada during the coming season.

The report is received with great interest as marking one more step toward organization of rural transport in the district of Montreal on the most efficient and soundest economic basis, and as revealing a distinct advance toward solution of a problem that has worried economic experts in practically all civilized countries—the relation between trains and auto buses.

Information is that if arrangements visualized work out, it will be possible for a passenger to go to a railroad station in Montreal, buy a ticket to one of many points not on the railroad and transfer at stations which will become points of departure for radial bus service.

PARISIANS SEEK TO CHANGE RIGHT OF WAY MEASURE

More and more pressure is being exerted in Paris to abolish the law giving the right of way to a driver coming from the right.

The general council of the Seine department, which is Paris and its suburbs, adopted a strong resolution urging a return to the old practice of according the right of the road to drivers on main highways.

So many accidents are attributed to the present law, the general council said, that it is imperative to change it.

Those who support the present practice say it is difficult for a driver to know always the importance of the road on which he is driving, while if the one from the right has precedence, the rule always works.

PREDICTS AUTOS TO BRING RADICAL STREET CHANGES

Expert Says Cities Must Separate Grades.

The average motor car operating over the streets of our typical American cities today is not using more than 20 per cent of the potentiality it has. That is why we have a traffic problem, declared Dr. Miller McClintock of the Harvard university bureau of street traffic research.

"Vehicles capable of carrying five to ten tons at efficient speeds up to thirty miles an hour are forced to drag along in traffic with long delays at an average speed as low as three miles an hour," he continued. "It has been estimated that these wastes amount to $1,000,000,000 per year in the United States. The operating conditions are dangerous as well, resulting in a loss of life of 27,500 persons last year.

Radical Change Necessary.

"Solution of this problem will necessitate a radical change, not only in technical engineering attitudes, but in public psychology," according to Dr. McClintock. "The automobile was dropped into a horse and wagon age. Many of our governmental jurisdictions still act as if they were living with whip sockets and dashboards and hitching posts. We shall have to change the horse and buggy street system substantially. Any community in the United States which is not alert to the need of widening its streets, extending them, and maintaining them with good pavements, is overlooking a fundamental and minimum service which it ought to be performing for the transportation of commodities and persons.

"No matter what we may do toward extending the capacity of our streets on the ground, surface transportation by automotive vehicles will not come anywhere near being adequate in any large city of the United States in the future.

Face Separation of Grades.

"The crux of the congestion problem in American cities is at the intersections. We must face immediately the separation of grades of important thoroughfares at strategic points within our cities and the separation of the grades of intersecting main highways. The elevated road, the separated grade route, or superhighway, will become as inevitable in metropolitan development as other developments of a similar character.

"New York City now has well developed plans for the creation of a rapid transit highway along the shore of the Hudson river. Boston has an enabling act in the legislature to empower the city to convert one of its old elevated structures into a highway over one of its most important thoroughfares. Chicago is conducting studies to show the feasibility of a super-highway system serving the whole network of highways in Cook county. In fact, Chicago already has a highly efficient rapid transit highway in use. From the heart of the loop district one can drive north for three and one-half miles at an average and safe speed of forty miles per hour."

NEWS AND VIEWS

Announcement is made by Nash Motors of the appointment of E. J. Travers as director of advertising and assistant sales manager, effective March 1. Mr. Travers has been advertising manager since the formation of the company, and is widely known through the industry. F. R. Babcock, for many years an executive of Green, Fulton & Cunningham, which handles Nash advertising, will succeed Mr. Travers as advertising manager. Mr. Travers went to the Kenosha plant from Chicago. His earlier days were spent in the advertising department of a Chicago newspaper. His appointment follows promotion of C. H. Bliss as sales manager to succeed E. H. McCarty, recently retired.

More than 300 members of the Chicago chapter of the American Institute of Banking Friday had a glimpse behind the scenes of the automobile industry as guests of the Studebaker corporation on a trip of inspection through the Studebaker plants and proving ground at South Bend.

Packard announces successful development of a Diesel type motor and immediate construction of a $650,000 plant to produce 500 engines a month.

R. N. Mosher, general sales manager of Peerless, reports increase in factory deliveries during January, as compared with a year ago, of 59 per cent.

D. P. Gambill, vice president of the Gambill Motor company, Inc., Hupmobile distributor, last week delivered to G. S. Danaher, district manager of Hupp, an order totalinf $2,790,600 for new Century models. This is the largest single order for Hupmobiles ever placed by one distributor in the history of the industry.

Detailing the expansion of Graham-Paige since January, 1928, B. C. Sykes, vice president of Bird-Sykes, Chicago distributors, points out that the company made 80 million dollars' worth of cars, increased its employés from 2,240 to 7,200, and dealers from 875 to 2,440.

Ten thousand Chevrolet dealers, assisted by more than 20,000 salesmen, participated last week in National Demonstration week, the result being that hundreds of thousands of persons experienced first rides in the new Chevrolet six, according to C. L. Alexander, manager of the Chicago zone.

Eleven thousand Oldsmobiles will be built during the month of February, according to information received from factory officials by H. A. Trevellyan, Chicago branch manager. This will be by far the largest February production in the history of this veteran automobile company.

February sales of Auburn reached a new high level with a total more than double that of the same month of 1928, R. H. Faulkner, vice president in charge of sales, reports.

MICHIGAN HAS ROADINVESTMENT OF 150 MILLIONS

A report recently issued by the Michigan highway commission, and which has been submitted to Gov. Fred Green, shows a total investment of about $150,000,000 in the highway system of that state, according to the highway bureau of the Automobile Club of Illinois.

An increase has been made in every phase of the activities of the highway department according to the figures released. Concrete road mileage completed in 1928 was 325 miles and was nearly 100 miles more than that built during 1927.

Motor Fees Paid Third of U. S. Road Improvements

Motor vehicle fees paid more than one-third of the total state road income of $739,765,258 in the United States in 1927, according to United States department of agricultural figures reaching the Automobile Club of Illinois.

$1,650 A DAY RISK PREMIUM ON DRIVER SEEKING SPEED MARK

Maj. H. O. D. Segrave, the first man ever to drive an automobile faster than 200 miles an hour, and who is now in America seeking to regain the speed record, now held by Ray Keech, who drove his Triplex at the speed of 207.5 miles per hour, last April, will be insured when he makes the attempt.

So hazardous will be the driving of the Golden Arrow in the coming Daytona classic that to insure himself for $25,000 (under Lloyd's) Maj. Segrave will have to pay a premium of $1,650 a day. The agent who sold this insurance said Maj. Segrave's rate was the largest on record. Of course, the major will pay this premium for only two days—once when he tests the car and again the following day when he attempts, over a mile stretch, to exceed the automobile speed record.

ALL HIGHWAYS FULLY MARKED IN 28 STATES

Others Nearly Done or Getting Busy.

United States highway system have been completely marked in twenty-eight states, and the standard signs used are those adopted by the Joint Board of Interstate Highways.

A statement, based on a survey by the bureau of public roads, says:

"Arkansas, Oregon, Connecticut, South Carolina, Louisiana, Delaware, Nevada, and Idaho have marked 75 to 99 per cent of the roads. California, Kentucky, Utah, and Colorado have marked 50 to 75 per cent. Tennessee and Florida have erected caution signs only. Alabama and Washington have awarded contracts for erection of route markers. Texas expects to begin marking the roads in January, and Montana will begin in the spring of 1929.

Nearly All of U. S. No. 1 Marked.

"United States route No. 1, from Fort Kent, Me., to Miami, Fla., is marked for practically the entire way, except through New Jersey and Florida. Route 41, from Marquette, Mich., on Lake Superior, to Naples, on the west coast of Florida, is marked for the entire distance, except for some breaks in Kentucky, and through Tennessee and Florida.

"Two parallel routes, No. 51 from Hurley, Wis., to New Orleans, La., and No. 61 from the Canadian border, near Pigeon Point [the northeastern point of Minnesota], on Lake Superior, to New Orleans, are marked for practically the entire way, except No. 51 through Tennessee.

These States Have Marked All.

"The twenty-eight states which have completed marking the system are: Arizona, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Mexico, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Vermont, Virginia, West Virginia, Wisconsin, and Wyoming."

Paterson, N. J., Traffic All Handled by Buses

Paterson, N. J., is now the largest city in the United States in which all public street transportation is supplied by motor buses. With the recent discontinuance of the Park Avenue Railway Line by the Public Service Coordinated Transport, the last trolley disappeared. The population of Paterson is 143,000.

MOTOR INDUSTRY CHANGE IS ALL FOR THE BETTER

Output of Cars Setting New Records.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—The favorable situation surrounding the automotive industry since the beginning of the year is experiencing but little change, and that is for the better. There is a steady increase in production, not large, but nevertheless a gradual upward trend which is holding strong to record levels in the passenger car division. The weather, too, has played an important part in production and sales, but with spring almost within sight dealers find no cause for worry. A quiet period in February simply means increased activities later on.

Output for the current week was approximately 123,000 units, a 3 per cent increase over that of the preceding week, and 50 per cent above the corresponding week of last year. That's the direct result of manufacturers in the low price field swinging into mass production at a much earlier date than usual. These producers, and others in the field just above them, are enjoying an unusually early season demand. High price cars are showing a satisfactory increase, while those in the middle class are not quite up to schedules.

Truck production is not keeping pace with passenger cars—the first time for several weeks. Operations, however, are still heavy, and schedules call for increased outputs throughout the month of March. Heavy duty units are receiving more than average amount of interest.

But all motor vehicles must have shoes, and it is up to the tire manufacturers to produce them. Present schedules are the highest in history, and all the leading tire builders are at peak production.

Japan Bans 'Yellow' Autos, Its Color of Mourning

Motor cars painted yellow are not sold in Japan, since this color, not the conventional black, is significant of mourning, according to an export report.

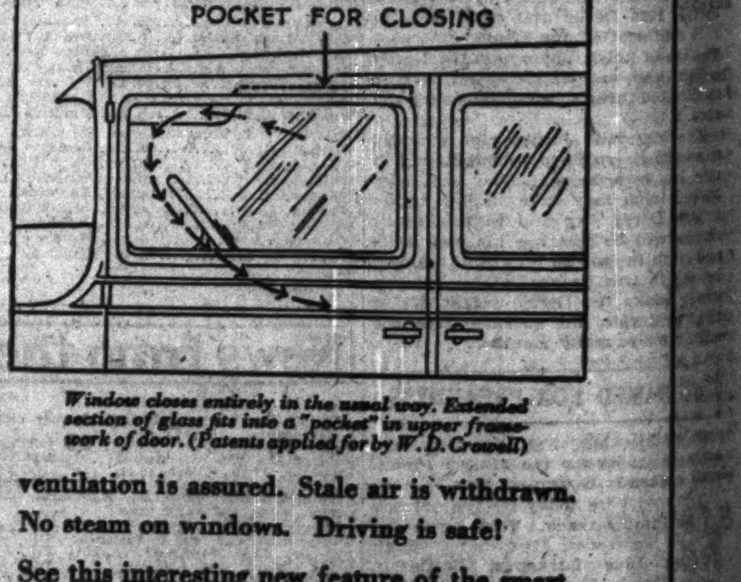
Gardner Presents the New No-Draft Ventilating Doors

— — — Always among the first with important new motor car improvements, Gardner now presents an advanced feature in closed-car comfort and protection.

The No-Draft Ventilating Door prevents the uncomfortable, whirling drafts that strike the back of your neck and head whenever a front window is lowered . . . There are no drafts in the new Gardner, even with the front windows partly open.

Gardner is the first and only car to scientifically supply this needed protection from colds, neck-stiffness and eye, ear, nose and sinus trouble—a need so often expressed by physicians.

Instead of blowing into the car, the air flows out through the specially designed opening at the top of the window. Surprising as it may seem, the outside air currents actually sweep past the opening and prevent the formation of air pockets in the rear of the car. Perfect ventilation is assured. Stale air is withdrawn. No steam on windows. Driving is safe!



Window closes entirely in the usual way. Extended section of glass fits into a "pocket" in upper framework of door. (Patents applied for by W. D. Crowell)

See this interesting new feature of the smart, new Gardner Eight-in-line now on display in our Showrooms. Also the new Magnetic Starter, which is attracting so much attention.

MOTORS — TRAFFIC — HIGHWAYS

HARD WORK FOR TOURIST AIMING AT NEW ORLEANS

Direct Highway Found to Be Undependable.

BY PUTNEY HAIGHT.

Although the subject of achieving New Orleans from Chicago by automobile has become threadbare in innumerable reports and discussions, the most recent exploration—less than a week ago—leads conclusively to the determination that the route is an "in and outer," is undependable in the state of Mississippi, and at best is not a happy journey to make.

New Orleans and the bayou country in southwest Louisiana is, in the opinion of many who have visited there by motor, one of the attractive winter spots of the entire nation. It is only 1,145 miles from Chicago in a direct line, and over 400 miles of it is on the concrete roads of Illinois.

Another 140 miles of concrete is found in Tennessee, on the direct route known as U. S. Highway 51, but the remaining 528, in Kentucky, Mississippi, and Louisiana, is not so good. When dry and well maintained nothing could be much sweeter for through travel, but when sufficiently moist it is most discouraging. Route 51 is no better.

No Other Routes.

Strangely, no other route around can be found. If the Old Spanish trail east of New Orleans to Tallahassee, Fla., could be depended on in wet weather it would be preferable for the average or normal tourist to put 300 or 400 extra miles on his speedometer and go from Chicago by way of Evansville, Ind.; Nashville, Chattanooga, and Tallahassee, even if required to go east as far as Atlanta, Macon, and Lake City, Fla., for those roads are serviceable in all weather and practically as good as in the state of Illinois.

Unfortunately the Old Spanish trail through Mobile from Pensacola is not dependable in wet weather. There is no route into the southwest that can be considered good driving in all weather, by which one could enter New Orleans, west of Highway 51.

There were several thousand Illinois, Michigan, Indiana and Ohio cars in New Orleans at Mardi Gras time and the rains in Mississippi started two days later. Those who delayed their return trips until the second day encountered some depressing conditions in the most gloomy and depressing part of Mississippi.

Creeks Overflow Roads.

As a result of sudden cloudbursts, which weather forecasters could not predict, three small creeks on the line of route 51 overflowed their banks and inundated the highway for distances ranging from a half mile to a mile and a half. Such inundations completely conceal the line of the roadway and traveling unpiloted or untowed through this water is dangerous. Where the water is more than two feet in depth a tow car built on wheels of old wagon size is necessary to insure safe passage. The charges for services range from $2 to $25, depending upon the time of day, appearance of the customer and other items bearing on the art of bargaining.

Overflows last week were encountered near Kentwood, Miss., where the water extended over a mile and was three feet or more deep; near McComb, Miss., where a half mile of submerged highway could only be negotiated by towing, and at Brookhaven and Magnolia. By making the passage during the rain it was possible to continue north, but cars arriving at Magnolia an hour later were held up for two days. The accommodations for tourists in practically none of the afflicted villages can be recommended.

Kentucky Also Bad.

The west slant of Kentucky, although only 48 miles across, from Fulton to Wickliffe, constitutes a difficult driving job in wet weather. Some of the line of highway is new and some has been graveled, but, generally considered, it is poor.

Kentucky is one of the 5 cent gas tax states and from officials come promises of excellent surfacing in the future. Until the work is done, however, it is idle to expect a comfortable journey along this route. The Kentucky officials also forecast easier going in future by routing on Illinois 1 to Metropolis and crossing the Ohio on a bridge which is under construction. This cannot be achieved for some time to come. From Paducah to Nashville is indicated as mostly paved and heralded as a preferred highway by its partisans.

8,184 MILES OF ROAD LAID WITH U. S. AID IN 1928

Improvement was made on a total of 8,184 miles of the federal aid system during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1928, according to the American Automobile association.

The national motoring body says that at the close of the year initial improvements were in progress on 9,494 miles and advanced or stage construction was under way on 1,285 miles. Advanced stages of improvement were completed on 2,014 miles in the fiscal year just ended.

The association states that the total cost of the 8,184 miles of initial construction and the 2,014 miles of stage construction completed was $205,043,784, of which the federal government paid $88,056,984, or 43 per cent, and the states the balance.

The largest disbursements during the year were made to Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, New York, Pennsylvania, and Texas. To each of these states the government paid during the year more than $3,000,000. All other states received less than that amount.

STOP BEFORE SHIFTING.

Gears, shafts, and bearings are put under a tremendous strain when an attempt is made to shift into reverse if the car is in forward motion. Always come to a full stop before the shift is made, and this should be done slowly.

VOICE OF THE TRAFFIC

FERRY AT FLORENCE, ILL.

Ottawa, Ill., Feb. 20.—On route 36, between Springfield, Quincy and points west, travel is made miserable due to the fact that crossing of the Mississippi river must be made by ferry at Florence, Ill. In winter you can't cross after dark, and in summer you often must wait hours for your turn to board the ferry. The charge is 75 cents every day.

The state has been building a bridge at this point. They have been working on it for three years, and at the rate they are progressing, it will not be completed until 1935. Several other bridges have been built across the Mississippi in a little more than a year's time. Why doesn't the Illinois state road department have this bridge completed?

DEFEAT THE TAX.

Chicago, Feb. 13.—I sincerely hope that Gov. Emmerson's 3 cent gas tax bill will be defeated. It seems that no sooner does an officer take up his duties than his thoughts just naturally turn to taxation. He wonders just what would be the best method of taxing the people.

If a one cent gas tax would be inflicted the matter would not seem so much like highway robbery, but when a 3 cent tax is even considered it is high time that we Chicagoans sit up and take notice.

Every motorist would be pleased to help his city in the paving of new and old roads, but they certainly would not feel it their duty to feed the pockets of individuals.

GLADYS G. CHIPRIR.

AGAINST THE TAX.

Chicago, Feb. 12.—I think it is the duty of every automobile owner in the city of Chicago and the state of Illinois to muster enough courage to oppose any gas tax regardless of its distribution. The car owners of Chicago are at present paying on an average of two dollars per month taxation to operate their cars on city streets and all they get in return is additional repair bills due to excess jostling around on the rotten streets in our great city.

The car owner living in Chicago does about 90 per cent of his driving on the bumpy roads in the city and still Gov. Emmerson is trying to impose on them an extra 3 cents a gallon tax on every gallon of gas they use, which means an additional expense of 15 to 20 dollars per year.

I enjoy good wide and smooth roads for driving, whenever it is my luck to find them and I believe every car owner should be taxed for such roads in his city and state, and I believe the car owner in Illinois is paying that tax today when he pays his state tax and his big $10 for vehicle tax in Chicago. Most of the smaller towns in Illinois do not even pay the vehicle tax we are obliged to pay and no doubt if the excessive grafting politician could be eliminated our streets would be in proper shape and our fund still show a profit.

It is only a few months ago that the voters of Chicago and Illinois were asked to cast their vote against our former governor, Len Small, on account of the unjust 2 cents a gallon gas tax in the state of Illinois, but there was nothing said about the 3 cents gas tax which Gov. Emmerson now proposes, and in that campaign no one ever mentioned such a proposal, and the car owner of Chicago never dreamed he would add another cent to Mr. Small's unjust tax.

J. V. KELLY.

FOR THE TAX.

Beardstown, Ill., Feb. 14.—We have read "Chicago Money for Downstate Roads" in THE TRIBUNE of Feb. 14 with considerable interest. We think you are entirely mistaken in your conclusion. If you will glance at the hard road map of the state of Illinois you will notice that "all roads lead to Chicago," the same as in ancient times "all roads led to Rome." While it may be true that Chicago people do not use the roads outside of Cook county as much as they do those inside Cook county, it is also true that the hard road system brings millions in business to Chicago which you would never get in any other way.

The fact of the matter is that Chicago, like all other large industrial centers, depends to a great degree on facility in transportation to its markets. For illustration: a car of coal from Herrin, Ill., to Chicago, Ill. The moment that car of coal crosses the Burlington bridge at Beardstown the Chicago rate applies, which is to say so far as the freight rate is concerned it costs as much to haul a car of coal from Beardstown to Frederick, a distance of five miles, as it does from Beardstown to Chicago, a distance of two hundred miles. That certainly does not help the upbuilding of industry in Frederick, but it does help Chicago. You accept this discrimination in your favor and say nothing at all except that you have a right to it because yours is a central market. What would your central market be if no one could get to it? What do hard roads do except bring business to Chicago? Do not lose sight of the fact that cities do not create wealth. They are distributors of wealth created by the territory tributary to them.

2,000,000 PUPILS TAUGHT SAFETY BY MOTOR BODY

There are a total of approximately 2,000,000 school children receiving safety education in correlation with their regular studies, according to the safety department of the American Automobile association.

The national motoring body says some 300,000 school safety lessons and 125,000 school posters have been prepared and distributed within the last four months. "Moreover, excellent cooperation has been given by school officials," it is stated.

The A. A. A. safety department states that the development of the school boy patrol is worthy of note.

"In 400 of the 1,065 cities and towns in which A. A. A. clubs are located, school boy patrols are now established. There are more than 5,000 patrol units with more than 150,000 boys serving in them. It is estimated that these youngsters afford protection to more than 5,000,000 school children.

"As a result of this educational work with the children, we now have substantial proof that the increase in child injuries is not as great as the increase in injuries to adults, thus reversing the situation some years back. This should encourage all communities to support the movement."

MOTOR TOURISTS GAVE CANADA MORE MONEY THAN MANY INDUSTRIES

Motorists touring through Canada last year gave the dominion a larger revenue than that obtained from the electric power, mining, trapping, or fishing industries, and wheat is the only one of the country's exports that exceeded in value the amounts spent by visiting motorists.

The total outlay expended by approximately 12,600,000 motor visitors in 1927 amounted to about $274,288,140, according to a report of the department of colonization and development of the Canadian Pacific railway, made public at Ottawa, Ontario.

STATE ARTERIES LEAD SIDE ROADS IN CAR TRAFFIC

Minnesota Count Shows Interesting Figures.

The state highway department of Minnesota has found by actual count that the volume of traffic on the main trunk roads of the state much more than equals the total traffic on all other improved roads.

Carried further, the counts indicate that the traffic on a few of the most heavily traveled arteries exceeds that of all the rest of the highways.

In Illinois the same condition exists, probably intensified, because of the immense mileage of improved roads which have been included in the state system but which do not have a part in through travel. Thousands of miles of concrete pavement connect small villages or run from a small and sparsely settled community to a main road.

Besides the paved secondary roads there are vast miles of slightly improved secondary roads of the feeder type, over which cars are operated to reach the main arteries. Analysis indicates that all the cars from feeder roads go on to the through arteries, and besides this volume, there is the entire through traffic of interstate travel.

This would show, without specific counts, that the main arteries of Illinois carry much in excess of the total of all other roads. The Minnesota count yields figures which show that the conclusion is correct, proving that the amount of money spent on the trunk highways is not as great as it appears when totals are published.

The money spent annually on the trunk routes is considerably less than the amount spent on the state aid, county and town roads, to say nothing of the money spent on municipal streets.

This is the way it is figured out: There are 650,000 cars registered in Minnesota and they travel an average of 5,000 miles a year. The latter figure is confirmed both by general experience and by an analysis of gasoline consumption.

This would make a total travel of 3,250,000,000 vehicle miles. To this should be added tourist traffic, but this is nearly compensated by the time the Minnesota cars are out of the state. This figure, therefore, may be considered a fair total of the travel on all roads and streets in the state.

By using the highway department's traffic census and multiplying the average number of cars going past each checker, by the number of miles in the trunk system, it is found that Minnesota cars rolled up a total of 5,523,000 vehicle miles every day and tourists from other states, another 1,435,000 miles, making 6,958,000 vehicle miles as the daily traffic burden on the trunk highways.

The census week, Aug. 6 to 12, did not include any "peak loads" such as Labor day, July Fourth or Decoration day. Traffic on such days is probably three or four times as great as the average per day in August. Allowance, however, must be made for reduced traffic in winter. With the general winter travel since the snow removal program was adopted, travel by Minnesota cars is estimated to be at least 75 per cent as great or the average the year around as it is in summer, although foreign cars, as a yearly average, are not much over 25 per cent as numerous as in the middle of summer. On this basis the Minnesota cars cover a total of a billion and a half miles and foreign cars 150,000,000 miles on the trunk highways in a year, or 1,650,000,000 vehicle miles as the total traffic on the trunk routes.

New Compound Needed to Grind New Exhaust Valves

Many, perhaps a majority, of cars employ silcrome exhaust valves today. Silcrome is tough. It resists heat and the pounding to which valves are exposed. Furthermore, it resists the ordinary compound that is used by the home mechanic in grinding valves. An attempt to use the compound that worked well on the old type valves will end in failure.

1 Silent timing chain—For quiet, smooth operation and long life, an adjustable silent timing chain drives the camshaft and auxiliary shaft of the new Superior Whippet. The highest-priced cars on the market use this feature.

2 Full force-feed lubrication—The heavy, rugged crankshaft of the new Superior Whippet is drilled for full force-feed lubrication. Oil is forced under pressure to main connecting rods and camshaft bearings. High-priced cars use this method of lubricating the crankshaft.

3 Aluminum alloy invar steel strut pistons—This design prevents piston distortion and assures faster pick-up, greater speed and power, smoother operation and longer life.

4 Big four-wheel brakes—Mechanical type brakes, positive and quick-acting, afford maximum driving safety. Whippet introduced this feature to the light car field.

5 Snubbers and oversize balloon tires—These features, together with increased wheelbase and longer springs both front and rear, give exceptional riding comfort.

6 Mono-control windshield—A worm and wheel operates the windshield control on the new Superior Whippet. The windshield can be quickly and easily wound open or shut with one hand, even while the car is running.

7 "Finger-Tip Control"—A single button, in the center of the steering wheel, starts the motor, operates the lights and sounds the horn. Aside from its great convenience, this fundamental improvement is also an important safety factor, as you can keep your foot always on the brake when starting or re-starting on a hill.

CHICAGO AIRPORT NATION'S BUSIEST REPORT REVEALS

More Space Needed for Increased Activities.

BY ROBERT WOOD.

With less than half the area of most metropolitan landing fields, Chicago's municipal airport handled a volume of traffic during 1928 that proves its right to the name "America's busiest airport."

Within the confines of 160 acres, the present developed area of the landing field, there have been more arrivals and departures than in any other city in the country, according to the annual report made public by W. W. Wright, superintendent of the bureau of small parks and beaches, under whose jurisdiction the airport is operated.

The report shows why a half dozen planes are frequently forced to fly about in the air waiting for the runways to clear for a landing. It comprises a forceful argument for more and larger airports to handle the city's rapidly increasing traffic in air transportation.

Hangar Space at Premium.

Expansion of air lines and new equipment to be put in service in the spring by operators of regularly scheduled lines centering here will present an even more serious problem, John A. Casey, superintendent of the airport, predicts. Hangar space now is at a premium. With the opening of spring and the beginning of more favorable flying weather, passenger lines expect traffic to double and have ordered new and improved equipment to meet the increase.

The steady increase in air mail poundage has caused mail operators to order more and speedier ships. The warm weather, too, will beckon the owners of private ships.

Ten Lines Center Here.

The 1928 report shows an average of 19,364 miles flown daily on schedule out of the municipal field by seven mail contractors and six passenger lines. The mileage was flown over the ten lines that center here.

With all the activity at the airport there were no fatalities and only 16 "crack ups" during the year.

Following is a tabulation of some of the major activities at the landing field for 1928:

Passengers carried	30,206
Total arrivals	18,669
Total departures	18,449
Total air mail	1,663,287 pounds
Total express	32,775 pounds
Different planes arriving and departing	9,486
Visitors	993,279

Although no definite record was kept of passengers flown, it was estimated that over 2,000 were carried over the scheduled lines, while the remainder were carried by the sightseeing planes.

The average number of airplanes on the field was placed at 78. These were housed in the airport's 13 hangars. The airport now comprises 380 acres, of which only 160 are developed.

NEW DEVICE TO WARN PILOTS OF ICE ON WINGS

An instrument to warn the pilot that ice is about to form on the wings of his plane has been developed, according to the American Air Transport association.

In construction, the device consists of a bulb attached to one of the struts. A tube leads from there to the instrument board where a hand moving over a dial graduated into degrees, records the outside temperatures and warns the pilot of temperatures low enough to congeal the moisture and destroy the efficacy of the lifting surfaces.

As speed is the essence of air transport, airplane operations are utilizing every new scientific development to reduce wind resistance, and the success which manufacturers have met with in stream lining, and other wind reduction features, presages the day when airplanes will travel even faster than today.

A new engine cowling for radio engines added 16 per cent to the speed of a passenger plane whose normal cruising speed was increased from 118 to 137 miles per hour.

RADIO BOSSES GIVE CHANNELS FOR PLANE USE

Sixty-four channels in the 1,500-6,000 kilocycle band have been reserved by the federal radio commission for the use of communication to and from aircraft, according to the American Air Transport association.

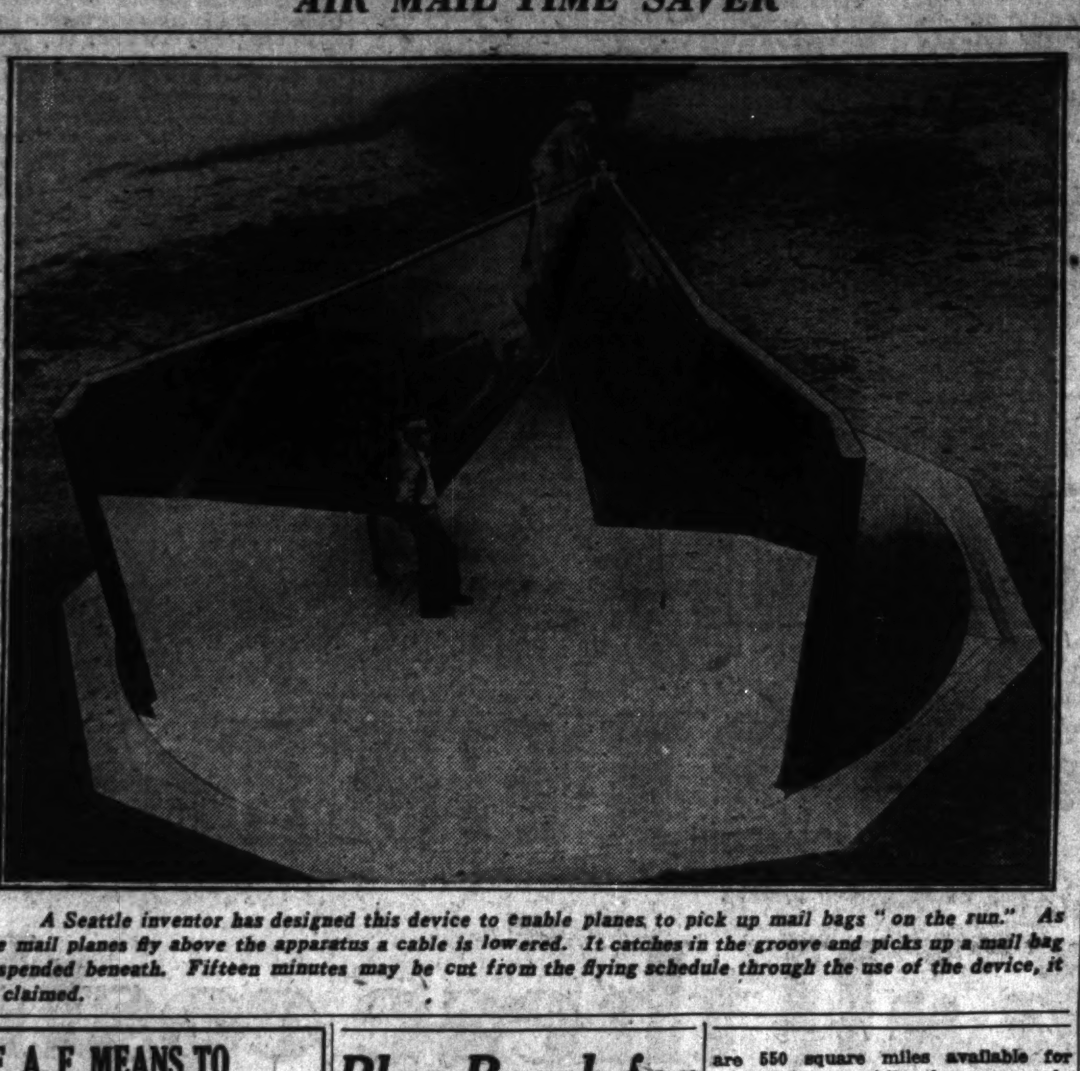
The airways division, at present, operates on frequencies in the 285,350 kilocycle band for government weather, broadcast service and radio direction and has also been assigned intermediate and low frequency channels for its point to point communications. There are 28 stations in operation and 10 additional stations are now under construction along the airways of about 200 miles apart.

The association points out the department of commerce recognizes the chaotic condition which would take place unless definite policies were established for the radio facilities of the aeronautical industry, whose members are now holding conferences to make recommendations on the manner in which radio facilities shall be established, maintained and operated.

Records Show Small Loss of Mail in Air Accidents

Safety of air transportation of mail and commodities is proved by figures just released showing that only .00081 of air mail was lost by fire and other causes during the last fiscal year, although 127,000,000 letters and 30,000 express packages were carried. Air mail and express planes flew 7,500,000 miles during the year.

AIR MAIL TIME SAVER



A Seattle inventor has designed this device to enable planes to pick up mail bags "on the run." As the mail planes fly above the apparatus a cable is lowered. It catches in the groove and picks up a mail bag suspended beneath. Fifteen minutes may be cut from the flying schedule through the use of the device, it is claimed.

F. A. F. MEANS TO FLYERS WHAT F. O. B. MEANS TO BUSINESS

"F. A. F." is the areomotive industry's counterpart of the automotive's "F. O. B." "F. O. B." stands for "freight on board." It is on that basis that most motor cars are sold. After an auto's price, it means that the listed figure includes loading of the machine onto a freight car by the manufacturer, that the buyer pays the freight from factory to consignment point.

Shipment of airplanes by rail is not as simple a matter, what with assembly, crating and the requisite careful handling, and it is therefore becoming a growing practice among aircraft manufacturers to sell their machines "F. A. F."—fly away factory.

"F. A. F." after an airplane's list price signifies that delivery will be made on the factory flying field, to be flown away by the buyer to wherever he desires. Many manufacturers will engage for the buyer a pilot to make this delivery flight, but in such circumstances delivery of the machine is legally consummated upon the takeoff from the factory airport.

CANADIANS TO HUNT GOLD IN U. S. AIRPLANES

Farmingdale, L. I., Feb. 23.—Two more Fairchild cabin monoplanes to be used this spring in the Canadian northwest by the dominion explorers in the first aerial gold exploration ever undertaken have left the company's plant here by freight for Winnipeg.

With the crated machines went four sets of pontoons and an assortment of spare parts. From Winnipeg, they will be consigned to Las Pas, Manitoba, where they are to be uncrated, assembled and flown to the expedition's main base at Tavane bay, on Hudson bay, there to augment the flying equipment with which the explorers are to begin operations as soon as the weather breaks in the northland.

Coincident with the planes' departure, Capt. Charles Sutton, former British ace and chief pilot of the expedition, announced that he would arrive here the latter part of the month to fly a third new Fairchild ship back to Las Pas. This will give the expedition seven airplanes.

In the next four years, the dominion explorers, who used four planes in preliminary work last summer, plan to cover 60,000 square miles of bleak territory from Hudson bay to the Alaskan line in their aerial search for gold and copper claims.

BOY WINS AIR PRIZE; SHIP IS UP 32 SECONDS

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 23.—Another endurance flight mark went by the board here when Smith McCann's miniature Fairchild cabin monoplane, a diminutive replica of Commander Byrd's already historic Stars and Stripes, stayed aloft for 32 seconds in the drill hall of the Hampton Roads Naval Training station.

McCann, who has learned lots about aircraft in his fourteen years, received a silver cup from the Model Airplane club of the Norfolk Y. M. C. A. for establishing the local record, as well as the congratulations of Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage, commandant of the Fifth naval district, who formally presented the trophy.

First Concrete Runway Dedicated at Ford Airport

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 23.—The first concrete airport runway in America was dedicated here last week at the Ford airport. The runway is half a mile long and 75 feet wide. It is the first of several to be built at the landing field which adjoins the Ford plane factory where tri-motored passenger liners are produced. William B. Stout, president of the Stout Air Lines who delivered the dedicatory speech, stated that the increasing weight of larger passenger carrying planes necessitates smooth, hard surfaces to facilitate speedy and safe takeoffs and landings.

Plan Beach for Amphibians in Lincoln Park

President Eugene R. Pike of the Lincoln park board has under consideration the establishment of a landing beach for amphibians and seaplanes along the lake front in the park area.

Centrally located landing facilities become more imperative with the rapid growth of air transportation in Chicago, according to Mr. Pike, who stated that much of the time saved by the speed of aircraft is now dissipated in traveling between business and residence centers to the airports.

Mr. Pike has directed his attention to the lake front at the foot of Ohio street, an area that is not now used by bathers or by boats for harbor purposes.

Is Logical Location.

"This location is the logical place for an aviation beach because of its proximity to the loop district and to transportation," Mr. Pike stated. "If the government is amenable to the idea of a landing beach at this point and is able to grant the park permission to lay out such a beach I shall present the matter to the commissioners."

Col. W. C. Weeks, district engineer for the war department, is examining government records to discover whether or not the establishment of a beach at Ohio street would affect navigation. Former permits issued by the war department, he said, may conflict with the development of a landing beach there.

Harbor No. 2, off Grant park, is looked upon as a possible landing place for seaplanes and amphibians, although it does not provide adequate facilities for use by the latter. Stanley H. Volt, an air line operator from Minneapolis, has requested permission to land ships carrying passengers and express in the harbor waters.

Amphibian Has Advantages.

The amphibian presents a number of advantages to air transportation. The chief function of aviation is to transport passengers and goods from city to city at a much greater speed than that afforded by train or atomobile.

Because of congestion and the high price of real estate, land planes must seek landing fields some distance from the residential and business sections of cities. Most large cities, however, are adjacent to bodies of water sufficiently large to provide landing facilities.

Because of its ability to take off from either land or water, the amphibian provides faster communication.

Nearly a square mile of level, unobstructed land is necessary to provide a safe landing field, while a landing beach 100 yards long would be ample space for amphibians. The amphibian skims on to the water, lets down its wheels, and runs up on the beach. There passengers or express may be discharged and the plane may return to the water, where it may either anchor to a buoy or fly away to a hangar. In the absence of congestion, the amphibian might park on the beach for a considerable length of time.

The advantages of the amphibian are seen in the relative areas available for land planes and sea planes. A government navigation map shows that in a 30 mile strip between New York and Washington, D. C., there are 550 square miles available for water planes, while there are only 7.35 square miles available for land planes.

BIG PLANE CARRIERS OF U. S. TO BE MADE WORLD FASTEST SHIPS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—The Lexington and the Saratoga, U. S. navy airplanes carriers, have been ordered into drydock for an overhauling which is said will make them the speediest and most formidable fighting ships afloat.

The speed of the floating airplane nests is to be increased by removing much of the heavy armor plate and replacing it with light but durable armor. The present speed of the vessels is 35 knots an hour as compared to the old 21 knot battleships.

The Saratoga can carry 100 airplanes on her decks and both ships are equipped with facilities for planes to take off and land at sea.

FOKKER F-10 IS BUILT TO CARRY 12 PASSENGERS

Are Tri-Motored Cabin Planes.

This is the first of a series of articles on the 1929 line of airplanes now being operated in the United States.

From a takeoff on the ground to a height of 1,400 feet in the air in one minute's time is an accomplishment claimed by its manufacturers for the new Fokker super-trimotor cabin plane.

This is the type of plane now in use over passenger lines from Chicago to St. Louis and Cleveland. Two of the ships are now in service over these lines, while eight more are due to be delivered here to handle the rush in passenger traffic expected with the first spring weather.

Powered with three Pratt & Whitney "wasp" engines generating more than 1,200 horsepower, these "flying Pullmans" attain a speed of 150 miles per hour and may be flown on any two of the three motors.

Carry Twelve Passengers.

The cabin carries twelve passengers and the cockpit accommodates two pilots. Interior furnishings include a refrigerator, baggage department, a completely equipped lavatory, ash trays, vanity cases, magazine racks, and comfortable lounge seats with head rests, as well as large instruments by which the passenger may ascertain the speed of the ship and its altitude. The cabin is heated and ventilated.

The interior is finished in mahogany and gray light pile fabric. Glass windows slide the full length on each side The passenger cabin is 16 feet long, 5 feet wide and 5 feet 9 inches hith. Two additional compartments for baggage and mail make the total space of 105 cubic feet.

Forward of the cabin is the cockpit, where two pilots operate the ship. There are dual control wheels, similar to those used in automobiles, an adjustable stabilizer, and brake controls, acting independently on each wheel through rudder control for steering.

Tubular Steel Construction.

The cockpit is accessible from the cabin and from the outside by two doors. It is equipped with a quick opening top, lighted instrument board, and safety belts. In case of emergency the control of the ship may be thrown from one wheel to the other, giving control to the relief pilot.

The structure of the F-10 is of tubular steel, while the wings are all wood, veneer covered. The landing gear is of the divided type and is fitted with roller bearing wheels with internal expanding brake and 44x10 tires.

Three Pratt & Whitney wasps, each of 400 horse power, drive the steel three bladed propellers. The nose cowls have adjustable shutters for cooling regulation, operated by the pilot.

Two aluminum gasoline tanks, with a total capacity of 370 gallons, are mounted behind the wing spars, and any or all the engines may be fed from either or both of the tanks. An aluminum oil tank is adjacent to each engine.

Storage Battery Lights.

Navigation, cabin, and instrument lights are served by a storage battery.

Fokker claims the following performance with a full load on two engines and there engines:

Three engines:
Speed at sea level, 145 miles per hour.
Cruising speed, 125 miles per hour.
Landing speed, 55 miles per hour.
Climb at sea level, 1,400 feet per minute
Service ceiling, 18 feet.
Two engines:
Speed at sea level, 118 miles per hour.
Cruising speed, 104 miles per hour.
Climb at sea level, 604 feet per minute.

The wing span of the F-10 is 79 feet 3 inches. Its overall length is 50 feet and its overall height 12 feet 8 inches. The wing area is 850 square feet.

PLANES USED TO SURVEY CANADA'S WILD TERRITORY

More than 58,000 square miles of otherwise difficult accessible territory were surveyed by aerial photography by the royal Canadian air force in 1928, it is shown in a report just made public by the dominion government.

Of this vast area, much of it primitive, barren and uninhabited, 21,4[illegible] square miles were vertically and [illegible] square miles were obliquely pictured by Fairchild cameras. Operations extended into eight of the nine provinces and were conducted for a variety of purposes including geological mapping, water power investigation, lumber and pulpwood surveys and the preparation of topographical charts.

A similar record was made last year by the Ontario government air force, organized in 1924 for the preservation and protection of the province's great forests. From May 1 to Oct. 31 its Fairchild machines made 3,9[illegible] flights of an aggregate 6,000 hours, covered 420,000 miles and carried 4,[illegible] pilots and passengers.

HORSEMAN HAS PLANE DONE IN STABLE COLORS

Cincinnati, O., Feb. 23.—One of those little problems which has taken all the joy out of life for up to date millionaires, the choice of a color scheme for their airplanes, has been solved for all time by Henry C. Yeiser Jr., president of the Yawman & Erbe company and Cincinnati's most noted racing and polo enthusiast.

Confronted by the selection of a distinctive combination of hues for the all dural, custom built "Flamingo" cabin monoplane, he recently ordered from the Metal Aircraft corporation, Yeiser decided to have the plane done in his stable colors, the ivory and green under which his horses have won renown.

STILL further extending Plymouth sales and service facilities in this territory, we are pleased to announce the addition of the above well-known dealer to the nation-wide Plymouth dealer organization.

Joining with the present efficient Plymouth representation in this city, this new Plymouth dealer will devote every effort to promoting the satisfaction of Plymouth owners.

Plymouth sales and service expansion here as elsewhere, is made necessary by the increasing public acceptance of the Chrysler-built Plymouth as a new and greater value in the field of lowest-priced cars.

Now, at new lower prices—with full adult-size and with quality and luxury of equipment unmatched—Plymouth presents even more vivid contrast with other cars in its price group.

No other car at anywhere near its price gives Plymouth's beauty and style, its marked economy, the safety of its Chrysler weatherproof hydraulic 4-wheel brakes, and its characteristic Chrysler power and smoothness.

We invite you to ride in or drive the new Plymouth to prove to your own satisfaction that Plymouth alone combines the completely rounded qualities of style, size, performance and value which buyers of lowest-priced cars have a right to expect.

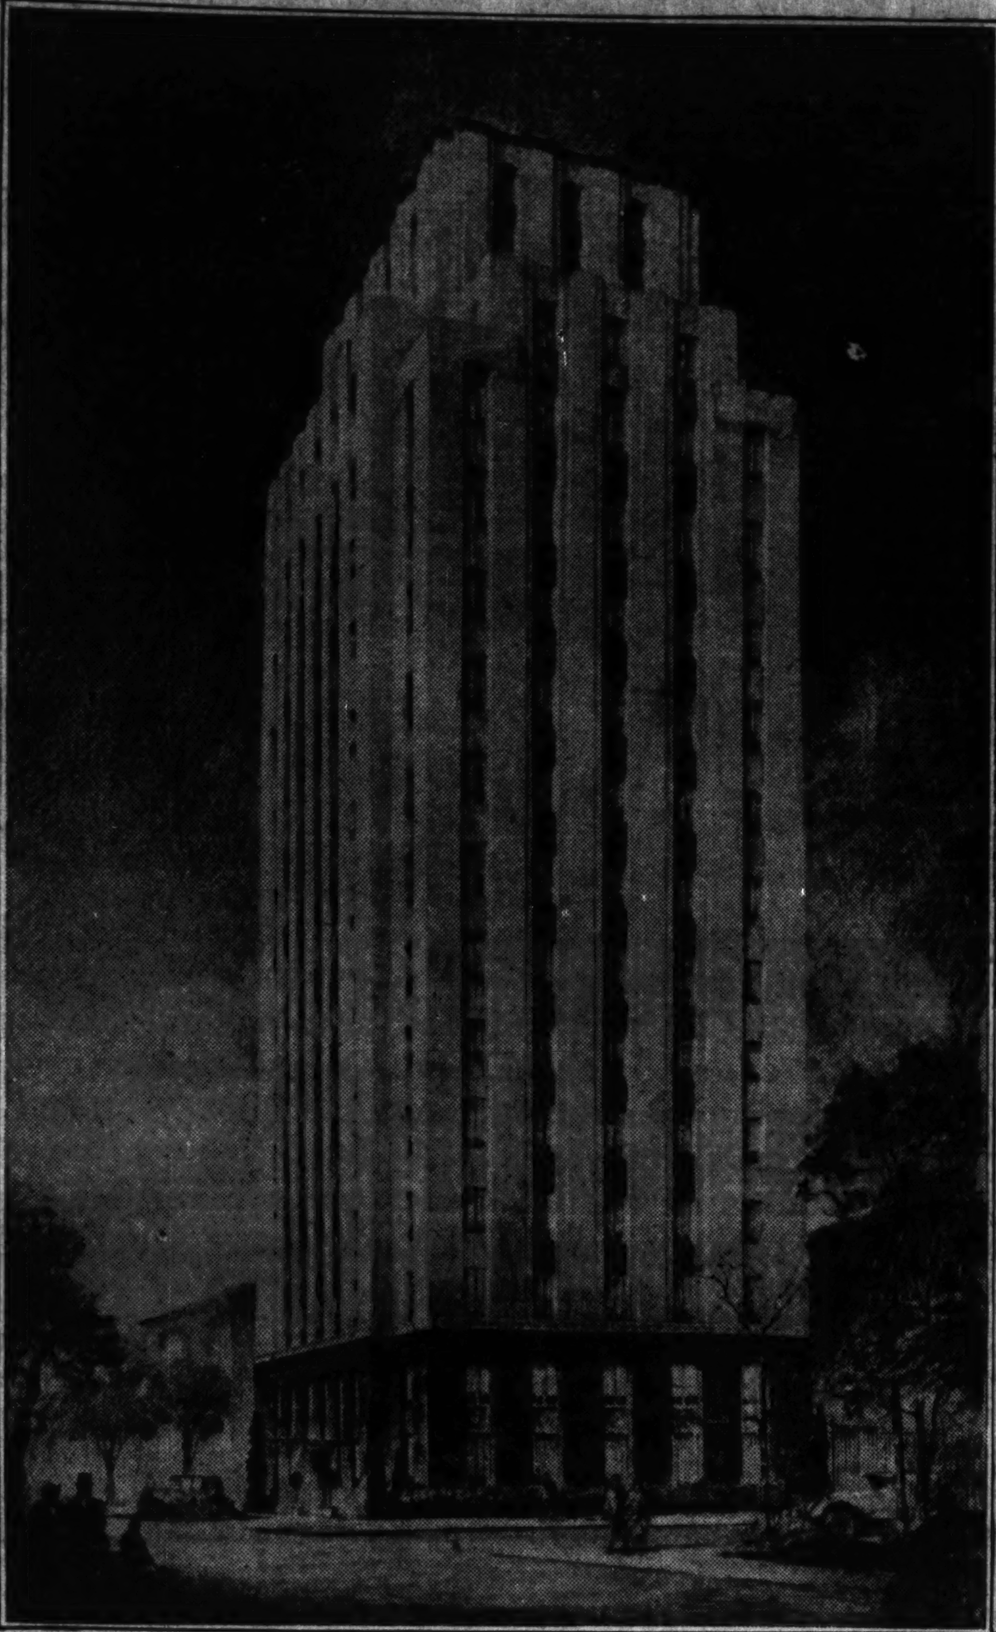
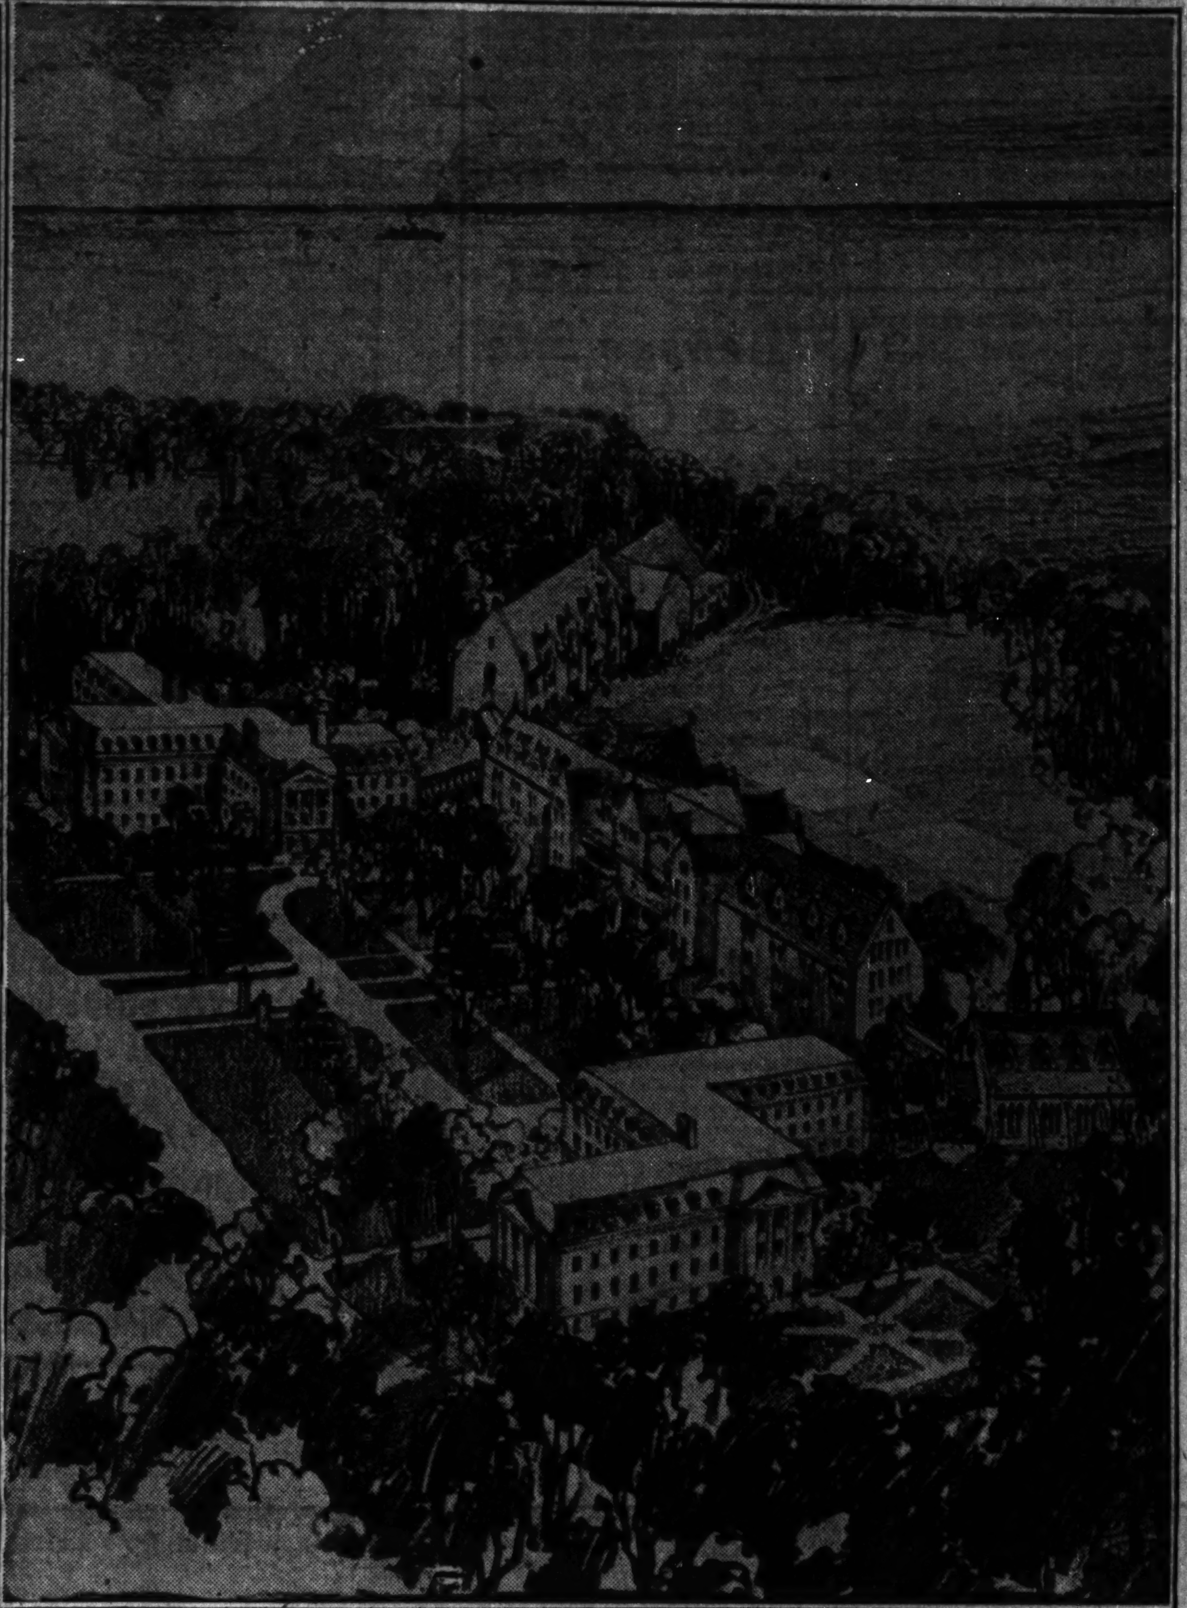
Merger of Two Real Estate Boards Now Up to Members

APARTMENTS AND AN EDUCATIONAL CENTER





On the left is a sixteen story coöperative apartment building which is to be erected at the northeast corner of Astor and Goethe streets. When completed it will house a number active in the city's social life, including the following: Robert M. Allerton, Howard Gillette, Tiffany Blake, J. M. Hopkins, Frank Hibbard, Potter Palmer, Mrs. C. Morse Ely, and J. H. Winterbotham. Philip B. Maher is architect. Hugh Ferriss of New York made this rendering.

To the right is a birdseye view—drawn by Charles Morgan—of how the campus of the Ferry Hall school for girls at Lake Forest will look when two new buildings are completed. The structures to be erected stand in front of the main edifice, which faces on Mayflower road. On the left, extending toward the lake, is the chapel. Edwin H. Clark, Inc., is architect. The new buildings will be of Georgian design.

NOTED GIRLS' SCHOOL TO PUT UP 2 BUILDINGS

Ferry Hall at Lake Forest Expands.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Ferry Hall at Lake Forest, a school for girls, is to be enlarged through the construction of two new buildings which will cost about $600,000, it was announced yesterday. The new structure will stand in front of the main building to the north and south — on Mayflower road.

ELOISE TREMAIN.

For the present the two new edifices will be known as North and South buildings awaiting more appropriate designations. They will replace two old frame structures which are to be torn down later.

These additions to the campus of Ferry Hall—situated on a high bluff overlooking Lake Michigan—will be of simple Georgian architecture as expressive of the general American spirit of the school. The firm of Edwin H. Clark, Inc., is architect. The Georgian design was selected because it permits of larger and more windows and because it would mean a material reduction in construction costs over the conventional Gothic style for educational establishments.

Accommodate 90 Students.

The two new buildings will be able to accommodate ninety students in single rooms and thirty faculty members, with suites of two rooms for each. In addition there will be a new suite for the principal, an infirmary of seven rooms and sun porch and quarters for forty maids. All floors will have small kitchenettes for the use of students, sewing rooms, and small laundries where the girls may try their hands at washing some of their own clothes.

Suites for the faculty members will be scattered about the buildings to provide the proper supervision, thereby making it difficult for the young ladies to engage in forbidden midnight pillow battles.

The North building, besides living quarters, will have a large living room and a dining hall that will seat 240. These rooms are being arranged to permit of dances and other social functions. The South Building, too, will have a large living room.

Founded in 1869.

Ferry Hall was founded in 1869 by the Rev. William Montague Ferry, a Presbyterian minister of Grand Haven, Mich., who gave $15,000 for the establishment of "The Ferry Institute for Young Ladies." Although founded by a Presbyterian minister, the school now is nonsectarian.

Miss Eloise Ruthven Tremain is the present principal of the school, this being her eleventh year in that position. The school provides a regular high school course and in addition a two year junior college course.

There are about 150 young ladies attending the establishment, of whom 130 are boarders and 20 reside in north shore suburbs. The student body is drawn from some twenty states. There are about twenty-five resident teachers. Graduates of the school go mainly to the eastern colleges.

Twelve Acre Campus.

The school was incorporated in 1925 with the name Ferry Hall, when it was given a not for profit charter.

Ferry Hall occupies a twelve acre campus, bounded on the north by a deep ravine, on the west by Mayflower road, and on the south by the estate of Charles H. Schweppe. On its eastern side it touches a small city park which overlooks the lake.

Elgin Simonds Company Rents North Side Corner

The Elgin Simonds company has leased the four story building at the southeast corner of Erie and St. Clair, having a floor area of 20,000 square feet, for ten years at a reported term rental of $150,000. The lessee has an option to buy within two years for $275,000 or within five years at $300,000. The building will be remodeled and used for display and sales headquarters. The Philbin estate is lessor. Edna R. Hanchett of Edwin J. Bowes Jr. & Co. was broker.

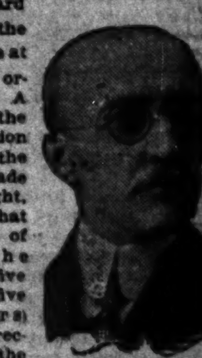
WILL VOTE ON COMBINE FOUR DAYS IN APRIL

Membership to Be Open to Women.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Amalgamation of the Chicago Real Estate board with the Cook County Real Estate board is now up to the members of the at present rival organizations. A joint report of the amalgamation committee of the two boards, made public last night, discloses that after months of deliberation the ten members (five realtors and five real estators) unanimously recommend that the long talked of merger be carried out. Members of the two bodies will vote on the project the first four days of April. Real estators will cast their ballots on April 1, 2, and 3. On April 4 the realtors will vote.



A. W. STANMEYER.

The most startling change to be brought about in case the members of the two boards approve the merger will be the following new bylaw: "Women shall be admitted to membership upon the same terms and with all the rights and privileges of male members."

For years realtors have battled over these twenty words with always the same result—the fair sex continued to be barred from membership in the Chicago Real Estate board.

"Cook County" Name Dropped.

The name Cook County Real Estate board will be dropped and the new combination will be known as the Chicago Real Estate board. Albert W. Swayne, head of the present Chicago Real Estate board, will be president of the merged bodies. Earl George Gubbins, head of the Cook County Real Estate board, will be first vice president of the new organization.

A modern office building and real estate board, with possible club and "own your home exposition" facilities, is suggested by the amalgamation committee for the merged boards.

The report also quiets the fears of Cook County Real Estate board members who predicted that if a merger were affected the Torrens system would receive no further indorsement by the merged organization.

"The affirmative majority vote upon this proposed plan of amalgamation by the active members of both organizations shall constitute an indorsement of the Torrens system of land title registration and its orderly development and use thereafter shall be encouraged in every manner possible," the report states. "With that object in view, the Torrens committee of the Cook County Real Estate board, as now organized, or as it may be reorganized from time to time by the committee itself, shall for a period of three years be the accepted and recognized Torrens committee of the merged organization."

To Continue "Property Institute."

The Real Property institute of the present Cook County Real Estate board shall continue to operate, without interruption, according to the present institute committee plans, provided, however, that after June 1, 1929, it shall be under the control of the board of directors of the merged organization.

The charter of the Real Estate Market of Chicago will become the property of the merged body. The present trustees of the market, however, will operate it during 1929.

In the introduction of the report the committee states: "In connection with this proposal we bring to your attention the following facts: The existence of two real estate boards in Chicago is, we believe, without parallel in any city of importance in the nation. That material benefits will accrue to the membership of both organizations by merging their respective interests and activities is a foregone conclusion. The present situation in Chicago is comparable to a 'house divided against itself' or two churches of the same faith on opposite corners. It becomes an absurdity which is self-evident.

Says Aims Are Similar.

"The aims and objects of both organizations are largely identical, while the money loss in overhead operating costs and maintenance of the two organizations can safely be estimated at from $30,000 to $40,000 annually."

The joint report also discusses taxation and other matters. It says: "The urgent need for amendments to our present state license law, especially with respect to educational, experience and character provisions, and for reform of our present revenue and taxation laws, must be apparent to everyone; and again, in local taxation matters a united real estate board would doubtless be of great service in correcting existing inequalities and establishing modern and adequate methods of taxation."

The two board committees which comprise the amalgamation committee are made up of the following: For the Cook County Real Estate board, A. W. Stanmeyer, chairman; A. L. Biemenschneider, O. F. Lohsand, C. T. A. Anderson, and S. T. Stone. Edward S. Judd is chairman of the Chicago Real Estate board committee. Adolph F. Kramer, Hyde W. Perce, James W. Belanger, and James J. Carroll are members.

Add 5 Stores to Washington Shirt Chain

Five new stores, it was announced yesterday by Paul H. Metzger, president of the Washington Shirt company, are to be added to that concern's chain of establishments in the Chicago area. This will give the company, founded in 1891, a total of thirty-three men's stores throughout the middle west. There are now four branches in Minneapolis, two in St. Paul, three in Kansas City, and one in Cleveland.

FRED L. ROSSBACK.

One of the proposed five new branches will be established in Oak Park in the new Oak Leaves building at 1138 Lake street, just east of the proposed Marshall Field store building at the northeast corner of Lake and Harlem. This branch will open about Sept. 1.

The other four new branches will be in Chicago. A store at the northwest corner of Milwaukee and Cuyler avenues has been leased in a new building to be erected there by Michael Flicht of Michael Flicht & Co., and will open for business next September.

The remaining three are to open at once. They are at the northeast corner of Clark and Berwyn, the southwest corner of Lincoln and Greenview and the southwest corner of Wilson and Clifton avenues.

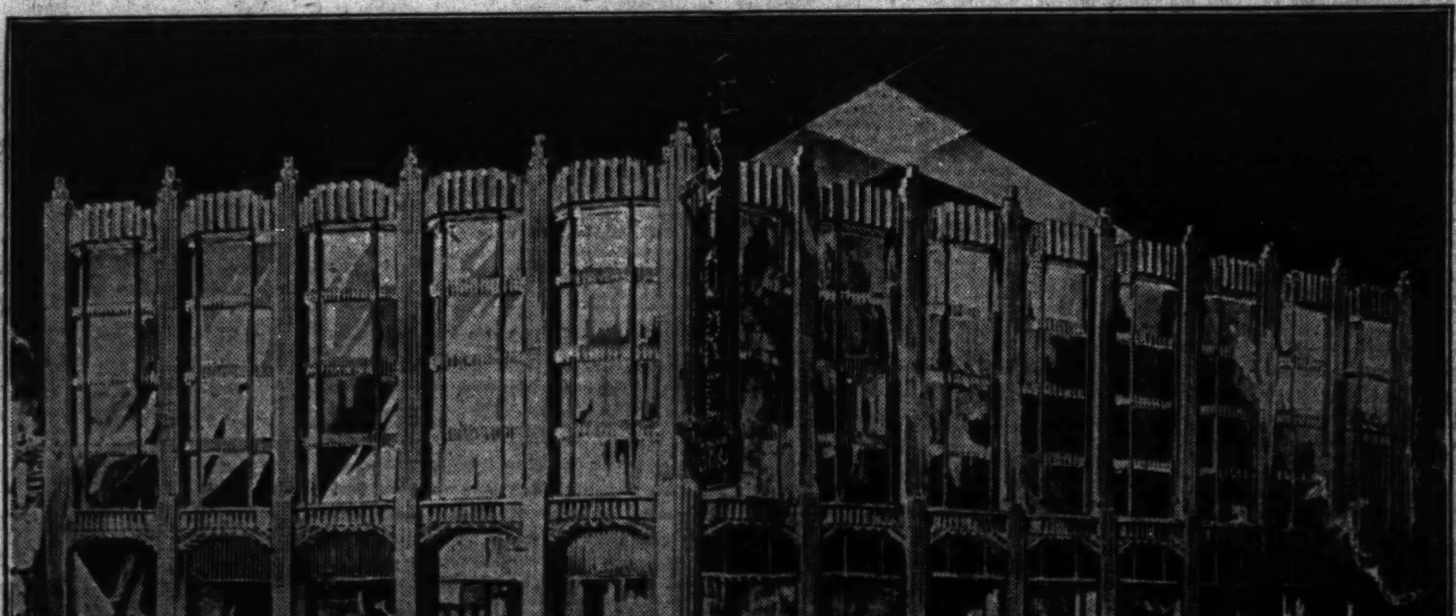
The brokers in the latter three deals were Gus C. Manos, William A. Kessler of the Charles Baumann company, and W. W. Haller of V. J. Curto & Co. John Cummings Lindop of the Cummings & Foreman Real Estate corporation negotiated the Oak Park lease.

When the foregoing branches are open the Washington Shirt company will have twenty-three stores in the metropolitan Chicago district, according to Fred L. Rossback, chairman of the board of directors.

Elise Runyan Rents Shop in Building at Evanston

Elise A. Runyan, Inc., ladies' apparel, with a store at 1365 East 53d street, has leased a shop in the new Chaumont building on Chicago avenue, near Fountain square, Evanston. McGuire & Orr were brokers.

NEW EMPORIUM FOR WEST SIDE



Carl A. Mueller, president of the Laramie State bank, is to erect the above six story department store building at the southeast corner of Chicago and Laramie. Designed by Frederick Stanton, the architecture is modernistic. It is stated the investment in land and building will approximate $1,250,000. Charles L. Morgan drew this picture. Story on page four.

WOOLWORTH CO. RENTS FLOOR IN NEW BUILDING

The F. W. Woolworth company has leased the entire fourteenth floor of the new McGraw-Hill building, now under construction at Michigan and Grand, for fifteen years at a term rental of $237,000, and on May 1 will move its local executive offices from 601 North Michigan avenue. Robert B. Witwer of Hall & Ellis negotiated the lease.

Grand Trunk Rents Corner in New Willoughby Tower

The Grand Trunk railway system has leased the ground floor corner store in the new Willoughby tower, Michigan and Madison, and will have what is claimed will be one of the most elaborate ticket offices in the country. Willoughby & Co. negotiated the lease.

JAMES J. HOOPER BUYS INTEREST IN MOZART HOTEL

James J. Hooper has purchased the interest of Rosenthal, Mayer & Lewis, Inc., in the Mozart Building corporation, which owns the Mozart apartment hotel at 102-06 East Chestnut street. The consideration was not disclosed. The Mozart was completed in 1927. It is fourteen stories high and contains about 135 apartments. It is said to be ninety-eight per cent occupied.

May Build Large Hotel on Michigan Ave. for Colored

Leo Wallach and Nathan F. Wallach, of Wallach Bros., have taken the vacant block of west frontage on Michigan avenue between 37th street and 37th place in exchange for the three story building at the northeast corner of Lawrence and Harding, and may erect an apartment or large hotel for colored tenants.

MAY BUILD 22 STORY HOTEL ON SOUTH MICHIGAN

Wallach Brothers have bought 88x171 feet at 1337 South Michigan avenue from William McIlvaine and John P. Wilson Jr. and are having tentative plans made in their own office for a twenty-two story kitchenette apartment hotel. They expect to start not later than June with the expectation of having it completed for May 1, 1930, renting.

Lawyer Buys G. Arthur Buhl Residence on North Shore

Dwight S. Bobb, a member of the law firm of Good, Childs, Bobb & Westcott, has purchased the residence of G. Arthur Buhl, president of the Buhl Realty corporation, subdividers of Vernon Estates, near Glen Ellyn. The house is at 253 Linden Park place, Highland Park, with grounds fronting 241 feet and with a depth of 220 feet back to a ravine. McGuire & Orr were brokers.

MOTOR FIRM TO HAVE SALON IN 333 BUILDING

Duesenberg Motors, Inc., of Indianapolis have leased the first floor store at the north end of the 333 North Michigan avenue building for five years beginning Feb. 15. The automobile salon will occupy 23,000 square feet of space and the term rental will be approximately $200,000. The room will be decorated in modernistic design from plans by Holabird & Root, architects of the building, and will be opened on March 1. William O Trainer negotiated the lease.

All but 38 of 250 Flats at La Salle and Elm Rented

John T. Wheeler, builder of the tall apartment building at La Salle and Elm streets for people in moderate circumstances, reports that of the 250 flats in his property only thirty-eight remain to be rented. This structure contains one and two room units, with rents ranging from $37.50 to $65.

State Board Hits 'Free Lot' Realty Firm

"Free lot" realty dealers (those kind hearted philanthropists who tell you you've won a lot—meaning a lot of trouble and expense if you accept the "gift") came to grief with the state of Illinois yesterday. At the same time Ray Quinn, a well known realty dealer, and J. E. Wellmuth and Edward J. Wellmuth, doing business as the Realty Service company, had their licenses revoked by A. M. Shelton, director of registration and education of the state.

The Greater American Realty company was the "free lot" firm which faced charges before the state license committee. Charles G. Reskin of that firm was denied an application for a broker's license and Sol Charles Spiegel and Samuel D. Yaffee of the same firm will lose their license if the recommendation of the committee is followed.

The charges made before the state board showed the usual procedure followed by "free lotters." The complainant received a card stating that he had won a $500 lot and to gain title he must pay $5 down and $70 within a short time for various legal expenses. The defendants have filed a petition for a writ of certiorari and if granted will get a rehearing before the state board.

The accusation against Ray Quinn was by Frank L. Sladek of 1723 South Racine avenue. According to Miss Rose M. Clyne of the department of registration and education Mr. Sladek claims Mr. Quinn failed to turn over to the Union Bank of Chicago payments on property which he made. He also failed, according to Sladek, to procure the issuance of a deed. A. M. Shelton signed the final order revoking Mr. Quinn's license. Joseph K. Brittain, Harry Topping, and Walter J. Ruediger heard the foregoing cases.

The much talked of Krenn & Dato coöperative apartment case was dismissed by the board.

Joseph and Oscar Eiger Buy Parcel on East Erie

Joseph and Oscar Eiger have purchased from Edward V. Schulte 75x80 feet at 231-37 East Erie street at a price reported as approximating $100,000. It is stated the purchasers are holding the land for resale, but will improve if a satisfactory tenant is found. Edwin J. Bowes Jr. & Co. acted for the buyers, and J. J. McCarthy of the Bills Realty, Inc., represented the seller.

MIAMI REPORTS COMEBACK FOR REALTY MARKET

Prices Strong Without Boom Inflation.

In view of the general interest in Florida real estate we are printing herewith a dispatch telling of present conditions in the Miami district—a storm center of the big boom of 1925 and 1926. Following the boom, prices crashed. This dispatch indicates that the market at Miami is returning to a strong position, without the inflation of a boom.

Miami, Fla., Feb. 23.—Marked activity in real estate in Greater Miami, for the first time since boom years of 1925 and 1926, is reported by the Dade county real estate board of the city of Miami in a comprehensive survey of the realty market, just issued.

The board warns the public not to construe the revival of real estate activity as an opportunity to engage in highly speculative investments. It calls attention to the fact that boom inflation methods will no longer be tolerated in Miami, and that rigid laws govern the qualifications of real estate operators and the sale of real estate.

Numerous large transactions are embraced in almost two thousand property transfers in the first six weeks of 1929, including hotels, apartment houses, business properties, residences, farms, and residence sites. The report is the first official declaration on real estate conditions to have been issued by a public body since the boom era when news of outstanding real estate deals occupied front page space in the local newspapers.

It is hailed as marking a return toward normal of the realty market, which collapsed after the boom.

Realty Board's Report.

In its formal report the realty board says:

"After a careful investigation of the recent realty revival in Greater Miami the Dade county real estate board has decided that in justice to the interests of northern taxpayers who have invested large sums in this city, the nonspeculative character of the activity now prevailing should be made known through an official source, which is absolved of any personal interest in the outcome of its findings. The board also realizes that many present purchasers of property are reluctant to give any publicity thereto because of the unfavorable notoriety largely attaching to real estate speculations during 1925, and that northern investors who have not visited Miami recently have little opportunity of obtaining a conservative statement through an official source.

"An undoubted aid to the revival of realty transactions has been effected through the marked reduction of the tax rate in the budget for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1928.

"The city manager's report reveals that the 1929 budget shows a 23 per cent tax reduction over the preceding year and a 42 per cent tax reduction over that of two years ago.

Market on Sound Basis.

"The survey made at the instance of this board has demonstrated to its satisfaction that in no cases investigated were high pressure sales methods employed, but the purchases are made by serious investors for homes or business purposes. The realty market has returned in Greater Miami to a sound basis, and there now seems every reason to believe that values will enhance materially during the next few years."

ERECT 4 STORY SCALE PLANT AT 21ST-FAIRFIELD

Construction is under way on a four story factory building at the northeast corner of Twenty-first street and Fairfield avenue for the Triner Scale and Manufacturing company. This firm manufactures the scales before which many of we Americans stand in line and do some heavyweight cussing, particularly at the Christmas season, for they are the scales used by the parcel post department to weigh parcels.

Designed by Dyer & Nadherny, the Triner plant will follow the modern trend of factory construction, in which beauty and utility are united. The lower part of the structure will be of modernistic treatment, with a setback at the upper floors.

A feature of the improvement will be a bungalow on the roof, part of which will be used as a lounge and the remainder as a research laboratory and a designing department. Joseph Triner, president of the company, is inventor of the products manufactured by the concern, and he will continue his delvings in the scale realm in the bungalow laboratory.

The building is to front 125 feet on Twenty-first street and 145 feet on Fairfield. It will cover the entire lot up to the first floor, and above will be L-shaped. There will be handsome general offices along the Twenty-first street side. In addition, the first floor will contain a room in which will be made and maintained special tools used in the production of the scales, a shipping room, and a stamping room.

Upper floors will contain departments of a technical nature.

Mr. Triner is originator of the double pendulum parcel post scale, and his concern also makes air mail, commercial, and household scales.

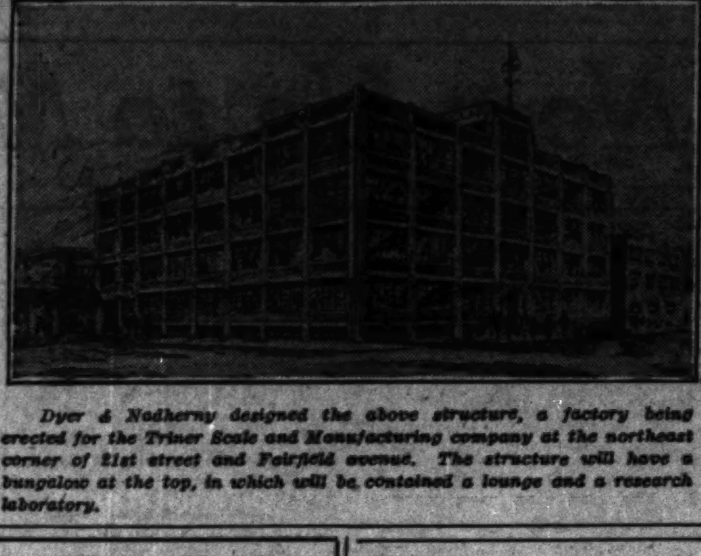
WEST SIDE FACTORY BUILDING



Dyer & Nadherny designed the above structure, a factory being erected for the Triner Scale and Manufacturing company at the northeast corner of 21st street and Fairfield avenue. The structure will have a bungalow at the top, in which will be contained a lounge and a research laboratory.

ON STATE ST.

The Richman Brothers company, clothing manufacturers and retailers, with factories and general offices in Cleveland, will occupy the above six story building now under construction at 114-16 South State street, from plans by Mundie & Jensen. Details of the lease were given in this section on Sept. 16, 1928. The Richman concern has thirty-four stores in thirty-three cities throughout the country. It was established in 1879.

Battery Firm Leases Site at Clearing

The Vesta Battery company, through its president, Ward S. Perry, has closed a seventeen year lease with the Clearing Industrial district on 107,000 square feet of land at the southwest corner of Narragansett avenue and 65th street. The lease contains an option to purchase this land together with an option to lease or purchase an additional 80,000 square feet in case of expansion.

By the terms of the lease the Clearing district is to erect a one story manufacturing plant to contain 102,000 square feet. Foltz & Co. are architects for the new plant, which is to be ready for occupancy during May of this year. A switch track from the Belt Railway company serves the property.

The Vesta company, which manufactures storage batteries, was established in 1897 and has grown with the automobile industry it mainly serves. Its first quarters were in an office building in Dearborn street, between Randolph and Lake streets. Shortly after it moved to larger quarters at 266 South State street and in January, 1904 trekked down 1336 South Michigan.

Then in January, 1913, the firm took a four story building at the southwest corner of 21st street and Indiana avenue, where it has remained to the present. Its new home will contain approximately double the space of the present quarters.

Products of the firm are sold all over the country and throughout the world.

Mr. Perry acted for his firm in negotiating the lease and H. P. Phelps of the Clearing district represented the lessor. Hodge, Nicolson & Porter were brokers.

To Feb. 24, 1919; 10 Years Ago Today

A deal which gave a profit of $20,000 after a brief period of ownership is reported from the loop. The transaction covers the property at 218-30 West Monroe street. It is under lease from Edwin H. R. Green to the United Garage company for ninety-nine years from 1915, and the fee was first sold by Mr. Green to William B. Frankenstein for a reported consideration of $105,000. It was sold shortly after by Mr. Frankenstein to A. J. Franks for a reported $125,000. The property passed into the hands of the late Hetty Green in 1876 as a result of foreclosure proceedings.

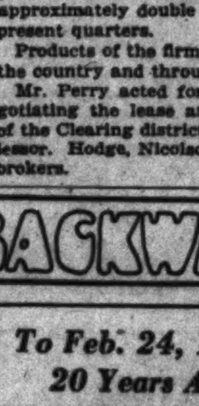
Clarence I. and Ferdinand W. Peck have leased to Meyer H. Eichengreen and Moses Uhlman, comprising the firm of M. M. Eichengreen & Co., commission merchants, now at 183 South Water street, the property at the southwest corner of La Salle and South Water, 80 x 100 feet, for 99 years from April 1 next. The lessees are to pay all taxes and erect a new building.



FERDINAND PECK.

The Chicago Motor Car company, selling agents for the Packard automobile, has leased from Erna S. Goodman the land at the northeast corner of Michigan and 24th street, 60x134 feet, for a term of 99 years at an annual rental of $1,800 for the first five years, $2,000 for the second five and $2,100 for the remainder of the term. In addition the lessees bought the building and leasehold interest at 128-30 24th street adjoining the Goodman lot on the east from Phoebe Roosevelt. The automobile company will erect a new building.

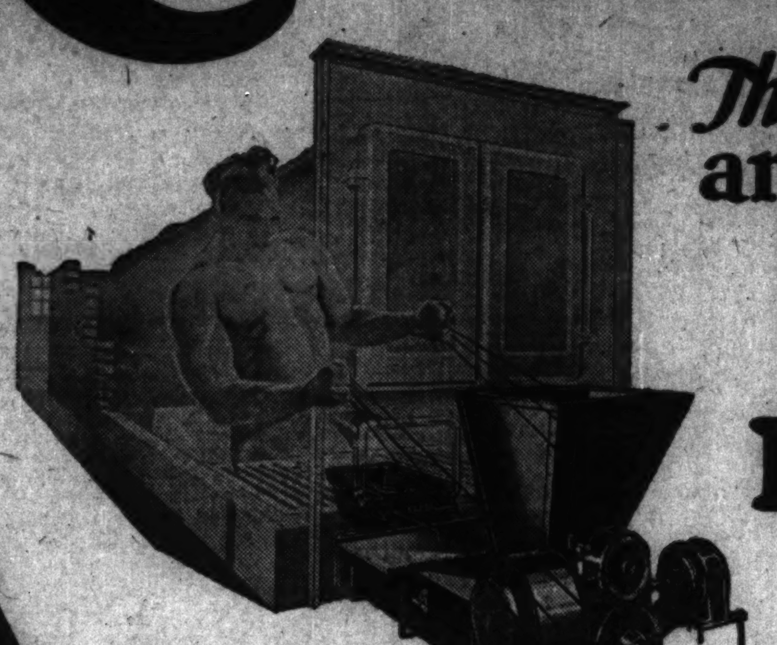
Combustioneer
AUTOMATIC COAL BURNER
FOR POWER AND FOR HEAT

The Automatic Coal Feeding and Coal Burning Machine

Cuts FUEL BILLS up to 50%



COMBUSTIONEER is the perfected coal feeding and coal burning device for any boiler or heating plant, operating on the scientific, efficient under-feed principle, eliminating smoke, and giving you the advantage of automatic combustion at one-half the operating cost of an oil burner. Yet, Combustioneer uses coal, the safe fuel, at savings up to 50 per cent on your present fuel bills. You can't afford to delay eliminating wasteful, inefficient and costly hand-firing in your boiler room. Combustioneer has proven an immediate money-saving investment in hundreds of installations. Here is what Henry J. Mueller, President of Mueller Bros. Laundry, says of his Combustioneer:

"The Combustioneer is not only saving us real money on our coal bill, as we are now burning screenings at $2.50 less a ton, but we are getting more efficient operation from our laundry, as our steam pressure is now automatically maintained. It does more than you claimed for it."

You can make savings equivalent to Mueller Bros. in your own boiler room. Combustioneer can be installed over-night—and the next day will start paying you increased dividends. Telephone us today.

A few territories still available for dealers. Write for particulars.

Pays for Itself
IN YOUR HOME

COMBUSTIONEER, the successful automatic coal burner, is not limited to power plants or large boilers. If you live in a bungalow, a two or three flat building, you can have safe, efficient, automatic heating, electrically operated and highly dependable—and cut your present fuel bills materially. You save on attendance, you save countless trips up and down stairs, you save decorating expenses, you save on your fuel bills. You get even, steady, constant, trouble-free heat, and you get an investment that pays dividends in comfort, and dividends in money, year after year. There is not a home in Chicago that can afford to be without its Combustioneer. Telephone the factory today—and next week your Combustioneer and your savings will start together.

Combustioneer in the smaller size is just as successful and saves just as much under hot water tank heaters, melting furnaces, upright steam boilers, vats, ovens and all industrial applications where steady, trouble-proof heat is desired. If desired, deferred payments can be arranged on Combustioneer installations.

Our booklet gives a complete description of Combustioneer operation, and its application to the heating plant in your home or apartment. Telephone today, or fill out and mail the attached coupon.

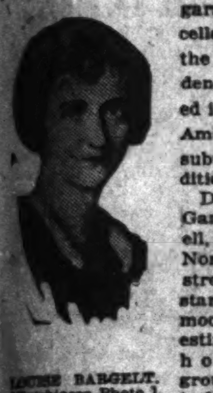
HOME BUILDING AND REMODELING

DANCING FLAMES AT HEARTH FLASH A WELCOME HERE

Describing Cheerful Home in Flossmoor Park.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.
[Home Builders Editor.]



LOUISE BARGELT.
[Hutchinson Photo.]

This six room home with two baths, breakfast room, sun bay and attached garage is an excellent example of the English residence type adapted in essentials to American city or suburban conditions.

Designed by Gannon & Mitchell, architects, 228 North La Salle street, the house stands in Flossmoor Park. The estimated cost, house and grounds included, is $26,000. With thoroughfares on opposite sides of this property, the home was designed for vistas in two directions. The dining room with its attractive sun bay overlooks Western avenue, while the living room commands a view of Gardner road.

A unique feature of this house is the large living porch with its fireplace of stone and stucco. The porch opens directly into the living room, and is floored with fine flash quarry tile. A flickering fire in this fireplace at evening time can be seen far down the road and no more hospitable welcome could be extended to the approaching guest than its faintly leaping flame.

An Inviting Doorway.

The construction of the dwelling is stucco on hollow tile. Thorough insulation has been included and the roof is of slate in variegated hues. A 180 foot lot runs from street to street.

Inviting is the doorway in the English manner which leads directly into the entry.

A large clothes closet has a sizable window. In the dining room there is an attractive bay. Observe the breakfast nook, entirely separate from the kitchen. The garage is attached with an entrance from it directly into the house. The absolute fireproof construction of this garage eliminates all dangers from any possible fire.

The living room and dining room floors are oak boards in random widths laid with walnut dowels and keys. The plaster work is textured and glazed, the trim being oak.

The kitchen is spacious, with steel casement windows on two sides. It is a kitchen de luxe, with its electric dishwasher, refrigeration, abundant lighting, and all excellently modern equipment.

Luxury of Costly House.

On the second floor one finds all the luxurious appointments and conveniences of a much more costly house. The master bedroom is unusually large, with windows on three sides. There are two wide closets and a tiled bath with shower and all modern and artistic fitments.

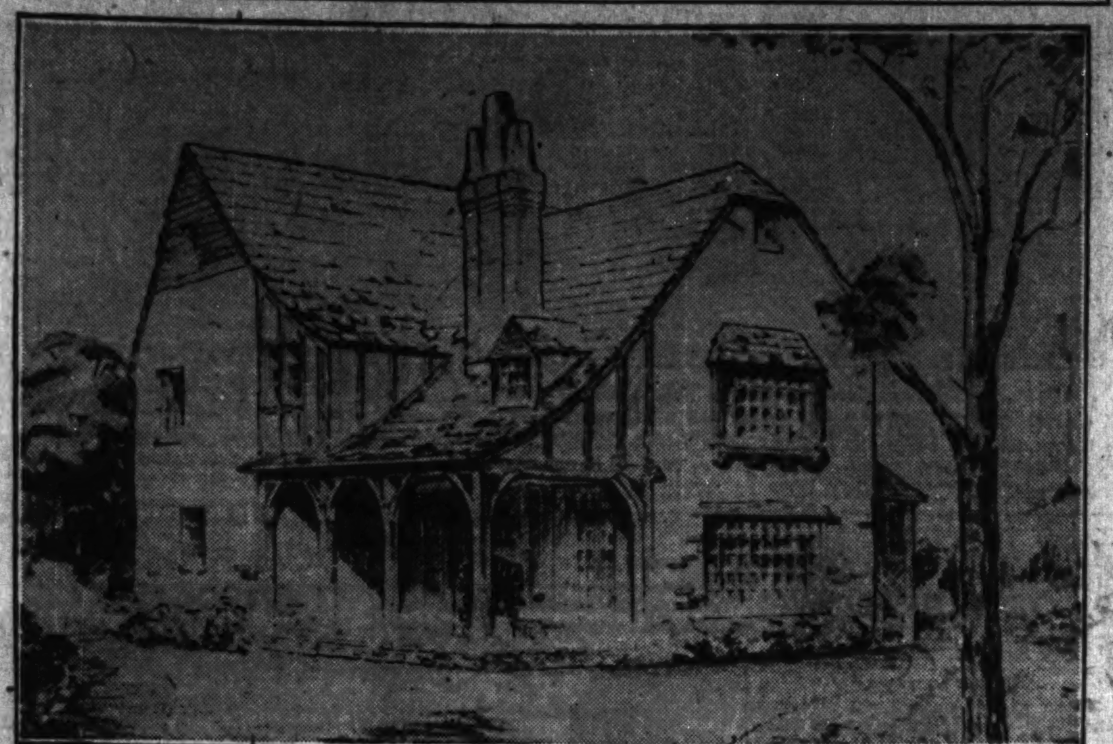
The two other bedrooms have a tile bath between, with door leading into the hall. One bath is in soft rose and the other in pastel shades of green.

The bedrooms and hall are tinted and glazed with enamel woodwork.

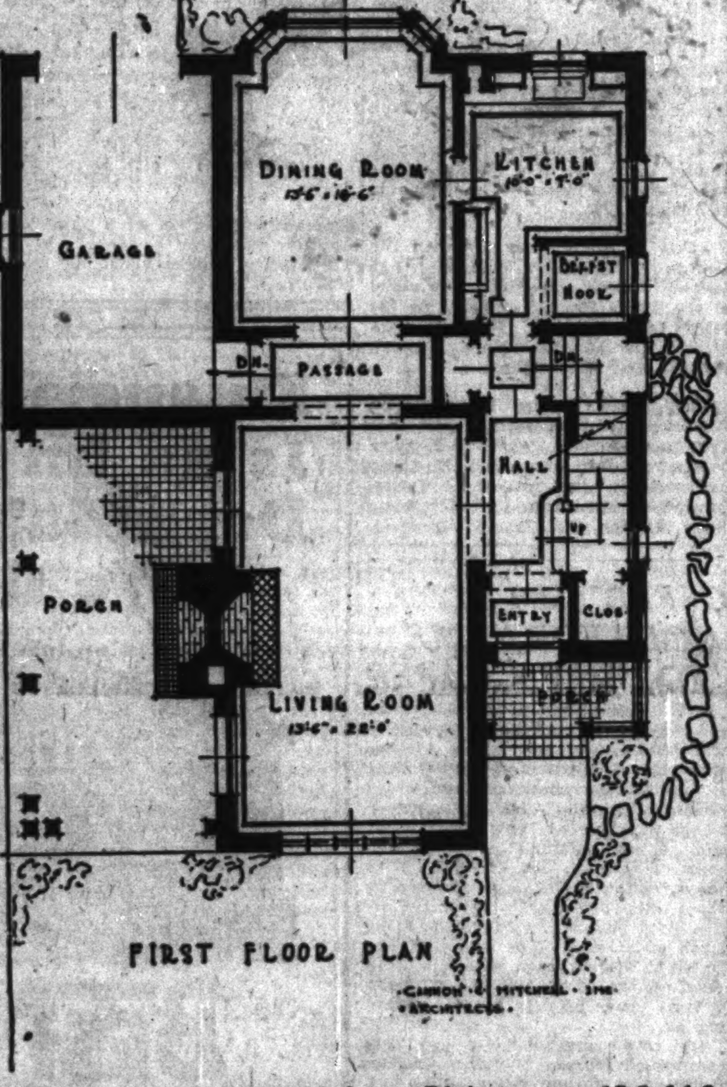
The basement has hot water boiler with water softener, built-in incinerator, laundry tubs and space included for a recreation area.

The heat is hot water. Thorough insulation prevails in the house. The stucco is a soft shade of color and of this house it may be truly said, "Beauty and service join hands, that the owners thereof should rejoice."

ENGLISH DESIGN, AMERICAN IDEAS



Stone, brick, timbers, stucco and slate all combine in the construction of this excellently designed home, which, suggesting the English type, is well suited to American conditions. An unusual feature of the house is the large fireplace of stone and stucco which has been placed on the living porch. The house stands in Flossmoor Park, and estimated cost of house and land is $26,000. Gannon & Mitchell, 228 North La Salle street, Chicago, are the architects.



Living room is 13.6x22 feet. Dining room, 13.6x14.6. Kitchen, 10x9.

PLAIN PAINTED FLOORS GAINING POPULAR FANCY

The plain painted floor is coming in for a degree of popularity all its own. For instance if one's floors, of hardwood or softwood, show signs of wear, paint can work wonders.

It may be almost any shade, this painted floor. If the furniture is painted, usually a deeper shade of the predominating furniture color, is chosen.

A harmonious treatment of the general room decoration is comparatively simple if one may paint the floor any desired shade. Furthermore, a painted floor is not difficult to keep clean.

If Strength, Permanence Are Wanted, Use Concrete

Concrete is strong because of the great cohesion among cement, stone and sand. This is a concrete age and wherever structural strength, permanence, water tightness and fire safety are needed, concrete may be depended upon as a pretty sure thing.

Shower and Clothes Closet in Basement Convenient

A shower and closet for work clothes in the basement have brought real peace to many a housewife for in this way she is saved from "working" members of the family, young and old, trailing through kitchen and hall and up to the bathroom in their outdoor garments.

Textured Wall Covering Washable and Durable

Recently a new textured wall covering has been introduced which comes in rolls like wall paper. This is not only an artistic wall covering but is washable, durable, and noncracking as well. It may be easily applied over plaster, wall board or other surfaces.

FINANCIERS NOW MAKE IT EASIER TO RENEW HOUSE

Nation's Interest in Home Modernizing Grows.

BY HOMER GRANT.

There is no doubt that the home modernizing movement will bring about in the near future a class of service from legitimate sources which will enable home owners desirous of remodeling to secure funds on time payments for the purpose.

At the present time savings banks, building and loan associations, life insurance companies, trust companies and mortgage companies are evincing a real interest in the financing of remodeling programs.

Not long ago there started a movement which has been nationally recognized as of extreme importance; the organization of the home modernizing bureau of the national building industries.

An organization this, not only to assist home ownership, but to encourage and make possible home betterment.

Future Called Bright.

At present financing of homes and home improvements is being carried on effectively. And all signs show that this effectiveness will be even more marked in the near future.

Some thirteen hundred building and associations are lending more than two billion dollars, and for those who wish to carry on remodeling and modernizing of their homes these associations will often increase the first mortgage on a house enough to cover the modernizing expenses.

National banks may lend up to 50% of their savings deposits on realty loans of five years or less. This means that with all the savings deposits now existing there is plenty of money for home construction and home modernizing.

Life Insurance companies are a big factor now for the furnishing of money for home ownership. So are trust companies and mortgage companies.

Many Need More Money.

However, there are many men who need money over and above what they can raise on a first mortgage in order to start any remodeling program. Frequently the charges made on money borrowed for this sort of thing has been high, not unfairly high, but necessarily high, in that the net profits were not big enough to warrant the effort.

For the encouragement of the home owner who wishes to remodel, it may be said that though the efforts of the home modernizing movement and various financial leaders throughout the country, there may arise in a reasonable length of time a type of service which will permit the home owner to borrow money on time at costs which will not be a hardship to him, or take away from the profits accruing from the modernizing.

GAS STOVE AND GAS ICE BOX ALL IN SINGLE UNIT

A combination of gas range and automatic gas refrigerator has made its appearance—a combination taking up no more than a gas range.

Naturally heavy insulation exists between the two units, preventing the passage of heat or cold.

The refrigerator, occupying space directly below the range, has five cubic feet of food storage and trays for 32 ice cubes or frozen deserts.

The range has a 14 inch oven and broiler with optional temperature control on oven, 4 cooking burners and pilot lighter.

The motivating heat for the refrigerator is a small gas flame and the desired cold is achieved by action and reaction of ammonia, water, and hydrogen in heavy steel chambers.

To Stop Putty Crumbling Give Sash a Coat of Oil

Ever have trouble with putty crumbling after it has been applied to the window sash? One way of preventing this is to paint the sash with a coat of oil before applying the putty to the window sash. This prevents the oil from being drawn from the putty into the wood before the putty has had time to set.

Puts $500 in Small House; Gets Income

Flat on First Floor.

Berwyn—Recently we purchased a house that has, besides a flat on the first floor, a plastered kitchen in the basement and two plastered bedrooms in the attic; this being possible due to a large roof. At present my husband and I are living in the kitchen and bedrooms. We have rented the flat, therby paying expenses.

This spring we hope to add onto the bedroom a kitchen, bathroom, and sitting room, putting in all conveniences. The plumbing has already been extended up. There are three windows at the front of the house and three at the back. By putting in gable windows at each side we shall have plenty of light and ventilation.

Insulation will keep out the heat in summer and make the house warm in winter. The stairs do not in any way interfere with the tenants, insuring privacy. Cupboards will be placed at each side of the sink in place of a pantry. We shall also run the heating up.

At an estimated cost of five or six hundred dollars we shall have a cozy little home, a monthly income, and a higher value to the house, which is placed in the class of an income producing bungalow.

Your Own Architect Will Tell You

VITROLITE
"BETTER THAN MARBLE" is the Best Material for Building or Remodeling Bathrooms and Kitchens

Re-created Rock
Made Like Steel
Lifetime Beauty
That Never Grows Old
First Cost—Only Cost

Learn Vitrolite's Superiorities First Hand — Visit the Permanent Display at 120 S. La Salle St., 11th Fl.

IN your own architect's words, "Vitrolite will gratify your desire for luxury and your instinct for economy."

Vitrolite is the modern day re-created rock-material for bathrooms and kitchens. It replaces tile, marble, porcelain and imitation tile wall board. It has never been known to wear out. It is guaranteed not to crack with age, scratch, check, absorb odors, stain, discolor, craze or deteriorate. Under exhaustive tests conducted by the Carnegie Institute and the Emerson Laboratory, Vitrolite proved its superiority over all other materials.

A lifetime from today, your kitchen and bathroom, if it is built of Vitrolite, will be as enduringly beautiful as the day of installation. It is the only material that will not absorb odors. Because Vitrolite has practically no expansion or contraction, it does not "settle" and crack with age, thus its smooth unbroken surface presents an exterior not only beautiful but easiest to clean and keep spotlessly clean. Health is safeguarded where Vitrolite is used.

This wonderful fire-polished material comes in a varied assortment of colors and surface textures. Individual designs are available or can be created to satisfy your desire for distinction and exclusiveness. The first cost is the only cost, for Vitrolite has no deterioration or depreciation. It more than pays for itself in the increased resale value of your home.

We will be glad to show you how a Vitrolite bathroom or kitchen can be installed with a small sum, balance conveniently arranged making it possible to pay out of income.

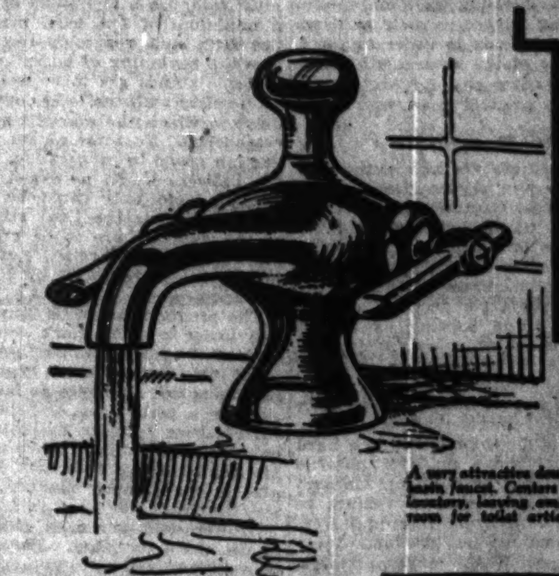
CHICAGO FAUCETS
in a beautiful new style—
PLAIN CHROME



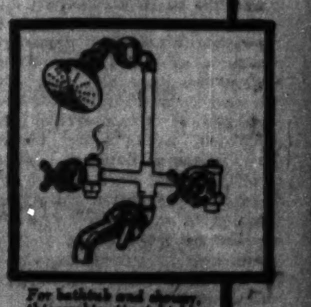
A very attractive double basin faucet. Centers on lavatory, leaving ample room for toilet articles

WHEN beauty is added to sound mechanical construction it makes an exceptional combination. That's just what we have done with Chicago Faucets—made them more attractive in a new round pattern called Plain Chrome.

Plain Chrome Chicago Faucets are smart—modern in spirit—graceful of line—with a sparkle and brilliance that will go far in adding distinction to any sink, lavatory, bathtub or shower. Besides the new design is a wonderful new Chromium finish—unusual because it delicately reflects the color scheme of the bathroom or kitchen. This results in a very charming harmonious effect—a lustre that lasts a lifetime. Plain Chrome Chicago Faucets are all metal—no worry about breakage.

When you build your new home or remodel your present bathroom or kitchen, ask your plumber to demonstrate either Plain Chrome or Art Chrome—a companion line made in a pleasing octagonal design.

This Classic Sink Faucet, complete with metal soap dish, hose and spray, is the housewife's friend. The smallest fixture in the kitchen but by far the most important



For bathtub and shower, this combination is highly recommended because of two new features—a shower face plate that comes off easily in a few seconds; a diverter valve on the spout that prevents unexpected showers

CHICAGO FAUCETS
Never Wear Out!

Sounds like a mighty strong statement—but it's true, as thousands of satisfied Chicagoans know from experience. The secret is the famous standardized removable unit. Chicago Faucets differ from the ordinary faucet in that the only wear that takes place is on a seat or washer—never on the body of the faucet. Therefore the faucet cannot wear out. Either the washer or seat can be replaced in a few minutes.

Illustrating the simple construction of a Chicago Faucet. Both the seat and washer are removable and replaceable. Repairing a Chicago Faucet is a matter of a few minutes' work—the cost but a few cents

Consult Your Architect
Ask Your Plumber

Scores of big buildings in Chicago—and other cities as well—are equipped with Chicago Faucets because reputable architects specified them. If you are in doubt—consult your architect. He will tell you that they are equally good for homes, apartments, etc.

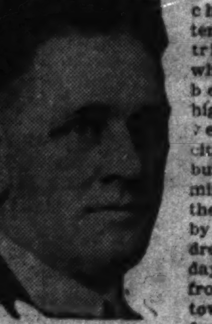
FARM AND GARDEN

FARMERS PLAN CHAIN SYSTEM OF ROAD STANDS

Fine Highways Make Direct Buying Practical.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.



A. B. LEEPER.

Spider webbing the rural districts with hard roads has made it possible for farmers to use the chain system of distribution which has been so highly developed in cities. With buyers humming past their gates by the hundreds each day, coming from nearby towns and from cities hundreds of miles away, producers of farm products see the possibility of selling more and more of their crops direct. Their old plans of producing and selling must be revised to meet the changing conditions.

Chain roadside markets may be as common along the highways in the country as the chain retail stores in the city within a few years. Farmers already are scheming ways and means of attracting buyers to their gardens, orchards and fields in order to get a bigger share of the consumer's dollar and to get more pay for their work and skill in producing superior products.

Plan Chain Stands.

Illinois farmers are among the first to consider the organization of the chain coöperative-grower-owned roadside system of marketing farm products. If the proposed plan is adopted there will be established from five to ten roadside marketing stands in the fruit and vegetable sections of Illinois, each stand serving as a link in the big chain which may ultimately be developed under the direction of the Illinois Agricultural association.

The necessity of the new chain plan has been brought about chiefly through the development of the hard roads, which have made it possible for fleets of fast trucks from Chicago and other big consuming centers to go into the commercial fruit and vegetable sections and buy products direct from the orchardists and gardeners. Tons of crops are moved direct by wholesale dealers out of the big fruit and vegetable belt of southern Illinois annually. Despite the fact that this Egypt region, where perishable products are grown in large quantities, is more than 300 miles away, a big tonnage of crops is hauled by truck from there to Chicago every year. This movement is growing along with an increased acreage of the fruits and gardens and the building of more hard roads.

Challenge to Farmers.

Illinois growers produce annually 7,000,000 bushels of apples, 1,000,000 bushels of peaches, 500,000 bushels of pears, and 20,000,000 pounds of grapes, according to A. B. Leeper, director of the agricultural association's fruit and vegetable marketing department and manager of the Illinois Fruit Growers' exchange. He says that there are also large and annually increasing acreages of strawberries, asparagus, tomatoes, peas, green beans, sweet corn, peppers, potatoes, cabbage, and practically all varieties of fruits and vegetables grown in this climate. The total yield of these crops in Illinois represents from 20,000 to 25,000 carloads, and this total does not include the products sold in local markets or transported by trucks.

The enormous task of selling these products and getting them into the hands of ultimate consumers that will be so well satisfied that they will come back for more is one of the big challenges before Illinois farmers. The direct movement has increased to the point where buyers going to the orchards have interfered with the selling through the growers' coöperative exchange, with headquarters at Centralia, Ill. For example, in 1922 the exchange handled 900 carloads; in 1923, 600 carloads. Then in 1926, 704 cars were handled by the exchange. But during the last two years, with the truck movement increasing rapidly, there has been a big drop in the amount of products handled through the exchange. In 1927 only 295 carloads were handled through the growers' agency, a third of the 1922 movement. Last year the exchange handled 275 carloads. The local and express shipments amounted to 50 carloads. More than 100 carloads were sold at the packing sheds by the members of the exchange direct to buyers who transported the fruit by truck, according to the manager's report.

How Plan Will Work.

To meet the growing need for making direct sales, leaders have proposed the chain roadside market system. The plan has been favorably considered by the executives of the Illinois Agricultural association. It calls for the setting up of a stock company owned by growers and subject to their direction and control.

The plan provides that the company must establish a maximum of ten and a minimum of five local markets in the fruit and vegetable sections before the beginning of operations. The roadside stands are to be operated in coöperation with the local county farm bureaus where the markets are to be established. To some extent the production would be coöperative. At least the growers would be urged to raise the products that could be sold to advantage over the local stand. All of the products are to be graded according to a standardized method, following rules prescribed by the board of directors.

The products would be branded and sold under a trade mark owned and controlled by the company. The proposed plan calls for the payment of managers and employés as far as possible on a percentage or bonus basis. All of these roadside markets are to be established on hard roads at strategic points where they will be available to the greatest number of highway shoppers.

Growers will hold most of the stock in the chain company. Through this plan farmers expect to take advantage of the new hard roads and the direct buying plan which the roads make possible.

Handled by the Grower.

In connection with the chain coöperative roadside market system the proposed plan calls for a wholesale and car lot sales department. This department will contract with the Illinois Fruit Growers' exchange to act as the distributing agent in handling the surplus fruits in car lots, selling them in various parts of the country as it has been doing for several years.

In either case the products would be handled by grower owned agencies, giving the farmer a local as well as a national distributing machine of his own. Last year the exchange sold fruit to dealers in eighty-one markets located in twenty-one states and three Canadian provinces. The central organization also buys baskets, labels, fertilizers, caps, shipping packages, and orchard equipment for the farmers. The supplies bought for the farmers by the exchange last year amounted to $150,000.

Illinois growers already have had experience in selling direct to consumers. It is estimated that last year at least one-fourth of the state's peach crop, or about 500 to 600 carloads, were sold either directly to the consumer or transported by truck to the nearby markets.

CHAIN ROADSIDE STAND

TYPE OF COUNTER TO BE USED IN PROPOSED SYSTEM OF SELLING FARM PRODUCTS TO HIGHWAY SHOPPERS—Hard roads have made it possible for farmers to retail their orchard and garden products over a roadside stand in the fruit and vegetable sections of Illinois. Tons of these products are being trucked out of the fruit and vegetable belts each year. Farmers are planning the establishment of a chain of roadside markets where their products will go direct to the ultimate consumers coming from cities in various parts of the state.

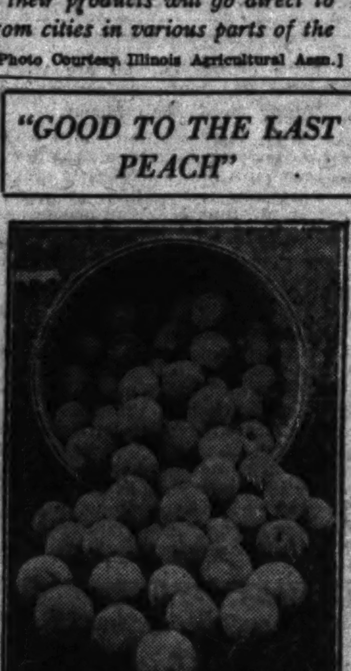
DR. L. H. COULSON FINDS FEW T. B. CATTLE IN TEST

The effectiveness of the tuberculin test in ridding dairy cattle of tuberculosis is indicated in work now being done in Walworth county, Wisconsin, made necessary by the high health standard required by Chicago. Dr. L. H. Coulson, president of the Wisconsin Veterinarians' association, is conducting the third area test in the county.

His report from Elkhorn, Wis., shows that out of 4,400 animals tested so far only twenty-three reacted, indicating that they were infected with tuberculosis. This is only one-half of one per cent.

"GOOD TO THE LAST PEACH"



In Illinois proposed roadside market chain orchardists and gardeners will grade and standardize their fruits and vegetables in packs like the basket of Elberta peaches shown above.

AGRICULTURAL

Agricultural questions of general interest will be answered to the limit of space in this department. Individual replies will be made to questions if stamped, self-addressed envelope is inclosed. Address letters to Agricultural Editor.

PRUNING GRAPE VINES.

1. Kindly advise me if grape vines planted in the spring of 1927 need pruning this spring. 2. What time in the spring should they be pruned? My vineyard is in southern Michigan.

P. H.

REPLY.

1. Many vineyardists consider it best to prune their vines each year. If the vines are not systematically pruned each season they become long and rambling and the fruiting wood is borne farther away from the head as the vines grow older.

2. Pruning must be done during the dormant season—in winter or early spring before the sap begins to flow through the vines. Grape vines "bleed" freely if pruned after they start growth. There are several different systems of pruning. One commonly followed consists in training the vines to two strands of wire, the four long canes left for fruiting being allowed two running each way on the wire.

If you are not familiar with the various methods of pruning write to your state agricultural college for information on trimming grape vines.

Consumers Will Pay Premium for Big Eggs

D. C. Warren of the Kansas station says that market premium for high quality eggs has aroused an interest in larger egg size. There are inherited tendencies toward large and small eggs. Careful selection at time of placing eggs in the incubator should contribute to the improvement of the size of the eggs of a flock.

CHICAGO GARDEN SHOW OPENS FOR WEEK TOMORROW

Home Growers Can Get Free Advice.

One week of practical schooling in the whole field of gardening will be given to home gardeners at the Chicago garden and flower show, which opens tomorrow at the Sherman hotel. Sixty-four city and suburban garden clubs, city park floriculturists, landscape architects, and professional gardeners in various branches of flower growing have joined forces to answer the round of questions that are in the minds of experienced as well as amateur growers at this time of the year.

August Koch and his staff of skilled workers of the west Chicago park system have built a display at the show that will give practical pointers in the establishment of a natural background that furnishes contrast for colorful flowers.

Tropical Evergreens.

In each corner of the garden there is planted a tropical evergreen, juniper species, for specimen planting. As a background there will be a group of subtropical shrubs—the privet, Ligustrum ovalifolium aureum, and Evonymus japonicus variegatus, sometimes called the spindle tree. These are broad leaved evergreen, and make fine hedges, according to Mr. Koch, chief florist of Garfield park.

Against this background will be planted a group of hybrid Cinerarias. This plant is one of the most popular pot plants. There is a wide range of colors in the flowers of the Cinerarias, but only the scarlet and purple are shown in the display. For a border plant, a hybrid primrose is used. This one originated in the Kew gardens of England, known as Primula Kewensis. The flowers are yellow. This combination of scarlet, purple and yellow, when combined in proper proportions against the vivid green foliage, is a striking color scheme. Many other flowers with like colors can be substituted in this combination.

Every Phase of Gardening.

The garden club competitions will cover every phase of gardening design and flower arrangement; and in the cut flower, plant, and model garden exhibits which are staged by professionals there will be examples of perfection in growth and lessons in how to achieve it, according to John A. Servas, manager of the show.

On trays which represent suburban lots 75 feet wide, made to the scale of one-quarter inch to a foot, each club has built a toy garden. The house is not shown, but it is represented by a drop curtain effect. But every detail in the back yard garden is worked out in these miniatures.

The flagged walks, green grass, flowers of many colors, and the oil jars, garden seats, pergolas, bird baths, and sun dials which are being used in these gardens are reproduced to scale with care, and the whole is arranged according to the correct principles of garden design.

Many Suggestions Here.

Lot owners may find dozens of garden plans which they might easily adapt to their own grounds. Natural gardens, formal gardens, water gardens, rock gardens, all are depicted realistically, each with its proper accents, axes, and planting for a succession of bloom. With each garden is a landscape plan showing the planting.

Another branch of the garden art will be demonstrated in the window box contest, a new one this year. Each club is assigned a practical window, full size, together with a section of wall and a standard flower box.

Little gardens made of living plants will be staged by seventeen garden clubs. These will be small gardens, which will show how small areas now neglected may be transformed into beauty spots.

The art of flower arrangement will be demonstrated in the shadow box contest and the luncheon table contest. There are many entries in the luncheon table decoration class.

MORAINE HOTEL ADDITION

William D. Mann designed the above addition to the Moraine hotel at Highland Park, which is now under construction. It will be 150x50, three and a half stories, of fireproof construction, and will contain eighty rooms with tile baths and showers. The rooms are arranged in suites, with living rooms and open porches. The cost, exclusive of furnishings, will be $250,000, according to Mr. Mann, who states completion is set for May 1.

PLANS SIX STORY STORE BUILDING FOR CHICAGO AVE.

Plans have been announced for a six story department store building to be erected at the southeast corner of Chicago avenue and Laramie street by Carl A. Mueller, president of the Laramie State bank. Work is scheduled to start about May 1, with completion scheduled for Dec. 1. It is stated that the investment, including the land, will be approximately $1,250,000.

The structure, designed by Frederick Stanton, will be of modernistic architecture. The exterior facing will be of terra cotta. A feature will be a twelve foot arcade across the front which will enable pedestrians to view the show windows under shelter.

Occupying a site fronting 125 feet on Chicago and 212 feet on Laramie, the structure will contain 172,000 square feet of floor space. While the lease for the store has not been closed, Mr. Mueller is negotiating for it and will make an announcement later.

Earl George Gubbins Will Give Talk on Salesmanship

Earl George Gubbins will address the Real Property institute of the Cook county real estate board Wednesday, Feb. 27, on the subject, "Salesmanship." At 7 p. m. Judge Oshe will talk on "Estates in Fee and for Life." The meeting of the institute is being held Wednesday instead of Tuesday, the regular day, because of the absence of Judge Oshe. The Real Property institute is now meeting in the board's new quarters on the 25th floor of the 100 North La Salle building.

Plans 32 Flat Building on Forest Park Corner

Rosenthal, Mayer & Lewis, Inc., have secured the building contract for a three story and English basement building to be erected by William Denzel at the southeast corner of Harrison and Ferdinand streets, Forest Park. The structure will contain four stores and thirty-two flats of three, four, and five rooms. Olsen & Urbain are architects.

John Larkins Bell Moves to Engineering Building

John Larkins Bell, landscape architect and engineer, has moved his offices from Barrington to Room 1515, Engineering building, 204 West Wacker drive. Mr. Bell studied with Thomas H. Mawson of Liverpool, England, and for a time with Jens Jenson of Chicago.

Volk Brothers to Open Tract at Harlem-Foster

Volk Brothers, Inc., announce the opening of their Greater Harlem avenue subdivision, located at the intersection of Harlem and Foster avenues. The tract, which is to be restricted, will be developed in accordance with the plans of the Regional Planning commission.

Brokers' Notes

Charles G. Robinson, after nine years of activity with various Chicago subdividers, has entered business under his own name with offices in the Phillips State Bank building, at 7001 North Clark street. The initial offering of the new organization will be a tract of forty-three acres in Park Ridge.

T. D. O'Hern, formerly with Austin H. Parker, C. W. Hoff & Co., John A. Carroll & Brother, T. D. O'Hern & Co. and the O'Hern-Frear company, and Joseph Honan, formerly of the Igoe & Honan company, have formed a real estate firm known as the O'Hern & Honan company. Its offices are at 1540 East 53d street. The phone is Dorchester 1731.

Louis B. Silver, recently with the George G. Newbury company, has opened his own office under the name of the Silver Realty company, at 134 North La Salle street. Phone is State 1150. His associates are Edward Paulson and Sidney Bisco.

The Carey-Wrobel Construction company has been organized with Bert Carey as president, Anthony J. Wrobel as vice president, and I. E. Carey as secretary and treasurer. Offices have been opened in the City State Bank building, 130 North Wells street.

OFFER $500 IN GOLD FOR NAME FOR SKYSCRAPER

Five hundred dollars in gold will be given to the boy, girl, man or woman who selects the best name for the skyscraping shop and office building to go up at the southwest corner of Michigan avenue and Ohio street, where wreckers are now clearing the site. It was pictured in this department on Sunday, Dec. 30, 1928. With the exception of the space occupied by the Corona café, it will cover the entire block bounded by Michigan, Ohio, Rush and Grand. The first unit will be eight stories, then fifteen will be piled on top of the eight, and finally a huge tower may be erected crowning all.

It's to be erected by a syndicate comprising Murray Wolbach, Charles Rubens and Nathan William MacChesney. It'll be entirely of Bedford stone and will be modernistic in design.

Now go ahead and think up a $500 name. Send it (and as many other selections as you care to) to M. D. Miller, Lake Shore Trust and Savings bank, before 2 p. m. on March 12th. Be sure and place your name and address on your offering. If other persons select the same prize winning name the $500 will be divided among you all.

The contest is being held under the auspices of the bank and the following have been appointed a committee on award: Mr. MacChesney, John A. Holabird, Arthur L. Farwell, Robert H. McCormick, and Mr. Wolbach.

Incidentally, Hogan & Farwell have been appointed renting and managing agents of the nameless skyscraper. The Lundoff-Bicknell company has been awarded the general contract.

LOUIS T. ORR TO ADDRESS REALTY BOARD "Y" CLASS

Louis T. Orr of the Howard & Orr Co., Inc., will speak next Tuesday evening, Feb. 28, at at 6 o'clock, before the realty class of the Chicago Real Estate board at the Central Y. M. C. A. College of Commerce, 19 South La Salle street, on "The Effect of the Neighborhood on Land Values." Mr. Orr's talk will involve an analysis of the different sections of the city, showing the effect of the changes that are constantly going on in a great city. Mr. Orr has been a speaker at the "Y" realty classes since the realty board took charge.

OAK PARK CORNER TO GET $750,000 FLAT STRUCTURE

Each Bedroom Will Have a Bathroom.

An unusually sumptuous apartment building is announced for the southeast corner of Pleasant street and Maple avenue, Oak Park, with work scheduled to start as soon as the weather man stops sending zero waves and blizzards in the direction of the west side suburb. John E. [illegible], who has erected many homes in River Forest, will put up the structure, which, with the land, it's said, will represent an investment of $750,000.

Designed by Leichenko & Esser, the architecture will be Georgian and the feeling of this period will be carried out in the exterior of the structure. The street elevations will be of tapestry face brick, with cut stone trim.

There will be forty-five apartments in the building, ranging in size from five to seven rooms. One feature which should be of interest is the fact that each bedroom will have its own bathing facilities, thereby eliminating one cause for Saturday night family quarrels among the tenants.

And one cause for intertenant ill feeling will be removed through the installation of soundproof floors. Needless to say, all the apartments will have the latest wrinkles in the convenience line—among these being mechanical refrigeration. Kitchens will have built-in cabinets and tiled walls.

The building is to have two stories under one of which will be a garage for the use of tenants. It will be possible for tenants to drive their cars into the garage and go up into their apartments without going out of doors. Although only three stories and English basement high, the structure is to have elevators.

Contracts for the construction work are being let by Clarence A. Klooster, with offices in the Conway building. Financing is by the Metropolitan Life Insurance company through its Chicago agent, the Chicago Trust company. Occupancy is expected by Sept. 1. The building site fronts [illegible] feet on Pleasant and 275 feet on Maple.

LONDON MARTS MARK TIME AS ELECTION NEARS

Activity May Revive Afterwards.

BY SIDNEY CAVE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1929: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Feb. 23.—The British general election is casting its shadow before it, the stock market interests these days earnestly discussing the likely events of the outcoming result. Until the election is out of the way it is doubtful if any real revival of old time activities will be witnessed.

The market is gradually getting over the recent bank rate increase shock and the absence of a further rise is leading to the belief that the position relating to the abnormal situation in America has been adequately adjusted.

With the absence of active general business the market is turning already to dealings in election "majorities," the prices offering rough estimates of general expectations, indicating that the result may be indeterminate as between the unionists and labor, giving the Liberals a preponderating vote such as the Irish party used to possess in years past. Generally, however, the prospect of a labor government, even though again controlled by Liberals is not conducive to enthusiasm and a speculative market, as there is always the possibility of a government coming into power that might raid the companies' profits for taxation purposes.

Advent of Socialists.

When the Socialists came into power two elections back, the effect on the stock exchange was precisely contrary from that which nearly everybody expected. The Socialists were no more liked then than now, but their advent into power for the first time in history has not had damaging effects on public confidence or security of prices.

The latter fell in advance, but quickly and easily recovered as soon as the new government was established, and from a stock exchange viewpoint investment prices were better off after Ramsey McDonald formed his cabinet than during the latter part of the previous administration.

The recent marked halt in activity leaves London almost entirely free from any unhealthy speculation, investors showing nothing of an adventurous spirit. American operators seem to have cold shouldered London completely in the last couple of weeks, the fact forcibly illustrating how very responsive the London markets are to Wall street's influence.

A good deal of misunderstanding recently occurred here regarding American buying of British shares and a good deal of nonsense was written and spoken concerning it. Many openly resent the invasion of American capital, suspecting it veiled an attempt to obtain control of British industries. But this is just about as near the truth as to say that England invested large fortunes in American railroads before the war in order to determine America's economic destiny.

Overflow of Money.

Of course the overflow of American money into English investments was inevitable when money can be more profitably employed abroad. American money here is in sound companies with good prospects, chiefly electrical undertakings and power corporations, and with increasing formations of investment trusts in the United States the chances are that still more American money is coming to the English investment markets in the early future.

That the bulk of American purchases of British shares is for investment solely is shown by the continued American buying of associated electrical industries, General Electric, Rolls-Royce and other companies which have taken steps to restrict control to British hands.

Many new issues are being held up momentarily owing to the monetary situation, the general election and other conditions. The present circumstances do not favor overseas loans or issue of securities on low fixed interest yield.

Great Northern to Spend $50,000,000 During '29

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Expenditures totaling $50,000,000 for new equipment and maintenance and improvement of existing equipment and track have been authorized by the Great Northern railway for 1929, C. O. Jenks, vice president in charge of operations, announced today. The largest amount in the budget is $12,000,000 for new equipment, while $15,000,000 is provided for track maintenance.

Buying Power of Latins Is Over-rated

BY SCRUTATOR.

Some popular misconceptions of the possibilities of sales to Latin Americans are pointed out in the weekly department of commerce reports by George J. Eder, chief of the Latin American section.

One of these false ideas is that the immense resources of South and Central America represent purchasing power. The state of Minas Geraes, in Brazil, has the largest iron deposits in the world and the southern continent of the Americas has one-fourth of all the forest area in the world. But these figures mean little when the United States produces a thousand tons of iron ore to one in Brazil and all the lumber South America puts on the market has only one-tenth the value of the fence posts cut in this country.

To determine the purchasing power in thirteen of the Latin countries the department of commerce has run tests on sixteen representative products, including wheat flour, cotton piece goods, patent medicines, hardware and other goods in common use. For every $100 that an average American spends on these things, the various Latin American countries had buying abilities, per capita, as follows:

Incomes Average Low.

Argentina, $31.85; Cuba, $16.85; Chile, $15.74; Uruguay, $14.82; Mexico, $11.03; Dominican Republic, $10.48; Panama, $9.65; Venezuela, $9.41; Brazil, $7.74; Peru, $6.13; Colombia, $4.83; Guatemala, $4.33, and Haiti, $4.37.

In other words, the typical American can buy twenty times as much as the typical resident of any of the three last named countries. Mr. Eder remarks that large classes of citizens in Latin America have purchasing power that is with difficulty visualized by the people of the homeland. Amplifying this, he states that of the 2,500,000 people in Bolivia, only 3,000 families have annual incomes of as much as $2,000.

Persons reading that Venezuela purchased $5,000,000 worth of pipes and fittings every year might conclude that here was a splendid market for such goods. But the market is almost entirely a petroleum corporation from the United States. A large part of the exports to Latin America are merchandise sent by American firms to their own branches. The Latin Americans pay for them, but with labor directed by the firms' executives.

Gives Advantage.

Geography gives this continent, and especially the middle west, a great advantage for doing business in the Caribbean regions. But a great deal of missionary sales work in the past has borne little fruit, not because the Latin Americans did not wish to trade, but because they had not the money to buy with.

Capital from the United States will eventually build up production in the southern regions. In the meantime it would seem logical for American business to devote itself even more thoroughly to increasing consuming power among Americans. The trend has been almost steadily upward for twenty years.

An increase of $10 per capita in the annual wage of the forty-six million Americans gainfully employed would do as much for business as doubling the exports to South America.

STEEL PRICES HARDEN; LEAD, ZINC ADVANCE

New York, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Hardening of prices in nearly all directions with the possible exception of heavy melting steel scrap stood out as one of the principal factors in the steel market during the week. Mills announced an increase of one dollar per ton for bars, plates and shapes, and two dollars a ton on cold finished bars.

Specifications against contracts remained good, and automobile and farm implement manufacturers continued to request liberal shipments. There has been a decided improvement in the inquiry for structural steel. Consuming interest in pig iron was better.

Demand for copper remained quiet throughout the week, with neither foreign nor domestic consumers showing much interest in the market. Tin turned dull and price fluctuations were narrow. Lead was advanced again by leading sellers. The market for zinc was featured by an advance in the selling basis of $1 per ton for ore.

HOLIDAYS CAUSE DROP IN WEEK'S BOND OFFERINGS

Utility Debentures the Biggest Issue.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 23.—Owing to the four day week in finance, sales of new bonds this week amounted to but $66,005,000, compared with the previous week's total of $78,542,000 and with $116,715,000 during the corresponding week of last year. Lincoln's birthday accounted for the holiday on Tuesday of last week, but Washington's birthday, falling on Friday, has caused a virtual holiday in all financial markets today.

Offerings for Week.

The bond offerings by groups, of this and last week follow:

	This week.	Last week.
Public utility.......	$49,875,000	$16,000,000
State and municipal	6,050,000	5,542,000
Foreign	6,000,000	57,000,000
Railroad	3,375,000	....
Industrial	1,175,000	....
Totals	$66,005,000	$78,542,000

Unlike last week's financing, a single issue accounted for more than 50 per cent of this week's total. The issue was that of $36,000,000 Utilities Power and Light debenture 5s, brought out by a syndicate headed by the Chase Securities corporation. The issuing company recently acquired large holdings in England. The next issue in size, also by a public utility company, was that of $9,000,000 Florida Power 5½s, marketed by a syndicate headed by E. H. Rollins and Sons and Howe, Snow & Co., Inc. The first piece of railway financing to appear in several weeks was an issue of $3,375,000 Wabash railway 4½ per cent equipment trust certificates.

Foreign Loans Decline.

Last week's foreign loans formed the bulk of the new financing, with five issues ranging in size from $7,000,000 to $15,000,000. This week, however, foreign issues consisted of $5,000,000 of 7s of the Ernesto Breda company, the principal locomotive manufacturer of Italy, and $1,000,000 of 6½s of the National Bank of Panama.

KRAFT-PHENIX CHEESE INCOME GROWS LARGER

Net income of $1,848,253 was reported for the year 1928 by the Kraft-Phenix Cheese corporation compared with $1,189,965 for the predecessor companies in 1927, the annual report reveals. When the company was reorganized and additional common and $6,000,000 of preferred stock was issued a basis of comparative earnings per share was made unavailable. The 1927 net was equivalent to $2.62 a share on the 452,979 shares of $25 par value stock which has since been eliminated.

Heavy Construction Field Holds Favorable Promise

New York, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Weekly totals of proposed new construction announced since the first of the year disclose nonspeculative building operations have not suffered from high money rates, states McGraw-Hill Construction Daily. Activity in the heavy construction field promises to hold at a high level over the first half of the year. Proposed work announced last week throughout the country totaled $103,100,000, with public projects and railroad improvements showing a gain over the preceding week.

BANK STOCKS HAVE ANOTHER WEEK OF NARROW TRADING

The bank stock market has had another week of slow trading. Prices moved within a narrow range and there were few features.

Continental National Bank and Trust and Illinois Merchants enjoyed an active trade, but there was little change in values. Continental was wanted at 688, with offerings at 692; the rights previous to their expiration were wanted at 85, with offerings at 87. Illinois was in demand at 1380, with offerings at 1385; the rights were wanted at 170, with offerings at 175.

After early sales at 222, National Bank of the Republic was brought to the front, being lifted 20 points to high sales at 242. Additional stock was offered at this price, with best bids at 238. Northern Trust was the reverse, declining 15 points to sales around 910@920.

State Bank of Chicago eased off 5 points to 880 bid, 885 asked.

Foreman National was steady at 990@995, as was Straus National at 385@390. Peoples Trust and Savings was 5 points better, changing hands between 505 and 510. First National was neglected and off 5 points at 935. Chicago Trust was heavy at 530@534; so, too, was Central Trust Company of Illinois at 505@508, off 5.

Numerous trades in Straus Investing Units at 51⅛@52½ were recorded. Greenebaum Sons Investment was in supply and offerings at 46 failed to interest buyers. Jenkins Television ranged between 16¼ and 18, closing 17¼@17¾. Johnson Motors lost 3 points when it was traded at 45½@47½.

WILL SOON OFFER TWO ISSUES ON EXCHANGE HERE

Two issues recently listed on the Chicago stock exchange will be publicly offered soon, according to announcements.

The National Terminals company, a consolidation of warehouses in Chicago, Cleveland, East Chicago and Indianapolis, will offer through Paul H. Davis & Co., 52,000 units of its preferred stocks, consisting of one share of 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock and one share of participating preference stock at $39.25 a unit. The preference stock is listed on the exchange.

An issue of 40,000 units of $2 convertible preference stock and common stock of the American Yvette company will soon be offered by Philip M. Shaw & Co., and E. H. Ottman & Co. Both are listed on the exchange.

Business Circles Uneasy Over Credit Situation

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 23.—All American stock markets were closed for business today, in accordance with the New York stock exchange's decision for an extra holiday. Commercial markets and the banks were open; but the money market was motionless, as it always is on Saturday, and foreign exchange moved little.

There have not been many occasions in the recent past when interested or disinterested observers of financial markets were so much at loss to draw inferences regarding the next movement. Last week's developments gave no actual clew either on the stock exchange or in the money market. Perhaps only one wholly new sidelight on the financial position was contributed last week and it was not yet wholly distinct. This was the recognition in the weekly trade reviews, for the first time since the rise in Wall street money rates began, that uneasiness exists in business circles over the possible spread of stringency to commercial markets.

Interest in Credit.

Hitherto it had been implicitly accepted that the rate on merchants' paper would be kept down to normal figures by the federal reserve's protective measures of last spring. But the citing by the very conservative Iron Age on Thursday of the "growing hesitancy in business sentiment, commonly ascribed to recent developments in the money market," and the remark in Dun's report that, in mercantile circles, "the credit status remains the chief point of interest" shows what is passing in the business mind. This new viewpoint may result merely from the reserve board's assertion of Feb. 7 that the strain on the speculative money market "may have detrimental effects on business and may impair its future." But the echoing of the idea in commercial circles is one of those incidents which on such occasions somtimes turn out to be significant.

Taken by Surprise.

A considerable part of Wall street and the public were taken by surprise when the stock market, after the strenuous controversy evoked by the reserve board's warning, did not break at the beginning of the week. The preceding week had ended with prices falling rapidly; all indications went to show that the federal reserve was adopting new and definitely restrictive policies and had others in readiness. When the predicted weakness did not materialize at all, but recovery began which was much accelerated later in the week, professional Wall street partly ascribed the seeming paradox to the fall in call money to 6 per cent rate.

TURNS OUT MORE SHOES, BUT USES LESS LEATHER

The leather industry last year went back into the doldrums that has prevailed, with one or two exceptions, since the world war. High leather prices induced considerable use of substitutes and leather consumption declined although more shoes were manufactured, according to the annual report of the National Leather company.

Sales for 1928 totaled $24,137,887, compared with $24,868,444 in 1927. Net profit was $108,700, equivalent to 83 cents a share on the $13,000,000 preferred stock on which dividends are in arrears for seven years. Earnings were applied to reducing the deficit in previous year.

The deficit now is $2,445,617. Net profit for 1927 was $1,154,361, equivalent to $8.88 a share on the preferred stock. The balance sheet as of Dec. 31, 1928, shows current assets of $13,463,973 and current liabilities of $2,887,762.

January's Automobile Production Sets Record

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—(AP)—All seasonal records for automobile production were broken by American manufacturers in January. The total of cars manufactured in the month was reported by the commerce department to be 403,154, which compared with 238,908 in January last year, and with the previous January high record of 308,998 cars, attained in 1926.

Paid Business Greatest in History of Guardian Life

The sixty-ninth annual statement of the Guardian Life Insurance Company of America shows new paid business in 1928 was the greatest in the company's history, totaling $75,781,421. A gain of $43,072,256 was effected in the amount of insurance in force, bringing the total up to $416,973,300.

Royal Dutch Oil Output Registers Tonnage Gain

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

THE HAGUE, Holland, Feb. 23.—The Royal Dutch Oil company's world out put in 1928 totaled 25,081,969 tons, against 18,698,362 tons for the previous year, it is announced.

CONSOLIDATION BILL PRESENTED TO HELP ALONG R. R. MERGERS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Legislation designed to facilitate widespread railroad consolidation was reported favorably to the senate today at the end of a week during which some of the country's most important rail interests have advanced specific plans in the same field to the interstate commerce commission.

Senator Fess [Rep., O.], acting for the majority of the senate interstate commerce committee, presented a consolidation bill with a detailed explanation of its purpose and the statute modifications it contemplates.

Though the text of the measure made no reference to the individual consolidations pending, all of its terms have intimate association with the series of enterprises now formally launched which look to the creation of giant rail mergers, some of them planned on a scale looking to the fusion of 15 or 20 sizable transportation systems in one management unit.

Senator Fess' report explained that the bill repeats the sanction of former statutes, even for the consolidation of "parallel and competing railroads," which was once forbidden by anti-trust legislation.

The measure also proposes methods of satisfying minority stockholders opposing consolidations, and it also would direct the interstate commerce commission to make plans for a general railroad merger. The bill, further, would extend provisions for tax exemption in security operations undertaken to bring about approved mergers.

Exchange Firms Caution Customers About Buying

New York, Feb. 23.—Market letters sent out by stock exchange firms to their clientele for holiday reading were almost unanimous in advising caution of customers in venturing on the buying side in the stock market at this time. As usual the arguments for "buying for a long pull" do not necessarily apply to "quick turnovers" so that the picking and choosing at this time is, on the whole, put up to the individual. A few letters in the sheaf suggest that the market will be relatively quiet for some time, with few, if any substantial upswings in prices.

Debits for Week Increase Reserve Bank Reports

Debits to individual deposit account reported to the Chicago Federal Reserve bank for the week ended Feb. 20, by 252 banks in 38 leading clearing house cities in the seventh federal reserve district, aggregate $1,826,191,000, an increase of 22.7 per cent compared with a week ago [$1,488,166,000]. Compared with the corresponding week of last year [$1,248,658,000], an increase of 46.3 per cent was shown.

BUTLER BROS. IS KEEPING STEP WITH CHANGES

Install New Sales Methods.

BY GEORGE HAMMOND.

When a wholesale mail order house expands into the chain store field the natural assumption is that it is likely to be stepping on its own toes. Such a decision appeared to be at least daring when Butler Bros., the largest corporation in its line, announced plans of that sort last December.

But to the pioneers goes much of the credit for the quickened pulse beats of American trade and industry and the Butler Bros. enterprise is in keeping with the company's history of pioneering in trade since 1866, when George H. Butler tossed aside a poor wholesale hair goods business for what now is the largest wholesale mail order firm in the world.

Agreement with Trade.

The danger of offending wholesale customers by going into the chain store field was circumvented through the agreement not to enter a town or community with a chain store in opposition to a customer. Scott Stores, Inc., the chain store subsidiary, now is operating nine variety stores and has signed leases for the opening of fifteen additional stores. It is aimed to have a minimum of 100 of these stores in operation by the end of this year. The stores sell articles ranging in price from 5 cents to $1.

With the hair goods business on the decline, George H. Butler called a brother, Edward B. Butler, then a traveling salesman, off the road and together they founded in Boston in 1877 the co-partnership of Butler Bros., specializing in notions and fancy

WHEAT PRICES ARE AFFECTED BY LOSSES ABROAD

All Other Grain Markets Show Declines.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Wheat prices at the inside figures yesterday were off around 1 cent from Thursday's close as the result of weakness abroad on Friday when American markets were closed. While the finish was on a moderate reaction from the inside figures, net losses were ⅝@¾ of a cent with March $1.27⅝; May, $1.32⅝ and July, $1.35¼ to $1.35¼. Corn lost ⅛@½ cent with March, 95, and May 99⅛ cents. Oats were ⅛@⅜ of a cent lower, March being 49⅞@50, and May 51⅝ cents. Rye was unsettled, and finished ½ cent lower to ¼ cent higher, the former on March which was $1.11⅞ at the last and May $1.14.

Grain values averaged higher during the last week with July wheat selling at a new high for the season, and while there was a reaction from the best figures toward the last, wheat showed net gains of 1⅛@2 cents; corn, ¼@¾ of a cent and rye ⅝@1¾ cents for the week, while oats were ½ cent lower to ⅛ higher. Lard gained 2½@5 cents and ribs 10 cents for the week, with bellies 17½ lower to 27½ cents higher.

Foreign Markets Easier.

With Argentina exporting on a liberal scale, and distribution in European greatly hampered by the abnormal weather conditions foreign buyers show little disposition to take North American wheat in volume, and export sales during the day were reported as very small. Liverpool closed ⅝@⅞d lower than on Thursday with further pressure from Australia. Little attention was paid to dry weather reports from Australia and India, while Argentina has received good rains. Argentine exports for the week were 6,742,000 bu against 6,153,000 bu the previous week, and 5,432,000 bu last year. Australia cleared 3,776,000 bu, including 2,400,000 bu to non-European countries.

Apprehension of damage to the new winter wheat crop continues, but it is admitted by traders on either side of the market that it is impossible at the present time to tell definitely whether there has been damage or not. The weekly forecast was for some precipitation with temperatures above normal. Omaha offered cash wheat to come here, but no purchases were reported. A London cable reported an enormous oriental demand for flour.

Corn Has Narrow Range

Decline in wheat with selling of July credited to houses with foreign connections and of May and July by cash interests had a depressing effect, but the market received good support around 99c for May from commission houses, and the finish was on a fair rally from the low point.

Cash demand was slow with the basis steady to ½c lower. Country offerings remain light. There were intimations of a better export demand at the seaboard, although no sales were claimed.

Oats held within narrow limits with prices lower in sympathy with other grains. Locals were the best sellers. There was buying of May against sales of July by houses with country connections. Weather conditions in the southwest were again unfavorable for field work. Scattered longs sold March rye, while the May was firmer on commission house buying.

LARD AND MEATS ADVANCE

While trading in provisions was not large there was limited pressure lard and meats for future delivery, and a better absorption of offerings. Highest prices for hogs of late with a top of $10.95 had a stimulating effect on buying interests and while there were fair offerings by hedgers and profit taking by longs, prices moved upward and lard closed 5@7½c higher in Chicago, while Liverpool was 1½@3d lower. There were exports of lard of 768,976 lbs.

Short ribs were unchanged to 10c higher. Trade in bellies was more active with net gains of 22½@32½c on futures, and ½c lb advance in the spot market.

Shipments of lard and meats were smaller than the previous week with receipts of lard at Chicago heavier than the shipments. Prices follow:

COTTON REVIEW

New York, Feb. 23.—(AP)—The feature in the cotton market here during the last week has been the evening up of March contracts in preparation for the notices which may be issued next Tuesday.

This operation has consisted largely of transferring interest from March to later months and has very little effect either on the general level of prices or on the differences between months. At last accounts there were about 73,700 bales of certificated cotton in the local stock, and it is expected by local traders that the amount will be increased somewhat within the next few days. It remains to be seen, of course, whether notices will be issued against the entire stock, but it is most generally thought that the greater part of it will be tendered.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Trade sentiment in wheat leans to the buying side of July on the basis of unfavorable crop reports, while May is being bought on the theory that there are better things for the trade in the near future. Eastern interests are absorbing May at $1.32, while 1 cent above that price there is always good selling. Weather for the present is the most important factor in shaping trade sentiment, overcoming the effect of the bearish cash situation in the southwest, where No. 2 hard winter was offered at 4 cents under May, with requests for bids.

A mixed situation exists in corn. The cash basis was relatively half of a cent lower as compared with May and discounts on the off grades were around the lowest of the season. There seems to be too much corn available for the limited cash demand, which is having a bearish effect on futures. There was a good sized buying order for July at the close which caused the late rally.

The Modern Miller says: "Dormant condition of the winter wheat crop makes it impossible to determine extent of winter killing at this date. Our crop advices are not of an apprehensive nature, generally speaking, and considerable satisfaction is expressed over the fact that benefit will result from the melting of the snow which now covers most of the winter wheat territory."

WESTERN EGGS TO CHICAGO

Reports that California was rushing fresh eggs to Chicago by express in order to take advantage of the record prices prevailing here led to heavy profit taking in the February delivery on the Chicago mercantile exchange and, after an advance of ⅛c early to 41⅛c, a new high for the season, the market broke sharply and closed 1⅝c lower at 38⅝c. March was off ½c at 26½c, with April storage firsts unchanged at 28c, and November refrigerators ⅝c lower at 30⅛c. From the inside figure of Jan. 10 there has been an advance of 16c per dozen in fresh gathered Friday, equal to $1,920 per car. Sales for the day were 253 cars, and receipts, 11,605 cases.

Butter futures were ¼@½c lower, due to selling of somewhat larger receipts. February closed at 48⅛c, and March at 47½c. Receipts, 29 cars and 8,967 tubs.

INVESTMENT

Opportunity Offered—By Manufacturer of National Reputation, Fifty Years' Standing, and the Highest Financial Rating

A business of unusual proportions and opportunity for profit is growing throughout the country. It has all the attractiveness of necessity, originality, permanency and growth. It is two years old, has an outstanding record of earnings behind it, is still in its infancy and rapidly growing.

It is in the Automotive Service Industry, and represents to this branch of the Automotive Business what the genius of quantity production represents to the manufacture of Motor Cars.

People with Capital should be made acquainted with this business. It requires at least $20,000. Corporations of $500,000 have been formed to establish chains in but small areas.

We invite the inquiries of people of integrity and business standing interested in becoming engaged in a business of this magnitude and opportunity. We shall be pleased to furnish complete information by mail, without obligation, to anyone of the above qualifications who will address us on his business stationery.

Yesterday's meager supply of hogs brought buyers on the market early, resulting in a quick clearance at new high price levels. Fancy 190@200 lb averages reached $10.95, highest since Oct. 8, the last time hogs sold at $11.00. General average price was unchanged at $10.75.

Reports of new snowstorms in some parts of the west, which are expected to curtail country loading to some extent, encouraged local packers to take on as many hogs as were available as the week ended. However, the trade generally looks for moderate supplies early next week. Seven local houses and several city butchers obtained stock yesterday, leaving only 2,000 pen holders at the close, the high point of the day.

The smallest hog receipts since early in November, barring two holiday periods, boosted prices to new high levels for the season during last week. Top prices swung up from $10.35 the previous Saturday to $10.70 last Wednesday and to $10.95 yesterday. The general average price advanced 25c at $10.45, being highest since week ending Oct. 6. Hogs a year ago averaged only $8.05, the lowest weekly average since July, 1924.

Pork in Demand.

Fresh pork loins moved up to 17½@22c, equaling the highest since last November, against 17@21c a week ago, 15@18c a month ago, and 13½@17c two months ago. Outsiders obtained [illegible] per cent of hog receipts, against [illegible] per cent the previous week and 27 per cent a year ago. Weights were lightest since January, 1928, and below normal for February. The week's estimate at 228 lbs compares with 232 lbs in 1928 and with 231 lbs in 1927.

Dwindling cattle receipts, coupled with an improvement in prices for fresh beef, increased the demand for steers during last week and much of the recent loss was regained. A lower close had little effect on the week's average, which figured $12.05, against $11.45 the previous week, which was lowest since June, 1927. Cattle a year ago averaged $13.00 and two years ago, $10.40, with the five year average at $10.35. Twenty leading markets received 168,000 cattle, against 173,000 the previous week, 200,000 a year ago, and 221,000 two years ago. The year to date total at 1,486,000 compares with 1,777,000 in 1928 and with 1,872,000 in 1927.

Lambs in Demand.

The recent break in fat lamb prices brought a rush of eastern orders last week, resulting in a sharp reaction of the market. Prices finished near the highest point of the season, although poorer quality held average prices down to some extent. While receipts dropped off 2,700 at 62,800, shipments increased 6,000, totaling 21,900.

Fancy fed westerns closed at $17.60, compared to $17.35 at the high time last week. Prices averaged $16.20 compared to $15.65 a year ago, and $13.50 two years ago. Fresh lamb selling at 23@28c wholesale was similar to 25@29c kind a week ago and 24@30c kind a month ago. Twenty markets during the week received 276,000 sheep and lambs, against 344,000 the previous week and 304,000 a year ago.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 17,000 cattle, 55,000 hogs, and 15,000 sheep, against 14,939 cattle, 57,769 hogs, and 20,105 sheep a week ago, and 18,787 cattle, 70,991 hogs, and 17,997 sheep the corresponding day a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 46,000 cattle, 160,000 hogs, and 80,000 sheep, against 40,075 cattle, 318,394 hogs, and 76,510 sheep a year ago.

COTTON PRICES HIGHER

The average of cotton prices in Chicago, New Orleans and Liverpool on Saturday was higher. New York was closed and what little business passed was beneficial to the trade in the markets that were open.

Liverpool was expected to come lower, but opened unchanged to 2 points higher and finished 2 to 9 points higher, with spot sales of 4,000 bales, a good business for Saturday. American markets started higher, but eased off on moderate selling, only to rally, and closed well toward the best prices of the day, with futures in Chicago 4@6 points higher, and in New Orleans 7@8 points net higher. Spots in the latter market were unchanged at 19c, with sales 2,958 bales. Galveston was 19.50c, with sales 553 bales, and Houston 19.40c, with sales 3,445 bales.

This is the first delivery notice day in New Orleans, with notices sent out for delivery of 17,000 bales, which were readily absorbed. Other markets will have their first notice days next week.

Weather was colder over a greater part of the belt, particularly in the southwest, with predictions for more.

Spinners' takings for the week were 282,000 bales, against 260,000 bales last year, and 324,000 bales two years ago. The into sight movement for the week was 161,000 bales, against 123,000 bales last year and 296,000 bales in 1927. The visible supply of American cotton this week decreased 119,600 bales, against 131,000 bales last year, and is 5,451,478 bales, against 5,468,044 bales last year.

BUSINESS GAINS AS CALL MONEY RATE DECLINES

Decrease in Speculation Stimulates Trade.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 23.—Trade is generally brisker this year than it was during the same periods of last year and 1927, and business conditions are showing gradual improvement as a consequence of reduced stock market speculation and easing of call money rates, according to the weekly reviews of trade and business issued by Bradstreet and Dun & Co. Dun's report says that each succeeding week supports the earlier belief that the first quarter of the current year will be highly favorable, except in certain lines such as hides and leather, and Bradstreet's reports that the tone of trade "remains cheerful."

"With a subsidence of the unsettling stock market speculation and with lessened tension in call money rates, general conditions have developed a more wholesome aspect," the Dun report says.

Interest in Credit Status.

"The credit status remains the chief point of interest and still holds uncertainty, yet financial movements have become more orderly and disturbing phases in trade are overshadowed by the constructive elements.

"Each successive week's results support earlier expectations of a favorable first quarter in different branches of business, while isolated instances of recession, as in hides and leather, do not detract materially from the progress elsewhere.

"Irregularity in retail distribution, with a conspicuously large turnover in some sections and retarded dealings in other places, is more a reflection of the influence of changeable weather than of variations in public purchasing power. Freight handled by the railroads exceeds that of a year ago, and there is added statistical evidence of greater mercantile and industrial activity now than prevailed at the same time in 1928.

Steel Rise Noteworthy.

"The further rise in steel production is especially noteworthy and such an achievement would not be possible were it not for expansion in other leading departments of manufacture and transportation. The problem of close profit margins persists in many lines but net earnings of corporations are well sustained in most cases."

Bradstreet's review says that while the general tone of trade remains cheerful and industry in "heavy" lines retains all its previous activity, "there is visible this week rather more complaint of severe winter weather retarding movements of salesmen, discouraging rural buying at retail, checking production of lumber and slowing down building operations and movements at mines.

N.Y. CENTRAL GETS OIL-ELECTRIC LOCOMOTIVE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 23.—The first oil electric locomotive to be designed in the United States for strictly passenger service has been built for the New York Central railroad and will be placed in service next week on the Putnam division between High Bridge and Brewster. The engine is 59 feet long, weighs 350,000 pounds and has a maximum tractive effort of 45,000 pounds.

The McIntosh and Seymour engine in the locomotive has twelve cylinders, set V type. Electrical equipment consists of two generators and four traction motors and was supplied by the General Electric company.

Celotex Shareholders to Receive Stock Warrants

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 23.—Holders of common stock of the Celotex company will receive warrants entitling them to subscribe to one additional share at $65 for every seven shares held on March 6. A block of 24,400 shares has been authorized for sale for this purpose by the directors. The proceeds will be used in enlarging the company's facilities. Of 500,000 authorized shares, 176,706 are outstanding.

CORPORATE EARNINGS FOR 1928 CONTINUE TO SHOW IMPROVEMENT

New York, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Corporate earnings for 1928 continue to show improvement over 1927.

Tobacco Products corporation, which owns the majority common stock of United Cigar Stores Company of America, and subsidiaries reports consolidated net profit of $8,386,963, equal after dividends on class A common stock to $7.96 a share. This compares with $7,886,279, or $7.20 a share, in 1927.

Net profits of the McKeesport Tin Plate company and the Tin Plate Improvement company totaled $1,587,918, equivalent to $5.29 a common share. This compares with profits of $1,589,-832 in 1927.

The Mond Nickel Company, Ltd., which is being merged with the International Nickel Company of Canada, Ltd., reports net income of $2,738,762, equivalent to 58 cents a share, for the year ended April 30, 1928, compared with $1,824,731, or 22 cents a share in the previous year.

TRIBUNE WANT ADS BRING BETTER RESULTS

Because Almost Every Prospect Reads the TRIBUNE

824,000 people buy the Chicago Tribune every day—far more than buy any other standard-size daily newspaper in America. When it comes to people able to respond to your offers, the daily Tribune reaches 82% of all the residential telephone subscribers in the city of Chicago!*

On Sunday, when 1,251,000 families purchase the Sunday Tribune, its ability to cover the market for you is even more emphatic—because on Sunday 95% of the telephone subscribers in Chicago, almost the entire telephone group, are among its readers, while only 28% purchase the other Sunday paper regularly.*

Because it reaches so many more people than any other Chicago newspaper—because it reaches practically everyone with buying power enough to be worthwhile—the Tribune offers the strongest Chicago Want Ad Section. With the Tribune, you can place your offer before almost every family in the city of Chicago with money enough to accept it—and you need no other newspaper to help you. The Tribune, daily and Sunday, can do the job alone! Place your Want Ad now by calling—

BUTLER BROS. KEEPING STEP WITH CHANGES

Install New Methods of Selling.

goods. The sign at the side of the door read, "Butler Bros., Specialties in Small Wares." A third brother, Charles H. Butler, added his presence to the partnership in the fall of the same year.

Idea Is Successful.

The first innovation of the new firm was the "five cent counter" idea, which proved a great success. The partners expanded their business in 1878 by offering to the trade an assortment of five cent goods for $20 by way of a printed sheet. The idea of assembling a large variety of articles to sell at a uniform price was new and gained immediate favor throughout the country. This was the first important step in the establishment of the five and ten cent counter business out of which has come the present five and ten cent stores.

For two years Butler Bros. solicited its business through traveling salesmen but the $20 assortment of 5 cent goods was offered to the trade by mail on a postal card. The results were so gratifying that soon after the goods were offered on a printed circular and without prices. The success of various circulars revealed the possibility of developing a new and more economical method of wholesaling merchandise through the medium of printed matter, and this was the first wholesale mail order business established.

Acts for Firm.

On Feb. 5, 1879, Edward B. Butler acting for his firm, sold to Jason Bailey an $800 stock of five cent goods. Mr. Bailey opened a store on Tremont row, Boston. This was the first five cent store in America. The Bailey chain of five cent stores spread to Philadelphia and New York.

Butler Bros. opened their first house in Chicago on June 16 on Randolph street with Charles H. and Edward B. Butler in charge. In January of 1880 another branch was opened in New York. George H. Butler died in 1880, and Edward B. Butler took charge of the Chicago house, which has become the main stem, in 1881.

The company changed from a partnership to a corporation in 1887, with a number of those who shared in the success of the firm becoming original stockholders. In the intervening years a national wholesale distribution of merchandise covering 76 departments has been built up.

Add Salesmen.

After the war, however, with a change in merchandising methods the business of the company, along with that of other wholesalers, suffered. The company has made various changes to meet these conditions, principally through the organization of several leagues of merchants for the purpose of teaching better merchandising methods. Last year it added salesmen to its organization. These salesmen call on accounts not reached by the catalogue. The last step in the entrance into the chain store field.

INSTITUTE SEEKS TO REMEDY OIL OVERPRODUCTION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 23.—A determined effort to find a permanent solution of the problem of overproduction in the oil industry, not only in the United States, but also throughout the western hemisphere, has been started by the American Petroleum institute. This body last week announced the appointment of a committee on world production and consumption and is now arranging for a meeting of that committee at which it is expected a definite program of curtailment will be mapped out for submission to the various producing interests of the important oil countries.

The present movement is the first concerted attempt to bring about a general agreement on restriction of output. Previous efforts, confined to the United States, have met only with partial success. Nothing has been accomplished toward curtailment in Venezuela.

At this time the industry faces in the United States a scramble for oil, the like of which never has been witnessed. In various sections of the country there is going on what oil executive describe as the "greatest wildcatting campaign" in the history of the industry. Leading oil companies, most of which are participating in the curtailment movement and would welcome an effective curb on drilling operationes, are compelled by the present aggressive competition to take part in the intensive search for oil and the bidding for leases in favorable areas.

Move to Standardize Bank Checks Gets P. O. Support

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 23.—The movement to standardize bank checks and similar instruments, as fostered by the clearing house section of the American Bankers' association, the department of commerce, and other interests has gained the support of the United States postoffice through its agreement to sell window envelopes conformable to specifications requested by the standing committee having the standardization plan in charge, it is announced by F. W. Simmonds, deputy manager of the association. A recent government survey shows that, in respect to volume of printed forms produced, almost an 83 per cent adherence to the standards worked out four years ago has already been established among manufacturers, distributors, and users of bank checks, notes, drafts, and similar instruments, and the action of the postoffice department is expected to give added impetus to the movement, Mr. Simmonds says.

FINDS FURTHER LIQUIDATION OF LOANS REQUIRED

Review Discusses High Money Rates.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 23.—That the federal reserve member banks still lean too heavily on the reserve system in maintaining their reserve position, and that further liquidation of brokers' loans will be required to remove the loan factor from its influence in maintenance of high money rates, is pointed out in the monthly review of the National Bank of Commerce in New York.

The heavy volume of funds absorbed by the security markets and the firm money policy of the federal reserve system have been the principal influences creating firmness in money conditions since the turn of the year, the review states.

Sum Up Situation.

"The present situation may be summed up about as follows: Liquidation in member bank credits has not resulted in easing money conditions; gold imports have been offset by gold earmarkings; the member banks in the aggregate remain heavily indebted to the reserve banks and still lean too strongly on the federal reserve system in maintaining their reserve position, and the reserve system has continued to exercise its influence in the direction of firm money."

The review points out that "all other" loans, which include those for commercial purposes have shown the largest decrease since the turn of the year, dropping $500,000,000, while collateral loans dropped only $83,000,000.

Concerning the position of business, the review states: "Industrial activity is moving along steadily. Expansion is mainly of a seasonal nature, but considering the high basic level from which it is proceeding the present position is in general very satisfactory.

What View Is Based On.

There is some ground, however, for feeling that the current period of expansion may reach its culmination in the spring months. This view is based on the following more or less interrelated points:

1. The prolonged continuation of high money rates.
2. The temporary psychological effects which a sharp reaction in the speculative securities markets might have on business confidence.
3. The very high rates of production which the automotive industry has in view for the next several months—with a question whether there may not have to be a falling off in its activity thereafter.
4. An apparent moderate slowing down in construction.

CHICAGO BANK CLEARINGS

Chicago bank clearings last week totaled $668,500,000, a decline of $74,300,000 from the preceding week, but an increase of $126,200,000 over the corresponding period of last year. Balances totaled $63,500,000, a gain of $20,800,000 over the previous week, and an increase of $19,500,000 over the same week last year. The figures for the week, day by day [with the last three ciphers omitted], follow:

	Clearings.	Balances.
Monday	$122,000	$11,500

A Life of Happiness Health, Comfort and Prosperity!

More money after a few years than perhaps you have ever dreamt of in all your life.

What Some of Our Settlers Say—

We came down here in Sept. The baby, aged 6, had not done very well in Illinois, but she gained 9 pounds in a few months, and is just wonderfully healthy. The bus takes her to school and brings her home every day. We are crazy about the country and its money making opportunities.—A. J. Harty.

It seemed far away at first, but we turn on the radio and hear the people singing and talking in Chicago. This is God's country, and from what I positively know after five months' stay you couldn't get me to take a first class 200 acre farm for my 40 acres here.—George S. Wilson.

I was in the real estate business in Galesburg, Ill., for 38 years. I first told your representative I was not interested in leaving Galesburg, but after taking a trip to Gulfport I bought 40 acres, have plowed and planted a part already and am now building a house and am leaving next week to stay permanently.—C. A. White. (Mr. White, as a realtor, made a most careful investigation before deciding to settle.)

We Invite You As Our Guest

On an Excursion to Biloxi and Gulfport

Wanted

Three Kinds of Investors

We will sell only those who have seen the land personally, and only those who we believe intend to settle on this land themselves either this year or next year or at the latest in two years. We will not sell to those who we believe buy merely for speculation to sell to others.

Experience in horticulture is desirable, but not necessary. H. J. Marlowe and Company have an expert on the ground, living there, running an experimental grove. He will post you at the start on all the points on land development, on vegetables, pecans and horticulture in general. We hired that man because it's our business to help every settler who tries to make a success.

The three kinds of investors we want (all to be ultimately settlers not later than in two years) are:

First Kind—$950 Investors

Able, healthy, industrious men, probably those with families, though single men who have a good record can be included; men living up North as farmers or bookkeepers, clerks, small store owners, machinists, mechanics of all kinds, and who are willing to learn orchard growing. Such a man must have saved a little money or have a home or other investment on which he can raise some cash, as it takes $950 within a short time as first payment and first improvement on the land. And later, when he wants to develop the land, he must have enough more money to get his start, to buy trees, buy fertilizer, since he cannot cover his living expenses from the start. Close, careful economies required until you get into the bigger orchard money.

Second Kind—$3000 Investors

Men who own their own homes, have bonds or mortgages and can get together say $3000 to buy a good tract outright and then have some thousand dollars more to draw out of their homes or business or elsewhere within the next year or so. But if you are a retired gentleman and do not expect to do much of your own work then $5,000 and even more is nowhere near enough to see you through.

Third Kind—$25,000 Investors

Men who are worth from $25,000 to $100,000 or more who want to take it easy and live in a beautiful country and take their time about the development of an orchard. Such men should figure on hiring Southern help for the work while they manage and superintend.

We want you to see what kind of opportunities there are down there. No obligations in going. All we want to know is that you are seriously interested in settling there sooner or later. We pay all expenses of the trip except $35 excursion railroad fare, and this $35 is applied on the purchase in case you do buy. (Regular rate, including Pullman, is $93.22). The $35 is merely a good faith deposit to show you are serious. Pullman, berth, meals on trains, meals at Gulfport, automobiles, hotel accommodations, all other expenses are paid by us if we take you on this trip.

We do not take sight-seers, we do not take speculators who want to buy land and hold it for profit; we take only people who have the backbone and the nerve and the enterprise to figure upon leaving up North and going down where they hope (now remember, not at once, but in later years) to treble and quadruple their incomes.

Take time carefully to decide. But get your name in quickly so you can make a reservation if you wish. It's up to you to get started now on an investigation. Homes are being built; orchards are started. Settlers are coming in. Good roads are in on the tract; other roads being broken. Fewer than 200 tracts are left. See coupon below to get booklet.

You do not necessarily have to give up your present position at the start. You can have well known nurseries set out and care for various fruit and nut trees for you the first year or two. In the coming years, if properly cared for, they should give you an independent income. But we do not want you to get this offer unless you at least intend to settle on the land within one, two, at the latest, early in the third year.

We are located seven miles from the city limits of the rapidly growing city of Gulfport, Mississippi, and close to Biloxi, with over eleven miles of beautiful Biloxi River frontage and four miles east of the Lyman, and we immediately adjoin the great Swan orange grove.

Many Beautiful Trees

The banks of the river, close to your home, are lined with magnolias, live oaks, bay trees, etc. Your future home will be in an environment of comfort, far from the rigors of the northern climate, and yet being right near the ocean, the summers are relatively cool and the winters pleasant.

Many recreations can be enjoyed here twelve months of the year; also excellent fishing and hunting near by. Mr. Wage Earner, Professional and Business Man, think what this may mean — an opportunity to escape drudgery and to leave a heritage of independence to your children.

Certificate of Title is given you by the Magnolia State Guarantee Title and Abstract Company of Gulfport.

Just think! 40 acres of land costs less than a good city lot, and on liberal terms.

Mild Winters Cool Summers at the Gulf

Think Ahead Ten Years!

Ten years more running a small business that may go downward? Or

Ten years more hard work in an office or in a factory and then "sick" or a "little too old" and the job is gone with nothing to live on?

Or otherwise.

Ten years now on land that becomes your own, land that works for you; freedom and independence!

Which is your choice? Have you the initiative to take the few moments right now to investigate?

We do not ask you to buy—in fact, we do not permit you to buy unless we believe that this or next year, or at the latest in two years, you intend at least to settle on the land. We only ask you to investigate, to verify the facts! Find out if this is your chance of a lifetime. We take you to Gulfport as our guest. See with your own eyes what we are offering. This land produces 3 crops in one year!

Expert Will Guide You

We have engaged a salaried expert on horticulture and vegetable growing, a man trained for this particular soil and district. He lives on the ground. Without charging one cent he is now helping the settlers who are already there. He will likewise co-operate with you—give you expert growing and developing advice—guide you carefully to get the right start. Remember—we have fewer than 200 tracts that we can get on this offer.

Think What This May Mean!

A future! An income investment, plus health and happiness for your family. Send coupon for booklet. Lose no time. Booklet free.

The Illinois Central Says:

In general about lands in Southern Mississippi with a reference to the great Swan Grove which immediately adjoins our land.

SATSUMA ORANGES

Many varieties of fruit grow in the Gulf Coast section of South Mississippi, including oranges, kumquats, satsumas, Japanese persimmons and figs, all of which are grown on a commercial scale.

The satsuma, or "kid glove orange," has proven very profitable. It grows along a narrow coastal strip from the Gulf northward about forty miles. This brings the present northern limit of the satsuma orange belt up around Wiggins and Lumberton, Mississippi.

The lowest satsuma price ever recorded in this section was $1.55 per box. It generally runs from $2.50 to more than $3.00 per box. They can be produced for $1.00 per box.

There are many production records in this section. Here are a few which may be verified:

One 4½-acre grove gave a gross return of $3,500, with an average price of $3.00 per box.

A 10-acre grove gave a gross return of $10,000.

A grove sold for $5,000, and the following season the fruit sold for $5,000, and the second season it brought $9,000.

An orchard of 6,500 trees produced 1,975 boxes of marketable fruit the fourth year.

The W. W. Swan Company believes that a man planting 15 acres in satsumas, with 5 acres for a home site, would be independent in 10 years, if he cared for his satsuma trees as he should.

PEACHES

Soil and climatic conditions are very favorable to the profitable production of peaches in South Mississippi. Rapid, efficient transportation insures a quick and even distribution of the fruit. The long growing season and the short, mild winter greatly minimize the danger from frost.

The abundant sunshine in South Mississippi gives the peaches grown in that section a beautiful and almost perfect coloration. The quality of the fruit is good and it stands up well under long shipments. Gulf Coast peaches ripen and usually go to market ten days earlier than peaches from adjoining sections. This is an advantage to the grower in South Mississippi, as his peaches reach the markets of the North with little or no competition.

The peach crop in South Mississippi is not a "get rich quick" proposition, but it does furnish a steady, profitable and ever increasing income year after year. It never misses a crop in this section, and the person who follows the industry in an intelligent and constructive manner will be well rewarded for his efforts.

Thousands of acres of land, particularly adapted to the growing of peaches, are available at attractively low prices.

There are a number of Mennonite families about two miles west of Lyman, Mississippi,* and each family has a beautiful peach orchard of from one to three acres. They have Mayflower and some of the earlier varieties. Their orchards have proven very profitable and will be enlarged.

Dr. J. C. Gardner of Columbia, Mississippi, has a very promising young peach orchard. He has six acres in Carmen, four acres in Elberta, and seven acres in Hiley, all four years old and bearing. He also has 2,800 one-year-old trees. His 1925 crop brought slightly over $2,500, and the gross returns should be greater this year as all the trees come into bearing.

STRAWBERRIES

The Mississippi Gulf Coast section seems to be the natural home of the strawberry. It is easily grown, prolific and profitable in this territory. The berry from this section goes on the market about two weeks before berries from any adjoining sections, and this insures a good price and little or no competition. The crop is steady and regular and there is very little danger of frost.

Two cents per pint is the standard price paid pickers in this section and a plentiful supply of labor is available at all times. The 24-pint crate is the standard package used by most of the growers.

F. D. Antonio of Gulfport, Mississippi, shipped 827 crates from an eight-acre field and sold 50 crates locally. His highest price was $5.17, his lowest price $1.41, and his average for the season was $2.50 per crate.

D. Bone, near Lyman, Mississippi, had a two-acre strawberry patch in the pink of condition. He shipped 257 crates and sold approximately 100 crates locally.

GRAPES

The grape industry has proven most profitable in South Mississippi. The old overhead trellis has given way to the modern three-wire vertical trellis, which permits sunshine to penetrate into the interior of the vine thus giving even and uniform ripening. This trellis makes cultivation, fertilization, spraying and picking much easier.

Practically all of the land in the Gulf Coast section is adapted to the growing of grapes. Soil fertility, drainage and climatic conditions blend into a desirable combination for this type of fruit.

BERRIES

Blueberries, blackberries and raspberries do well in the Gulf Coast section of South Mississippi. There is a good local demand for these fruits and they are worthy of the serious consideration of every land owner, even though they are intended just for home use.

PECANS

The pecan which has been grown and developed in the South Mississippi section is the most delicious and profitable fruit in the entire nut family. Nature did a good job in this section when she blended the soil, sunshine and rainfall in such proportions as to invite the profitable production of this valuable crop. Man with his scientific knowledge has co-operated with nature in developing new and outstanding varieties suited to this vast and practically undeveloped South Mississippi section.

Pecan trees will live and continue to bear for over 100 years, and gradually get better and more profitable all the time. The real life of the tree is still unknown. Some authorities say it will bear from 3 to 500 years.

* * *

Mr. W. F. Gifford of Long Beach, Mississippi, did not have quite an acre of these large pecan trees but got $625.

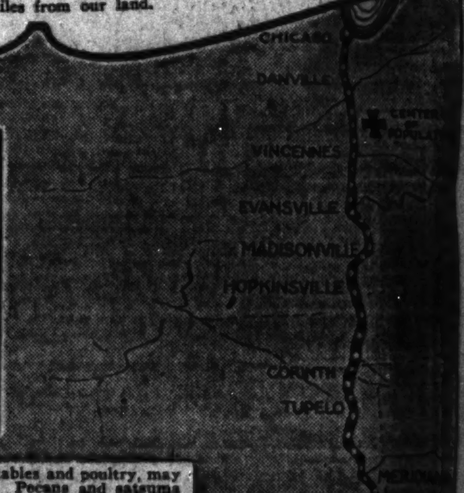
Mr. I. H. Bass of Lumberton, Mississippi, has a commercial orchard just coming into bearing. He has refused $1,000 per acre for this orchard. He has some trees which he stated a $500 bill would not buy.

* * *

The South Mississippi section seems to be the natural home of the pecan. It has been conceded by pecan authorities that this section is the home of more fine varieties of paper-shell pecans than the rest of the world combined.

*This is four miles from our land.

FIRST YEARS: While building up a grove, a living is being made by growing truck for fall, winter and early spring markets of the north; poultry and berries sold locally are also advocated. Planting of fruit trees.



3D YEAR: Orchard, besides vegetables and poultry, may now begin to bring some revenues. Pecans and satsuma orange trees have also been planted, and success seems well under way.

5TH AND 6TH YEAR: With the grove bearing oranges, pears and peaches, also grapefruit, kumquats, figs and other varieties of fruit have started we hope that your efforts have put you on the road to independence, superior comforts, a rich, happy life.

6TH to 10TH YEAR and thereafter. Full development of the grove and independence is the goal you have sought. Fruit trees, pecans, berries! The figures of yield per acre given by many people are so fabulous we do not even care to quote them here—find out for yourself by going down there and talking to people who have made a success! Send for additional information now!

Outdoor comfort in winter! And so cool, relatively, in mid-summer, thanks to ocean breezes. No northern "dog days" in a Gulfport summer.

The Gulfport Chamber of Commerce Says:

H. J. Marlowe & Company,
504-506 South Wabash Avenue,
Chicago, Illinois

Gentlemen: It affords me very much pleasure to commend your company in the manner they are developing the property now known as the "Gulfport Farms Development." This property is splendidly located in the center of a rapidly developing community and on account of its close proximity to Gulfport, being about seven miles from the limits and seven miles from the beach boulevard, affords convenient and rapid accessibility to all parts of the country over good highways, some of which are graveled into your property.

I notice with great interest the number of new people who have located on your property and the industrious manner in which they have gone about building nice little homes and the cultivation of their property.

Your property is very productive as is borne out by the fact, the potatoes grown on your demonstration, having taken the blue ribbons and cash prizes at our recent Gulf Coast Fair.

I trust your success in bringing actual settlers to this vicinity will prevail and you can just assured the cooperation of our organization is always at your service.

Very truly yours,
CHAMBER OF COMMERCE,
C. C. Prescott,
Managing-Director

Authoritative Booklet

Full of Important Information

Remember—there is only one step to take right now—to ask for a booklet that gives further facts.

If you are interested, do not wait around and think about it—waiting around has lost a man many a chance. We do not expect you, we do not want you to do anything that affects your life until you have most thoroughly considered everything; but the only man we want is the man who acts when he has considered. Now consider whether or not you might be interested in moving south this year or next year and taking up gardening, poultry, and horticulture for a living, and if you might, then waste no time, but get more facts by reading that booklet—a booklet published by railroads and firms of the highest standing—read the list of these in the next column.

Free on Request Published by the South Mississippians, Inc., an organization of railroads, business men and others interested in getting settlers into this wonderful country. Here are some of the names of members shown on the letterhead:

HAIL, CHESTER HALE! The eight pictured are one of his rapidly-multiplying units of dancers; there's a unit in "Music in May;" there was one in "The Red Robe" last autumn, and another was in the Greenwich Village Follies last summer.

MISS BARBARA STANWYCK was in Chicago in the autumn in "Burlesque," wherein, as Bonnie, she had her second important part after forsaking the cabarets for the stage.

MISS RUBY SPENCER is remembered from the Chicago run of "My Maryland" and for her singing on W-G-N special nights. She is reported by Miss May Dowling as ambitious for opera.

MISS HELEN GILLILAND was in Chicago in the autumn in "The Red Robe," and has since scored heavily in that operetta in New York. She is from England.

LORETTA YOUNG is one of the prettiest and most capable of the 1929 Wampas stars. This is her latest photograph.

JOSEPH SCHILDKRAUT plays Ravenal in Universal's screenization of "Show Boat." You may not think he looks something grand here, but what is writing does think so!

DOLORES DEL RIO is here seen wearing a tea gown designed by a famous French dressmaker. It is of black chiffon with four flounces and a short train. The hat is of black felt, embroidered with pearls. The veil is of tulle.

INSTANT SLEEP

Now Utterly Without Drugs

Recommended by Doctors the World Over

New Energy, New Vitality, Fewer Nerves Tomorrow

ACCEPT 3-DAY SUPPLY

YOU fall asleep almost instantly you go to bed. And all the next day, teem with new energy and "pep." You look and feel like a different person.

On doctors' advice, millions employ this new way. For it is as free of drugs as the bread you eat or the milk you drink. And does far more than simply induce sleep! It rebuilds your wasted tissues while you sleep.

What It Is

It is called Ovaltine; a scientific food concentrate developed in Switzerland by a scientist of world-fame. You take it in a cup of warm milk at bedtime; a super-delicious drink.

First it induces sleep; sound, natural sleep. The kind that rebuilds and rejuvenates.

Then while you sleep, Ovaltine re-supplies your system with the energy lost the previous active day. For it contains practically every building element necessary to life and energy, in a form which the human system can easily absorb while you sleep.

You can take it night after night and not only not form a habit, as with drugs, but build up your health as well.

Do you wonder then, that people are flocking to its use? New to America, Ovaltine is being recommended by over 20,000 doctors. Used for 30 years in Europe, its use has spread to over 54 different nations. It marks one of the most important scientific findings of its time.

Accept Test

Doctors urge it not only for sleeplessness, but for all nervous and run-down conditions. They recommend it, too, for nervous, underweight children. Thousands of busy people take it during the day, to relieve fatigue. A few weeks' use will make an amazing difference in the way you feel.

Believe or not what people claim for Ovaltine. Try it. Obtain at any drug or grocery store, or use coupon for special 3-day test.

moderne Black and Pearl

Captivates the world on sight, $7.50, $8.50 and $10

Look now on the sovereign of the whole pen world—Parker's new Duofold DE LUXE—sea-pearl combined with jet black Permanite. Not only a fine pen, but a jewel. As moderne as the moment and the mode. *Guaranteed forever against all defects.

This is the same imperial pen that captivated Paris on sight. So with all the great capitals of the world.

Now the better pen counters in your city have it. Step in and see how its extra large luxurious point writes with Pressureless Touch—Geo. S. Parker's 47th improvement in 37 years. Poise this pen's silvery, luminous barrel in your hand—a barrel 28% lighter than rubber, and also non-breakable.

In Ink Capacity, Parker Duofold, size for size, exceeds by accurate test five other standard pens. It exceeds the average by 24%.

The only thing to match it in beauty and writing luxury is the Duofold Pencil De Luxe. People who can afford the best will naturally want to own the genuine. So look for the imprint—"Geo. S. Parker —DUOFOLD."

Prices—Pens: Senior, $10; Junior, $8.50; Juniorette or Lady, $7.50. Pencils: $5, $4, and $3.50, according to size. Metal case included with single Pen, or Pen and Pencil Duette.

Crabmeat Canape Tierney

Shred ½-lb. tin Japanese Crabmeat, Three Diamond brand preferred, grind ½ lb. cream cheese or pimento cheese through meat grinder. Grind some stale bread crusts through meat grinder, about a small pie tin full. Make a white sauce as follows: 2 tablespoons flour; 2 tablespoons melted butter; ½ teaspoon salt; make a paste; stir into this 1½ cups scalded milk.

Toast four slices of bread. Spread same with Norwegian Anchovie Paste. Take 1-lb. tin of French mushrooms. Rinse and cut in halves lengthwise. Take Casserole dish; cover bottom with toast cut into squares; pour over a little white sauce; then make a layer of crabmeat; layer of cheese; layer of mushrooms; layer of toast; layer of crabmeat; layer of cheese; layer of mushrooms.

Pour over the balance of the white sauce and put the bread crumbs on top. Put on top of bread crumbs a few pieces of butter. Cover casserole dish and bake in a medium oven until golden brown. When serving use Crosse & Blackwell Walnut Catsup, to be used the same as tomato catsup. This is a delicious dish and enough to serve four people large portions, or six people ordinary portions.

Marie Earle

Basic Treatment is obviously the simplest

YET it is effective because the Marie Earle Preparations are so extravagantly good. They are made today with the same costly care which has been lavished on all the Marie Earle Preparations from the very beginning. The Essential Cream, for instance, the most luxurious cream in the world, has a texture like honey, instead of grease.

And this is the simple Marie Earle Basic Treatment. You cleanse your skin first with Essential Cream. Apply the same cream again to nourish the skin, with a dash of Cucumber Emulsion (right on top of the cream) to increase absorption. Smooth these gently over your face and neck, wipe away what remains. And conclude with a dash of Soothing Freshener Lotion.

All the Marie Earle Preparations (including the new powder!) are distinguished for their quality and effectiveness.

A full and complete line of the Marie Earle Preparations may be obtained at all smart down-town shops.

Why this penetrating foam

CLEANS WHERE TOOTHBRUSH CANNOT REACH

In a dramatic way science now proves what millions of people know—that Colgate's cleans teeth better.

A scientist recently made an important experiment with toothpastes.

He measured their power to penetrate the thousands of tiny crevices which are found in normal, healthy teeth and gums.

He found that some dentifrices merely scrub the outer surfaces of the teeth. Others go partly down into the larger crevices.

*Then he discovered that Colgate's has a higher penetrating power than any of the leading dentifrices on the market today.

This is the secret of Colgate's remarkable ability to clean—it gets down deep into the hard-to-clean places where the toothbrush cannot reach; where ordinary toothpastes do not go.

Colgate's penetrating power is due to the fact that it contains the world's greatest cleansing agent.

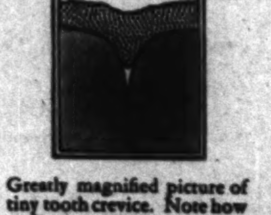
When brushed, this cleansing agent instantly bursts into a sparkling, snow-white foam that surges over teeth and gums. This foam possesses a remarkable property (low "surface-tension") which enables it to go deep down into the tiny tooth crevices where decay may start. There, it dislodges clinging food particles and mucin, sweeping away these impurities in a detergent wave.

In this foam is carried a fine chalk powder—a polishing agent prescribed by dentists—which polishes the enamel safely, brilliantly.

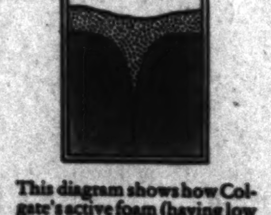
Thus Colgate's cleans and beautifies; purifies and refreshes the entire mouth restoring natural loveliness of teeth and gums.

If you have never used Colgate's, please try it. Mail the coupon below for a generous free tube.

How Colgate's cleans where toothbrush cannot reach*



Greatly magnified picture of tiny tooth crevice. Note how ordinary, sluggish toothpaste (having high "surface-tension") fails to penetrate down where decay may start.



This diagram shows how Colgate's active foam (having low "surface-tension") penetrates deep down into the crevice, cleansing it completely where the toothbrush cannot reach.

WALL-TEX
Durable Wall Covering

In this delightful room, the walls have a distinction which increases their beauty. They are covered with Wall-Tex, the strong decorative fabric. It will not crack like paper. It can be washed like paint. It adds strength to new plaster, and conceals the cracks in old plaster—on walls and ceilings alike.

Wall-Tex comes in many lovely patterns, to match any style of furnishing, and to harmonize with any color scheme. Suitable for dining-rooms, living-rooms, bedrooms, nurseries, kitchens and baths.

There are plain whites which make an ideal foundation for the modern painted and applied finishes so popular this year. Wall-Tex will add lasting charm to any room in a home. Years of wear will show its great economy. Your decorator or dealer will gladly show you the newest Wall-Tex patterns. Write your name and address on margin of this page and send for illustrated folder, "The Modern Trend in Wall Coverings." The Columbus-Union Oil Cloth Company, Columbus, Ohio.

Hursen Opens Funeral Palace of the World

At 1820 So. Michigan Avenue (South Side)

YES, "1820 So. Michigan Ave." now leads the world! This famous mansion has made history in Chicago. It has been for years one of the 3 great Hursen funeral-establishments in this city.

These three, one each on the South, West and North Sides, have always been accepted as the very last word in elegance, in massiveness of space, in unusual funeral-home facilities.

Famous "1820" was originally one of the most magnificent mansions ever built on "Boul Mich." Its mezzanine floors, art galleries, vaulted ceilings, balconies, rare woods, fine carvings, spacious interiors, all made it one of the great rendezvous for Chicago's elite in earlier days.

From this historic place have been conduc in later years many of the most important funerals ever held in Chicago. It has been recently enlarged and remodeled, with most of its early magnificence preserved, to keep pace with the ever-growing fame of "Hursen's."

The entire business district downtown and every corner of Chicago's south, southeast and southwest sides are quickly served from this south side funeral-home. For the use of any one of the magnificent chapels or of the finely appointed family and society rooms and salons, in any one of the 3 Hursen funeral-homes, there is no charge whatever!

Hursen funerals are recognized by the unusual magnificence of the specially-built Hursen-Lincoln automobile equipment. Finally, the charges for Hursen funerals are but a fraction of those made elsewhere. So, call Hursen, of course!

From Berlin comes this
[Schlankheitsbad]

THE famous Slim Figure Bath that became the sensation of Europe almost overnight, is now on sale in America! It brings to you the same pleasant, harmless method of reducing your weight that has proved so amazingly successful abroad.

German and English Physicians Pronounce It Absolutely Harmless

Before the first package was sold in Germany, tens of thousands were used in clinical tests by prominent Berlin physicians. The moment Dr. Paul Mueller, official Chief Chemist of the Berlin Chamber of Commerce, and Dr. G. Braun pronounced it absolutely harmless and effective, a wave of Slim Figure Bathing swept over the whole Continent. Millions of packages have been sold in a very few months. In England, the medical profession openly endorses it.

No Dieting or Exercise Necessary

This strange, new, non-salt bath that scorns diet and exercise to get results, immediately began taking off weight. Not in a few cases, but in hundreds of thousands. Men and women alike. In many instances, where other methods had been tried, the Slim Figure Bath was the first and only one to actually take off fat.

LESSER, the Slim Figure Bath, is not a salt—but a strictly cosmetic preparation. It is new in principle—new in action—new in effect. By conserving the heat of the body and by encouraging the action of the whole inner system, it invigorates as it reduces. You can ascertain this reduction after each bath!

A Most Exquisite Beauty Bath

But LESSER is more than a reducing bath. It has proved to be a most remarkable skin beautifier. Sallow skin is made clear and lovely. Thousands use it for that alone. Its dainty scent lingers on the body, giving a delightful feeling of sweet cleanliness.

Proved in American Hospital

LESSER, the Slim Figure Bath, was given thorough scientific testing in one of America's foremost and best equipped hospitals. The average loss of weight was nearly two pounds per bath—and in no case was any possibility of harm observed. Try Lesser Bathing yourself—today—and let your scales measure its benefit!

Here is Our Special 10-Day Trial Offer

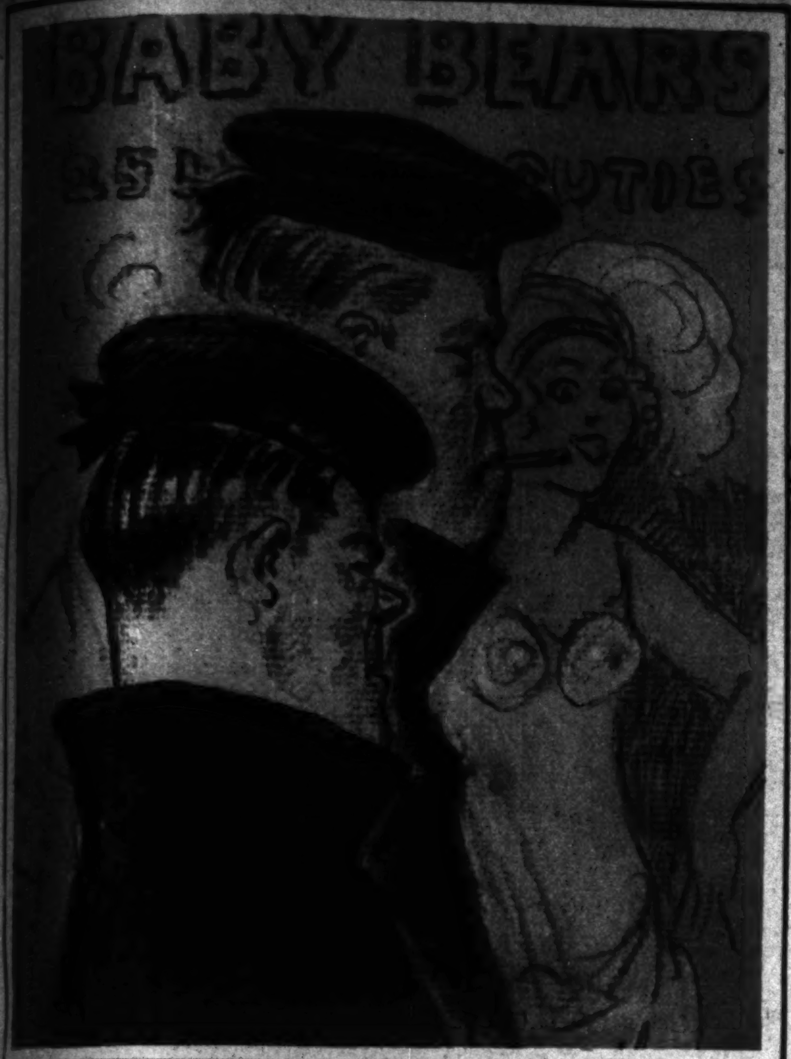
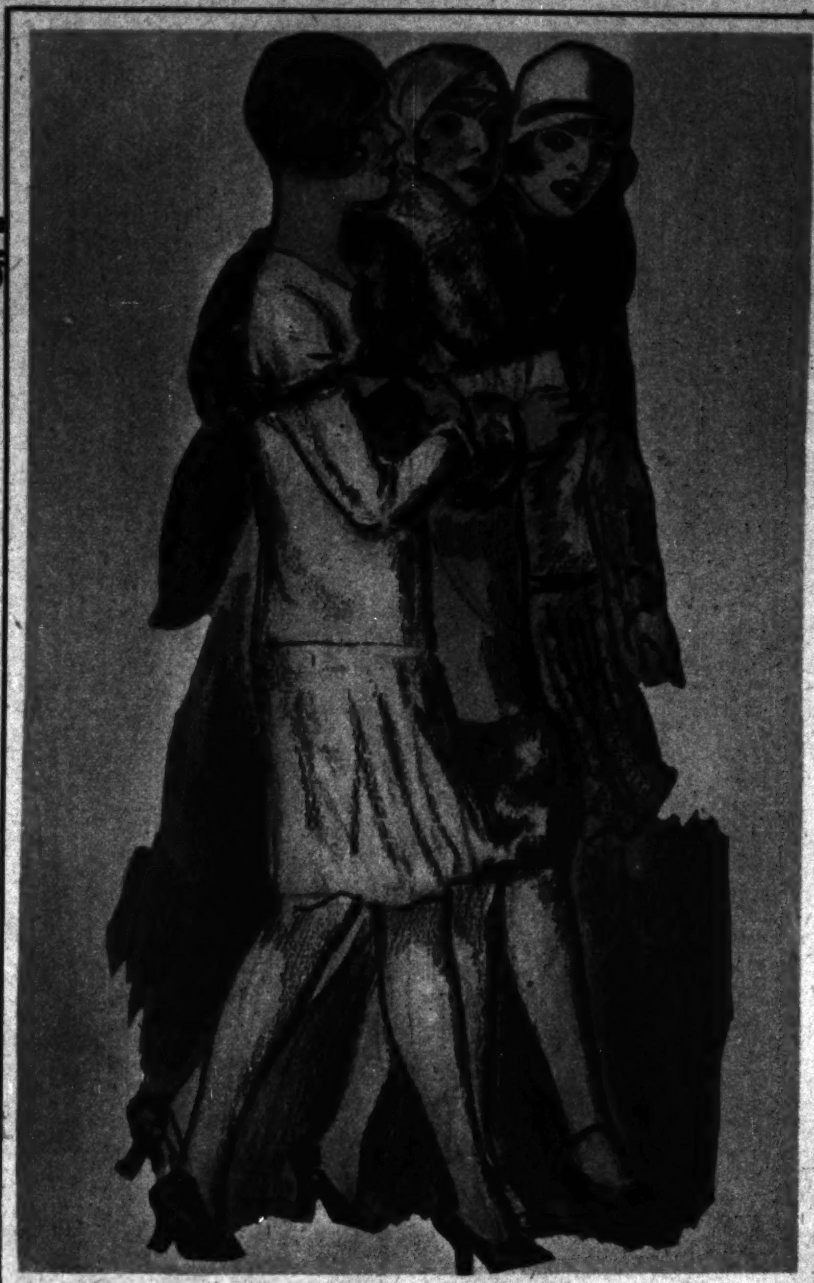
The Complete Theater Goer

By W. E. Hill

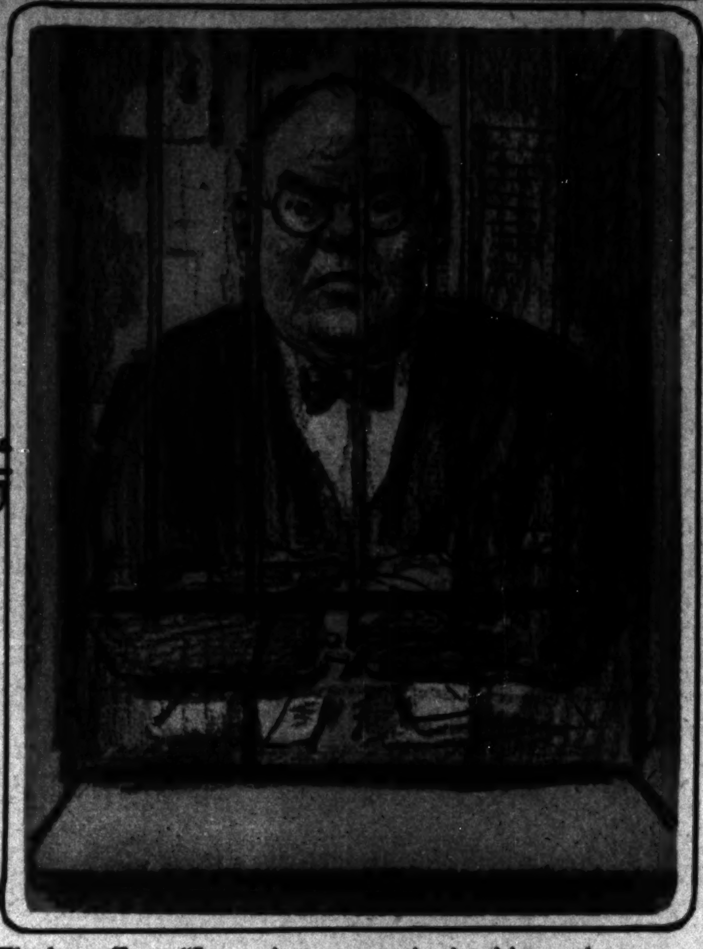
[Copyright: 1929: By The Chicago Tribune.]



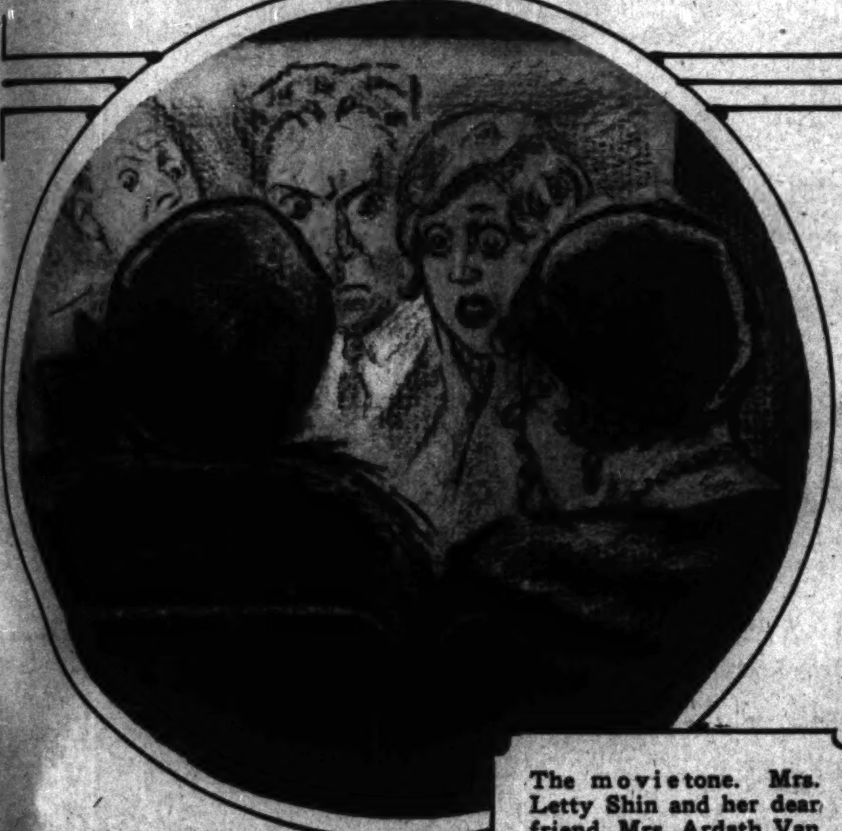
Burlesque. Bud and Pete are about to enter the portals of the Novelty the-ayter, where the Baby Bears, featuring Margy (Hotsey-Totsey) Romayne and her twenty dimpled pepper pots, are holding their own.



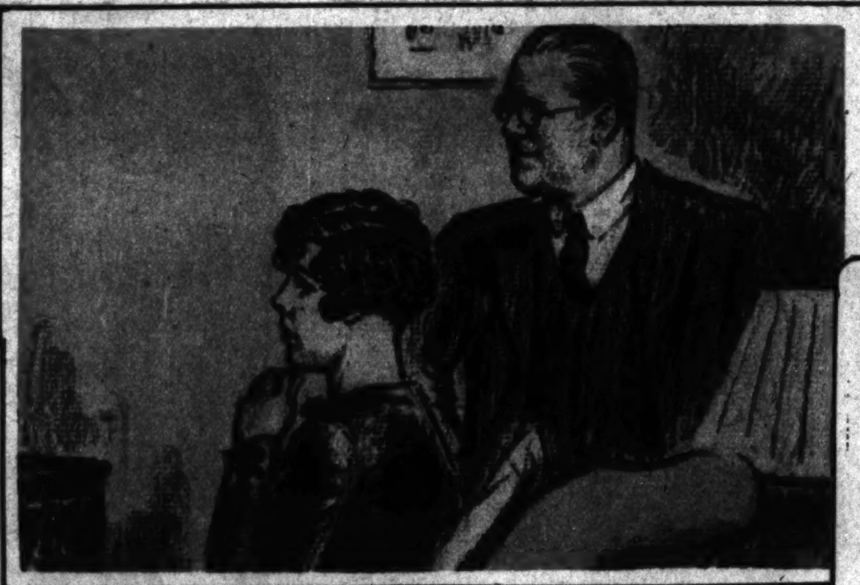
Musical comedy. Mabel and Irene and Babe are stenogs and like a good musical play once in a while—something cute about a poor little girl who marries a rich young man, with the last act set showing a Long Island estate all lit up for a bal masque.



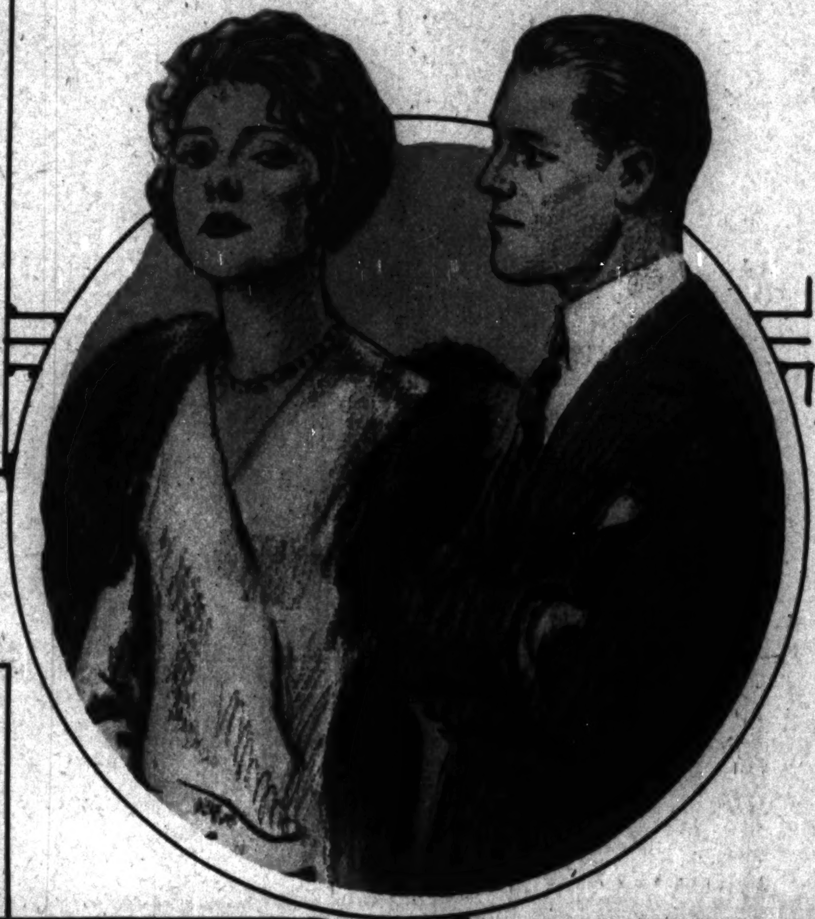
The box office. "I can give you two in the thirteenth row on the side—or I can give you two nice ones in W right in the center."



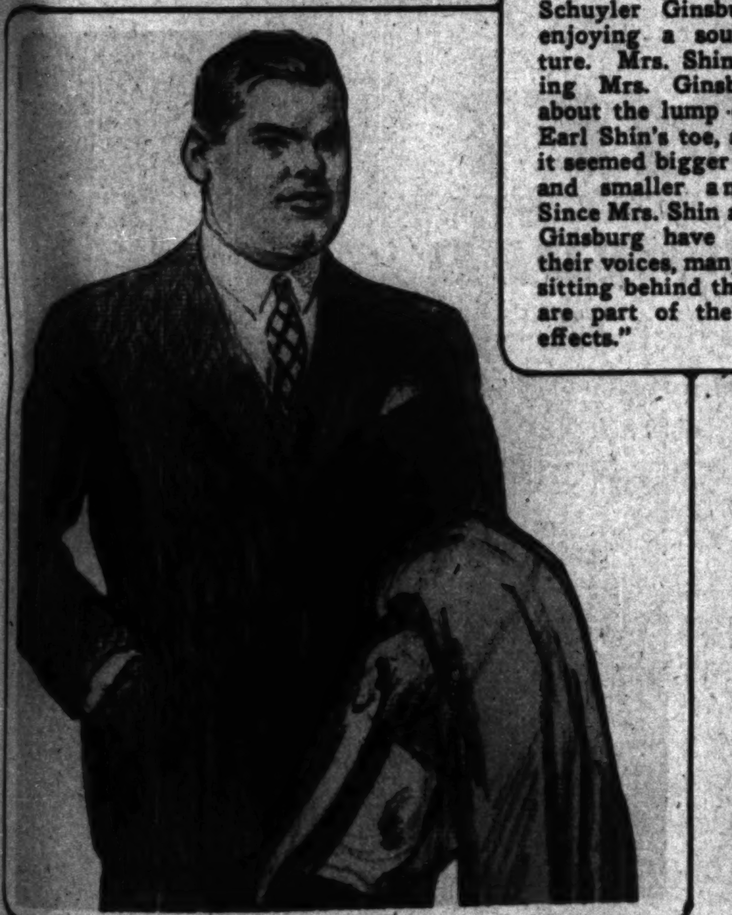
The movietone. Mrs. Letty Shin and her dear friend, Mrs. Ardath Van Schuyler Ginsburg, are enjoying a sound picture. Mrs. Shin is telling Mrs. Ginsburg all about the lump on little Earl Shin's toe, and how it seemed bigger one day and smaller another. Since Mrs. Shin and Mrs. Ginsburg have to raise their voices, many people sitting behind think they are part of the "sound effects."



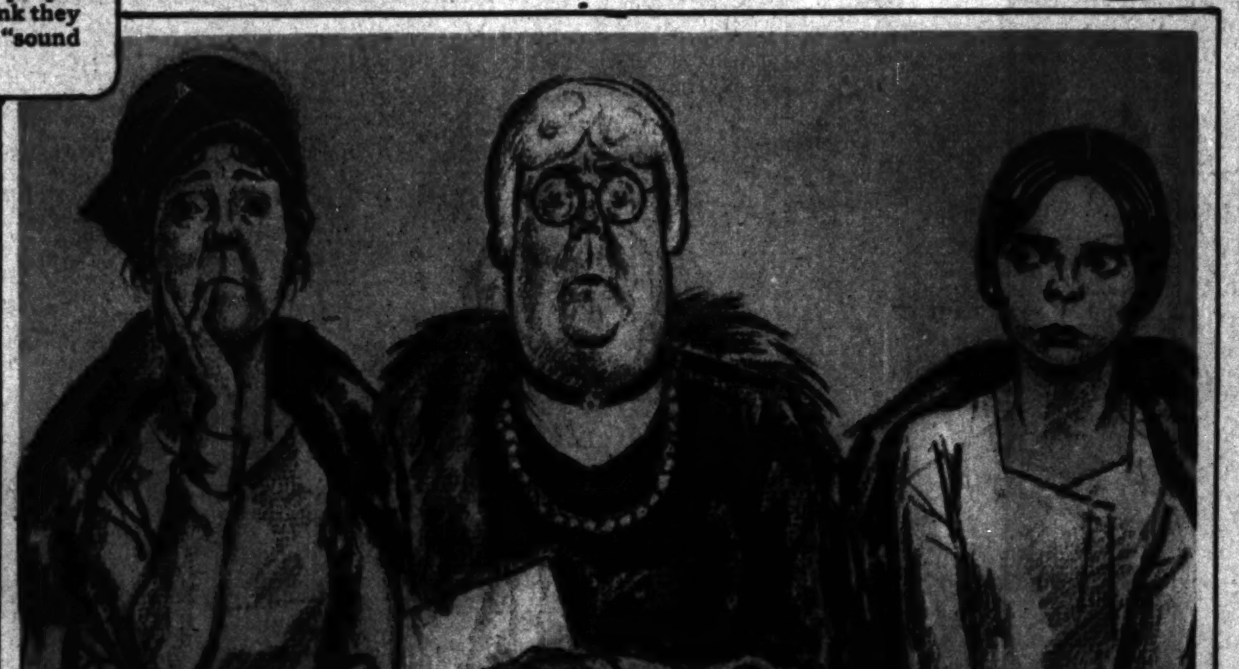
Abie's Irish Rose. Mr. and Mrs. Art Steponit love their radio and often listen in of an evening to the broadcasting of a play—but they seldom go to a show unless something good, like "Abie's Irish Rose," comes along.



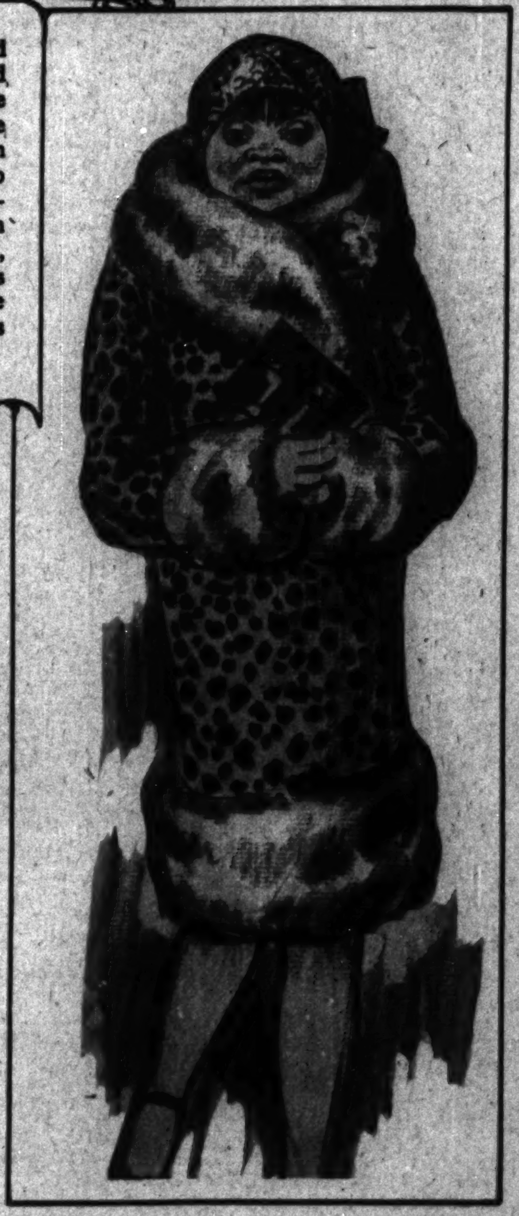
The thriller. Archie and Annabelle like a good mystery play—"The Speckled Claw" or "The Crunch" or "The Scream in the Space," just to mention a few old favorites. Something with reaching out of hands, trapdoors, and groans from overhead while lightning flashes hits them just about right.



The big girl show. Harry is in town to lend his boyish charm to the insurance convention, and you can bet he's going to see the biggest girl show there is to be seen, probably the 1929 edition of "Nights in Gay Paree," which advertises eighty-eight artists' models undraped. A seat down front will set Harry back 14 bucks.



The Theater guild on tour. Harriet is great on the intellectual drama, and can quote whole pages of Shaw and Galsworthy and Dos Passos. Naturally, when "The Strange Interlude" came to town Harriet was wild to go, even if it seemed best to prepare a box lunch for the intermission. So Harriet and her mamma and Aunt Sadie Onset all went to see "The Strange Interlude," and here they are—mamma and Aunt Sadie Onset baffled and shocked and Harriet worried over the outcome.



The all-colored revue. Frances has been to a performance of "The Darktown Dandies" and was not a little shocked at the costumes on some of the girls. Frances is a great stickler for the conventions.

A Good Digestion

means a good complexio

The lovely charm of a good complexion is priceless. And the statement that beauty is only skin deep is erroneous — for the smooth, natural beauty of a velvet skin comes from within — it is nature's own gift to those who eat properly balanced foods—foods that are easily digested.

Foods that are properly leavened with —

CALUMET
THE WORLD'S GREATEST

are always raised high and light which means perfect digestion. The double leavening action of Calumet does this. One leavening unit begins to work when the dough is mixed — the other waits for the heat of the oven, then both units work together.

Bakings made with CALUMET supply the proper nourishment for the body — they tempt the appetite with their purity and delicious flavor.

For over a third of a century this greatest of all leaveners has been winning the favor of America's housewives — and today it is the preference wherever bakings are made and enjoyed.

CALUMET CHOCOLATE CAKE

- 3-4 cup shortening
- 1 1-4 cups sugar
- 2 1-2 level teaspoons Calumet Baking Powder
- 1-8 level teaspoon salt
- 2 1-2 cups sifted flour
- 3-4 cup milk
- 4 eggs

Cream shortening, add sugar, then add well beaten egg yolks. Mix and sift dry ingredients and add alternately with milk to first mixture. One-half teaspoon of vanilla may be added. Fold in beaten egg whites. Pour into greased tins and bake in a moderate oven (325°-350° F.) thirty minutes.

CHOCOLATE FROSTING

- 3 1-2 squares unsweetened chocolate
- 2 cups powdered sugar
- 5 tablespoons milk
- Yolks of 2 eggs
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

Melt chocolate over hot water, add one-half the sugar, and milk; add remaining sugar, and yolk of egg; then cook in double boiler until it thickens, stirring constantly at first, that the mixture may be perfectly smooth. Cool slightly, flavor and spread.

LESS THAN 1¢ PER BAKING

Calumet is economical because one spoonful equals two of many other brands. It goes farther—lasts longer—the last spoonful is as good as the first.

The whites of more than 6,500,000 eggs are used in the manufacture of Calumet, the World's Greatest Baking Powder, each year, and over 1½ billion pounds of flour are leavened with it.

"In Holeproof, I feel I am adding to my ensemble the subtlest, the smartest hosiery that can be had"

MRS. MORGAN BELMONT

America's best dressed women

acclaim the smartness of this beautiful hosiery

"I go to the important openings in Paris and New York . . . . I follow the new trends at Palm Beach, on the Riviera and at Newport until I know . . . . know at a glance . . . . . the smart hat, frock or wrap.

"But to make certain of the correct gradations of color in one's hosiery—that is a different matter . . . . and a vital one.

"I have found the solution by making my selection from the wide choice of shades offered by Holeproof Hosiery. Not only are these stockings exquisitely beautiful, but their colors, created by Lucile of Paris, are always authentic.

"In Holeproof Hosiery I feel I am adding to my ensemble the subtlest, the smartest hosiery that can be had."

Margaret Belmont

Women, whose choice of dress accessories denotes a fine sense of discrimination, instinctively turn to Holeproof for the shades that harmonize best with the mode. Color in hosiery is not a chance conception in Holeproof. Keyed by authority to the ensemble, it becomes really style.

LITTLE BARBARA'S mother, Mrs. Diven of Anderson, Indiana, says that often children suffer needlessly from rough, reddened skin when parents think it something else. An application of Dr. Campana's Italian Balm will soothe and heal baby's tender skin quickly. During the first year especially, Italian Balm is a blessing in the house where there is a baby. Its stingless, pure, soothing qualities are ideal in treating sensitive skin. Approved by Good Housekeeping. For sale at drug and department stores—thirty-five cent and sixty cent bottles. Free travel size on request to Campana Corporation, Twenty Lincoln Way, Batavia, Illinois.

Mercolized Wax Keeps Skin Young

Do you know that just beneath that soiled, discolored, faded or aged complexion is one fair to look upon? Nature causes the normal skin to peel off in tiny, unseen, flour-like particles, a little each day, renewing the complexion of youth naturally, but there comes a time when this skin shedding slows up. Worry, overwork, sickness, inactivity are reasons that cause the face to be blotchy, discolored, pimply and old looking. The thing to do, if you wish to look your prettiest at all times, is to assist nature in the process of absorption by using pure Mercolized Wax. Get an ounce at any drug store or beauty counter and use as directed. It gently but surely peels away the outer scarf skin, removing freckles, pimples, blackheads or a muddy complexion. The underneath skin, now in evidence, is clear, pink, fresh and velvety, and the entire face looks years younger. Mercolized Wax brings out the hidden beauty.

To quickly remove wrinkles and other age lines we recommend a face lotion of unusual merit. One ounce powdered saxolite and one-half pint witch hazel.

"He blackmailed me . . . While Lepean lives we are in danger . ."

MAJOR PREECE was shocked at the letter. And then—Lieutenant Lepean was found, murdered in his sleep! Wrongfully accused of the foul deed, Hugh Preece becomes entangled in an amazing net of treachery and mystery.

"TREES TO TRIBUNES"

AND here is the fourth page of pictures depicting the making of a great newspaper.

In the wilderness, where the Tribune begins, there is high romance, bitter tragedy, deeds of heroism. Let Quin Ryan tell you about it tonight

On W-G-N at 9:45 P. M.

We're drawing back the curtain, showing you what's "behind the scenes." By controlling its sources of raw material, by operating its own timberlands, paper mills, ink plants, etc., the Tribune is able to give both reader and advertiser greater value. How do you like this "Trees to Tribunes" series?

① YOUR TRIBUNE STARTS! A Tribune lumberjack at work. Note the low spot on the log at which he is chopping. "Cut low!" the Tribune has told him—it means hundreds of thousands of feet of pulpwood saved every year.

The Romance of Newspaper-Making

A PRIEZ POUR EUX

This stone tablet in the church at Shelter Bay, commemorates the tragedy of the "Amarita." Its simple words epitomize the heroism of Tribunites who bring out timber.

⑥ TRAGEDY IN THE WILDERNESS. Shelter Bay knew woe and heartache on November 13, 1922, when the launch "Amarita," chugging up Lac Pasteur in the dead of night, encountered thin, rapidly-forming ice, sharp as a razor. The prow of the craft was ripped and it sank to the bottom, carrying with it those on board, ten in all. Above are shown the propeller of the "Amarita" and a portion of a seat from the boat, dredged from the bottom of the lake.

② SAWYERS AT WORK. After the small notch has been cut, the lumberjacks ply the saw. A small notch—a deep sawcut—down crashes a stalwart of the forest.

③ "SKIDDING." Bringing logs down one by one from the tip of a gully. Horses pull each log down. The rough, steep, slippery surface of the skidway makes this a difficult task.

⑦ 2,700 SQUARE MILES OF TRIBUNE TIMBER! Showing the Tribune timberlands at Shelter Bay, Franquelin, and Manicouagan. The Tribune is reforesting and conserving its timber resources so that a perpetual supply of pulpwood will be available. The map at the left shows Shelter Bay's location from Chicago.

⑨ AT HOME IN CACHE THREE. This cabin, which serves as office and scaler's camp at Cache Three, is made of spruce and balsam logs.

⑪ THE MAIL COMES IN. A view from the bow of the ice-breaker, "Mikula," two miles off the coast at Shelter Bay. The town is frozen in and the ship can come no closer, but the dog-teams and villagers venture across the ice to get the mail.

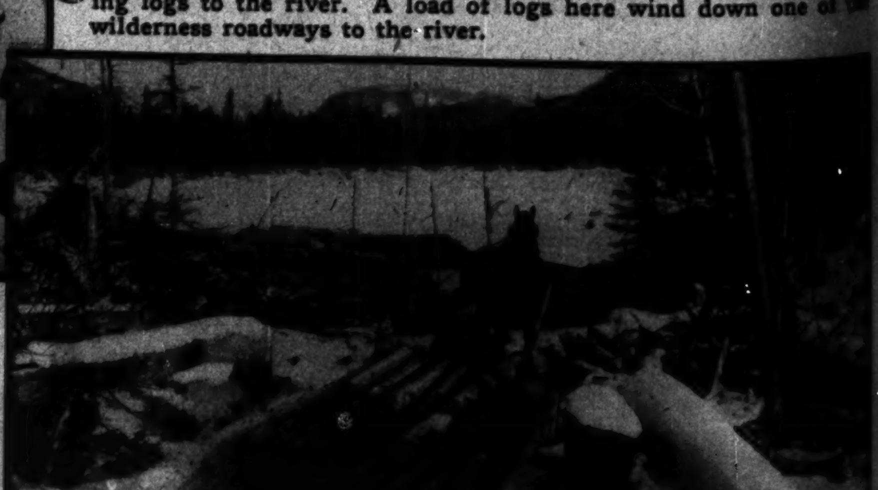
④ "BOBBING ALONG." Bobbing is the lumberjack's term for hauling logs to the river. A load of logs here wind down one of the wilderness roadways to the river.



Tribune Photos

⑤ READY TO UNLOAD. A load of logs has reached the river bank, there to await the spring day when they'll be sent crashing into the river for their journey down to the sea.

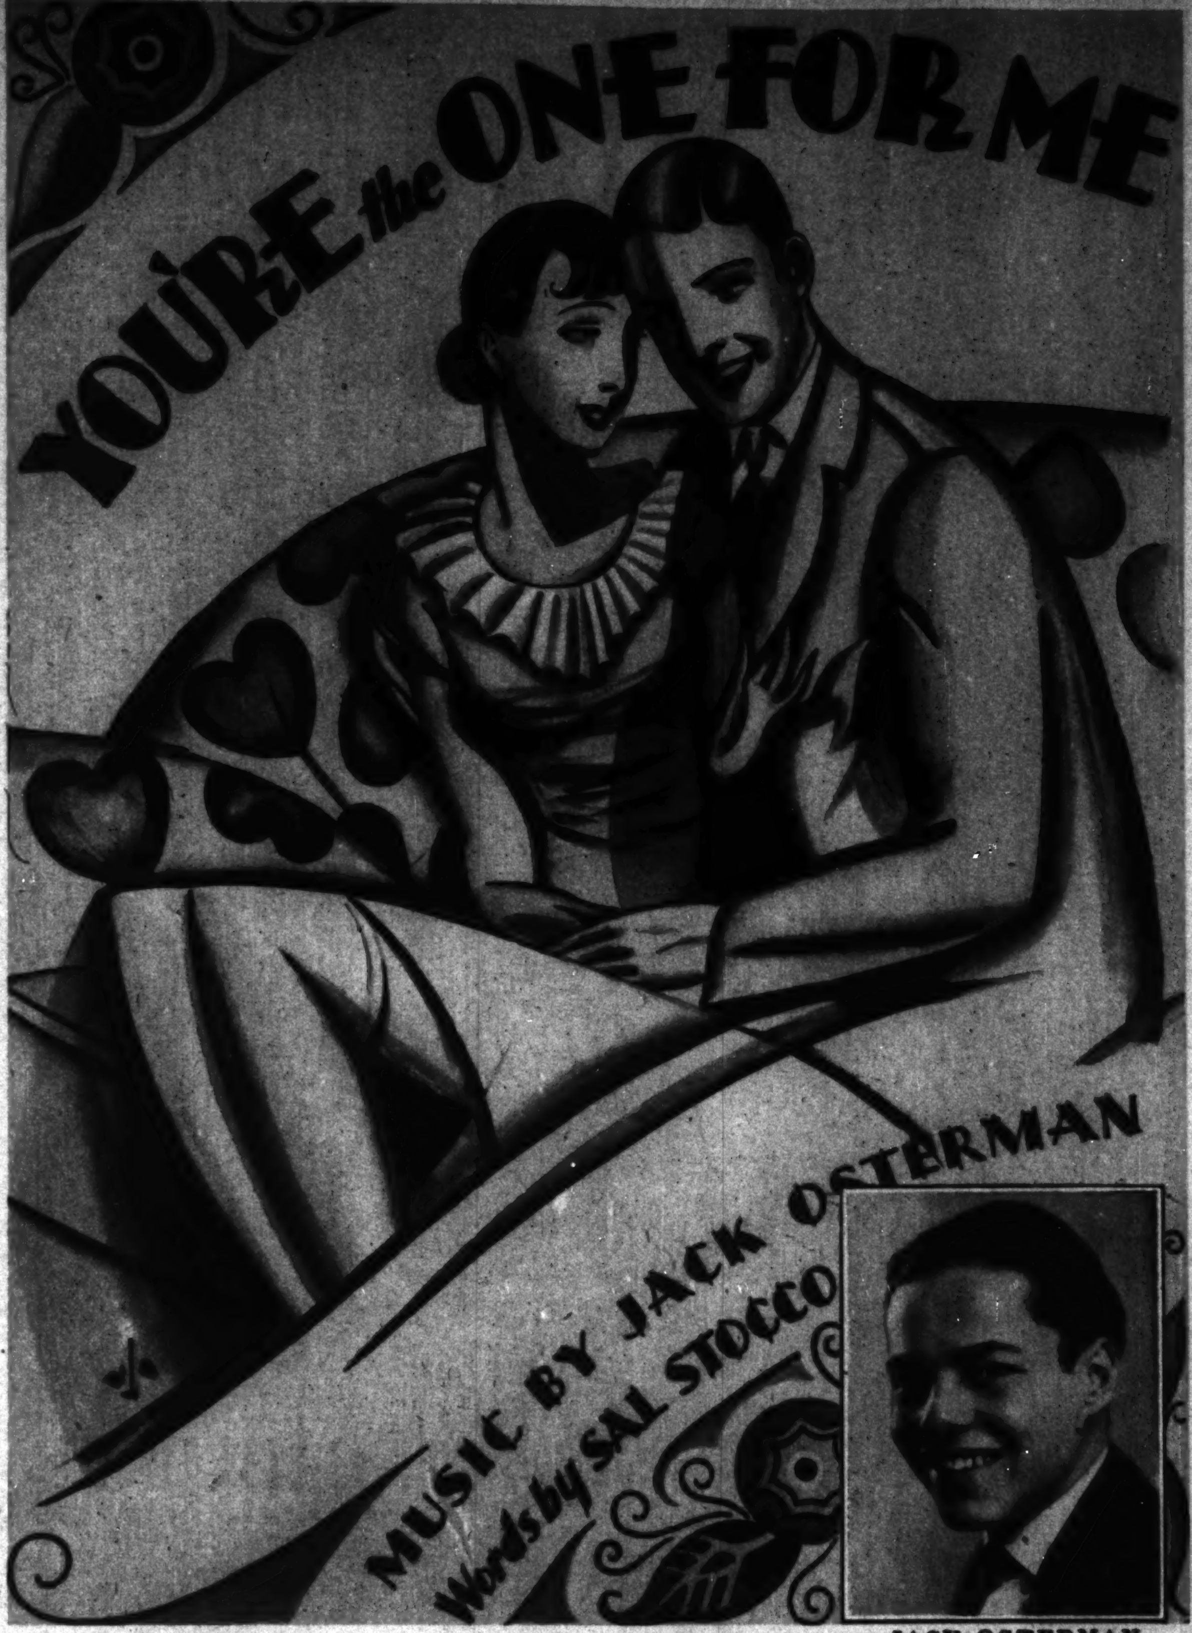
THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER



JACK OSTERMAN

1 You try it first on a single lock of your hair to see what it does. Thus have no fear of results.

2 Then simply comb this water-like liquid through your hair. Clean . . . safe. Takes only 7 or 8 minutes.

3 Arrange hair and watch color gradually creep back. Restoration will be perfect and complete.

Gray Hair?

then they are wondering how old you are

Here's safe way to end it—Test Free

AT last a way to end gray hair is found that specialists and doctors vouch is absolutely safe. A way that removes the faded streaks and brings back original shade to the grayest parts; that makes the hair live looking and lustrous, youthful and gleaming; that does not make the hair difficult to wave—that is not noticeable as are crude dyes.

Many Broadway stars will risk no other way—likewise 3,000,000 women.

The simplest way—also safest

Hair fades and turns gray when natural color pigment is lacking. So science by a scientific laboratory method supplies a liquid containing certain necessary elements that take its place — hence gives natural shade. The formula is called Mary T. Goldman's Hair Color Restorer after its woman discoverer.

Simply dampen a comb in this amazing liquid—clear and colorless as water—then run it through the hair. That's all. In 10 minutes you are through.

Touch only certain parts or the entire head. You can almost see the natural color creep back, so quickly does it do its work. Streaks disappear . . . gray vanishes. If auburn, your hair reverts to auburn. If black, black it will be.

No need now for crude, messy dyes judged dangerous to hair. They are noticed by your friends. This way defies detection. Nothing to wash off.

Send coupon for free test. Thus take no chances. Which is the safe thing to do.

Or go to your nearest drug store and get a bottle. A few cents' worth is sufficient to restore your hair completely. If not delighted, your money will be returned.

W-G-N is on the air!

and tonight—

YOU can hear the majestic eloquence of really great music, carried to matchless heights by the brilliance, the strength, of one of the world's finest orchestras—the Chicago Symphony, with Frederick Stock conducting—over the N. B. C.

And there'll be Goldkette and his orchestra tossing off tunes like no one else in the world—good tunes played by a crowd that took jazz, made music out of it, and lost nothing of the resounding boom-boom, the spine-shaking rhythm in the process ... You'll like Jean!

And there'll be Carleton Coon, Joe Sanders, and assorted Original Nighthawks with a bag full of the latest and best in dance music, distilling swift-moving harmony for W-G-N's listeners ...

And late in the evening, the Dream Ship will cruise through the quiet waters of reverie, while you relax under the soothing influence of soft melody and the announcer's slow-spoken words.

Every night W-G-N broadcasts superb programs for its listeners. Take time Tuesday at nine, to hear "Cameos", its newest musical feature. Tuesday will be Creole night, and—through the exotic arrangements and unique instrumentation provided by Alfred G. Wathall for the W-G-N Symphony, you will be carried back to old New Orleans nights . . . black-haired beauties . . . fine gentlemen . . . romance—all clear-cut as a cameo carved from coral!

This is the W-G-N standard: each program superlative in its own field—each program holding to the high mark that W-G-N has set since the first announcer walked to the "mike" with the words: "This is W-G-N, the Chicago Tribune station, on the Drake Hotel, Chicago." Watch W-G-N's program every day in the Chicago Tribune—and tonight tune in:

Gray Hair?

then they are wondering how old you are

Here's safe way to end it—Test Free

AT last a way to end gray hair is found that specialists and doctors vouch is absolutely safe. A way that removes the faded streaks and brings back original shade to the grayest parts; that makes the hair live looking and lustrous, youthful and gleaming; that does not make the hair difficult to wave—that is not noticeable as are crude dyes.

Many Broadway stars will risk no other way—likewise 3,000,000 women.

The simplest way—also safest

Hair fades and turns gray when natural color pigment is lacking. So science by a scientific laboratory method supplies a liquid containing certain necessary elements that take its place — hence gives natural shade. The formula is called Mary T. Goldman's Hair Color Restorer after its woman discoverer.

Simply dampen a comb in this amazing liquid—clear and colorless as water—then run it through the hair. That's all. In 10 minutes you are through.

Touch only certain parts or the entire head. You can almost see the natural color creep back, so quickly does it do its work. Streaks disappear . . . gray vanishes. If auburn, your hair reverts to auburn. If black, black it will be.

No need now for crude, messy dyes judged dangerous to hair. They are noticed by your friends. This way defies detection. Nothing to wash off.

Send coupon for free test. Thus take no chances. Which is the safe thing to do.

Or go to your nearest drug store and get a bottle. A few cents' worth is sufficient to restore your hair completely. If not delighted, your money will be returned.

Old Masters Furnish Ideas for New Bridal Gowns

Your Wedding Is the Chance of a Lifetime to Wear Just the Costume That Is Suited to Your Type.

BY LOLITA.

NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—"I don't want my wedding party to look like a dessert aisle," wrote a girl to me not long ago. "I'm tired of brides that look like frosted cakes and bridesmaids that take after French pastry. Can't you suggest something not quite so flippant? Also, something a bit more individual?"

On receipt of this spirited letter I wrote to the girl: "Why don't you go to an art gallery or museum the next time you go to the city? Perhaps you are some one definite type that the old masters have loved to draw. A Botticelli or a Leonardo da Vinci, a Carpaccio or a Watteau? If you are, your problem of individuality is solved, for you can adapt your wedding gown and especially your wedding veil to the particular folds and draperies that distinguish the paintings of this one type in which you classify yourself."

I believe this so thoroughly that if I have any particular slogan for the wedding gown it is that of "Old Masters for Young Brides."

In a limited number of words it is, of course, impossible to give suggestions to many types. Here, however, are a few broad outlines. If you are tall and slim and blonde, wear some gown of white satin—not the tinted varieties, but of immaculate tone, so that your resemblance to a lily may be all the more poignant. Make this gown with the long bodice of the Moyenage and to this attach a skirt which may be either bouffante or slender.

Then go to some print of the old masters for exactly the headdress—be it the Juliet cap, the straight medieval band about the forehead, or what you will—that will serve you best. Right here let it be said, indeed, that often it is the headdress which proclaims the individuality and the suitability of the entire wedding costume. And this detail is so flexible that you may draw from infinite sources of geography and history for your selection.

Suppose, however, that you are a true Watteau type—slender, medium sized, and with features renowned more for piquancy than for their classic conformity. You can then wear one of the true period gowns with fitted waist ending at the natural line and with any effect of panniers or of distended hips.

For you are made specially, too, the Louise Boulanger frocks with the big bow on one hip and the trailing side drapery, for their piquancy accords with your own. And you certainly need not confine yourself to the classic white satin. Brocaded taffetas are especially good for you and so is the skirt of tulle. Needless to say, the medieval band about the forehead does not belong to you—it is too severe. For you are the caps with some becoming frill about the face—probably an adaptation of a Dutch cap or an echo of the coiffure of Fra Lippo Lippi.

For all save the girl whose waist is disproportionately long, the Moyenage bodice is an ideal selection, a statement which we make with but one reservation. Suppose you are only five feet two—in your shoes, mind you. Then this long bodice robs you of at least two inches. You look in it five feet only. Hence if you choose a gown with a waistline ending at the hips, temper it with a shorter line—most probably the bolero. The bride whose torso is disproportionately long will do well if she heeds the same suggestion, for the bolero gives the coveted result of length of limb as well as of added stature.

If I were designing for the bride who is very petite, I, myself, should not stop at the bolero. I should copy a frock verbatim from the First Empire. That gown would look so much like those worn by the Empress Josephine that it would fool any historian. For remember what a tiny little thing Queen Victoria was when she was a girl and how she managed to look quite regal in her short waisted and long skirted gowns.

Suppose, however, that you are of medium height or tall. Then for you the mode and wisdom may march up the aisle together. For the long waisted gown is now much in the wedding picture and that even our period gown has abjured its former corsage was indicated by the mid-season opening of Lanvin, who for the first time allied her famous bouffante skirts with bodices molding the hips.

Naturally, it was Lanvin who made this new type of robe de style for the bride in our left hand panel. Made of heavy white satin, you see how the bodice is extended to the hip line, where it is defined by an inset band sloping downward in the back and up in the front to contrast with a narrow sash of self material. The neck is oval, the sleeves fitted, and the veil of white tulle follows the line of that skirt draped upward in front and trailing in the back. The headdress is a severe one manipulated into folds caught by orange blossoms. Slippers of white satin and a strand of pearls from which is suspended a cross of ivory are the completing touches.

Properly speaking, the bride who elects the period gown of any sort should choose one of the old fashioned nosegays such as we picture in our panel of accessories. This nosegay, formed of small blossoms—lilies of the valley, probably—framed in stiff white or silver lace, and tied with a white ribbon, is, in fact, as much the ally of the robe de style as is the big bunch of lilies in accord with the classic model.

It goes without saying that in this age of tulle a number of period gowns achieve their skirts entirely of billows of this material. Indeed, many of the robes made of other material manage to introduce tulle at some strategic point. An excellent illustration of this fact is afforded by our robe de style in the right hand panel. This gown, exemplifying also the sustained vogue of the period gown that does not incorporate the longer bodice and of patterned taffetas as a basis, shows an underskirt of white tulle.

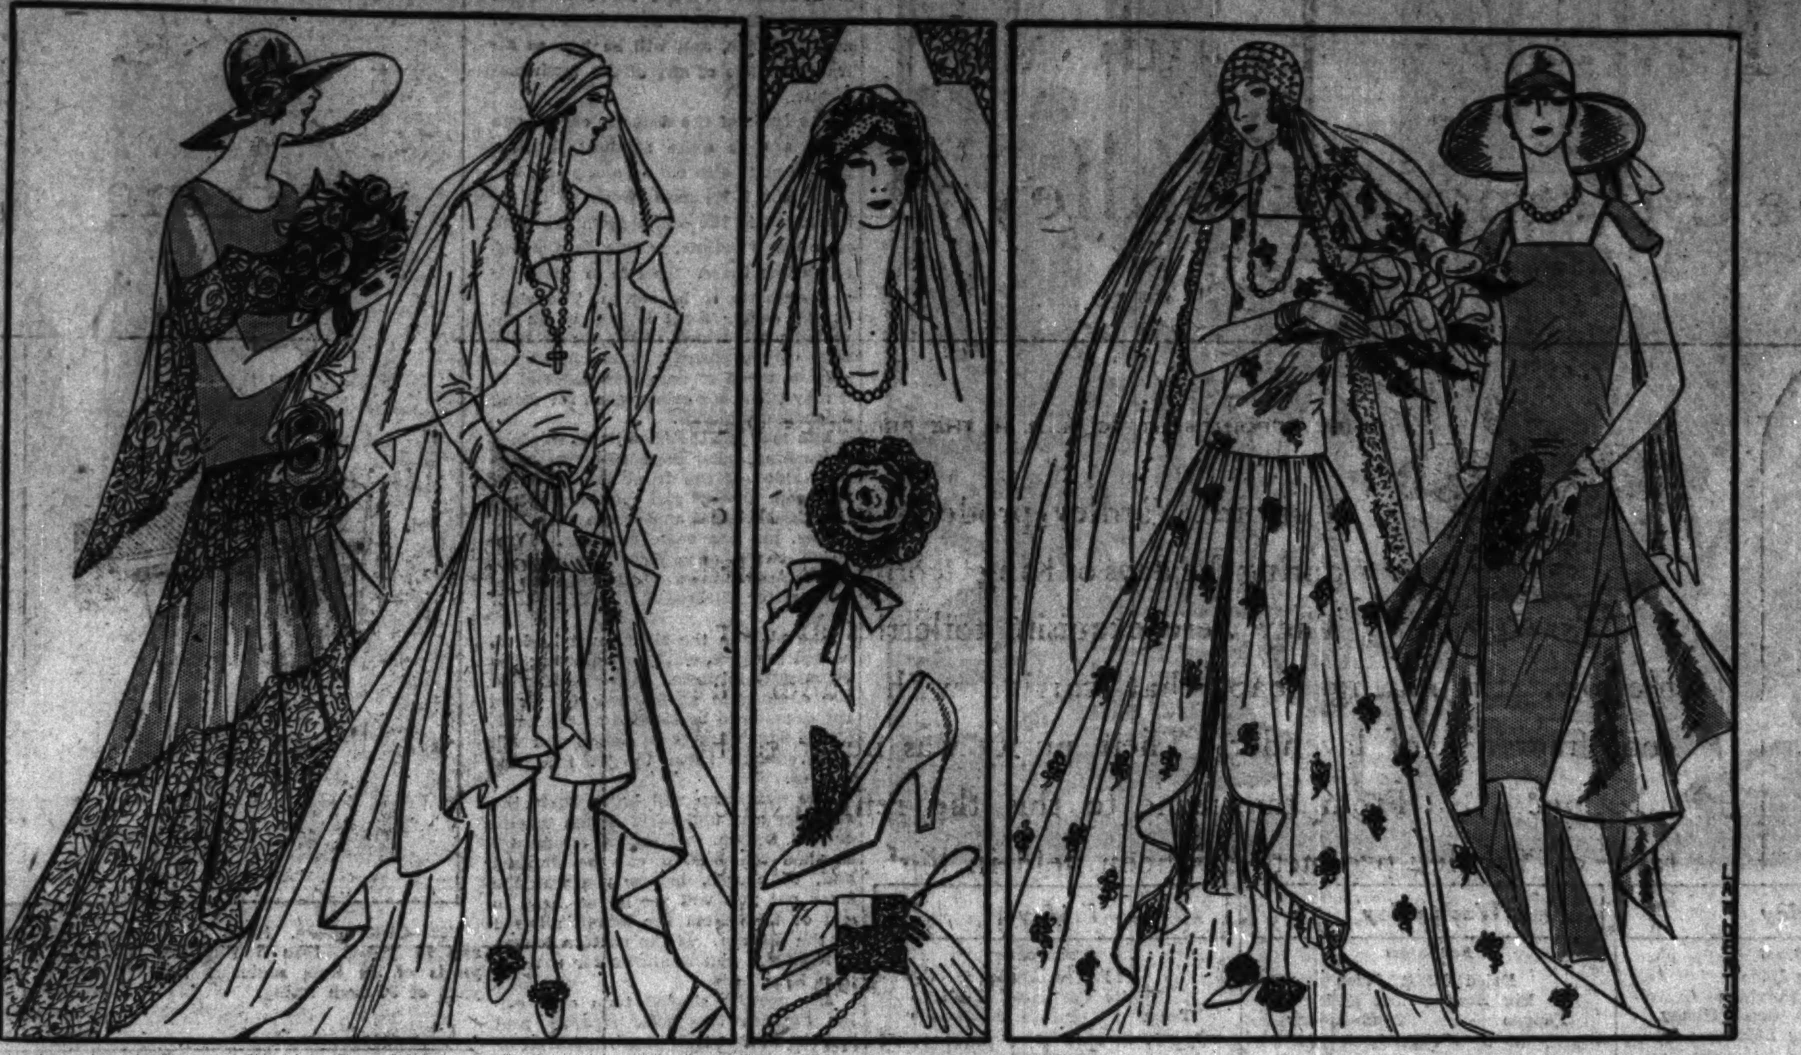
The lace bordered tulle veil, which does not cover the face, is adjusted to a charming cap made of strands of brilliants and itself modified by becoming little frills of lace at the sides. It will be seen, indeed, that this one joins with the classic period gown in fulfilling all requirements for the type of bride to whom we referred as Watteau.

Whenever it is possible, the bridesmaid's frock takes its cue from that of the heroine of the occasion. Thus the attendant sketched at the extreme right repeats not only the material, taffeta, but also a touch of tulle. The color chosen here is that chartreuse with which all the designers seem so intoxicated, nowadays, and its princess front is balanced by one of the new bustle backs—here in the shape of a bow from which descends a long back drapery.

The very full side draperies with their edging of tulle are interesting, but even more so are the epaulet caps over the shoulders. This same touch is one which is also borrowed from the accompanying bride and one must mention that these same epaulet caps make frequent appearances on the spring's bridal gown.

Our final sketch shows a bridesmaid's frock of another type, one chosen to repeat the feeling of the Lanvin bridal gown. Of pale rose chiffon, it is trimmed with fine Alencon lace and worn with matching hair hat.

[Copyright: 1929: By The Chicago Tribune.]



LEFT PANEL—Taking its cue from the backward dipping lines of a wedding gown in white satin, created by Lanvin, the bridesmaid frock of rose chiffon, trimmed in finest of cream Alencon, conspires with a hat of rose colored hair, trimmed with roses.

RIGHT PANEL—The epauletlike shoulder cap shown in many new wedding gowns of period style is indicated in a delightful model of white taffeta brocaded in self color and revealing a touch of white tulle. The tulle veil bordered in lace is adjusted to a Juliet cap of brilliants with lace at the sides. The colonial pumps of white taffeta show upstanding pieces of lace set off with brilliants.

Next, a bridesmaid gown in taffeta sponsoring that new note in bridal parties, chartreuse, is edged with self tulle, repeats the epaulet cap, and is completed by a hat of matching hair with yellow ribbons. Slippers of green, shading into yellow, a nosegay of primroses, and the new slip-on gloves complete the picture.

CENTER—The familiar Russian headdress is supplanted by a lace cap banded in pearls and surmounted by orange blossoms. Next, a bride's bouquet in nosegay style is edged in white lace and caught by white ribbon. Below, white satin shoes with lace pieces held by orange blossoms. Last, lace trimmed handkerchief and a string of pearls.

TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

Beans, Rich in Food Values, Are Also One of the Delicious Dishes Handed Down to Us by Our Ancestors.

All recipes have been scientifically tested by Miss Eddington with current market materials and are indorsed by her.

By Jane Eddington.

WE are at that date in the calendar when the little package of food, by name a dried bean, is a highly appreciated resource, whether it is baked in a pot or stewed for a pottage. It has been peculiarly a pot vegetable through centuries. The pottage of the Bible was very likely a bean stew, not necessarily of any bean we know, because the bean family has ten thousand representatives. At any rate, it is good cosmopolitan, though not American bean pot, tradition that the best way to eat dried beans is in a soup or purée.

In other words, we are in Lent, and of all the "maigre" or meatless soups the bean soup may carry most of substance to maintain our body balance, while the stewed bean and baked bean are just more condensed forms, or the same food value in a smaller package. Nevertheless, it is the bean soup that is classic.

Presuming that we know what the food elements are and their function in the diet, let us review this little package of food in its paper skin. By the way, the skin is far from being a negligible thing, either, in what it is or what is in it. As to what is in it, all varieties of beans have the same group of elements, but these differ in their proportions in the different sorts.

What Is in a Bean.

A reliable food table tells us that ordinary dried beans average nearly sixty per cent of carbohydrates (in the form of starch and fiber), twenty-two per cent of protein, and twelve per cent of water. The total yield in calories of a pound of dried beans is 1,600, but, of course, nobody eats the beans dry, as they do nuts, for instance.

Anything containing so large a percentage of carbohydrates is likely to yield about 1,600 calories per pound. As to variations in the proportions of the elements, dried Limas have sixty-five per cent of carbohydrates, eighteen per cent of protein, and ten per cent of water. The Mexican frijole and the kidney bean are nearly like the Lima in their proportions of these ingredients.

Let us emphasize that we have been giving the percentages of the different elements in a dried bean. I have known people who might have realized, and did not, that when a food like a cereal or bean is cooked in water these percentages, like the food itself, will be greatly diluted. This is mentioned because so many people do not seem to think anything about it.

If we soak beans and then throw the water away, we throw some or all of the soluble elements away, among which is some sugar, a little of which supplied by nature, if retained in the bean makes the cooked product infinitely more palatable. And since these soluble elements are more completely dissolved in hot water than in cold, we throw more away if we follow the ancient custom of parboiling beans.

The Bean Cooking Problem.

The first thing we do in starting to cook beans after they have been picked over and washed is to add water four times their measure, and this indicates that one part of the process of cooking them is to water or moisten them. It is a well known fact that beans will take up a good deal of water, but they will not do it in a minute. Water is a highly important cooking agent, we might say vitally important, but its importance is lessened, we may say, if another agent is not added to it. We mention this agent when we say a great deal of thought should be put into a pot with the beans.

Understanding what the different elements are in the beans—and why should not every man and woman do so if they make any claim to rank as intelligent human beings—our further problem is to arrive at a treatment of the bean that will be equally good for the starch, the protein and the skin. Protein is ruined by anything save a small amount of fire continued long enough to make it soft. Starches with water may be reduced to a delicious jelly likeness by being slowly and long cooked. The skin of beans being a compound of these elements is made edible, instead of totally undigestible and a trouble, to the eater by this sort of cooking.

The Starch and Water Product.

A dried bean when correctly cooked makes its own delicious sauce. This sauce is water thickened by the starch of the bean, seasoned by some fat, and the thickened water reduced by long cooking has given that almost jelly like sauce around the beans which is so highly appreciated. Bean flour has sometimes been manufactured and called a farina to use for just such thickenings.

In this case the beans have given up from their inner selves something to make agreeable their outer selves, and this sauce may be as palatable as the finest nut. In fact, a favorite definition of correctly cooked beans has been that they are nutty of flavor.

What Fat for Beans.

Other seasoning but the fat mentioned may be added to beans at discretion, but some salt—added when the beans are nearly cooked—is the only other essential. As to what fat to use, that is a little thesis of itself, but salt pork has been the most used of all and nearly always in Boston baked beans. The delicious "Soissons" of the inexpensive Parisian restaurants are buttered, and we also butter Lima and kidney beans, but bacon fat is excellent with the latter.

This making of a delicious sauce then is one of the functions of one of the substances of the bean. Let us now consider that other element which, with wrong cooking, both hinders the starch from making its sauce, because it shuts it in, and is itself spoiled as a food. All the legumes are quite rich in protein and their protein resembles the white of egg in its reaction to heating.

The white of an egg will commence to stiffen eighty per cent short of the boiling point of water. If the egg is fried in hot fat the edges of the white will turn to a brown lace, which no human digestion can make the slightest impression on and it is a wicked waste of human digestive energy to make it try. Similarly, it is a wasteful expenditure of digestive energy to try to eat fire hardened beans.

Are Beans Indigestible?

To the question whether beans are indigestible or not, we might answer yes and no. Probably a great deal of the indigestibility which has been attributed to them is really a condemnation of the way they were cooked. If the skins of even poorly cooked beans are sieved out, almost anybody can eat the starchy part with safety, but the protein that has been hardened in the cooking will cause some trouble, but less than when skin and all are eaten.

It may be that even the skins of beans cooked to perfection are more roughage—undigested cellulose—than some people can manage comfortably.

Boston Baked Beans.

What a real Boston baked bean is probably no living person can say, but there are different opinions enough to make a book. One thing I feel sure about is that they should not be, although the product has been so often served in the various parts of the country, a bean baked in a broad tin pan for about three hours in a hot oven, the top covered with a layer of beans as dried up as they were in the bag, but of course different because they have been wet, then browned or charred.

Probably most people would agree that the bean pot, or what the beans are cooked in, should be deep, and have a cover, and that there should be the least possible surface on the top of the beans while they are baking, and most of that should be covered with a piece of salt pork nicely cleaned and scored, its savory and melting fat going down through the beans both to protect and season them. Most people also like a piece of pork in the bottom of the bean pot, and this may be so flavored with the beans that it is as easy to eat the fat, or it is as agreeable, as the beans themselves.

One of the ideas is that the beans should be a deep brown when they are cooked, and that molasses added will help to make them so, but some of us prefer the natural sweetness of the bean, which can so easily be leeched out by the old fashioned method of parboiling them. Knowing what causes the deep brown, if molasses is not added, most of us will be satisfied to have beans of a lighter shade, but not the pale, greasy looking beans that some people are satisfied with.

Starting with one cup of beans picked over and washed, we may soak them in the old fashioned way over night, covering with just as much water as they will take up, or we may soak them for a much shorter time by adding a little more than lukewarm water to them. One reason that the old fashioned way of parboiling beans did nothing worse than it did to the beans was the fact that they had only been softened by the soaking. With correct cooking, no more water needs to be added than is added in stewing beans, because the baking is only stewing them in the oven and this amount is four cups for each cup of beans.

This whole amount may be added to them when they are put to soak and then the next process is simply to put them into the bean pot with the pork without any addition, and to continue to bake them for at least eight hours in a slow oven.

When there is need to be filling up the bean pot with hot water, there is ample proof that the beans are being cooked with too hot a fire, yet all the old recipes direct this frequent filling of the bean pot.

HOW TO USE THE PATTERNS

THIS smart design for a spring dress, to be made by pattern No. 3459, will find a place in many wardrobes. It is exceedingly easy to cut and make and can't help being satisfactory when finished. It is a suitable design for silk crêpe, sheer tweed, jersey, wool challis, rayon novelty crêpe, and will be just as attractive made of any of the wash materials.

The back of the dress is cut in one piece and is quite straight in line. The front is also cut in one piece, but there is a little more work to it. It is cut out in the center from the neck to a low waistline, ending in a pointed outline there. This is to allow for a chemisette to be set in. The skirt at the center front is laid in an inverted plait, which allows ample freedom of movement. This chemisette may be made of the dress material or it may furnish a good reason for using a contrasting color.

You may set the chemisette in place by turning under the edge of the dress both sides of the front the width of the seam allowed and then, laying the chemisette edges under the turned-in places, pin and baste in place. Then stitch twice, once close to the edge and the second row of stitching can be one-quarter of three-eighths of an inch away.

The plait in the skirt must be laid, basted and pressed before putting the chemisette in place. A perforation on the chemisette shows how far down the dress is to be slashed at the neck. These edges are to be bound and will give enough room to get into and out of.

The next step will be to baste the shoulder and underarm seams together and try on. After the seams are finished the bottom can be finished and, of course, before you cut the dress out you will see if you need to add or take from the length allowed on the pattern. If the pattern length is right for you it allows for a three inch hem.

The prettily shaped turn over collar finishes the neck smartly and may be made of the dress material or something contrasting. Long and short sleeves are provided for, the long ones being gathered at the wrists and set into narrow, fitted bands, and the short ones are finished with turned back cuffs. A narrow belt completes the dress.

This attractive two piece dress will be fine for wear in the classroom this spring, and also for general daytime wear. The pattern, No. 262, is very complete and shows in detail just how to go to work. The plaited skirt is attached to a camisole and the jumper or overblouse is made separately. The skirt is plaited all the way around, this being an especially becoming style for growing girls. The jumper is made with cluster tucks on the shoulders and is slashed down from the neck at the center front. The edges are bound and finished for closing. A girlish Peter Pan collar finishes the neck and a bow of narrow ribbon completes the dress there. Long, close fitting sleeves and a narrow belt and two patch pockets are the other details.

This dress will be smart in printed wool jersey with plain collar, belt, cuffs, and pockets. The skirt can be made of navy blue jersey, one of the soft woolens in dark blue, plaid woolen or velveteen, and worn with a jumper of a contrasting fabric in cotton, wool, or crêpe. Wash materials are also appropriate for this design. A soft shade of green chambray, with the tie at the neck of black grosgrain ribbon will be good, and linen, cotton broadcloth, and challis prints are also appropriate.

Pattern No. 2588 is for a sports model that shows all the new style details. The design is a youthful one, is practical and aids in giving that desired slender appearance. It will be just the thing for general utility wear, and is suitable for crêpe satin, heavy flat silk crêpe, Canton-faille crêpe, sheer tweed or wool jersey. Navy blue wool crêpe, with a smart little bow of bright red grosgrain ribbon at the neck, red bone buttons and a red suede belt will be girlish and attractive for classroom wear.

The surplice effect of the bodice with the one sided, plaited skirt, lengthens the silhouette, making it a suitable design for the woman inclined to plumpness. The lower edge of the dress, in size 36, measures about one and three-quarter yards.

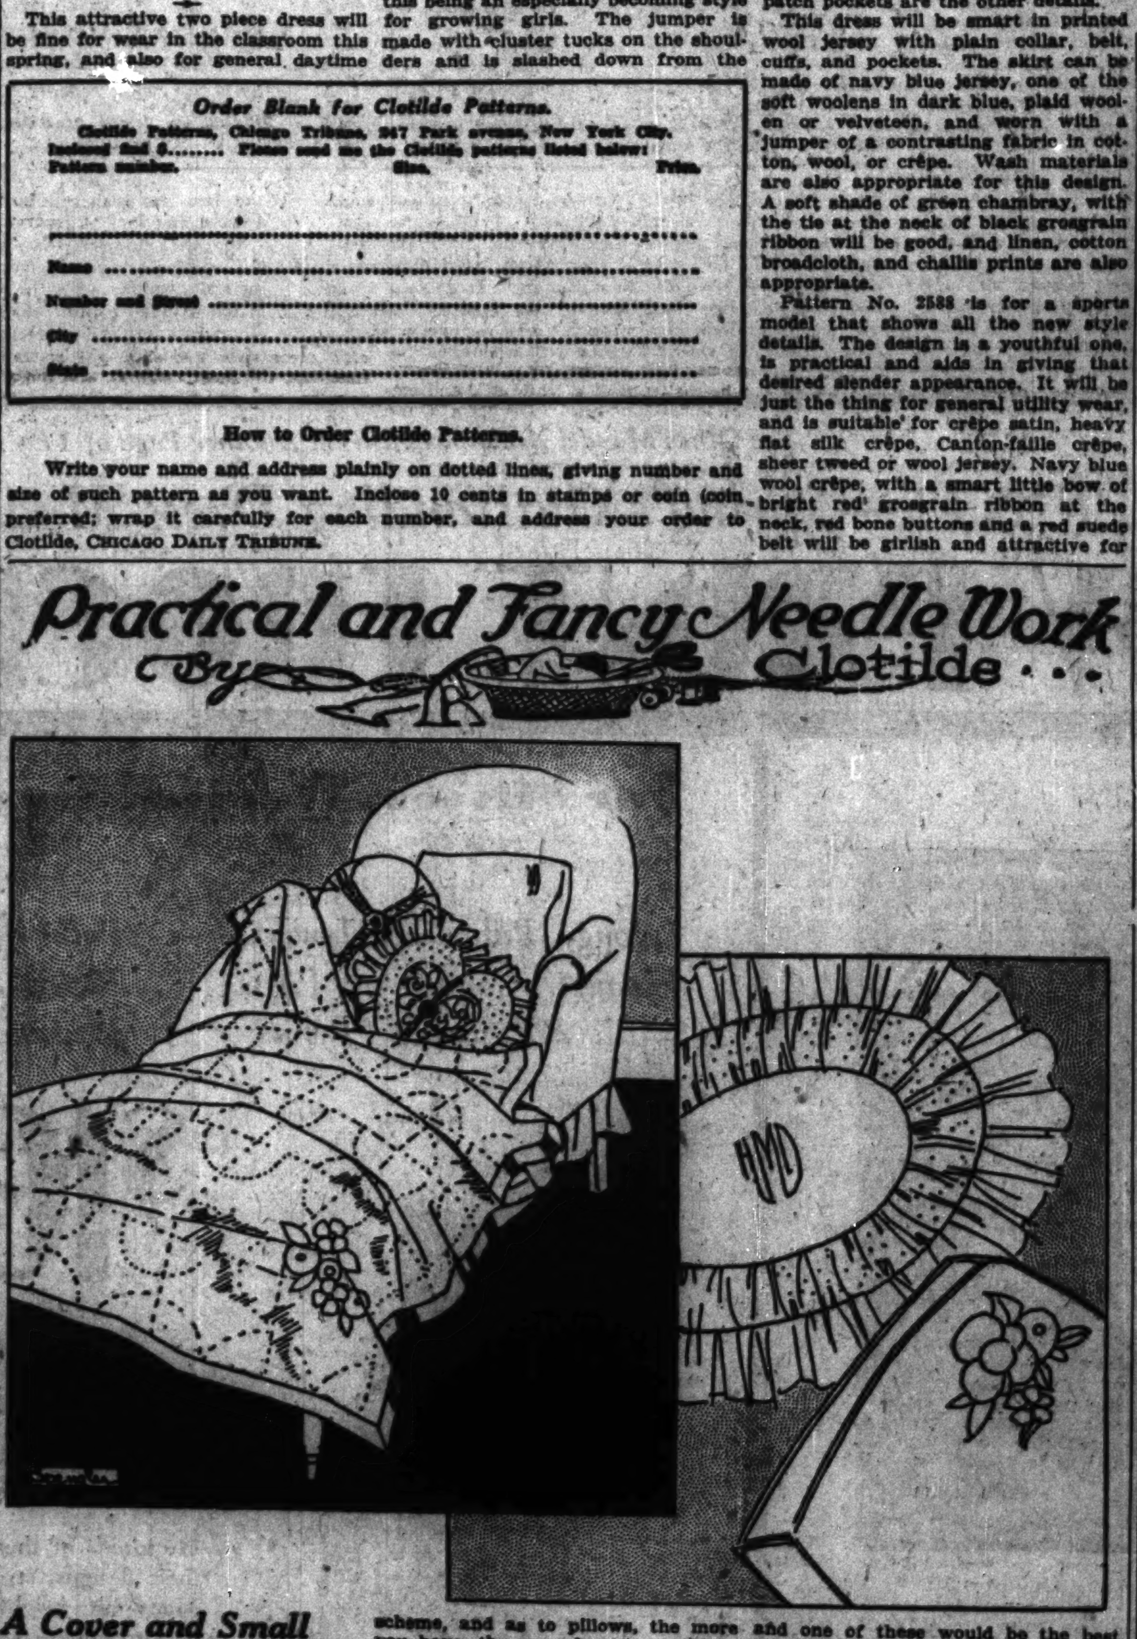
Practical and Fancy Needle Work By Clotilde . . .



A Cover and Small Pillows for the Chaise Longue Make Charming Gifts for the Easter Bride.

THE ensemble idea has invaded the boudoir, and if you would be very up to date in that respect you will want your chaise longue upholstered—say in one of those beautiful brocade materials in a rose shade, and then you can make a quilted satin or taffeta cover to use when you are resting. This cover should be about fifty-six inches wide and at least two yards long. Sheets of cotton batting are nice to use between the outside pieces, and the quilting should all be done by hand—using small running stitches.

The edges of this "throw" will look well bound with a two inch wide heavy satin ribbon—of course the color of the material used. Flowers in the delicate pastel shades can be appliqued near one corner and will add much to the beauty of the whole. Of course your negligee or lounging robe should harmonize with the color scheme, and as to pillows, the more you have, the more luxurious will be the effect.

Small pillows, round, oblong, and oval may be covered with white or pink satin, and over this a cover of fine white net or sheerest organdy may be slipped. These dainty net and organdy covers are generally lace trimmed—insertion being set in in either straight, horizontal rows, or in any desired outlines, and with one or more rows of narrow lace edging set around the edge. The effect is wonderfully pretty. If you like to embroider, a monogram or some conventional design will add much to the beauty of a pillow, and if you are planning to make a gift for an Easter bride, one of these pillows would surely be acceptable.

Answers to Sewing Questions.

MRS. W. G.: If you have any pieces of your fancy work finished, why don't you go to some of the shops where such things are sold, show what you have and see if you can't sell things that way?

MRS. E. H.: It is nice that you are interested in sewing, and I feel sure when you know more about making your clothes it will be a great satisfaction to you. There are good schools in your city where the different branches of sewing are taught, and one of these would be the best place for you to go.

"My Skin was a Sight"

"I couldn't look people in the face. I was so ashamed of my skin! It was always blotched with pimples and blackheads and at times itched terribly. I had tried everything and was so discouraged that I couldn't bring myself to take hope in anything. You can imagine my surprise, therefore, when one application of Rowles Mentho Sulphur almost completely cleared my skin. In a short time you wouldn't know my skin—it was so clear and healthy looking."

The sulphur in Rowles Mentho Sulphur clears the skin while the menthol heals the sore, broken tissue. That's the twofold action you want for skin troubles. Even fiery eczema yields to it. All drug stores carry Rowles Mentho Sulphur.

Lines in Face—Gone!

She wasn't old—yet she looked like grandma! Premature wrinkles did it! Don't let wrinkles betray your age. Remove them at once with a simple, safe home method. Just get two ounces of Eptol from druggist, mix with water and teaspoon of glycerine. Makes delightful, rich cream to spread thinly over face, neck and around eyes. The hungry tissues absorb it rapidly as you work well into pores until gone. Then behold the marvelous change! Every wrinkle, frown, squint-like, age line—gone! Leaves skin smooth and firm, pores closed, tissues tingling—giving you the fresh, charming beauty and loveliness of youth. You can depend on results every time if you use genuine Eptol. There's nothing finer.

If troubled with blackheads—remove them instantly! Don't squeeze—large pores will result. Safest way is to dissolve them all at one time. Get two ounces of powdered Calonite at druggist, sprinkle on hot, wet towel, apply to blackheads and they disappear at once! Results are astonishing—even in worst cases.

A Whole Meal in One Swallow!

WE ALL know the value of vegetables, and the reader may know just which vegetables are best for the inner system. But it's another thing to eat them in sufficient quantities! Why not get the benefit of their goodness in the pleasant form of syrup pepsin?

There is as much good in a spoon of syrup pepsin as one would get from a basketful of vegetables. Those who have learned this secret of health don't have to pamper their stomachs, or whip-up their bowels with a lot of strong medicines. They seldom, if ever, have liver trouble and can usually eat anything.

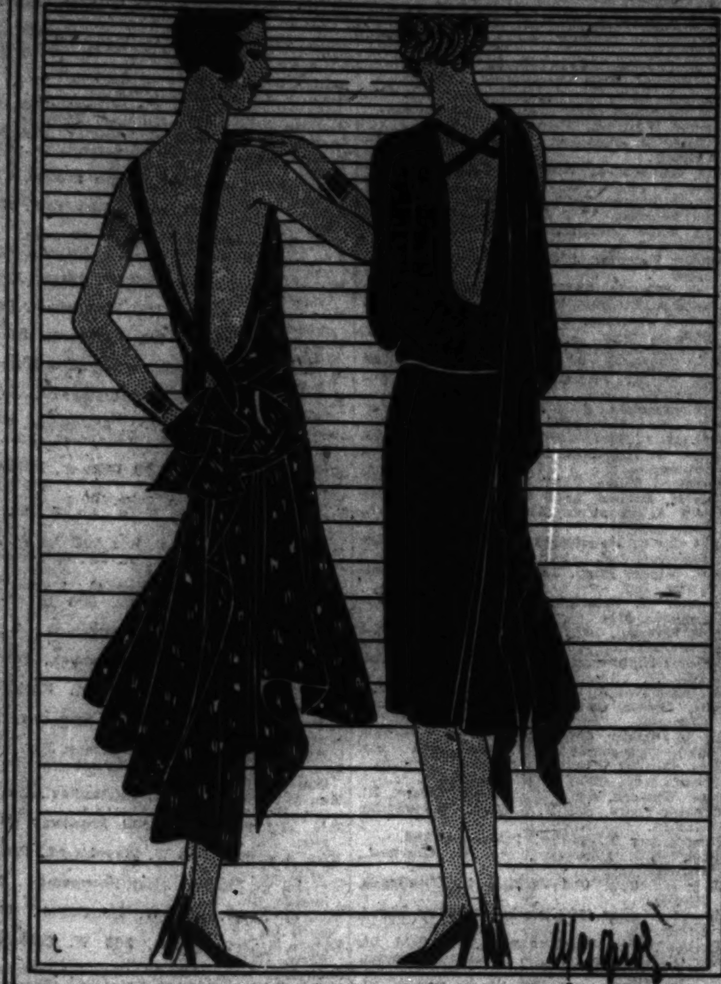
So, don't give up rich foods. Don't go on a dull vegetable "diet." Just take a spoonful of syrup pepsin now and then—and forget everything else but your appetite at the table! If you have never made the syrup pepsin test, ten days may do surprising things for you—no matter how "fit" you may feel now. Children are helped wonderfully by this same skillful combination of laxative herbs and pure pepsin. Older people ward off auto-intoxication the same way. It is more than fifty years since Dr. Caldwell gave the world this prescription, yet today there is no druggist who hasn't it all put up and ready for you with directions.

The Last Word in Paris Fashions

Both Daytime and Evening Frocks Are Designed for the Woman Who Delights in Sun Tanned Arms and Shoulders

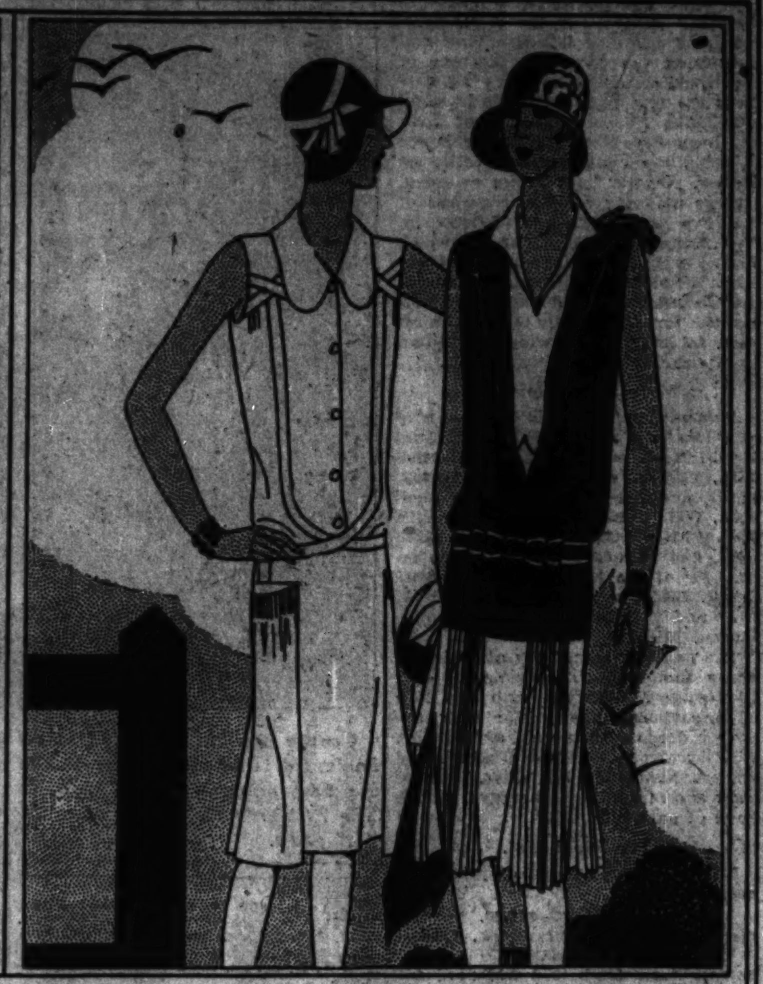
By Bettina Bedwell

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]



The bareback evening mode is illustrated in this Louiseboulanger evening gown of black-and-white taffeta shown at the extreme left.

Second, long fitted sleeves are an interesting note of this evening gown with low back decolletage, which Lenief makes of dull turquoise blue crepe.



White silk and cotton striped material makes the sports frock from Jane Regny, trimmed with bias bands incrusted, sketched third.

Last, the new vogue for sleeveless sweaters is illustrated in our fourth model, from London Trades. The sweater is in yellow silk and wool, and the dress of white pique.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—Concerning what we wear—in the fashion sense—it seems to be getting to a question of what we don't wear, to be smart. The spring openings are, in more ways than one, an elimination contest. Don't be alarmed. The smart omissions in the clothes line are not so extensive as to shock proprieties. They are, finally, nothing but the elimination of certain details of dress in response to the changing conditions of modern life.

Paris is right now, going through the fashion preliminaries, when all the style ideas of the Paris dressmakers have to contend in a contest, out of which the champions of spring 1929 emerge. These champions are the fittest fashions for you and me and the millions of other women who live today the life of today. They are so designed and so executed as to increase our charm of appearance and augment the ease with which we move about in our own sphere.

One of the great cults of the moment is that cult of sunshine which results in tan, sunburn, and a general appearance of outdoor living, health and tingling vitality. Paris responds to this important movement of the feminine world by eliminating sleeves, ordering backs out, and in general, leaving the skin open to the beneficent action of the sun wherever propriety, grace and chic permit.

This subtraction, however, doesn't extend one single inch beyond the limits of distinction. Skirts are not being abbreviated, and legs, which in ninety cases out of a hundred do not take tan gracefully, are ordered under the cover of silk stockings.

Other daytime eliminations that go to make the clothes we wear more comfortable for our activities, and more fashionable in the Parisian sense, are coat collars, sweater sleeves and any sort of unnecessary encumbrance of the upper parts of frocks, jackets, and wraps.

With these cutouts occurring in the chic daytime wardrobe, the evening outfit requires special arrangements and changes. There is no denying the fact that an evening gown has to be very clever, indeed, to give to its wearer an immeasurable allure when that wearer has a good husky coat of tan plus sunburn on neck and arms. Paris has sailed into this problem of making the evening gown effective for the tanned lady, and has given us some novel and effective clothes for after sundown.

Sleeves are off the daytime sports dress. They are on the evening gown for a good many occasions. Why? The answer shows how logically the Paris creators work out our clothes problems. If your arms do not take on a perfect tan, satin smooth, then for the evening you simply cover them up with a film of beautiful fabric and you should worry. Or, if you have gotten the ultimate perfection in a golden sun-glow on your skin, then Paris gives you an evening frock which displays your arms, and almost the full expanse of your back.

The great slogan of Paris today is: "Adapt your decolletage to your tan and sunburn," and this holds good for both day and evening. If you want to wear low neck and bare arms in the evening, then you must wear the identical cut for your sunburned days. Of course, if you don't go in for that sort of thing, you may wear what you please. The selection is merely a matter of flattering the contours of neck, arms, and shoulders with which nature has endowed you.

All of these things have their effect on every detail of fashion. Fabrics are, naturally, much affected. For the daytime they are generally substantial, and sufficiently close in weave to keep the covered portions of your anatomy free from tan or sunburn. For evening they are either filmy or stiff, according to the effect your skin needs to be brilliantly set off. Colors, too, are made entirely secondary to the tint, natural or acquired, that your skin has.

White, being most flattering to the browned skin, becomes a leader for sports clothes. It is, however, seldom left in its pure, pristine and monotonous state. It is worn with some bit of brilliant color in sweater, jacket, cot or hat. Yellow and orange, which tone in so beautifully with tan, are two other shades Paris favors for the sports outfit. Browns, reds and certain greens are other suitable tones.

Our third model is the kind of simple white frock which will be supremely smart for the springtime sportswoman. It comes from Jane Regny, who makes it of a white silk and cotton striped material. The dress is one piece with bias bands outlining yoke, vestee and waistline. There is a loose rolling collar, a skirt that is tucked and plaited below hip pockets, and sleeves are omitted. This is the smartest of sports dresses. Others on this order leave off the collar and have a rounded décolletage in back.

Our fourth model, from London Trades, illustrates the fashionable curtailment of the sports sweater, which is minus sleeves, and cut in a deep V in front to disclose the upper part of the one piece white frock worn beneath. This sweater is knitted of yellow silk and wool. The dress, which has plaited panels in its skirt, is made of white silk piqué. This costume is an example of the admirable discretion that the smartest sports clothes display as to brevity and as to trimming and fabrics.

Our second model shows that the missing sleeves of the daylight costume turn up in the evening. This evening dress from Lenief is one of the smartest, the most original, and most popular evening gowns in Paris. It is made of a dull turquoise blue flat crêpe, with fitted sleeves, a high neck in front, and a deep rounded décolletage in back to display a charming expanse of tan. The crossed bands are an original detail. The full length cascading panels at the right side back are so arranged as to give height and grace to any figure. The narrow belt is made of gold lamé. Such a frock is a boon, even in an untanned lady's wardrobe, for it is suitable for both formal and informal occasions.

Our first model, a pompadour taffeta evening frock from Louise boulanger, is an example of the bare back evening mode at its best and most distinctive. The black and white color scheme of this frock is strongly accented by the crossed suspenders of black velvet, which hold the décolletage in place. Panels that are butterfly puffs at the waistline in back enhance the chic of the silhouette. A very even and wide spread coat of tan, or none at all, is essential for this gown.

Lots of Little Troubles Today, Says Horoscope

By Jupiter.

THE unfriendly aspect of Mars to the moon and Mercury will tend to make this a day of petty quarrels, trifling annoyances and small accidents. It is a good period to spend alone.

If this is your birthday a pleasant and profitable year is before you. Your social affairs will be happy and satisfactory, and your business will prosper. For young people born on this day romance and probably marriage are indicated.

A child born today will be nervous, restless, argumentative, changeable, impatient, clever, daring, and selfish. He will have to accept responsibility, and let the lives of others interfere with his own plans. He must learn to be friendly, retiring, patient, and tactful.

Monday, February 25.

The moon forms an adverse aspect with Saturn and then moves on a parallel and opposition to Uranus, which makes the day one of conflicting and unconstructive vibrations. The manner in which to avoid the bad aspects at this time is to be extremely conservative in everything you do.

If this is your birthday, avoid strangers and do not form new friendships during the coming year. You can easily be deceived, and the aspects forming over your horoscope give you no assistance. Put your valuables in a safe place and do not expose yourself to violence or robbery.

A child born today will be honest, kind, social, sincere, and self-reliant. He will have many influential friends who will aid him in becoming successful. He will travel but must learn to be secretive and overcome a tendency to melancholia. A career as a naturalist, minister, lecturer, writer, musician, or real estate dealer will bring him prosperity.

Tuesday, February 26.

People who are interested in psychic experiences can use this day to good advantage. Venus is forming an aspect with Neptune which culminates at 9:20 p. m., and this configuration tends to make mediums more receptive to awaken latent occult powers. In the inexperienced and undeveloped subjects this aspect will create negative and confusing emotions.

If this is your birthday you may have an offer to change your position or profession, but think well and long before you do it. This is not a good year for you to travel or make hasty decisions. A member of your family may cause you considerable distress through illness.

A child born today will be bright, erratic, careless in habits and manners, affectionate, sociable and cheerful. He will have to learn to work and to appreciate the value of money. The period of greatest social expansion and the best time to accumulate money will be between ages of 25 and 30.

Wednesday, February 27.

The aspects favor general business, all matters connected with machinery, construction, the earth and its products, metaphysical, fraternal and progressive affairs, as well as liquids, the deep sea and all that comes within the realm of the psychic.

If this is your birthday you are facing a favorable twelve months. Your friends will be loyal and give you much happiness and if your age does not prohibit it, there is the chance that you will marry. At any rate, you will find this a year remarkable in many ways.

A child born today will be ambitious, determined, energetic, ardent, emotional, critical and brave. His life will be filled with excitement, love affairs, disappointments and unusual opportunities. He will enjoy the friendship of many and his years will be far from dull.

Thursday, February 28.

A day of mixed vibrations, both good and bad, which means that attention should be given to routine matters and important affairs should be shelved until the aspects lend their assistance.

If this is your birthday you will come under some extremely favorable planetary influences during 1929 but you will have to guard your good name as you are threatened with scandal from a secret romance. In business affairs you will find considerable success and your friends will aid you in gaining prosperity.

A child born today will be possessive, attached, anxious, sharp, impressionable, indecisive and sensitive. He will be subject to contagious diseases, blood poisoning, and stomach and liver troubles. He will have to assume responsibilities early in life and must learn to be decisive and self-reliant.

Friday, March 1.

Only two aspects culminate today, and as these take place early in the morning the working period is practically without major vibrations. Late in the afternoon the moon begins an adverse aspect with Neptune, which suggests caution, beverages, fish and matters relating to the sea.

If this is your birthday both money and good business opportunities will come to you during the next twelve months. But you must be careful of anything you put in writing or in making agreements. Strangers should be regarded with suspicion until you are thoroughly satisfied regarding their characters.

A child born today will be emotional, intuitive, talkative, affectionate, ambitious, loving and philanthropic. He will have to learn to stand alone and will have to start out early in life to provide for himself. He will have many disappointments through friendships and must learn that happiness lies within himself and not in others or in possessions.

The study of philosophy will bring peace and understanding. He must never force issues and must not place too much confidence in what is told to him. He should keep his affairs to himself and never become turbulent or anxious.

Saturday, March 2.

The moon's parallel with Saturn and its good aspect with Uranus lasting until 5 p. m. makes this a splendid day for constructive matters. It is a particularly good time to present suggestions for improvements in old methods.

If this is your birthday and you are interested in real estate or products of the land you have a prosperous year before you.

A child born today will be restless, abrupt, original, creative, enterprising, intuitive, fond of antiques, and interested in foreigners and occultism. He will be successful in life and make money after he has learned to organize his abilities and to be practical, just, tactful, and patient. He would succeed as an astrologer, electrician, advertising man, banker, diplomat, secretary, mechanic, musician, or artist.

A Dollar for Your Dreams

Have you ever had a dream which later came true? If you'll mail us an account of your prophetic dream we'll pay $1 for every dream published. Address "-Dreams," Chicago Tribune.

Musician's Dream.

Recently a beautiful selection of popular music came out, which I liked very much. As I lived in a small town there was no possible way of getting the selection at once, so I decided to use my own method of playing it. I tried for days and days, but to no avail. Finally, after practicing for some time one evening, I retired, but still with the determination to win out.

That night, while sleeping, those notes came to me in a vision and made such an impression on my mind that I remembered them in the morning and was able to play the selection without any difficulty. S. K.

A Coincidence.

Recently I dreamed that my sister and I were refugees of a shipwreck who were washed ashore on a deserted and wild island, cold, tired and hungry.

Our only ambition was to find temporary shelter in order to get some rest, so we could explore this island on the morrow. After what seemed hours of hiking about we noticed an inviting looking cave. Upon reaching the mouth of this cave two immense lions sprang at us. We started to run away and the lions always seemed to be at arm's reach from us, just ready to make the last grand bounce on us. Finally, my sister, who could stand the strain no longer, was gasping and seemed as though she were on the verge of suffocation. She was just about ready to give up the race when I awoke from fright.

To convince myself it was only a dream and to make sure she was all right, I went to her room to tell her of this strange dream only to find her all tangled in the covers, strangling to release her head, gasping for want of air, and near the point of suffocation, and exhausted in her sleep. I quickly pulled the covers from her, opened the windows higher and called my mother, who soon calmed her.

Wasn't my dream a coincidence?

Sally Makes a Plea to Mothers to Pass on Baby Clothes and Cribs to Less Fortunate Parents.

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

WHO of you would like to make a gift of some baby things for a new visitor in this world and for many who are expected to arrive soon?

If there is anything we like to think of as an occasion for happiness, it is the advent of a new life into the world. In our own families we see to it that the new baby has the best of everything, and we do all we can to insure it the best start possible, and we like to think that every baby and mother receives similar care.

Yet we have requests every day from parents who, through no fault of their own, find themselves unprepared and unable to provide unless we help them.

When we think of the infant clothing, cribs, carriages, and all baby articles which are being outgrown and discarded every day in Chicago before they have lost all usefulness, is there any reason why we should let this condition exist another day? And if, through sentimental attachment, you are keeping your children's baby things, may I ask you to think of all these little newcomers and give them the chance to grow strong and healthy as your children have?

In Great Misfortune.

"I am interested in a poor family in desperate circumstances. The father lost his right hand about eight months ago, and has been unable to secure employment of any kind. The mother works, but earns only a small salary, and there are seven children in the family, all badly in need of clothing. The boys are 11, 12 and 13 years; the girls 15, 9, 6 and 4. The mother wears size 44 or 46. Of course, what they want most of all is work for the father, but help in the form of wearing apparel would be greatly appreciated. J. M."

The misfortune which has befallen this man and the resultant unemployment mean nothing short of calamity in a family of this size. Utterly dependent, they can look only to kind friends for the assistance they need, and we must help them. Won't you remember them with the things your children are outgrowing and with the garments you yourself are discarding?

Loud Speaker.

"I have a thirty-six inch cone radio speaker, in perfect condition, and I would like to have you place it with some deserving family or in some hospital or children's home. It is the kind which hangs on the wall. "Mrs. G. L."

With this splendid speaker at your service there need no longer be the impatient wait of each member of the family for his turn with the ear phones. Write me if your receiving set isn't equipped with a loud speaker; please do not telephone.

Asks for Typewriter.

"My 19 year old son has been ill and must remain in his wheel chair for six months longer. We have four other children and the expenses have been so great I wonder if you could find a typewriter for us. My son could obtain work to do at home if he had one. Mrs. V."

When you know that your old typewriter, once it has been repaired, would help to add to the family coffers and thereby relieve the distressing situation here, you'll surely be glad to give it.

Shoes Are Worn Out.

"I wonder if one of your readers has an old pair of shoes, size 9 or 10. I recently came out of the hospital and am out of work. The shoes I have are so worn, and with this bad weather I need some good ones. "D. S."

A pair of your discarded shoes, with new soles and heels, would keep this convalescent comfortably shod for several months. May he not have them?

Boys' Books to Give.

"I have a collection of books for boys, enough to start a library in a Sunday school, Boy Scout rooms, or community playgrounds. Would you kindly see if your readers would like to have them? Mrs. J. G."

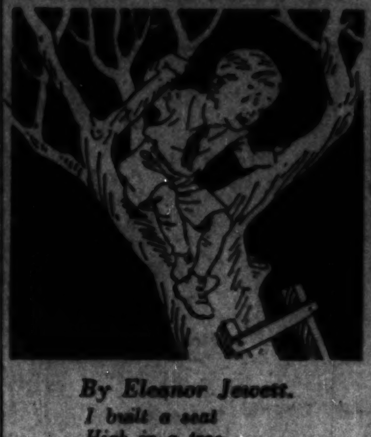
Here's a most generous gift and many, many hours of profitable and enjoyable reading for some group of boys. If you would like these books for your school or club, or even for yourself, write me for them immediately; please do not telephone.

Offers Electric Vibrator.

"I have a vibrator in perfect condition which I shall be glad to send to any one who can make use of it. "Mrs. R. J."

If you are afflicted with neuritis, rheumatism, or any similar ailment you will find that treatment with this vibrator offers great relief. Write me if you can make use of it; please do not telephone.

Up in My Tree



By Eleanor Jewett.

I built a seat
High in a tree
And it won't fit
A soul but me.

And I am glad
That it is small,
For no one bothers
Me at all.

They think I'm safe,
For they can't see
The risks I take
Up in my tree!

Sage Tea Turns Gray Hair Dark

By RUTH WAITE

Every woman with gray, faded or streaked hair is entitled to do something about it, for it is every woman's birthright to retain her youthfulness and charm as long as she can. When a woman mentions gray hair to me, I don't hesitate to advise the use of a restorer and I recommend sage tea and sulphur.

A brew of common garden sage, when properly combined with sulphur, restores gray hair to its original color, lustre and beauty. So perfectly does it do the work that its use is undetectable. You may either prepare the mixture at home or buy it already prepared and ready to use. Wyeth's Sage & Sulphur is the name of the prepared article and it costs only 75c a bottle at druggists. Hence there's no need of your bothering to prepare the mixture yourself.

You simply moisten a comb or soft brush with it and draw it through your hair, one strand at a time. The very first application banishes the gray and one or two more sees the hair beautifully restored to its original life and color. One would be surprised if she or he knew of the thousands who use this preparation.

Carlsbad Sprudel Salt

The natural remedy for OBESITY

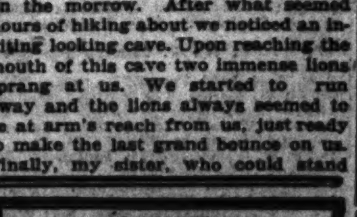
Profs. Ebstein and Pfeifer hold that, in obesity, the natural Carlsbad Sprudel Salt should be taken dissolved in warm water, early in the morning and before retiring.

Use no substitutes. Write for booklet.

Carlsbad Sprudel Water, bottled at the springs, also imported by Carlsbad Products Co., New York.

REM for coughs

"Why Suffer INDIGESTION," Asked her physician



"Gas and 'sour' stomach can now be corrected without the use of burning, irritating soda, or vicious, habit-forming cathartics."

Calcium carbonate, in proper form, is the ideal anti-acid: sure, swift and positive in its soothing relief, yet utterly safe in its use. It is the only remedy which does not upset the acid equilibrium of the body and is incapable of over-dosage.

Stuart Tablets are calcium carbonate in its best and most convenient form blended with other soothing substances. That's why we urge their use for children, and best for men and women.

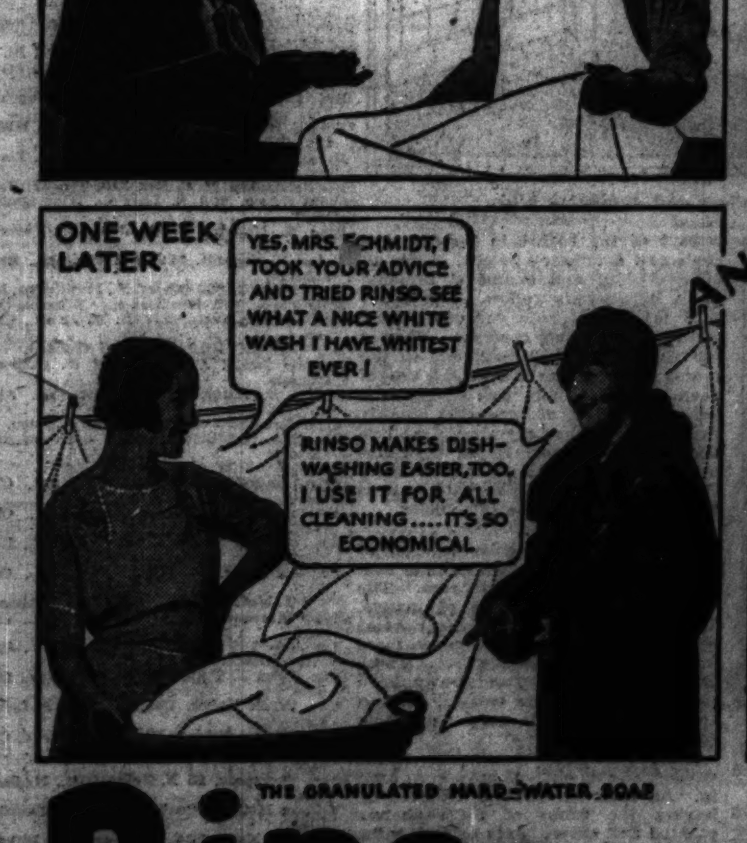
YOUR APRON IS THE WHITEST WHITE I'VE EVER SEEN, MR. SCHMIDT. WHAT'S THE SECRET?
MY WIFE USES A WONDERFUL NEW SOAP, RINSO. ASK HER ABOUT IT
..AND YOU SAY THIS HARD-WATER SOAP GETS CLOTHES WHITER WITHOUT SCRUBBING OR BOILING?
YES! THE SUDS ARE SO THICK THE DIRT FLOATS OFF BY ITSELF



ONE WEEK LATER
YES, MRS. SCHMIDT, I TOOK YOUR ADVICE AND TRIED RINSO. SEE WHAT A NICE WHITE WASH I HAVE. WHITEST EVER!
RINSO MAKES DISH-WASHING EASIER, TOO. I USE IT FOR ALL CLEANING....IT'S SO ECONOMICAL AND

(Thousands write us letters like this)

"Easy on clothes and hands" says Mrs. E. A. Thurston of Chicago

"At first I laughed, when a neighbor told me how Rinso soaked out dirt and saved scrubbing. Now I'll never go back to old-fashioned soaps again.

"Why, Rinso is almost magical—the clothes soak whiter than I could ever scrub them! So easy on the clothes—and on my hands, too! And how economical Rinso is! Just a little gives lots of wonderful suds. I use it for dishes and all cleaning."

MRS. ELIZABETH A. THURSTON, 711 Buckingham Ave., Chicago, Ill.

This hard-water soap is so economical

The makers of 36 leading washers recommend Rinso for whiter washes and for safety. It's so economical, too. Compact, granulated—one cupful gives more suds, does more work, than two cupfuls of lightweight, puffed-up soaps. Try Rinso next washday! Two sizes—most women prefer the BIG package.

The Young Modern Cultivates Curves

by Antoinette Donnelly

Since Ziegfeld Set the Pace for Beauties, Angles Are Out and Rounded Outlines Are the Rage.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—It's a pity the Ziegfeldian proclamation about the curve as a thing of young beauty wasn't issued several years ago. The victims claimed by physicians' accounts of starvation diets would have been appreciably limited.

I claim the man Ziegfeld ought to be enrolled in the Academy of Medicine for the work he has accomplished. Believe it or not, all of us supposedly sane heads with young women's health interests at heart ranted and preached in vain against the ills of breakfastless days and bird food luncheons and dinners. Medical men met in convocation and issued threats of the most dire nature if the folly continued.

Maybe a girl here and there listened, but when the great girl glorifier issued a statement to the effect that there was more appeal in a curve than in a bony angle, the young women sat up in a body. Not in years has there been such a string of applicants at my pamphlet door begging for instructions on how to gain weight. In one day there were 400 letters, and the majority of them not signed "Mrs.", either.

That's why I elect Mr. Ziegfeld to the medical Hall of Fame. For every angle converted into a curve will mean better health for the individual.

Then from England, the other day, I noted that the Ziegfeld prototype, England's girl glorifier, indorsed his American brother's statement in favor of the curved line of beauty.

In view of the demand for information, then, let us outline today some of the most effective rules for weight gaining.

Three Meals a Day.

If you're young, and I have evidence that makes me believe most of you interested ones are, you will not find putting weight on as hard a job as was starving your figure down to bones, flat chests, and fleshless hands. I doubt if it will take you much longer to return to graceful lines than it did most of you to "dis-grace" said lines. If you were an older audience I would not say it was easier to put weight on than take it off. The older thin woman is likely to be of the nervous, high strung, hyperthyroid type, tense and restless. You're probably restless, all right, and you may be nervous and high strung, but the cause of your abnormal condition will be found in the cure I'm about to offer. A bit more of the foods you've conscientiously avoided in past leads as first aid to making curve converts of you.

It's much more pleasant to eat foods that are appetizing than it is to go without them, as your fleshy aunt, to whom you must leave the reducing regime, will agree with what strength she has left after her cracker crumb luncheon.

The first recommendation, then, is not to worry about whether you're getting the right amount of carbohydrates, starches, proteins and so on. All I ask of you is to eat three full meals a day. If you've cultivated the breakfastless habit or something closely akin to it in a cup of coffee and a skinny slice of toast, you'll have to start your reform on that early morning meal.

Don't waste any time arguing, either, that you have no appetite for a full meal in the morning. Begin with a good sized glass of orange juice. Use two oranges, if you can manage it. Eat a bowl of oatmeal or some similarly prepared cereal and drown it in thick cream. Two slices of buttered toast and your coffee. Butter the toast generously. Butter, you know, is one of the best, most nutritious and fattening of foods.

At luncheon you may indulge beneficially in a cream soup, a roll thickly buttered and a custard dessert or ice cream, or a date and fig pudding. At dinner when you sit in with the family you needn't try to show any of them up for a heavy eater. Follow the hearty one right along and, if you can, take a second helping of vegetables. Do eat your full plate of salad. You need salads on a weight-gaining diet. And you need vegetables, too.

Your dessert may be a custard or a sweet. Incorporate a well buttered piece of bread into the dinner menu, too. Without going too seriously into the matter of calories, carbohydrates, vitamins, etc., you can, as at least 90 per cent of healthy people can, raise the weight by simply eating more food.

A glass of orange juice in the middle of the morning and afternoon is advanced by one expert dietitian as a fine appetite raiser for the next meal. And I think if cream, milk and butter are used plentifully at meals the orange juice in between meals is better than the milk preparations usually recommended.

Weight Gaining Foods.

The kinds of food that add weight most quickly are meat, milk and eggs; fruits and vegetables, cream, butter and fat foods; sweets [rich desserts or candy] and nuts. More cream, more butter [in vegetables and sauces and on bread or rolls] more cheese and more sugar in desserts and beverages are particularly urged.

If you can make milk your beverage at meals, so much the better. If you must have some coffee in the morning, drink half coffee and half hot milk, but try to make milk the noonday and evening drink. Milk isn't in itself the great weight-gaining item that is popularly supposed. Alone it is not a remedy for thinness. But it is a food and valuable for its calcium, protein and vitamins. Used in addition to the full meal it will play an important rôle in adding healthy flesh to the bones.

After food we advocate as next in importance more sleep—more rest. We do not have to worry so much about you're not getting exercise, unless it be the outdoor variety you're falling yourself on. Usually, however, our urge is to plead with young women to pipe down on their restless energy and take life a little easier. We can hardly expect you, as we might an older woman, to take advantage of a fifteen minute daytime nap. But you certainly can get nine hours of sleep at night if you make up your mind you're going to put on weight or know the reason why.

A half hour's walk before dinner, you're strongly urged to take for the appetite it creates as well as for the oxygen supply you flat-chested sisters need.

Three Bathrooms in Our Model Home

The Home Harmonious

They Are in Perfect Color Harmony with the Bedrooms Which They Adjoin.

WillElla de Campi will be glad to assist the homemaker in any problems pertaining to home furnishings. Address your letter to WillElla de Campi, The Tribune, Chicago. Inclose stamped, addressed envelope for personal reply.

By WillElla de Campi.

TODAY we are showing illustrations of the three bathrooms in our home harmonious. During the last few years vast improvements have been made in the manufacturing of bathroom equipment and accessories. We are no longer obliged to garb our bathrooms in hospitalic white. Colors are gayly introduced with delightful results, so that our bathrooms now enter into the scheme of decorations most successfully.

Figure 1 shows the washstand and mirror in the bathroom, which is connected with the main bedroom. As the bedroom is done in modern style, with beige, rose-beige, and dull silver as the main colors, the adjoining bathroom complies with this scheme. The wainscoting, bathtub, washstand, and toilet all are in a light, soft beige. The upper wall space is painted a pale rose-beige. A deeper rose-beige rubberized silk is used for shower and window curtains.

Over the washstand, as shown in Figure 1, a cabinet of modernistic design is installed. The frame is in dull silver and the mirrored door opens to disclose glass shelves of convenient height to accommodate bottles and jars of various sizes. Side lights are of frosted glass and dull silver. All the water faucets and towel racks, too, are finished in dull silver. Deep beige and brown marbleized linoleum tiles cover the floor.

In the second illustration is shown a part of the bathroom between the son's and daughter's rooms. Here all of the tiling and enameled fitments are a light sunny yellow. The upper wall is painted pale turquoise blue, making a pleasing contrast. Shower curtains hanging at each end of the recess wherein the tub is set are of deep turquoise rubberized silk. Light yellow organdy of washable quality makes the window curtains. The ruffled edges are finely bound with turquoise. Deep, dull turquoise tiles cover the floor, and the bath mat is in a lighter tone of the same color.

Carrying out the color scheme of the guest room, with which it is connected, is the third bathroom. The wainscoting is in shades of mauve. The upper wall matches the lightest mauve shade. At the window there are curtains of violet organdy. These are crossed at the top and drawn down to short rods at the bottom, so that the finished effect is quite modern in spirit.

In the corners at each side of the window simple shelves have been built in. An unusual effect is achieved by having the backs of these shelves painted dull silver. Jars of bath salts, talcum, creams, and lotions, and various other wares which might be useful to the guests are placed on these shelves.

All of the enameled fitments are light mauve. Vivid violet rubberized silk makes the shower curtain. White towels are banded in two shades of violet and monograms are made to match. Small black and white tiles cover the floor.

FINAL ACES OF THE AIR WINNERS

TO a Chicago man, George Collins of 4340 Drexel boulevard, goes the premier honor in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S $15,000 "Aces of the Air" game. For his skill, neatness, and accuracy in assembling and identifying the composite pictures of the world's leading aviators he captures the first prize of $1,500 in cash.

To Miss Eileen McCarthy of Dublin, Irish Free State, goes the honor of being the champion long distance winner. Of the 1,449 prizes awarded, a large majority went to residents of the five states—Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa, Indiana, and Michigan—in which THE TRIBUNE dominates, but there were sprinklings of cash throughout the United States and Canada. It remained for the Dublin colleen, however, to land in the winning column from clear across the water.

Announcement of other prize winners has been made on previous Sundays. Norman Goldberg of Racine, Wis., carried off the second money, $1,000, and Harvard C. Smith of Kenosha, Wis., finished in third place with $500. Four others were given $250 each, and today the names of the remainder of the $250 winners are published: Kathryn Yager of Oak Park, Ill., and Agnes Nickels of South Haven, Mich.

The game attracted the attention of many thousands of persons all over the country. Started with the idea of acquainting the public with the daring deeds of the men and women who have conquered the elements and written history in the skies, it more than accomplished its purpose, as the flood of entries testified.

A Gypsy Affair.

A gypsy party was the most entertaining affair of the season.

All the guests came clad in their conception of true gypsy garb. A large moving van covered with canvas to resemble a gypsy wagon carried the band to a stretch of open ground near the edge of a wood. Every girl was requested to be prepared to cook one dish and to bring the necessary utensils. Each girl selected one of the boys to be her firebuilder and general helper. Fires were built around a marked circle and soon the supper was sizzling under a full moon.

After the gypsy supper, fires were rekindled and the circle provided a stage for an impromptu vaudeville accompanied by music of tambourines, mandolins and banjos. M. V.

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Too much rich food creates acids which clog the kidney pores so that they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood. Then you get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, begin to drink good water in quantities; also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which every one can take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby often preventing serious kidney complications.

No Gray Hair
Test This Safe Way FREE

GRAY hair must go! But don't try to end it with any crude, sticky, messy dye which produces a dull, lifeless look that is worse than grayness. Use Brownatone—the quick, sure, safe, harmless method tested and approved by millions. Even close friends do not suspect its use. Brownatone is easily applied by anyone. It does not rub off nor wash out. It is beneficial to the scalp—adds luster to the hair. Takes any kind of wave. Comes in two colors: blonde to medium brown; dark brown to black. All druggists sell Brownatone under an absolute guarantee of satisfaction or money back.

MILTON HAMILTON

Illinois Boy is a Winner

Every mother realizes how important it is to teach children good habits of conduct but many of them fail to realize the importance of teaching their children good bowel habits until the poisons from decaying waste held too long in the system have begun to affect the child's health.

Watch your child and at the first sign of constipation, give him a little California Fig Syrup. Children love its rich, fruity taste and it quickly drives away those distressing ailments, such as headaches, bad breath, coated tongue, biliousness, feverishness, fretfulness, etc. It gives them a hearty appetite, regulates their stomach and bowels and gives tone and strength to these organs so they continue to act normally of their own accord. For over fifty years, leading physicians have prescribed it for half-sick, bilious, constipated children. More than 4 million bottles used a year shows how mothers depend on it.

Mrs. M. E. Hamilton, 6331 Parnell Ave., Chicago, says: "My son, Milton is a prize winner for health, now, but we had a lot of trouble with him before we found his trouble was constipation and began giving him California Fig Syrup. It fixed him up quick, gave him a good appetite, made him sleep fine and he's been gaining in weight right along since the first few days, taking it."

To avoid inferior imitations of California Fig Syrup, always look for the word "California" on the carton.

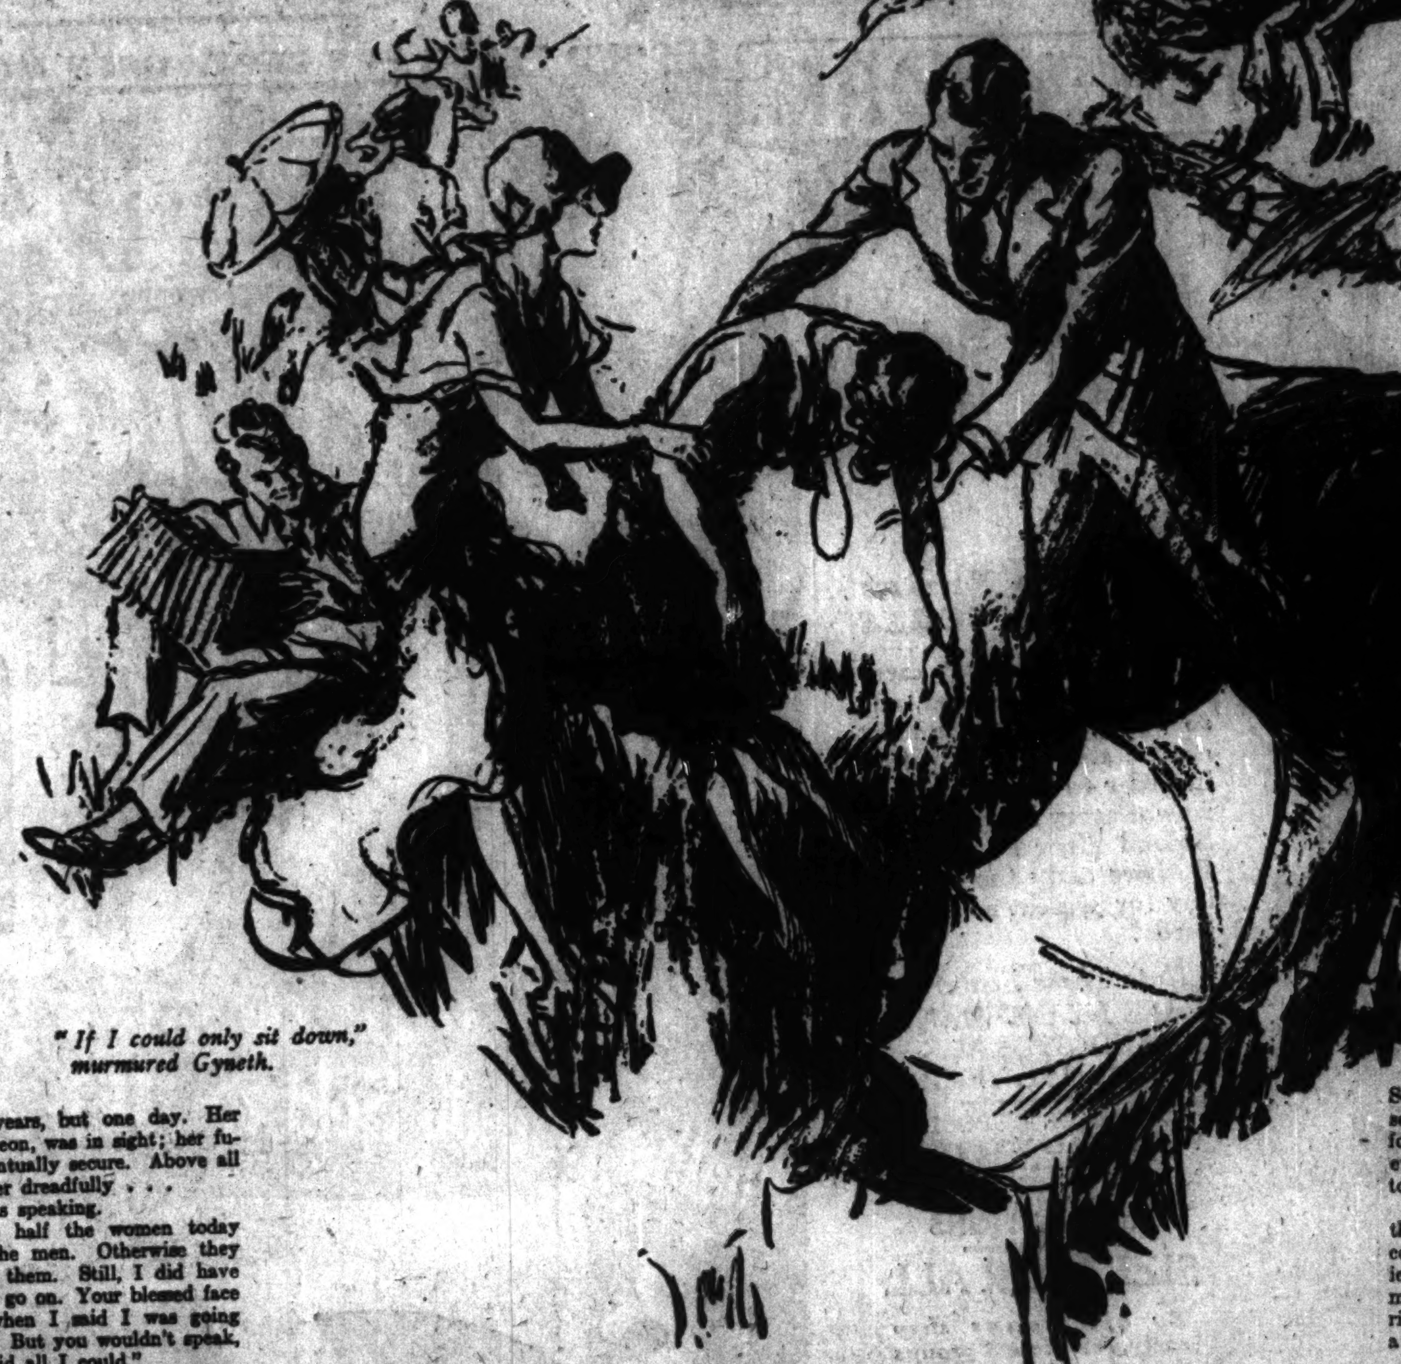
MAIDEN STAKES

BY DORNFORD YATES

He Thought It Would Be Selfish to Ask Her to Marry Him on 500 Pounds a Year, So, with 2,000 as Bait, He Decided to Gamble with Death for Gyneth Sabine.



"If I could only sit down," murmured Gyneth.

AN accident appeared to be inevitable.

A pile of granite blocks sprawled to one side of the way: what remained of the road was most narrow and was edged by a wall: and the three cars were converging at a speed which no brakes could control.

As somebody screamed, the driver of the low two seater changed gear and, opening wide his throttle, fairly lifted his car out of the jaws of death.

These closed behind him with a splintering crash.

Roderick St. Loe brought the low two seater to a standstill and slewed himself round in his seat.

After a moment, "Running boards and wings," he said shortly. "Nobody hurt, but the devil and all to pay. And, unless you very much want to, I don't think we'll wait. They're certain to say it's my fault."

"How can they?" said Miss Sabine, coolly regarding the jam. "They would have crashed just the same if we'd been fifty miles off. O, and thank you very much for saving my life. I thought I knew something of driving, but only a past master could have won out of that."

"My dear," said St. Loe, "I did the obvious thing." He let in the clutch. "Besides, if I'm to go racing, I ought to be able to yank a car round and about."

Miss Sabine sat very still.

After a little, "Don't—don't take up racing," she said.

The man stared through the wind screen.

"I think I shall," he said quietly. "Ewart will take me and, if you really get going, it's not a bad life. Showing and testing out's a poor sort of game."

"I don't agree," said Miss Sabine. "You mustn't forget that you're pretty good at your job. 'Punch' Fairfax told me that to any motoring firm you were worth five thousand a year."

"The brutal fact remains that I receive five hundred."

"And your expenses," said Miss Sabine. "And, as often as not, a car."

"If I raced—and won," said St. Loe, "I should be pampered. Very big screw, cars, south of France in the winter—and the rest. You see, I should be a human advertisement and, as such, only the very best would be good enough for me. So I think I shall. And now let's talk about you. Does your lady mother see reason?"

"On the contrary," said Miss Sabine, "she's replied with a kidney punch. I couldn't eat any breakfast."

She took a letter from her bag and read a sentence aloud.

"I quite hope to be able to continue the allowance I make you, but my expenses are great and, in your own interest, I would suggest that you married the Hirtschmann man. I hate to remind you that I had to marry for money."

It was really outrageous.

ALL the world knew that George Sabine's will had been proved at nearly six hundred and fifty thousand pounds. The income of this sum had been left to Mrs. Sabine, upon whose death their only child, Gyneth, would inherit the whole. With one consent widow and orphan had decided to live apart. Duty and taxes took their toll, but the fact remains that out of a clean fourteen thousand Mrs. Sabine allowed her daughter one hundred and fifty a year.

"So it looks," said Gyneth, putting the letter away, "it looks as though I'd better get off. I can't quite manage George Hirtschmann, but——"

"In another moment," said St. Loe thickly, "I shall commit blasphemy. Your mother——"

"Is a first class sweep," said Miss Sabine. "It may sound unfilial, but it's perfectly obviously true. Meanwhile, people have been very kind. Most awfully kind. But I can't live on charity forever, and, to be perfectly honest, I don't want to go on the stage."

The car slid through Como and on to the Erba road.

"You don't ask where you're going," said St. Loe.

"You've very good taste," said Gyneth. "I'm content to leave it to you."

"I know a pub," said St. Loe, "where the red wine flows. It's cool and white and it has a balcony. The balcony, as they say, commands extensive views."

"Will the balcony be crowded?" said Gyneth.

"It wasn't on Monday," said St. Loe. "Except for the lizards, I had it all to myself."

"Take me there, please," said Gyneth.

The way and the season were lovely, but Roderick wasted no time. Hanging village and vineyard, sleek meadow and chestnut wood, hastening waters and deep, emerald valleys picking their delicate way into the hills—these and other beauties he passed with his eyes on the road. The man was for bigger game.

They whipped through Erba and on, past wagon and shrine and fountain and bright eyed women kneading their washing in the troughs, outstripping all other traffic with a steady, effortless rush. Neither of them spoke, and Roderick sat like a statue, with his firm chin tilted a little and the shadow of a smile on his lips. From time to time the girl stole a look at his face, but if he saw her movement he gave no sign, absorbed in the stanza of motion he had set himself to recite.

St. Loe drove with his heart. His models were the fowls of the air. A car must swoop and hover, must sail and wheel and sink, like a bird on the wing. If it could do these things, it was a good car. If not . . . It was a lot to ask, but the car that passed St. Loe would have pleased a Zoilus.

At the moment he was testing a model of which next to nobody knew. Beneath her locked bonnet lay the hopes of a famous firm. St. Loe had been ordered not to spare her and to make his report on her manners in three weeks' time.

SO they came to the inn—a shy, irregular fable of storey posts and plaster and casements, its white wall black lettered by the shade of a thousand leaves.

The house stood back from the road, but the space before it was empty, and the smiling hostess acknowledged that the balcony was free.

The two passed through a cool passage and out of a little door.

Then, "O, my dear," said Gyneth, and caught her breath.

Foreground there was none. One stood staring, as may stare the high gods, upon this pretty document we call the world. Two thousand feet below lay the Lake of Lecco, more blue and more resplendent than any jewel; beyond rose up the mountains, the very hatchment of might, majesty and dominion, their immemorial heads powdered with snow; over all hung the cloudless heaven. The air was quick with sunshine; the firmament was gay; Lecco was smiling in its sleep.

The girl put a hand to her head. So much perfection bewildered, the brilliance of the spectacle dazzled, the giant miniature before her was breaking the rules of sight.

"As it was and ever shall be," said St. Loe gently.

My lady nodded, with her eyes on the topless hills.

Luncheon was served—and brought them back to a more genial earth. No one could have been cheerless in such a dining room. The spirits of the two rose with each simple course.

When the meal was over Miss Sabine pushed back her chair and crossed her delicate legs.

"The world can go hang," she said. "Is this the spring in my blood or the Chianti?"

"Neither," said St. Loe. "You always had a great heart. Most women would have squealed this morning when I went over the weir. But you never so much as blinked."

"Let me be honest," said Gyneth. "My heart stood perfectly still. I even tried to say 'Stop,' but my mouth wouldn't work. Which reminds me—don't take up racing. I rather value your life."

"So do I," said St. Loe. "That's why I propose to enlarge it—turn it on to the fat of the land. Of what use is five hundred a year? Five hundred a year, I ask you. And supposing I wanted to marry . . ."

"No girl that cared would marry you if you raced."

Roderick frowned into space.

"To hear you talk," he said, "any one would think it was dangerous."

"O, I wouldn't say that. But—well, it's not exactly clock golf, is it? I mean, the pace is against you. If anything should miscarry, a couple of miles a minute gives you no time."

St. Loe sighed.

"The old cry," he said. "And only this morning I showed you that a hell of a pace can save you as nothing else. My dear, the speed don't kill you. It's what the other fool does. Look at that wallah today. He must have seen the obstruction and he carefully waved me on. An' going all out himself. But on the track there aren't any other fools."

"Nothing doing," said Miss Sabine. "You know as well as I do that it's the pace that kills. Not today, perhaps, or tomorrow, but the day after that. If George Hirtschmann would take up racing I—I believe I'd marry the brute."

RODERICK laughed. Then he took out tobacco and started to fill a pipe.

"Unless I race I can't marry. If I race no woman who loves me will take me on. Looks rather like celibacy, doesn't it?"

"I don't agree," said Miss Sabine. "But then that's natural enough. Five hundred a year and expenses—well, viewed from my standpoint, you're one of the bloated rich."

St. Loe said nothing, but a hand went up to his mouth.

The girl was honest—honestly believed what she said. Had he told her that she was living at the rate of three thousand a year she would have found him mad. Yet that was the plain truth.

Gyneth Sabine was always popular, but under her mother's chastisement she became the rage. She was taken everywhere, given the best of everything, royally entertained. She wore Julia Challenger's dresses and Sarah Pardoner's shoes. She had more engagements in London than she could ever keep; in half the counties of England she was a valued guest. She hunted in Leicestershire, stayed with the Festivals for Ascot, kept Christmas at Red Abbey. Her hostess of the moment was the young duchess of Padua.

That she fared so sumptuously, Gyneth owed to herself. She was certainly lovely and possessed great personal charm, but her open hearted nature was the quality that grappled her friends. She was most natural and appreciative, coveted nothing at all and, rejoicing with such as rejoiced, wondered at the jealousy of women as at something beyond her ken. High spirited, quick witted and eager, she was honored wherever she went.

Crispin Willoughby once said of her, "'As having nothing, and yet possessing all things'." The mot was just.

"LET'S talk of something else," said St. Loe. "I hear——"

"Half a moment," said Miss Sabine. "There's something I want to know. Why this desire for matrimony? Six months ago, at Charing, you exuded content with your lot."

"I know," said Roderick. He hesitated. "Since then I've—I've—I suppose I've been sizing things up. You know. Taking stock of life an'—an' that sort of thing." He picked up a piece of bread and crossed to the balustrade. "Come and consider the lizards. There aren't any holes in their philosophy."

Miss Sabine took a deep breath.

"Why not say that you love me?" she said. "I won't bite you or anything, and it's—well, it's the talk of the town."

"I'm mad about you," said Roderick shakily.

"I know. I'm so awfully glad. You see, from the moment I saw you there's never been any one else."

The man stepped to her side and she put her arms round his neck. He lifted her up and held her close to his heart.

"But, Gyneth darling, it's no good. We can't possibly live an' move on what I make; and if you won't let me race . . ."

"Of course we can," said Miss Sabine. "The Larches have next to nothing and they've got a little boy."

"But they live abroad, my darling. It's so hard to be poor in England. If I had a job abroad——"

"If you had, my dear, we should probably never have met."

Roderick let the girl go and returned to the balustrade.

"I want you to be happy," he said. "And I don't think you will be happy without a show. I don't think you realise what life without a show means. One servant, buses, washing, listening to a band in the park when all your pals are at Goodwood or setting north; refusing invitations to join the joy-wheel at Nice—'Roderick can't get away'; wearing the same old——"

A warm arm stole round his neck and a sweet smelling palm stopped his mouth.

"I shall have you, Roderick. I know I've had a soft time, but I'd rather share your lodgings than live at the Ritz alone."

ST. LOE'S arms were about her.

"O, my sweet, are you sure? Life's such a sordid business and the main use of money today is to cover the sordid side. You don't have to be frightfully rich, but if you haven't enough to cloak, to buy off sordidness—well, it touches you up, you know."

Gyneth leaned her head against his.

"I know," she said. "I've had some. But, so long as you love me I'll never have any more. You see, my darling, I won't have to be by myself. I can be with you almost the whole of the time. When you take a car out to Monza I can come, too; when you try out a car in England I can sit by your side; you've next to no office work, and if you want me we two can be together day in and day out."

"If I want you," breathed Roderick. "O, Gyneth!"

The girl continued excitedly. "We won't take a flat or furnish; we'll live at some little farm. Just outside London, you know. Two rooms which we can come back to whenever we please. The people will board us, you see, and give us good, simple food. And gradually we can furnish—bring home a chair we've found, or a rug, or a print. You see, with a car it's so easy, and you've nearly always a car. Winter or summer we'll have the laugh of the towns, and people with ten times our money will envy our simple fun."

"Gyneth, Gyneth," cried the man. And then, being past speaking, he kissed her eyes and her mouth and praised God.

To my mind he had done very well. And if in the end he brushed uncertainty aside I do not know who shall throw a stone at him. Because he loved her he had sought to conjure up a picture which should open the lady's eyes; her reception of his effort had argued that her eyes had been open for six months or more—that she was all ready to wed him and had carefully counted the cost. He could have persisted, certainly—his fears were not wholly laid, but if he was shrewd, he was human, 26 years of age and madly in love. After all, Gyneth was a beggar. If she lay in the bosom of Dives, she must be acutely aware of the presence of Lazarus' sores. Again, one day, she would be rich; perhaps tomorrow, perhaps not for twenty years, but one day. Her ship, her galleon, was in sight; her future was eventually secure. Above all he wanted her dreadfully . . .

Gyneth was speaking.

"I believe half the women today propose to the men. Otherwise they wouldn't get them. Still, I did have something to go on. Your blessed face that night when I said I was going abroad . . . But you wouldn't speak, although I did all I could."

"I hadn't the right," said Roderick.

The girl drew down his head and kissed his lips.

"I'm very lucky," she said. "Only a man in a million loves a woman like that."

May 31.

Dear Ewart: What shocking, awful news. Simmons' loss is grievous. He knew no fear. And poor Renny. From what I gather he'll never walk again. I always hated that race, taking a chance a minute all night long. Well, this looks as if our Spanish cake was dough. I believe we could get Melenger, but I don't think he's worth putting up. And there's no one else, unless you can get St. Loe. He's never raced, I know, but he's got a way with a car. He gave me a lift on Tuesday. He's here with a hush-hush Lapland, trying her out. I tell you, the lad can drive. Maiden's hands and an eye like a hungry hawk. What's more, he's young. Moves first and thinks afterwards, you know. I should certainly see what's doing. I know he's sleeping in Paris on June 5.

Yours ever, MAC.

. . . .

"Well, there you are," said Ewart, pushing aside his plate. "Thanks to this blasted night driving, they're buryin' Simmons tomorrow, and Renny'll be on his back for a couple of months. I'm going to put up Akers because I must, but he knows as well as I do that he's useless outside a track. He's got to see ahead five miles before he'll put down his foot. Never mind. There's one car manned. If you want to die in the other let me know."

Roderick St. Loe stared at his finger bowl.

"I'd—I'd jump at it," he said slowly. "Jump with both feet. But I'm—well, I'm engaged to Gyneth Sabine, and she might stick in her toes."

Ewart's eyelids flickered. Then he lifted his glass.

"There goes a great lady," he said. "I wish you both every joy." He drank deliberately. "I imagine this means that her mother——"

"And then you're wrong," said Roderick.

"What, not a bean?" said the other.

"Not a bean," said Roderick ruefully.

There was a little silence. Then Ewart drew in his breath.

"The old miser," he said. "How on earth are you going to live?"

Roderick shrugged his shoulders. "I make five hundred a year."

Ewart regarded him, blinking. "Are you being funny?" he said.

Roderick bit his lip. "She's content," he said shortly. "I put it all before her, and she say's it's good enough."

Ewart sighed. "If she's a good buyer," he said, "and doesn't fly too high, she ought to be able to dress on three hundred a year."

The young man winced visibly. "I know," he said. "I know. We've had it all out. But it won't be forever, Ewart. Mrs. Sabine——"

"Is fifty-two," said Ewart, "and full of running. I don't suppose you know it, but I was to have been George Sabine's best man. But she didn't like me a little, and so we called it off."

There was another silence. Then Roderick summoned a smile. "You're not very hopeful," he said.

"I'm more than hopeful," said Ewart. "I'm devilish glad. I thought she was goin' to Hirtschmann, and the look of it made me sick. But, if you don't want to crash, I think I should wait a little and see if you can't climb up."

"We can't wait long," said Roderick. "Her mother's put on the screw."

"She's not without honor outside that woman's house. Gyneth Sabine is welcome wherever she goes."

"She's sick of cadging," said Roderick.

EWART considered his wine.

"Every man," he said slowly, "must do his own sum. You say you've hammered it out, and I guess you have. How's the new car?"

St. Loe ignored the inquiry. "You think it can't be done?"

"On the contrary," said Ewart, "I know very well that it can. You were too young for the war, but you can take it from me that it's astonishing how used one can get to what's called 'doing without.' How's the new car?"

"She's very pleasing," said Roderick absently. "One or two little things, but nothing much. I get my expenses, you know."

"Of course. Railway fare back, after delivering a car. She can come with you, if you don't mind traveling third. Shall we go to the Moulin Rouge?"

"No, thanks," said St. Loe. "I'm moving early tomorrow. What—what about the Spanish Grand Prix?"

Ewart raised his eyebrows. "It's no good discussing that, if you're not free."

"She might come round," said St. Loe. "Or—or it might be arranged, somehow. What do I get?"

Ewart ordered brandy and pushed his open cigar case across the cloth.

"I can't take you on blind," he said. "Jordan will have to vet you. There's plenty of cunning chauffeurs, but this is a different trade."

"That's understood," said St. Loe. "If Jordan passes me out, what do I get?"

Ewart lighted his cigar.

"There's a market in Spain," he said. "I've studied it for some time, and I've found what it wants. The job is to get away. Well, I'd got everything ready, but nothing done. I was waiting for the Spanish Grand Prix. I meant to win that—and let fly. From the Pyrenees to Gibraltar, Lapage all over the place. I think it's a sitter. The Lapage is the car for Spain. But she must win the Spanish Grand Prix, or I won't even start."

Roderick nodded, with his eyes on the other's face.

Ewart continued slowly. "If I take you on, and you lose, I'll give you a thousand pounds. If you win, you can run the show—manage Lapage in Spain from bottom to top. On commission, of course; guaranteed, two thousand a year."

Roderick caught his breath. Then he put up a hand and covered his eyes.

The man was dazzled—blinded.

Abroad—his own master—two thousand pounds a year.

He saw a Madrid apartment, with tall, curtained windows and the play of a great log fire on the sober walls; he saw Seville at Easter and the blue of the Mediterranean in Malaga bay; he saw the great pile at Burgos and the long Atlantic rollers, nosing the sands of San Sebastian under the August sun. Against each one of these backgrounds he saw Gyneth—Gyneth lapped in the comfort of the stately flat; Gyneth in the sunshine of Malaga; Gyneth at San Sebastian, with her precious lips parted and the brilliant water leaping about her slim, brown legs——

With an effort he found his voice.

"How long will Jordan take to make up his mind?"

"I don't know," said Ewart. "Two or three days, I should think."

St. Loe thought very fast.

"Supposing I can't get leave. If Jordan doesn't like me, I don't want to lose my job."

"That's all right," said Ewart. "I can drop a line to Robson. He knows how I'm placed. But I thought you said the lady would kick."

St. Loe set his teeth. "I never promised not to," he said, "but I think there was a sort of understanding that I wasn't to race."

"The devil there was," said Ewart. Again his eyelids flickered. "O, well, of course, in that case—when will you see her again?"

"Not for ten days. When the Paduas leave for London they'll bring her along."

Ewart sighed. "That's done it," he said shortly. "These things are impossible to write. If you could have talked it over. But, you see, I must find some one, and I simply can't wait. As it is, I'm right up against time," and with that he called for his bill.

RODERICK stiffened. "I'll take it on," he said.

Ewart stared. "But——"

"I'm not going to write or talk. I—I don't propose to tell her. We weren't to be married till August and—and—when's the race?"

"Sunday, July 29. If you're to weigh out you'll have to see Jordan at once."

"In three days' time," said Roderick.

Ewart nodded. "But you'd better sleep on it," he said. "Simmons was one in a thousand, and now he's cold. And it's four hundred miles to Tipperary and a hell of a run."

"I know what I want," said St. Loe.

Ewart wrinkled his nose. "Can you stand the sun?" he said. "It's apt to be hot."

"Love it," said Roderick shortly. "You'll keep this quiet, won't you? And if any one gets asking, you might give me another name."

Ewart pulled his mustache. "She's two months to find out in," he said. "And I don't see how you hope——"

"It's got to be done somehow. You must help me, Ewart. Gyneth's got to know nothing until we're through."

"In that case," said Ewart, "you'd better not mention me. I don't suppose she hears much motoring shop, but the press has been takin' my name these last three days. Still, we're not off yet. How soon can you be back?"

"If you'll fix things up with Robson, on Friday night."

Ewart nodded. Then he rose to his feet. "I'll tell Jordan to stand by for Saturday. Be here at 10 o'clock and I'll drive you down."

THAT night a letter left Paris.

June 5.

Dear Mac: Tell no one, but I have St. Loe. His engagement to Gyneth Sabine was rather a snag but, provided you don't breathe a word, I think we may count her out. If you remember, we devilish near lost Simmons that very same way.

Yours, J. E.

On the twenty-eighth day of July Miss Sabine laughed shortly and got to her exquisite feet.

"I'm sorry I came," she said.

"O, Gyneth."

"Well, isn't it perfectly plain that I'm in the way? We've hardly set eyes on each other since we were engaged. I don't suggest that's your fault; you've got to do as you're told. But the fact remains that, since Como, we've met four times. Four times in two months, Roderick."

"Gyneth, darling, it's been so awfully hard. It's——"

"Wait a minute. I haven't done. Three days ago we were six hundred miles apart. Then out of the blue came Judy Boleyn's invitation to come here with her and Adam and stay as long as I like. Here of all places—twenty-five miles from you. And, now that I'm here, you can't even stay to dinner—you 'must get back'."

"Tomorrow, Gyneth."

"What of tomorrow? I'd so looked forward to spending the day with you. And you offer to come 'after dinner'."

St. Loe moistened his lips.

"Listen, my sweet. I'm up to the neck in a very important deal. I'm doing my very utmost to plant a car. I've appointments tonight and tomorrow I dare not break."

"I wired you that I was coming."

"I know. The appointments were made."

Miss Sabine shrugged her shoulders.

"I want to be reasonable," she said. "I want to believe what you say. But I tell you frankly, Roderick, I'm not quite sure where I am. Your letters have been—well, curious. Excuse after excuse. Why? What for? I've never thrown any stones. If you were to read them through you'd see what I mean. And now I'm out here, you confirm the impression they've made."

"What impression, Gyneth?"

"I think that you've something to hide. I think you've had something to hide ever since we became engaged."

Desperately the man stared seawards, with his nails driving into his palms. The Atlantic was a clear sheet of quivering blue. Its million transient dimples made up a million mirrors to mock the sun. This flamed in the heaven, blurring the outline of the mountains, setting the still air dancing, lending shadow a substance that filled the eye. Beneath this fierce benevolence the grounds of the Villa Iriberri glowed with content. The bravery of the hanging gardens and the strip of yellow sand at their foot issued an invitation that smacked of the golden world.

St. Loe put a hand to his head. Somehow he had kept his secret. In seven weeks he had managed to blindfold his lady's eyes. And now, on the eve of triumph, fate had brought her to the gates of the circus itself.

Had she been proposing to stand the race for the Spanish Grand Prix, she could hardly have been more conveniently lodged. The course lay thirty miles distant. San Sebastian and Biarritz were swarming. Iriberri stood upon a headland between the two.

The girl had arrived that morning, had been driven straight to the villa, had so far heard no news. Biarritz was aflame with posters announcing the race, but an all night journey is tiring and Adam Boleyn, her host, had a wound of the war. That he and his wife and Gyneth would keep fixed within their gates was almost certain. If they did the race would be over before she knew.

For two most powerful reasons St. Loe dared not tell her the truth. In the first place, she would be furious—would charge him with breaking faith. In the second, she would be frightened to death. The race had a bad name. Between distress and indignation she would undoubtedly require him to stand aside, and when he refused she would make it a condition of marriage that he withdrew from the race.

The man turned suddenly and took the girl in his arms.

"I love you so much, my darling, and I'm on the very edge of such wonderful news. It's been hatching ever since Como. And tomorrow evening, with luck, the deal will be through. And then I can tell you the story from first to last."

GYNETH took his face in her hands. "Let me look in your eyes," she said.

For a long moment brown eyes held blue.

Then the girl shook her head. "Not good enough," she said quietly. "There's something at the back of your heart you don't want me to know. Something you're afraid to tell me." In silence the man let her go. "I never thought you'd play me up, Roderick; but it's perfectly plain that I've come upon the scene too soon."

St. Loe stood up very straight.

"That's quite true," he said quietly. "Thirty-six hours too soon. I seem to have mucked things up. In a way it's my fault; and yet I don't know what else I could have done. The future matters so frightfully—your future, I mean. Ever since Como I've been staring ahead. You know. Like when you're driving. My eyes have been on the future. And I simply haven't seen the present, because, compared with the future, it doesn't count." He stopped there and looked round helplessly. "Of course, that's where I blundered. You rather value the present, and I was washing it out. Naturally enough, you're fed up."

"I'm not so fed up as I was a moment ago." The man started forward. "No. Stay where you are. I'm not so fed up, because you've spoken frankly—for the first time in seven weeks. But there's one thing you've got to explain. I simply hate asking you, because, if you lie, I shall know it, and I'm afraid of the truth. But it's got to be done. If we're to be married, my dear, I've got to know why I'm de trop—what 'appointment' you're keeping tomorrow—why, when I got here this morning it was thirty-six hours too soon."

The man set his teeth.

"I'll tell you tomorrow," he said.

"You won't see me tomorrow, unless you tell me today."

"O, Gyneth, trust me this once."

"It's not a question of trusting. I said I wasn't wanted, and you agreed. Thank God, you didn't argue the point. If you had, I'd have finished it there. But you didn't. You didn't lie. You

THE GLENLITTEN MURDER

BY E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

The Action Hitherto:

FELICE, a beautiful young girl reared in France, is the bride of Lord Glenlitten. With the assistance of Glenlitten's sister, Lady Susan, they entertain for the first time. The guests are: Comte Raoul de Besset, an old friend of Lady Glenlitten's; Lord and Lady Mansfield; Rodney Haslam, a West African commissioner home on leave; Bobby Grindells, a young lawyer; Dr. Meadows, a surgeon; Sir Richard Cotton, a noted criminal lawyer; two officers, Fraser and Philipson; and Prince Charles de Suess, a Russian refugee, who secretly claims Felice as a sister. Lady Glenlitten, unnerved by a thunderstorm, retires early. Soon afterward she hears her name called, sees a hand at the window, and hears the report of a gun. She loses consciousness and on regaining it finds her husband and Dr. Meadows with her and Sir Richard bending over the lifeless body of Comte de Besset. Costly jewels are missing and traces of a burglar are found. The burglar is captured and charged with murder. Sir Richard Cotton agrees to defend him, believing a third man guilty. Glenlitten retains a private detective, Felix Main, in an effort to upset the lawyer's theory, but discharges him when Main voices disagreeable suspicions. Felice visits her family, in hiding in London. They swear her to secrecy concerning their relationship.

INSTALLMENT VI.

Accusation.

"MRS. DRAYTON, the young person who wished to see your ladyship," Parkins announced, with discreet reserve. He did not in the least approve of his mistress' good natured but somewhat tiresome habit of seeing every one who inquired for her, whether they were mendicants, venders of new and amazing commodities, or representatives of charitable organizations.

Félice sat up on the sofa and motioned her visitor to a seat.

"Forgive me that I do not rise," she begged. "I have been sleeping and I am still very lazy."

Mrs. Drayton sat primly upon the edge of her chair and looked cautiously toward the door which the butler, who had announced her, was in the act of closing. She was dressed in severe black, and with great neatness, but her hair was bobbed, and of that violent shade of auburn, a little blacker toward the roots, which even the least sophisticated of mortals accepts with some slight hesitation. Her complexion had that tired look which comes with the sudden and complete cessation of all cosmetics. She had bold dark eyes, just now judiciously lowered—a woman of about thirty-five years of age, hard to place.

"You are very kind to see me, my lady," she acknowledged. "Did you happen to remember my name—to know who I was?" she added, a little wistfully.

"Let me see—Mrs. Drayton, was it not?" Félice reflected. "No, I am afraid I did not remember it. Have you been to see me before? Is it some charity, perhaps?"

The woman shook her head.

"In a way it is charity, my lady, for which I have come to beg, but not for money. I am the wife of Max Drayton, who broke into your house in Hampshire in the hoping of stealing your necklace."

Félice sat up with a start.

"His wife!" she exclaimed. "You are that man's wife? The man who climbed up the ladder—I can see him now, with his knee upon the window sill of my room—you say that you are his wife?"

"Yes, my lady," the women assented, with something which closely approached a snivel. "You see, there are all sorts of us in the world, but after all, we're all human beings. I didn't come here to talk about myself. Max was a sneak thief when I married him, and I knew it—I wasn't much better myself."

"I am sorry," Félice murmured vaguely.

"I haven't come to beg him off for the burglary," his wife went on. "Wouldn't be any use, I suppose, if I had. It was a fair cop, and he hadn't even got rid of the ring. They tracked him by the car, and the magistrate didn't want anything but the police evidence to send him for trial. But, my lady——"

"Well?"

"There was a man killed that night."

"Yes," Félice assented with a little shudder. "Do I not know?"

"My Max didn't kill him," the woman declared, raising her voice a little.

Félice made no reply. She was seated with her hands clasped, her eyes fixed upon her visitor.

"My Max," the latter continued emphatically, "has never packed a gun in his life. He began as a sneak thief, and a sneak burglar is what he's become, but he doesn't even carry a jemmy. He's never shown fight yet, as the police can testify. He's as light on his feet and as artful as they make 'em, and he goes for a get-away all the time. So would any burglar who's got any sense. It's a few years with hard labor for a burglary without violence, my lady, but you may get a lifer if you use a gun. Max isn't that sort of fool anyway. He loves his life and liberty, same as you and me."

"Why have you come here to tell me this?"

"Because your ladyship was in the room, because some one must know that it wasn't my Max who fired the shot, and you were there."

"I was there," Félice acknowledged, "but the whole place was in darkness. I could see nothing. It was terrifying. They found out afterwards that some one had tampered with the cable in the engine room."

"Max may have been in that," his wife admitted. "That's an old trick of his. He loves to work in the dark. He carries an electric torch, of course, and if no one can turn a light on him, he's got so much the better chance of a get-away, but, my lady, some one was killed in your bedroom whilst my Max had his knee on your window sill. When he heard the gun go off he pretty near tumbled down, and if he had he'd have broken his neck. Instead of coming into the room for the necklace he was after, he just pinched one ring, and hopped it."

"But the necklace is missing, too," Félice reminded her.

"I can't help that," the woman replied, doggedly. "Max didn't take it. He ain't ever denied the burglary, he ain't denied being there. He owned up the moment he was copped, and the story I'm telling you now is the gospel truth. He pinched the ring, and he legged it, and whoever shot that man in your room, it wasn't him. That's what I've come to say, my lady, and I've come to ask for your kind help."

The camouflage of the woman's restrained toilette and manner was slowly disappearing. Her voice had become harsher and louder. She pushed back her hat a little back, and there were pools of fear in her black eyes. Her mouth had developed almost an animal curve. She was a she wolf fighting for her own. Félice looked at her with a shiver. A new fear was in her heart.

"But I did not know that your husband was charged with killing the Comte de Besset," she said.

"That's the cunning of the police," the woman explained. "They've got him committed for trial on a charge of burglary. They'll keep him in prison all right whilst they work up the other case. We've got the best lawyer in the world. My Max is a saving man, and we ain't paupers, although it's taking every penny we have in the world. The police are going round now all the time looking for evidence. They won't find it too easy. They'll never be able to swear to finding a gun on my Max, though they may try. He ain't never owned such a thing, and if they'd only let me go in the box I would swear to that if God's lightning were hovering over my head, but after all, it's your ladyship could settle it. You didn't see my husband shoot the poor gentleman, my lady."

"I did not see anything," Félice assured her. "The darkness came just as the man—your husband, I suppose—was getting in at the window, and stretched out his hand toward the dressing table."

THERE was a pause. The woman fidgeted nervously with the edge of her jacket.

"Anyway, you ain't going to say you saw my Max fingering a gun?" she demanded.

"How could I? I told you before that I could see nothing."

Again there was a silence. The woman was nervous but determined.

"Your ladyship must have known—that there was some one else in the room."

Félice gave a little gasp.

"What do you mean?" she exclaimed.

"Some one shot that poor gentleman," the woman pointed out. "They're trying to fix it on my Max, but it wasn't him. Now, this is what I call reason. If it wasn't Max, it was some one else who was in the room, and if there was any one else in the room, your ladyship must have known. That's fair, ain't it?"

Félice's voice seemed even to her to be coming from a long way off. It was very still, and very quiet.

"You are suggesting that there was a man concealed in my bedroom with my knowledge who shot the Comte de Besset?"

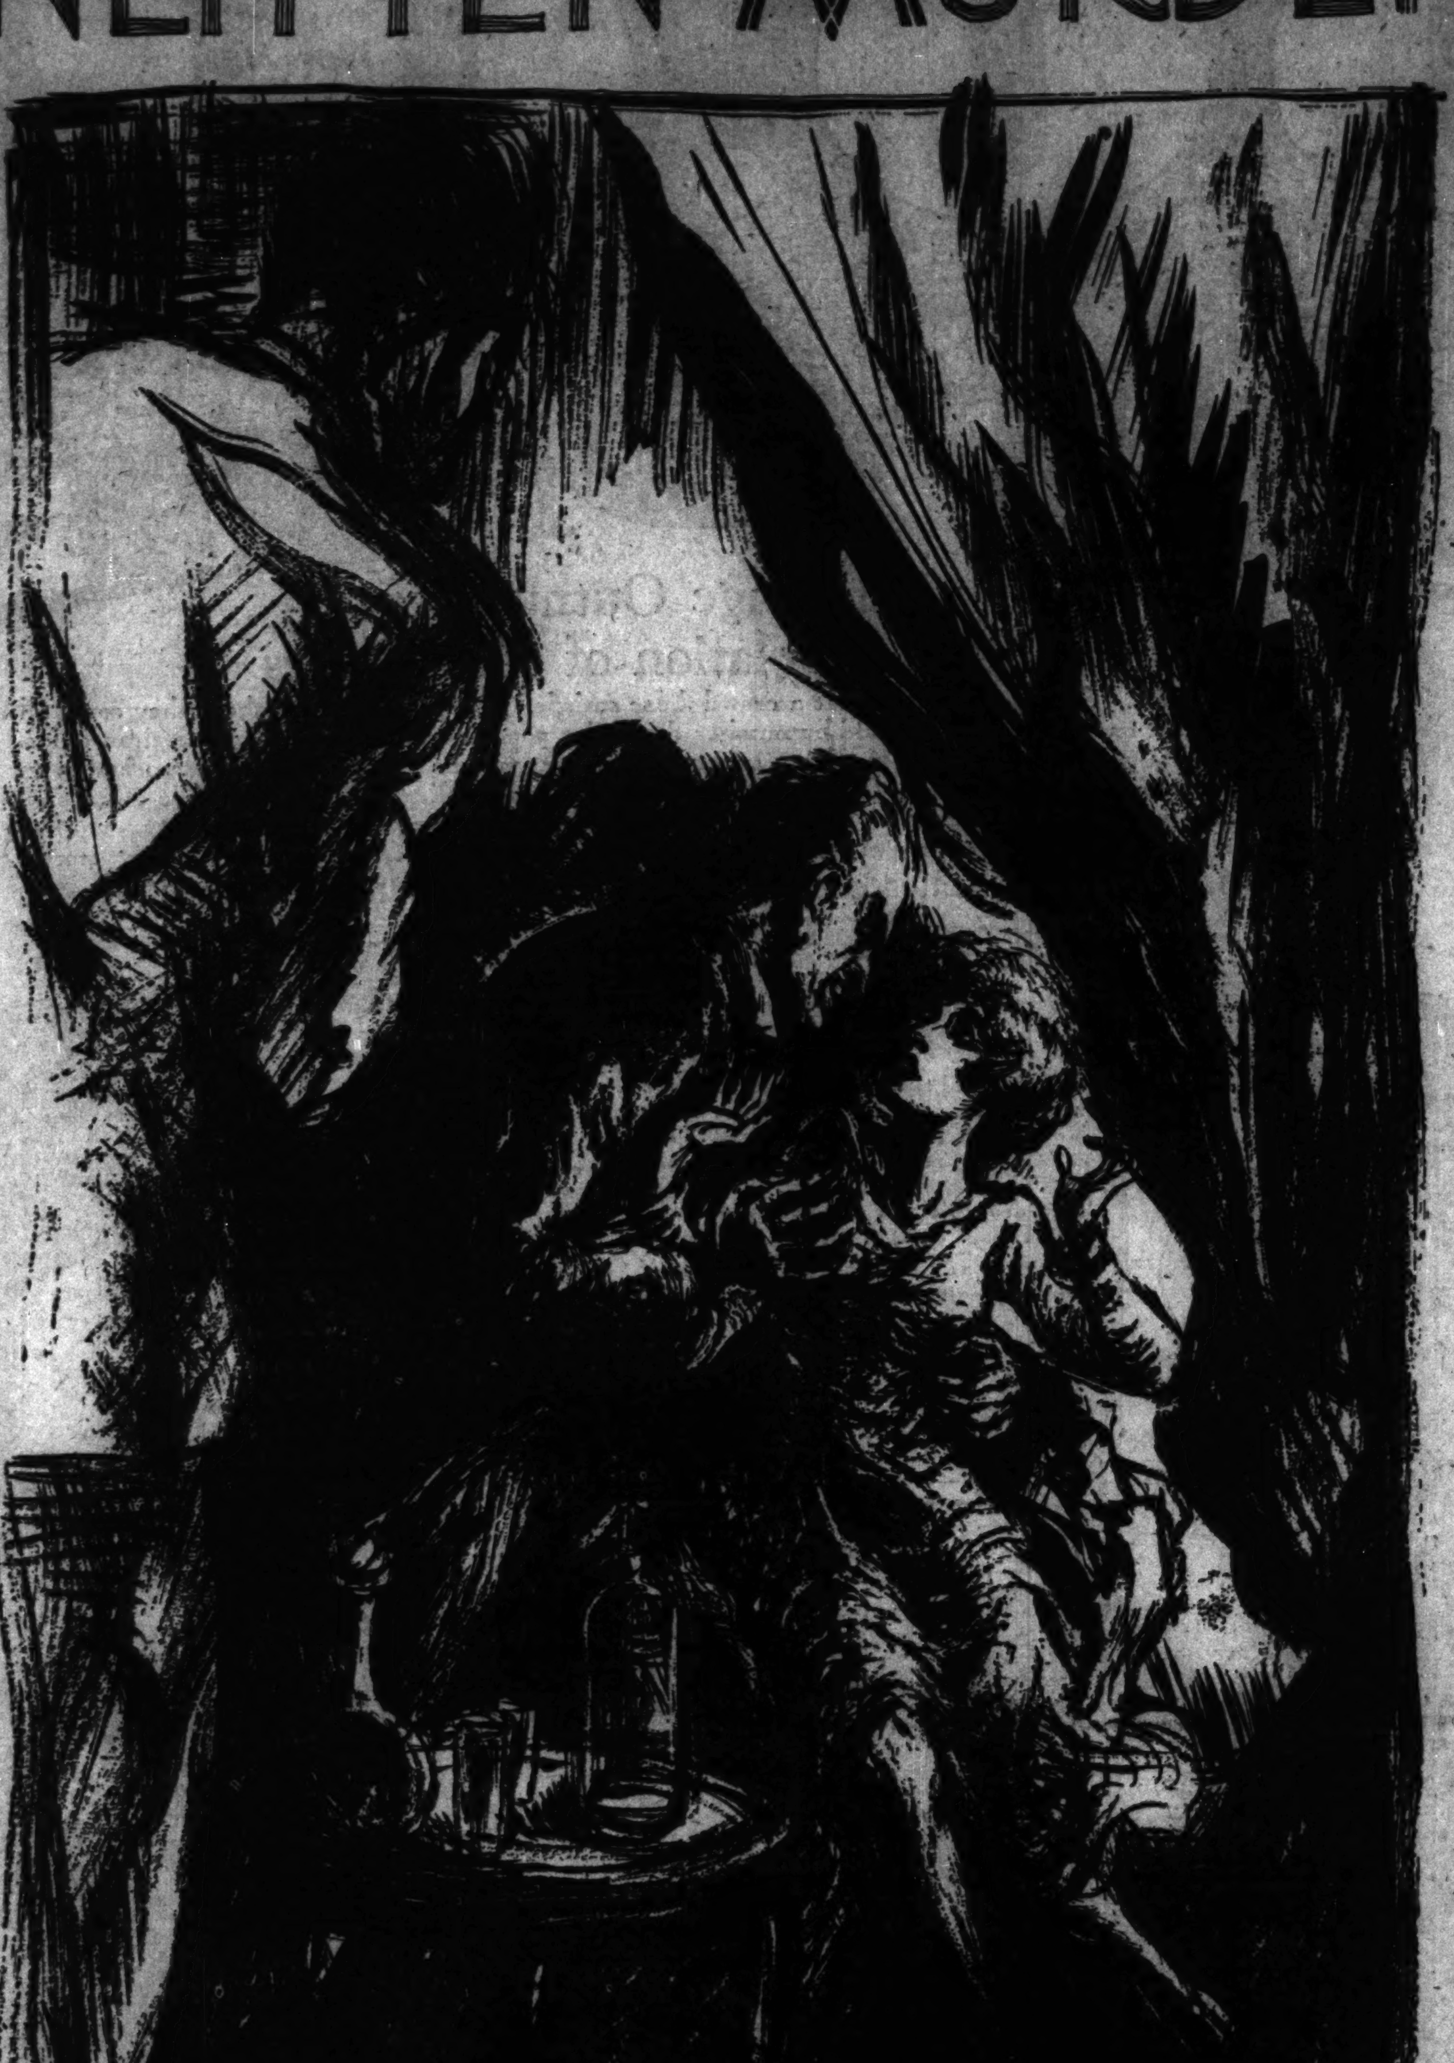
"My lady, it's common sense," the woman argued stubbornly. "There was a man there, and how could he have got in unless you knew? You may not like to own up to it, and I don't blame you, but it's no crime after all, and you're human being enough not to want the wrong man to swing rather than tell the truth. It's the sort of thing goes on every day with us folk," she continued brasenly, "and to judge from the divorce cases in high life we read of at times, I don't know as it's very different in yours. I'm putting it to your ladyship straight. If you're keeping a still tongue in your head because you don't want your husband to know of your goings on, well, I say that's all right, and good luck to you, but when it comes to an innocent man being hung for what your fancy chap might have done, you're a woman like the rest of us, and you couldn't let that be. No, my lady, you couldn't let that happen. Sit up and say yer couldn't. I expect I'm as fond of my man in my way as you are of yours, though mine's a burglar and yours is a marquis or something; still, they're both of them human beings. The war's taught us there ain't so much difference after all. I say again, my lady, you ain't going to let my man swing."

FELICE rose slowly to her feet and stood upon the hearthrug by the side of the sofa—a strange, pathetic looking little figure, though in a way there was a great dignity in her bearing. She looked at her visitor without expression, without any trace of anger.

"I have listened to you very politely, Mrs. Drayton," she said. "I shall remember every word. So far as I can help you in any way, I will. I do not believe that your husband killed the Comte de Besset; therefore I shall try to establish your husband's innocence. Apart from that you are very gravely wrong. My husband is as dear to me as yours to you, and all those things which you have suggested are offensive to me and wicked. You will please go away now. I shall remember all that you have said."

The woman was disturbed. She felt a power behind that small presence which puzzled her. She sought in her mind for means to placate it. The situation had appeared so simple to her when she came, yet her exposition of it seemed to have raised an opposing force with which she had no idea how to deal.

"You will forgive me if I have given offense, my lady," she begged awkwardly. "It is my man, you know, I want to save. He's delicate, too. A long time in prison would kill him sure enough, just the same as though they hung him."



The words seemed suddenly frozen upon his lips.

"I quite understand," Félice assented, pressing the bell. "I have no doubt, Mrs. Drayton, that you will succeed in saving him. I am not an Englishwoman, but they tell me that in this country one very seldom suffers unjustly."

"Your ladyship's not angry?" the woman pleaded as she rose hesitatingly to her feet.

"You have given me no cause for anger," was the grave reply. "Good afternoon, Mrs. Drayton. You have my best wishes, as you shall have my efforts on your husband's behalf."

The woman passed out, the door closed behind her. Félice resumed her seat. A queer and direful flood of fancies seized upon her in those few minutes of tension. The room seemed suddenly dark. She imagined that she could hear again the sharp report, the heavy fall, the groan, the gurgle in the man's throat as he died.

MRS. DRAYTON had not very long taken her leave when Annette arrived with the discreet announcement which her mistress had been anticipating with a certain amount of dread.

"The young gentleman for the dancing lessons, milady. I fancy he called himself prince something or other, but I couldn't quite catch the name."

"You can show him into the music room," Félice directed. "See that the gramophone is in order."

She changed her slippers and made her somewhat reluctant way downstairs. Charles was trying over a record when she entered, and, although his greeting was entirely correct, she found herself shivering as, with a little bow, he came forward to meet her. He was sleek and well groomed as ever, but more and more, every time they met, she was conscious of something sinister in his manner, something which inspired her all the time with a vague sense of uneasiness.

"So my little sister has not forgotten," he said. "Good! What shall we start with? A tango?"

She was curiously anxious to delay the moments of greater familiarity entailed by the dance.

"You would like some tea first?"

"Thank you, no," he answered promptly. "Some brandy or a cocktail."

She glanced at the clock.

"For that," she told him, "you must wait until afterwards. I can scarcely order things of that description whilst I have my dancing lesson. Proceed, if you please, but remember, Charles, I am doing this for the sake of paying you your fee. Make the lesson as short as possible."

"How cruel, little sister," he mocked as they began, "and you dance so nicely, too! Indeed, it is very much pleasanter to dance with you than these old ladies who expect so much for their guineas."

"We will talk, if you please, as little as possible," she suggested. "It is a habit of mine when dancing."

He laughed mirthlessly, but obeyed.

"You are a little slow upon that turn," he criticized when the tune was finished. "You would do better to lean a little more toward me."

"I prefer my own way," she rejoined.

He lit a cigaret and began to search through the records. Félice frowned.

"Do you mind not smoking until the lesson is over?" she requested

"And why not?"

Her eyes flashed.

"You come here as my dancing instructor. It is your own wish that our relationship should not be disclosed. Very well; you must behave as my dancing instructor."

"A great lady our little sister has become all at once," he scoffed. "Very well, she must be humored, but after the lesson is over I presume I may be received as an ordinary person."

"After the lesson is over I have a few words to say to you," she announced. "Then you shall have what entertainment you desire."

HE looked at her with an unpleasant gleam in his eyes.

"More serious talk, eh? Félice, I do not enjoy serious talk with you. You are prettier when you laugh. Sometimes when I look at you and think of sister Anna, I wonder how anything as charming as you found its way into our family. You are much admired in London, they tell me."

"We will dance, if you please," she proposed icily.

He selected a fresh record, after which, without a moment's pause, she pressed another upon him.

"Now one more tango," she decided, "and I think we may consider the lesson at an end."

"I am thirsty," he complained.

"Afterwards."

A spice of malice led her to protract the last dance. She even asked his advice about some of the steps. When they had finished, she rang the bell. Charles demanded brandy and perrier, which was promptly brought.

"And now, Félice, the fee, please," he begged, holding out his hand. "Five guineas is as little as I can come for."

She handed it to him. He stooped down.

"And a little sisterly kiss?"

She drew away, fighting against the revulsion which showed itself in her face.

"Charles," she reminded him, "you and the family have decided for yourselves what our terms should be. I am used to them now. I have found all the affection I want in the world and I am happy with it. I need nothing else and prefer to be without it."

He scowled down at her.

"I shall hope in time," he said, "to see you become a little less severe."

"Nothing of the sort will happen with me," she assured him. "Now I have a serious word to say to you."

"Then let us sit down," he pleaded. "I was dancing until six o'clock this morning and I slept ill."

They seated themselves side by side on one of the long divans which bordered the far side of the room. Charles dealt generously with his brandy and sods.

"I wish to refer once more," she began, "to what I said to you the other afternoon. No, don't look like that, Charles. It is quite necessary. There is a very terrible ordeal before me, and I wish to prepare for it."

"There is no ordeal at all unless you make it one," he rejoined angrily.

"You are mistaken. Now listen to me, Charles. You know already the story which Max Drayton, the burglar, tells."

"I learned it from you."

"His story is that directly he heard the shot and saw De Besset fall he was so terrified that he scuttled away for his life."

"Pooh! That is what he says. Who will believe such a tale?"

"I am terribly afraid that I do," was the grave rejoinder.

"Then get such foolish ideas out of your head," he insisted savagely. "De Besset was shot by the burglar. If they haven't traced the necklace it's the fault of the police. He has it somewhere."

"Charles," she asked him, "why are you suddenly so prosperous? Paul tells me that you have plenty of money, that you have given up your room in Milden square. He thinks that you are staying in an hotel."

The young man was a little taken aback.

"I made some money at the races," he explained. "A woman, too—a woman I dance with at the legation—gave me some for selling her motor car."

FELICE was silent for several moments. Her mind had traveled back to the old days when she was a child. She tried to recall herself with her English and French governesses. And the others—there were such a crowd of them always, such shadowy, vague figures. Charles? Yes, she remembered him—a tall, gawky youth who had shown signs of growing up like this. She had hated him because she had seen him beat one of the outdoor servants. That was almost the sum total of her recollection of him.

"Charles," she said, forcing herself back to the present, "we will leave the necklace alone for a moment. I just want you to recall that night. I am going to speak of the thing which we have avoided. You told me when we were dancing that you were in terrible trouble. You said that you must see me alone in my sitting room for a few minutes. It was for that reason that I left my guests and went to bed early."

He drank off the whole remaining contents of his tumbler at a gulp. Before he spoke he helped himself again to brandy and mixed with it a very little perrier water.

"Why do you drag all this up?" he demanded.

"I must understand it clearly. You came to my sitting room and you began to tell me about this money which you owed, and the chance that you might get into serious trouble if it were not paid. In the middle of it all we heard some one come along the corridor and stop outside my door. I suppose we lost our heads. I waved you away. You disappeared into my bathroom; so far as I know I saw no more of you that night."

"You lost your head, like most women do," he grumbled. "There was no harm in my being in your sitting room—I—your brother."

"Then why didn't you tell every one, or allow me to tell them that you were my brother?" she retorted swiftly. "Then you could have done just as you liked. It was simply because you have made me pledge my word to this secrecy that we are always in such trouble. It is intolerable, the situation which you force upon me."

"It is not for my sake; it is for the sake of the others," was his almost passionate insistence. "Our family has many enemies, Félice, and some of them are in London at the present moment. That any of us escaped alive was a miracle. I do not think," he went on, with an unpleasant smile, "that there is a family in Russia more hated than ours."

She sighed.

"I begin to wonder sometimes," she confessed, "whether we have not deserved it. But that is not what I wish to talk of at this moment. I have promised to say nothing about any of you, and so far I have kept my word. It has been very difficult, and I warn you that a time may come when I shall break that promise."

"If you do," he cried——

"Whenever it pleases you," she interrupted, "we will speak of that matter. At present there is something different. There is something which I must tell you, because it is on my mind night and day."

HE helped himself to a cigaret with trembling fingers. Apparently he forgot to light it.

"When that shot was fired," she went on, dropping her voice until it sunk to a whisper vibrant with terrible emotion, "one of the burglar's hands was upon the window sill, and the other was gripping my ring. Therefore I know that the burglar did not fire that shot. They are going to try to hang him for it, Charles. What am I to do?"

"What you have to do is plain enough," he muttered savagely. "You are beside yourself with fear even now. I do not know what you are talking about. Forget it. You fainted. Why not?"

"But I did not faint until afterwards, Charles," she persisted, "and I saw the burglar's two hands when the shot was fired, and there was no gun in them. Now, who shot Raoul de Besset, Charles?"

"The burglar," he answered furiously. "No one in their senses will ever doubt it."

"The burglar whose two hands I saw at the time when the shot was fired," she repeated—"the burglar who even the police admit they have never known to carry a gun? Where were you, Charles, when the shot was fired?"

He helped himself to more brandy, with a trembling and lavish hand.

"Downstairs, dancing," he insisted. "You do not suppose I would let any one find me in your room? I couldn't say that we were brother and sister. I had to get you out of it. I went through your bathroom and bedroom, and out on to the corridor, met not a soul on the stairs, came in through the winter garden, and I was dancing before any one even knew that I had been away for those few minutes. I danced with your sister-in-law—Lady Susan. They'll all tell you the same story."

"I have no doubt they will," she admitted, "and yet it is not the truth. When the people rushed up they had to come through my bathroom because I had locked the door of my bedroom, and of Andrew's room, so that no one should know that you were in my sitting room whilst we were talking. How could you get out through that door, Charles, and lock it again on the inside?"

"I unlocked it and went out that way," he declared stubbornly. "You must have locked it again when you came in to bed."

"That I did not do."

HE sat quite still for a moment. His manner was changed. He was becoming wickedly and dangerously quiet.

"Listen, little sister," he said, "you think more of that burglar than of me? You would like me to say that I shot De Besset."

"I should like you to tell me who else could have done it," she answered.

He scoffed at her.

"How do I know how many lovers you had locked up in your room?" he demanded. "The women of our family have never been over-squeamish, and that fellow Haslam, as well as De Besset, were both crazy about you. If it wasn't your pet burglar who killed De Besset, find the murderer for yourself. You can do it."

"I am terribly afraid that I have found him," she replied. "I believe that it was you, Charles."

He leaned forward, and the long fingers of his hand were tense and quivering. She felt his arm around her waist. His strange colored eyes terrified her. His face drew nearer to hers. She could scarcely make up her mind whether it was murder that was coming, or some other terrible thing.

"Little sister," he whispered, "have you forgotten——"

The words seemed suddenly frozen upon his lips. Félice herself was absolutely incapable of movement. They both looked up. Andrew Glenlitten, smiling, well groomed, with a great bunch of violets in his hand, had crossed the threshold. He closed the door carefully behind him. There was about his manner not the slightest shade of anger or embarrassment.

"Hope I am not interrupting a specially interesting tête-à-tête," he said good humoredly. "Fact is, I've brought Susan, and a few of them in for a cocktail, and they're all clamoring for you, Félice. How are you, De Suess? Hope you'll come down and join us if the lesson's over. Smell these, my dear," he added, presenting the violets. "All home grown. Last of the season, or first. I forget what they told me. Come along then. These fellows have got their tongues out for cocktails. I think you'll like our Martinis, De Suess."

He led the way with his arm affectionately around his wife's waist. Her heart was beating madly. She would have given anything in the world to have thrown her arms around his neck. She knew so well, as the young man who was following, half glum, half unnerved, also knew, that her husband was covering up as best he could that moment of drama into which he had stepped.

AN interesting and cheerful little company were gathered together in the library of Glenlitten house, being served with cocktails from an enormous shaker. There was Lady Susan, up for the day to see her dressmaker; Maslam—a little gaunter than ever he seemed in his town clothes—fresh from an official call at the colonial office; Andrew Glenlitten himself, his brother, Philip Monteith, just back from a brief period of service at Gibraltar, and Sir Richard Cotton. At the sight of the latter, Charles perceptibly hesitated. It was too late for retreat, however. The little party were seated around in an easy, lounging circle, but the lawyer changed his place at the first opportunity and crossed the room to where Charles and his host were exchanging rather strained amenities.

"Met you once before, I think, on a memorable occasion down at Glenlitten," Sir Richard remarked, addressing Charles. "Not a night any of us care to remember very much, I am afraid."

"It was an unfortunate evening indeed," Charles assented. "For me it was quite an unexpected visit. I was to have dined with Major Fraser at his mess, and he and his friend discovered that they were due to dine and dance at Glenlitten. They asked me to accompany them. It would have been a very charming evening but for its unfortunate close."

"You must try and forget that," Andrew said courteously, "and pay us a visit later on."

"Any news of the necklace?" Lady Susan inquired.

Sir Richard shook his head.

"Not up to the present," he admitted. "One ring is all we have managed to squeeze out of my poor client."

"An heirloom, that necklace, you know," Philip reminded them all gloomily. "Might have come to me some day if Andrew goes on living his present wild life. Are we insured, Andrew?"

"Don't ask impertinent questions, young fellow," was the good humored reply. "If you could only keep away from those cabaret shows, give Paris a rest for a time, and find some one like Félice, we'd see your wife had her diamond necklace all right."

Philip, who was a smaller edition of his brother, bronzed, with clear blue eyes, and a little ruddy mustache, shook his head disconsolately.

"It's just because there isn't another girl in the world like Félice," he grumbled, "that I sometimes waste an hour or so at a cabaret, or fly over to Paris for a week-end. I'm beginning to believe in eastern principles. No man who has such a treasure of a wife ought to exploit her to make other men jealous and envious."

"I do so love your family, Andrew," Félice murmured. "If only you had more brothers!"

frankly admitted that I had arrived too soon. Well, to say the least, that's a pretty straight slap in the face and, before we go any further, I've a right to be told what you mean."

The man clapped his hands to his eyes. "Tomorrow, Gyneth. I swear it. Tomorrow I'll tell you all."

When at last he looked up, he smiled.

The broad terrace was gay as ever; the faint crush of the rollers stole as gently upon his ear; but he was alone.

From the massive oak tea table Miss Sabine's engagement ring winked at him spitefully.

DINNER that night at Iriberri was not a festive meal.

Even Toby Rage—late joint tenant of the villa, and so, as he put it, a past master of local dissipation—failed to relieve the tension which the sight of Miss Sabine's third finger had brought about.

Cecily Rage was listless; Judy Boleyn was very plainly distressed; [illegible] was preoccupied; Gyneth herself was painfully debonair.

Toby, who knew and liked Roderick, was ready to burst, and, since it was he that exploded the passionate mine, he may as well speak for himself.

"I give you my word, it was awful. We were about as hearty as a posse of goats in the wind on a snowy day. I tried to keep things going, but it's very hard to be blithesome at the sign of The Bleeding Heart. However, I struggled on. When I'd exhausted my patter, I started on current events.

"'Who's going racing tomorrow?' I said.

"'I am,' says Gyneth, all bright and sunny as the frost on a Christmas card.

"'That's the style,' said I. 'But you won't get into the tribunes. You'll have to watch them beat it from the side of the course.'

"'Good enough for me,' says Gyneth. 'What's the race of the day?'

"'The Grand Prix of Spain,' says I.

"'Never heard of it,' says she. 'Any English horses running?'

"'It's not a horse race,' says I. 'It's cars. I tell you it's damned exciting. Over four hundred miles, and they average over eighty all the way. They're doing a hundred and fifty part of the time. If you've never——'

"'One moment,' says Gyneth, in a voice like the cut of a whip. 'One moment. Where's this race run?'

"I tell you I went all goose flesh. Her face was white as paper, and her eyes seemed to be on fire.

"'At San Sebastian,' I stammered. 'Starts at midday.'

"She just stood up and clapped her hands to her head.

"'Thirty-six hours,' she said. 'Yes, that'd be about right. And tomorrow evening, with luck, the deal will be through. With luck—O, my God, and I—I sent him away.'"

THAT night a note went to San Sebastian.

It was carried by Toby Rage. Jordan opposed its delivery, declaring that his charge was asleep.

"Don't you believe it," said Toby. "What's more, if he doesn't get it he won't close his eyes all night."

"O, hell," said Jordan, and led the way upstairs.

Toby Rage was perfectly right. St. Loe was sitting by the window, with his head in his hands. The note was extremely short.

> Please give Toby my ring. I shall be there tomorrow and I want to have it on. God speed and save you, my darling.
> YOUR FUTURE WIFE.

Ten minutes later St. Loe was sleeping like the dead.

THE noise like that of a wasp sprang again into earshot.

Then a slight, pale blue body flashed out of the village on the right, flashed to the corner with a scream, appeared to brush the stone wall, and flung up the two mile stretch as a shot from a gun. At the top it hovered for an instant and then the black road was empty and the eyes that had chased its passage turned again to the right. Only the reek of burned spirits hung in the air.

At a point above the road by the corner Gyneth, who had been standing, sat down on the grass.

"Come back to the car," said Toby, "and sit in the shade. It won't take a minute to get there and there's seven minutes to go before he'll be round again."

"Not yet," said Gyneth.

Another snarl, and another. Flash after flash. One car at another's heels, and then two more. Somebody's brakes shrieked. A sound as of four rockets soaring. . . . And then the comparative silence and only the reek of burned spirit upon the air.

"He'll well out of that push," said Toby.

"You go back to Judy," said Gyneth. "I'll come in a little while."

"I'll be back in five minutes," said Toby. "This sun . . ."

The heat was awful.

Every steep and shoulder of the mountains was wrapped in a shimmering haze. The meadows and orchards looked unreal. The white walled village on the right dazzled the eye. And, if you looked over the edge of the ten foot bank, the breath of the smooth, black road smote hot upon your face.

Forty laps, and each lap eleven miles long. Four hundred and forty miles—at eighty-five miles an hour. Five hours on end at an average speed of a mile and a half a minute—and under that sun—and over that burning road.

Gyneth glanced at her wrist watch. Four to five minutes now and he would be round again. At least, he should be. Of course, if he stopped at the pits, or—or anything . . .

"In four to five minutes," said Gyneth, firmly.

For the hundredth time she regarded the back of her program and counted the strokes she had set there each time that St. Loe went by. Nineteen. Yes, that was right. Nineteen; the next would be twenty. And the next he would be more than half way.

Another car passed, and then another with a driver in a blue silk dust coat with a shade to his cap. She knew him for the last of the string. The eight had gone by. There had been thirteen to start with, but five were gone. Stopped, or crashed, or something. Anyway, they were out of the race. In three minutes now—no, four—between three and four—the leading car, an Italian, would pass again. And behind him, Roderick . . .

St. Loe had been lying second for nearly an hour.

For all his cunning, experience had told at the start, and he had been left seventh, behind a formidable field. Mason, Caperletti, Detroit—men whose names ran through Europe—and, finally, the great Birot.

During the tenth lap Birot had taken the lead. This was expected. His name was on every tongue. What was not expected was that Roderick, then lying fourth, would presently pass Caperletti and then Detroit.

He had actually won second place before the girl's terrified eyes. At the bend before which she was standing he had pulled out abreast of Detroit and the two had raced for the corner two miles away. They had flicked out of sight together, a splash of blue, and none could tell which was leading until they came round again.

After that, St. Loe and Birot had drawn away.

GYNETH recounted her strikes.

Very soon he must stop for fuel—so Toby had said. But so must Birot and the rest. That meant some shuffling of positions, but, unless there was bungling at the pits, by the time that all had fueled the order should be the same. Of course, if plugs had to be changed . . .

Birot, St. Loe, Detroit . . .

Two minutes to go.

Gyneth got to her feet.

As she did so Toby came up, field glasses in hand.

"Early yet," he said quickly.

Gyneth smiled and nodded. The man was doing his best.

Leaden-footed the seconds went by.

Then, suddenly, the wasplike note.

A blue car flicked out of the village. Birot had stopped for fuel.

St. Loe was leading—for the moment.

As the latter whipped out of sight the Italian appeared.

Detroit was now close to Birot, with Caperletti and Akers a mile behind. The others, it seemed, were as good as out of the race.

"He'll stop this time," said Toby. "Do come and have something to eat."

"Not yet," said Gyneth.

The two sat down together upon the rough grass.

Half Spain seemed to be keeping holiday. The road was guarded by soldiers, and, till the race was over, no man was allowed to cross. Hereabouts the banks were high, as though the way had been channeled out of the earth; and on either side lay orchards and meadows which had been mown. These were crowded. A few cars stood in the background, and one or two in the shade of a neighboring farm; but the people for the most part were humble and had come afoot from the town and the villages round.

The road had been closed at eleven, but five out of six spectators had been there since nine o'clock. Toby and Gyneth could have proved this. They had selected this point at half past eight—and none too early; it was a wonderful coign. Their neighbors were mostly young. Here and there sat a matron, and there an elderly man; but young men and maidens made up the company and turned the field day into a festival. They danced continually to the bray of concertina and tuck of drum. From where they sat, Toby counted nine drummers, each leading a different pack. Others played ball, tossing and catching and gamboling for joy of life.

Now and again they would scramble to watch the cars go by; often enough they danced—while Roderick passed. After all, there was plenty of time. The last ten laps would be the big ones. Out of their ore would be smelted the battle of the giants.

By the end of the twenty-third lap all five had taken in fuel. Birot was leading again, and Detroit was up on St. Loe. Caperletti and Akers were a mile and a half behind.

One thing was clear: St. Loe had lost time at the pits—or Detroit was out for blood.

"He's goin' after him," muttered Toby, beneath his breath.

He was quite right.

Next time he passed the pits St. Loe received the signal to let her go.

THERE was no doubt about it. Birot, the great Birot, was being pushed.

He had meant to win comfortably, and now he was being pushed.

He had seen the signal made to St. Loe and had smiled in his heart. He would show them how to let a car go. And so he had—for one hundred and twenty miles. Eleven fastest laps. And now he was being pushed.

The pace was truly apalling.

With Gyneth's arm fast beneath hers, Judy Boleyn was trembling like any leaf. Toby had put up his glasses because, when he sought to use them, he could not hold them still. Gyneth was unearthly calm and pale as death.

The three stood together at the point overlooking the corner, above the road. They did not sit down now between the passings of the cars. For one thing, the dancing had ended, and the crowd was thick about them, disputing and agreeing and cheering as Birot the great went by.

Detroit, driving like a madman, was lying fifth. He had had to stop twice for water, and Akers and Caperletti were a mile and a half ahead. And four miles ahead of them St. Loe was on Birot's tail.

Of the thirteen starters these five alone were left.

The surface of the road at the corner was breaking up. The cars bumped there, like the devil. Caperletti plainly disliked it. You could see him lay hold of the wheel, as he came to the bend.

"What's this lap?" said Gyneth.

"The thirty-eighth," said Toby. "When they pass next time, it'll be the last time but two."

Gyneth nodded. Her eyes never left the village that lay to the right. After a moment, "What's the time?" she said quietly.

"They're not quite due," said Toby, regarding his watch. "Even if they're lapping at ninety, they're not——"

THE familiar waspish sound snapped the sentence in two.

An instant later a red car spurted from the village, with a blue car right on its heels.

Birot was going "all out."

The man was leaning forward. The dust on his great brown jaw was streaked with sweat. He seemed to be urging his engine with all his might.

St. Loe was not clean behind him, but more to the left. It was perfectly plain that, if and when he could do it, he meant to attempt to pass.

Two flaps, like those of a sail, and the two were by—St. Loe a little wide at the corner, and Birot shaving the wall. His was a rough passage, but meant no more to him than the dust on his face. The car, however, was shaken. St. Loe, going wider, gained as much as he lost.

The latter was sitting back, rock steady as ever, with his chin tilted a little and the shadow of a smile on his lips. It was his natural pose. Gyneth or death beside him, rain or shine, St. Loe rode like a master and gave no sign of stress.

"Faith," cried a burly Spaniard, "he might be a part of the car."

The two slid up the long rise, like cars on a cinema's screen, there to vanish like pocketed billiard balls—balls slammed into a pocket, cheek to cheek.

The three stood staring after, their wits outrun.

The thing was incredible—monstrous. The man on whose face they had been looking was two miles off.

Gyneth put a hand to her head. "O, my God," she said weakly. "He means to pass."

Toby wiped the sweat from his face.

"They'll slow him down," he said, swallowing. "They're certain to slow him down. They'll signal him from the pits."

"Of course they won't," said Gyneth. "What do they care?"

Judy Boleyn caught her breath.

"Of course he'll pass," she cried. "He's going to leave B-Birot standing and win the race. Besides, it's much safer in front."

Gyneth took the small hand in hers and held it tight.

Another snarl and another. Caperletti went by, goggling, with Akers hard on his heels. Behind came Detroit, pelting and losing ground. The latter was plaining raging. As he passed he shouted something—it might have been l'eau.

"Only twice more," said Toby. "And Judy's right. He's goin' to put old Beetroot where he belongs. You see. Next time he'll be in front—with an open road."

The excitement was general.

Of all the multitude hardly a soul had sat down. They were talking feverishly. Prophecy was in every mouth. Such as had watches were constantly announcing the time. And all eyes were turned to the village which lay to the right.

"Are they due?" said Gyneth at last.

"Not yet," said Toby. "I swear it. They haven't been gone——"

A sharp, sinister drone spared him the lie.

Then a red car shot into sight, with a blue, well out on its left, not a length behind.

St. Loe knew what he was doing.

Overhaul Birot he could not. The man was jealous and knew every trick of the trade. On the track St. Loe could have done it, but the fellow held him at the corners and he had not the time to do it between the bends. Unless he could outwit Birot—pass him when he did not expect it—he would never get by. And now the moment was coming—at this corner where the surface had gone. Birot had the right to the rails. Well, he could have them here, and lose half a length by bumping, where the going was rough.

Both cars were going like fury. Half the width of the road was between them, and twenty-five yards from the corner the red car was hardly clear.

As Birot thrust for the corner St. Loe on his left turned in. The crowd gasped and Gyneth put a hand to her throat.

The cars were converging. Birot was driving for the corner and Roderick was driving for Birot. The cars were converging at thirty-six yards a second—forty, perhaps. More. The corner taken, Birot would bear to the left. They were bound to meet—simply bound to. There was a slice of the tarmac which each must have. The laws of balance required it. Whoever tried to avoid it must overturn.

St. Loe put his foot right down.

Unaware of his danger, Birot was holding his car. This was leaping like a ram. What did that matter? Let her leap, the beauty. He had the rails. A blue streak slid by him a foot away.

As he bore to the left his nose was less than a yard from the other's tail. The cars had crossed.

The roar that went up to heaven must have been heard for miles. St. Loe heard it, and Birot—two lengths behind.

The crowds at the next corner heard it, saw the blue car leading, and took it up.

Judy Boleyn was dancing; Toby Rage had a Spaniard by the arm.

"Gone away!" he screamed. "Gone away!" He pointed a shaking finger. "Look at him shifting, Pedro. He's leaving Beetroot standing, an'——"

Something swayed against him, and Judy cried out.

"If I could sit down," murmured Gyneth.

But Toby picked her up and carried her back to the car.

FIVE hours had gone by.

The dinner at the Maria Christina was a thing of the past.

Ewart, the shrewd, the imperturbable, was jesting with the reporters and slapping them on the back. MacMahon, supine on a sofa, was endeavoring to sing. Jordan, who never drank, was the worse for wear. Akers was writing home, enclosing a preposterous cheque. And the name of the winning car was on every one's lips.

From the terrace at Iriberri Roderick smiled at the sea. Gyneth's arms were about him and her hair was against his cheek.

"You see, Gyneth, darling, I had to. We couldn't have lived on five hundred, and——"

"Suppose you'd been killed."

"I'd thought of that. And that would have been far better than bringing you down. I was out of my mind at Como."

"I think you were in love there," said Gyneth.

"I was very selfish," said Roderick, putting her hand to his lips.

"Who told you that? Ewart?"

Roderick swallowed. "He didn't put it that way, but he opened my eyes."

With a little half sob, half laugh, the girl set her cheek against his.

"My simple darling," she said. "When will you see?"

"But——"

"Perhaps you will when we're married. Of course, Ewart's cramped my style. It's you I want, my darling. That's why, when I found you were racing, I nearly died. You see, I'm truly selfish. It's a way beggars have."

"And queens," said St. Loe gently, holding her close to his heart.

Gyneth put up her mouth.

THE GLENLITTEN MURDER By E. Phillips Oppenheim

"My dear," her husband confided, "our rent roll wouldn't stand it."

"Talking about rent rolls," Sir Richard intervened, "I was dining with the chancellor of the exchequer last night. He assures me that he has discovered a new way of taxing these vast inherited properties."

"This," Andrew declared, starting a second round with the cocktail shaker, "is the hour of peace. I am a man who has just lost a necklace worth thirty thousand pounds. My thoughts must be diverted."

Sir Richard turned towards his neighbor.

"Did you ever see this wonderful necklace?" he asked.

"On the night it was stolen," Charles replied. "Lady Glenlitten wore it for the earlier part of the evening. Then, unfortunately, as it chanced, she left us. I make inquiries often, and I read sometimes the English newspapers, but I imagine that the history of the great theft which followed remains to be written."

"I read in one Sunday paper," Philip remarked, "that the burglar who pinched it has got consumption. If the diamonds have to lie by until he comes out after he's done his sentence wreaths on his grave are the only good the necklace will be to him."

"He will have a widow," Sir Richard surmised. "They all have widows. I hope she pays her death duties, and the crown will at least get something back."

"It occurs to me," their host complained, lighting a cigaret, "that you are all unnecessarily flippant about this subject. I am the bereaved person. I am not at all sure that the law will not compel me to make good the loss of this necklace for the benefit of my descendants."

"Let me wave the torch of hope," Sir Richard suggested. "I still maintain that the necklace will be traced. Every outlet for precious stones in Europe—and India for that matter—is being watched. No one will dare offer the more famous of the gems just yet. Your time may come, Andrew. As for my man, I simply don't believe he's got it. I have defended him three times before on various charges, and although of course, he is a thief by instinct, whatever story he may put up elsewhere, he has always told me the truth."

"The whole affair is very simple," Philip declared. "If Sir Richard's burglar hasn't got the necklace one of you fellows who were in the house at the time must have. Haslam has a guilty look about him, but I rather suspect Andrew. Have you put in your insurance claim yet, Andrew? Remember it's a criminal affair if you're found with the stuff afterwards."

THEY were all intimates, chaffing without fear of misunderstanding. Even Haslam smiled grimly as he offered his bank book for inspection. Several courteous attempts were made to draw the Russian a little further into the circle. It was obvious that he only half understood the general tone. He drank cocktails with unfailing resolution, but the persistent bandinage was beyond him. Lady Susan, who had taken rather a fancy to the grave but somewhat disturbed looking young man, led him through the folding doors into the library proper to show him some Russian treasures which had been brought home by her grandfather.

"A fine figure of a young man, that," Sir Richard remarked thoughtfully, as he watched the two disappear. "I wonder how he got out of Russia."

"He told me that night at Glenlitten," Haslam confided, "that he had been taken prisoner early in the war by the Austrians. It was touch and go for the rest of the family, I believe."

"Damned hard luck on some of these fellows!" the lawyer reflected. "I wonder whether he has anything to live on."

"Well, one sees him about at places where the money is in evidence," Philip commented.

"Your night haunts, I suppose you mean," his brother suggested.

"I don't see why you should saddle me with the shadow of your past dissipations," Philip grumbled, "just because you have had the luck to marry the only girl worth marrying in the world. Still, the fellow is rather a frequenter of night clubs."

"Why shouldn't he be?" Andrew rejoined. "He makes a living out of it. He's a professional dancer at the Legation—started last week."

"Jolly plucky thing to do," Philip approved. "If a fellow's a good dancer and got no money why on earth shouldn't he make a bit at it?"

"Have you ever met him in what the journalists would call 'society'?" Sir Richard inquired.

"Not very often," Philip admitted. "He's got one or two pals who are rather a warm lot at cards, and I saw him once in a chemie dive."

Andrew, who was walking around with the cocktail shaker, pointedly avoided his brother.

"Do you mean to say," he asked sternly, "that you would run the risk of bringing disgrace upon our name by being discovered in such a place?"

"Only as Mr. Moses Brown," Philip declared, holding out his glass wistfully. "And I can assure you, Andrew, that every time I have been in a night club that has been raided, or on the one or two occasions when I have been in a chemie holdup, it has been as Mr. Moses Brown."

"The name is becoming familiar to me from the police sheets," Sir Richard confided. "I shall give them a hint at Scotland Yard."

Philip looked across at him in a hurt manner.

"And I thought that in the house of his friends, even the lawyer had a sense of honor," he groaned. "This should be sanctuary. Thank you, Andrew," he added, as his brother filled his still extended glass. "We must have an understanding with Sir Richard. This is the place and hour when I usually confess to a crime or two, but I can't be myself if official notice is to be taken of my candor."

"Awfully good thing for our dispositions," Andrew suggested, "if for ten minutes every day we confessed our crimes and told the truth—had a heart to heart settling up with our consciences, as it were."

"I should choose the ten minutes of solitude before slipping into my innocent couch," Philip decided promptly.

"The most crowded ten minutes of your day, it would be," his brother chuckled.

"Next time you stay at Glenlitten," Félice warned him, "I shall come and listen."

"Over my dead body," her husband declared. "At any cost, child, you must be spared the knowledge of what human depravity can sink to."

"Now is a good time for our ten minutes' confession," Sir Richard proposed suddenly. "Who pinched the Glenlitten necklace?"

"And whilst we're about it," Haslam put in with portentous unexpectedness, "who shot poor De Besset?"

A CURIOUS change seemed to flash into the atmosphere of the room. A few seconds before, its guiding spirit had been that of good natured chaff. Personalities had been freely indulged in, every one had been entirely and completely at his ease. Now, for some reason or other, they had all become tongue tied. An obvious embarrassment reigned. No one attempted to light hearted reply, no one ventured upon a mock confession. Every one studied his neighbor's face, a little puzzled, wondering whence had come this sinister and alien influence. Then, as though by a common impulse, general attention was directed towards the folding doors, upon the threshold of which Lady Susan and Charles were standing. The young Russian, so graceful and debonair a few minutes before, seemed suddenly to have changed into the likeness of a half brutal animal. His attitude was almost ferocious. There was something wolflike in the uplifting of his lips, a gleam of something malign and threatening in those steely eyes. One had the idea that he remained speechless through sheer incapacity. The whole episode was immeasurably brief, but it evolved its own peculiar sensation. Andrew himself broke the spell.

"Tabloid dramas by famous criminal lawyer," he exclaimed. "Is this the French method of extorting a confession, Dick? I nearly fell on my knees."

The moment had passed. Charles was dabbing his lips with an overperfumed cambric handkerchief. The cynosure still of that little circle of eyes, he understood that some explanation was necessary.

"I follow your language, perhaps, yet with some difficulty," he explained, in a distinctly unnatural voice. "I did not quite understand."

Some Necessary Points of Etiquette

This Questionnaire May Settle a Few of Those Minor but Pressing Problems That Confront the Hostess and Mistress of the House.

Miss Standish will be glad to answer questions on etiquette on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Address Persis Standish, Chicago Sunday Tribune.

By Persis Standish

1. What should be the first requisite of any house servant?
2. How should a maid ascertain the business of an indeterminate caller?
3. What should she do if the person refuses to state his business, provided the mistress does not recognize the name?
4. When a caller leaves visiting cards, what should a maid do?
5. If the visitor leaves no card and just gives a name, what should the maid do?
6. How should a friend of the family be received by the maid?
7. If the hostess is entertaining visitors and another caller unexpectedly comes to the door, what should the maid do?
8. When a man calls, where should he leave his hat and stick?
9. How should a hostess receive new callers?
10. Is it customary to call on neighbors in the city?
11. In a small community, like a suburb?
12. Is it necessary to receive new callers?

Answers.

1. The first requisite of a house servant should be neatness of appearance. That in itself is part of politeness. The servant reflects the mistress, and no servant can look neat in an odd assortment of colored garments. He or she should wear a uniform.

2. A maid should ascertain the business of a stranger at the door by saying, "Whom do you wish to see?" and usually any one with personal business will know the name of the master or mistress of the house. If she is still in doubt as to whether it is a personal or a business call she should say, "What is the name, please?" She should then go to the mistress and find out if she wishes to see the person.

3. Providing the caller has given a name unrecognizable to the mistress and she has refused to see him unless he states his business, the maid then says, "Madam would like to know your business." If the caller then refuses to state his mission the maid will say, "I am sorry, but madam cannot see you this morning," whereupon she will open the door.

4. When a caller gives visiting cards the maid immediately, seeing that the call is a social one, should usher the visitor into the living room, offer a chair, and then ascertain if the mistress is at home, providing, of course, she has not been told whether her mistress is "at home" that day.

5. If the visitor leaves no card the maid should inquire whether it is a business or a personal call.

6. A friend of the family should be welcomed by a servant. She should say, "Good morning, Mrs. Jones." Of course, after being spoken to, the maid should help the visitor off with her wraps, usher her into the living room, light a light if it's growing dark, and make her generally comfortable.

7. A visitor coming when the hostess is already entertaining visitors should be warned of this by the maid, so that he may retire if he wishes without making his presence known.

8. A man making a formal call may take his hat and stick into the living room with him.

9. A hostess should receive new callers graciously. She should make them as comfortable as possible and try to find conversational topics of common interest because they are doing her a courtesy in calling, and whether she cares to see them again or not she is obliged to be polite to them on this occasion.

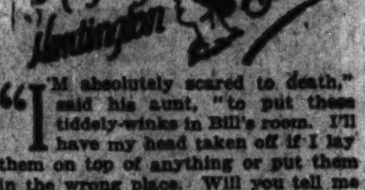
10. It is not customary any more to call on new people in your neighborhood in a city. If you hear that friends of friends are moving from out of town to your vicinity, you should call on them, or if you are asked to make them welcome to your neighborhood by any of your friends, you should call on them then.

11. In a small community like a suburb one should call on one's neighbors if they are newcomers.

12. Unless you know something derogatory to the character of the callers, it is usually polite to receive new persons the first time. You do not have to continue the acquaintance by returning the call, but if you are at home it is courteous to spend a few moments with any one kind enough to visit you.

Instilling a Sense of Order

If You Make Their Rooms Attractive They'll Take Pride in Keeping Them Neat



By Mrs. Gladys Huntington Bevans

"I'M absolutely scared to death," said his aunt, "to put these tiddely-winks in Bill's room. I'll have my head taken off if I lay them on top of anything or put them in the wrong place. Will you tell me just where they belong?"

His mother laughed. "It was a good deed when we rehabilitated that room, but Bill's so anxious to keep it orderly now that it's terrible. He follows me in when I want to put his clean clothes away—and, as for giving it a thorough going over, well, I have to enter into a regular pact not to upset it or change it. Yes, I'll tell you where to put the tiddely-winks—in the upper section of the larger black cabinet, in front, to the left, between the jack straws and the electric questioner. I wish you luck—and be sure to close the little sliding door, too," she called out.

What had happened was this. Bill's room had never been well arranged and, besides, he had had an accumulation of toys and outgrown clothes that swamped the capacity of his cupboards and drawers. This made the room difficult to keep orderly. Then he had had a very old oriental rug that kept curling up and working crooked and collecting dust on its edges, and more blocks than would go into his block basket under the bed.

Then one day, several months ago, a grand cleaning took place. Excess toys and clothes were sent away, the furniture was entirely rearranged, and a new gay, boyish oval rag rug laid before the bed. Since then that room has been kept the pink of perfection by the young owner himself.

Be Reasonable About It.

All of which points the way to the fact that, if we are going to expect our children to be orderly, we ought to be entirely reasonable about it. It is possible, on a very small income, to have things so arranged that a child can feel some pride in his room or his part of the house. There is always a way that a mother can set aside some place as a child's own, and provide for his or her toys and clothes, if she has the desire. Cheerfulness, and even charm, can be achieved with almost no money if cleanliness, paint, and well chosen colors are used as allies. A real feeling of pride will spring up in a child only if he has something to be proud of—then, when he has, orderliness and cleanliness will almost surely follow in the wake of his pride.

But we must first set the standard. We can't expect a girl or boy of any age to live up to a standard that hasn't been set. This applies to every phase of the material side of their lives. We have to do our part. If, for example, a little girl's stockings always have holes in them, if a boy has to put on soiled jackets or shirts, if they are allowed to come to the table uncombed or unwashed we can hardly expect them to take pride in their appearance and it is not fair of us to blame them if they do not.

The story is repeatedly told of the typical, well bred Englishman who lives in the isolated spots of Britain's empire and who never fails to dress for dinner. He feels that it keeps up his morale to bathe, shave, and don his dinner clothes each night, even when he's alone. Otherwise he fears he might slump or slacken—or "go native." I think those of us who are differently placed can understand this. You stand straighter in more senses than one when you feel thoroughly groomed. It may be a trifle, but it's good for your morale.

So with children—it's fine training for them to be expected to observe a measure of orderliness and cleanliness. If they're held up to a standard—a reasonable one, of course—they get into the habit of liking things to be ship-shape. It's good for their morale—stiffens their backbone—teaches control.

It Takes Time.

This sort of thing can be built up in a child, but not all of a sudden. It takes time and patience—and more time and more patience with some children than with others—and still more time and patience with the little ones than the older ones. We can expect only a little of our very little children. With them we must use lots of judgment.

If we agree, then, that it is wise to expect a degree of orderliness and kept-up-ness from our children, what is our part of the bargain?

Our part of the bargain is not to make it too hard for them. Our part of the bargain is to provide the means for orderliness and fitness. If we want them to be personally fastidious we've got to do our part in keeping them darned and clean. If we want them to be orderly we've got to give them a place to put their things. Closets, cupboards, shelves, cabinets, boxes—or simple substitutes for some of those containers are necessary.

If we want them to feel a pride in their own room, for instance, we've got to make it attractive in the first place. Gay dimity, calico, even cheesecloth for the windows, painted boxes, shelves with jolly curtains, coat hangers and big boxes, a drawing paper lamp shade with big cutout gold stars—all sorts of devices can be used by the mother who has to make ingenuity and good taste do the work of money.

They May Need Help.

Occasionally, we have to sail in and help them. We may need to encourage them to clear out excess treasures like old blackboard rubbers, broken combs, the snake that won't work, the bag of peanuts that we brought back from the zoo, the mixed up wool that is to be the doll's sweater, the jack straws we missed a month ago, and so on. But the main point is we must make things generally conducive to their living up to our ideas for them. These habits are hard enough for them to form at best under the most favorable conditions.

Having accomplished the feat, you may find it boomerang back on you some day to your great discomfiture and—discomfort. As when you say: "There are no fresh stockings—the wash got rained on; Betty, you'll have to wear the same pair again," and hear, "But you told me to change every day and never to put on stockings with a hole in."

Or, when floating out from the bathroom comes, "This shirt is terrible—I can't possibly wear it to school," and then having scurried around and ironed one, you find that the shirt has a slight smudge across the pocket and could easily have gotten by.

Well, even a rose strewn path has its thorns—but, in general, the parent who does his full share before he expects his child to do his, will find many more roses than thorns en route.

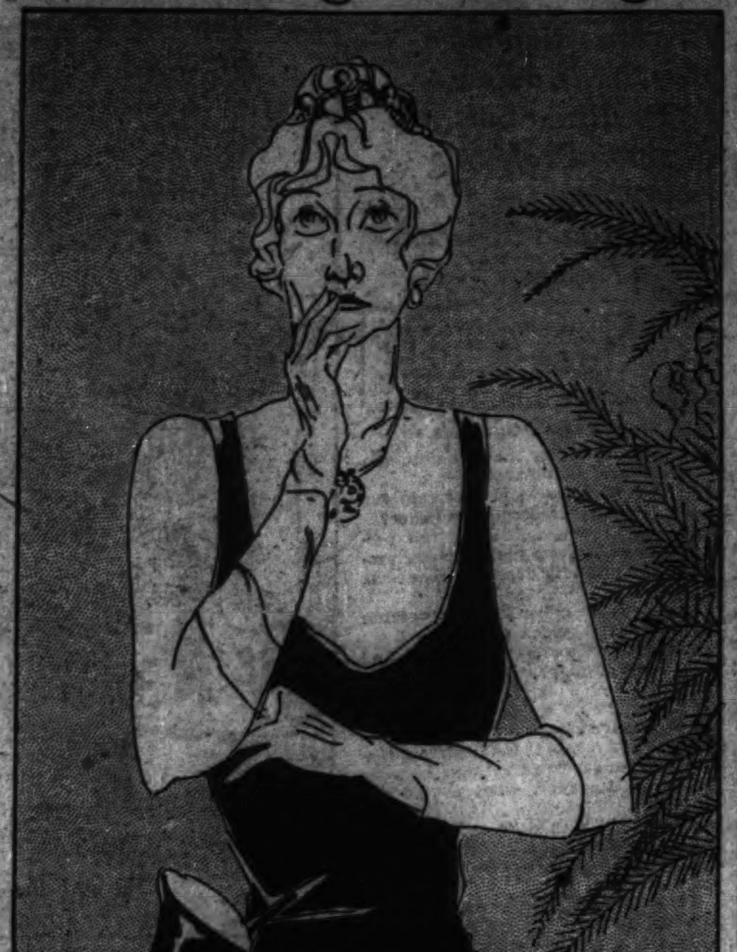
HILL'S STOPS COLDS IN A DAY

Chaperons Are Coming Back Again

With the Increasing Wave of Conservatism This Person of Another Era Is Once More Looming on the Social Horizon.

By Doris Blake.



OUR eye was caught with the headline in one of the metropolitan dailies: "Chaperon Reenters Society."

"The world do move in circles," we breathed aloud.

But further down in the news story we learned a little fact that rather dampened our optimism. A couple of reasons were advanced for the Watchful One's return and one of them was no reflection on the good health of the society discussed. Not from the point of view it turns on the young males of the day.

"And," read the news story, explaining first that this seems to be the most potent why of the chaperon's return, "when hostesses noted that certain of the gentlemen guests were often the worse for wear at the end of a large evening, they doubtless began to wonder whether their daughters' escorts were as reliable for taking them home as they were when they brought them to the party."

Also, it is hinted [and corroborated by one young man about town, at least], that the young bucks welcome the chaperon as release from "a responsibility they had always felt greatly"—meaning what one would have described in another social era as seeing Nellie home. The new order of letting the girls be chaperoned home without any taxi drain on them is worthy of the most vociferous applause—if you believe the spokesman.

Dismissing the odoriferous young men for a moment, at least the return of the chaperon should be favored from the angle of the worried hostess who has what her male guests have not, a sense of responsibility toward those invited to an affair in her home. Incidentally, traffic cops would be all for the revival, as it is no pleasant thing to witness a prettily clothed young thing being extracted from the mess of a wrecked car and being rushed off to a hospital. At least, the chaperon would observe the speed laws and she'd believe in the rights of a lamp post to hold up its light and not to be used as a pole to climb, as some of the wild, drink-befuddled young stags interpret its mission.

Another reason offered for the return of the chaperon is the cut-in system of dancing, so popular at the moment, and the consequent difficulty often experienced in finding one's partner in the extensive stag line needed for the success of the cut-in system.

We're told, anyway, that the vogue is catching on smartly in the large metropolitan centers. We may consistently believe that ere long it will be adopted in the hinterlands, if New York endorses it.

Steps in Her Evolution.

It's interesting to sit back and watch the manner in which the species known as flapper a few seasons back is slowly evolving into a creature almost as conventionally molded as the one whose conduct established the pattern known now as the old fashioned girl. First, she let her hair grow, sensing, consciously or unconsciously, a ladylike decorum in lengthened tresses that is not associated with boyish bobs.

Simultaneously, she began to adopt a new attitude toward petting, smoking, drinking. First, not to appear too disciplined by the code of protesting elders, she reserved the right to use "discrimination" about petting, smoking and drinking. But she did throw away the flask. She smoked more moderately and she observed a nicer sense of self respect toward professional maulers.

Petting was not done in the spirit of bravado just to taunt a generation she thought too stuffy for words. A favored man or two upon whom to bestow the things we elders seem to insist upon calling by the old fashioned term, familiarities, replaced the motley crowd of pawers who might have been anything from a one hour to a ten day acquaintance.

Then from various parts of the country there came news of clubs established for the sole purpose of eliminating entirely the easy freedoms of conduct. Seriously pacts were entered by young girls that henceforth they would neither subscribe to nor encourage promiscuous kissing, petting, or mauling.

In the meantime there was a marked change in mannerisms and speech. Frankness of the variety most frowned upon by parents gradually evolved itself into a frankness robbed of revolting sex features and took the form of wholesome decency and straightforwardness. Speech became less smart-alecky, more charming, more femininely attractive.

Defense Mechanism.

The chaperon was the next logical step—or is. I wouldn't be surprised if the young women who welcome her—and we are told a number of them do—look upon her as simply another piece of defense mechanism by which they'll profit. A chaperon does provide a bit of that element still wisely upheld by clever women—unattainableness. With the free and easy camaraderie of the sexes of quite recent years, it was one of the lures that was suffering badly. Girls were becoming too obvious, too without mystery, too commonplace, if you will, to inspire more than casual interest, casual attachment.

There is no question that a young woman is lent a certain prestige in men's eyes when she is watched over by an older woman. I don't mean absorbed, as stage mammas are accused of doing. But that third person, whose presence may be removed to the farthest room in the house when the young man is visiting, is felt and acts as control over conduct that otherwise might be different. Hardly a woman who has lived alone in an apartment but will verify with her own experience the nice restraining influence of a third person's presence, felt or seen. One attractive young business woman said, not without bitterness: "Why, they act differently if they know there is a maid in the house."

Third Person Helps.

Not all males, naturally, insist on exhibiting their amorous prowess alone in a house, apartment, taxi, or motor with a young woman. But many a one has been subjected to a phase of male character that the presence of another person would have spared her.

Perhaps this peculiar phenomenon in men is a compliment to woman. In his treasure chest of ideals a woman is a being to be protected. Don't ask why he doesn't do it, then, when they are alone. I don't know any more than you do. No woman can answer the question.

But she does know, unless her experience has been unusually lucky, that there's not only safety but a nice bit of prestige in the knowledge that somewhere near there is some one to whom a young woman is responsible and who, in turn, has a sense of responsibility toward her.

Saves Phonograph Needles.

My uncle has a splendid income, yet he saves all his old phonograph needles. As he plays every evening and practically all day on Sundays, in the course of a year he has enough to sell to the old iron man.

He thus gets a few cents, which he cherishes because, as he says, it is "easy made money." M. L.

Makes Rag Rugs.

My pet economy is saving rags and old underwear and stockings. I can truly say that I have made fifty or more rugs, both braided and hooked, in the last five years of materials which would otherwise have been thrown away. I have several in my own home, have used many for gifts, church bazaars, etc., and sold the remainder.

Among my economies I consider this the most interesting and yielding of real worth while returns.

D. D. D.

Penurious.

A neighbor of mine had a peculiar way of saving on coal.

She used hard coal in her heater, and would count the pieces she put into it. I happened to be visiting there one day, and it was rather chilly. I asked her if the fire was going out, and she replied, "I have already put in the coal I counted out for today, and I don't want to count out tomorrow's." C. J. W.

No Reason for It.

My pet economy is to save every piece of string, twine, cord, etc., no matter how small. I have quite a collection—more than I could ever use, but still I go right on saving.

Why? I do not know. M. V.

Uses Crepe Paper for Dye.

I have a friend who is much of an expert at the arts, making crêpe paper flowers, Roman relief work, lamp shades, and the like.

In making crêpe paper flowers all the scraps of paper are put into small bags, a bag for each color and used later for dyeing and tinting silk undies, handkerchiefs and dresses. At first I thought that she was only joking, but I've watched her tint with it and get good results. W. B. C.

Stubborn Cough Quickly Ended by Famous Recipe

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up a stubborn, lingering cough. It takes but a moment to prepare and costs little, but it gives real relief even for those dreaded coughs that usually follow the "flu."

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. Thus you make a full pint of better remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times the cost. It never spoils and tastes so good that even children like it.

Not only does this simple mixture soothe and heal the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease, but also it is absorbed into the blood, and acts directly upon the bronchial tubes, thus aiding the whole system in throwing off the cough. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and eases chest soreness in a way that is really astonishing.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of distressing coughs, chest colds, and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

MADELON BAYARD

Quick Success

Few girls in pictures have made such rapid strides toward success as this charming New Yorker. Just a few months ago she was given her first job, shadowing a star. Within three hours, she had a real part in the picture—"The Loves of Sunya."

Miss Bayard says: "I am told my selection was largely due to my perfect skin and lovely hair. I've really never taken much trouble with either. For my hair I use the simple method that most of the girls I know here in New York are so enthusiastic about. It's so easy. All you do is put a little Danderine on your brush each time you use it.

"This method is just what a busy girl needs. It's so easy; and it keeps your hair and scalp so clean you don't need to shampoo half so often. I am letting my hair grow and I find Danderine helps make it soft and easily manageable. I can arrange it any way I want and it stays that way. All my friends are complimenting me on the appearance of my hair nowadays, because Danderine has brought out all its natural color and made it so soft and lustrous."

Danderine removes the oily film from each strand and makes dull, stringy hair gleamy, soft, easy to dress. It tones and refreshes the scalp; helps overcome dandruff. It is delicately fragranced; isn't sticky or oily; doesn't show. All drug stores have the generous 35c bottles.

GOOD MORNING!

"Something familiar about this picture!" you'll say with furrowed brow as you watch the film unreel. "Makes me think of somebody . . .!"

A few minutes later you'll know whom it makes you think of. Gene Tunney.

Nobody told me so, but I'm pretty sure the writers of the story had the battling marine in mind when they concocted "The Spirit of Youth," for the tale told is of a sailor lad, known as "the pride of the navy," who, because of his pugilistic prowess, graduates from gobdom to the world's championship. [Lightweight or heavyweight—can't remember.] He also becomes engaged to a rich girl. These are among the details that stir you to reminiscence. In other respects the story branches off and follows its own sweet, fictitious paths.

DOROTHY SEBASTIAN.

Looks Like Lindy.

Larry Kent, who, his press agents aver passionately, looks so much like Lindy that he is constantly experiencing embarrassment by being mistaken for the Lone Eagle, has the role of Jim, the gob. With regrets be it said that most of the time you dislike him thoroughly, for, despite his blonde good looks, beguiling smile, and a boyish ingenuousness of manner that is very taking, you find yourself passively, if not actively, agin him. REASON being his crude and indifferent acceptance of the love of Betty Grant as played by Dorothy Sebastian, and his utter unworthiness of it.

Betty Grant is librarian in the seaside town of Old Port, and it is well known by all the gobs who come ashore that she won't flirt. But, along comes Jim Kenney to pursue her, and her heart starts doing three beats to the time it had formerly done one.

Jim haunts the library and, at last, one night she lets him take her home. After that he becomes a frequent visitor, and she joyously spends all her spare moments cooking things that he likes to eat. His birthday arrives—suppose it's REALLY his birthday?—and, lo, a luscious cake with candles . . .!

It's Only Soft Soap.

Slightly touched by this sweet offering, Jim waxes sentimental and says a lot of things to his hostess that he doesn't mean—permanently—breaking in to remark that his ship leaves in the morning.

"But I'm sure crazy for you!" he tells her, or words to that effect. "And I'm coming back to get you!" Also, Jim says, he'll write and write, and will send her a post card from every port.

The cheerful liar!

He leaves her in the wee sma' hours, and Betty goes about her work, her face illumined with happiness. But the glow fades as time passes and no letter comes from the "pride of the navy." Not even ONE post card!

Four years go by and she still waits—yes, sure, she was foolish, but women are funny that way—and nary a word has she heard from Sailor Jim.

THEN, she suddenly discovers that not only has he left the navy, and become world's champion, BUT is engaged to the wealthy Claire Ewing, whose people have a summer home in Old Port, and who happens to be Betty's friend.

Was THAT hard to take?

About to Retire.

Jim is about to retire from the ring [another hark-back to Tunney!]

STRIKING

LUPE VELEZ.

The striking femme here portrayed is doing her bit in "Lady of the Pavements," which is playing at the United Artists theater this week.

Sundays Are Overcrowded With Concerts

Can't Watch Everything in a 6 Ring Circus.

By Edward Moore.

THIS is a day better fitted by circumstances than most to give point to the abysmal absurdity with which musical affairs are carried on in Chicago. Matters have arrived at the pass where two hours on Sunday afternoons, almost without exception the same two hours, contain two-thirds or three-fourths of the week's most interesting events.

For example, who, desirous this afternoon of investigating for himself the dances of Grace Cornell and the "Chansons mimées" of Frank Parker at the Blackstone theater, concerning both of whom pleasant things have been said, can also investigate the dealings of the English Singers with their madrigals at the Studebaker, concerning whom pleasant things are known? Or if this is settled on any kind of a working basis, what chance is there for an audition of the violinistic pyrotechnics of Jascha Heifetz at the Auditorium? And there are those who with reason will take interest in the travelogues of Harold Samuel through the works of Johann Sebastian Bach at the Playhouse. And to add to these sources of innocent merriment until they grow into an estuary of bewilderment, there is a concert by the People's Symphony orchestra with soloists at the Eighth Street theater, another by the Civic orchestra with soloists at Orchestra hall, and Ella Spravka is giving a piano recital at Kimball hall.

A glance at the concert calendar will show that musical events are down to a minimum during the rest of the week. The reason is obvious. Theaters, much in use today, are not available during the week, and there are not enough concert halls for the purpose.

SPARKLING

DOLORES DEL RIO

DOLORES DEL RIO sparkles in "The Red Dance." This is the Chicago theater's feature film for the week, and if one doesn't know what a red dance is, now is one's chance to find out.

Chicago Gangland

The True Story of Its Murders, Its Vices, and Its Reprisals

Death Stalks Booze Route to Affluence

(This is the fourth of a series on the gangsters of boozedom and what they did to Chicago. In the first three installments Mr. Bennett told of the killing of Dean O'Banion, of the splendor that marked his funeral, and the rise and fall of Johnny Torrio.)

By James O'Donnell Bennett.

THIS JOHN TORRIO who, as you have seen, put boozedom on a business basis, is not the 15 minute egg of gangdom. Dean O'Banion was that. He was for the rough stuff loudly put over. Torrio is the slick article and his ways are sly. "Nize Johnny Torrio" his fellow criminals call him.

He would sell the community anything it wanted from a harlot for three dollars—he taking two as his share—to illicit liquor or a chance to gamble. He organized all that traffic on a wholesale scale. His system not only debauched men and women but it also debauched large areas in communities lying around Chicago—as in Cicero, Stickney, Forest View and Burnham. With him the purveying of vice is a business to be conducted on business lines. With O'Banion and his type it was more of a wild adventure. Torrio is for the trade. O'Banion was for the gang.

Gangdom's Code.

Torrio's code says:

"It's a business. If you do a wrong to me in our business we'll settle it without going to court. And if you do a wrong you'll know you're doing it—and you know the consequences."

Originally that was the code of the Italian gangsters. Now pretty much all gangdom has adopted it.

Torrio's voice is soft and low. He has a good vocabulary and no accent. His eyes are blue and his manners mild. A respectable friend of mine who, in the course of his reportorial tasks, has frequently visited with him, says, "I never heard him utter a profane or a lewd word. He loves music—loves to take apart phrases and motives in the score of an opera—singing them to illustrate the points he is making. He does not like to talk shop, as O'Banion did and as Alterie does. In the days of his Chicago beginnings he wore a gingham shirt, and was unassuming, quiet, and companionable. He was no night roysterer. At six o'clock he would go home to supper in his flat on 19th street, near Archer avenue—and he would stay there."

Colosimo's Cry for Help.

Although born in Italy, Torrio got his training in crime on our shores. From 1900 until 1907 he was identified with the notorious Five Points gang in New York City. He was one of its so-called vice presidents, and a man had to be expert and hard to qualify for that position.

That was a terrible gang.

From it the corrupt New York police lieutenant, Charles Becker, hired the gunmen Gyp the Blood, Lefty Louie, and others, who in 1912 killed Herman Rosenthal, a gambler who was about to peach on Becker for grafting off gamblers. That murder was bungled and Becker and his gunmen were electrocuted for it. Later in Chicago Becker's crude methods were developed to such perfection that neither the gallows nor the electric chair have had to be dusted as a sequence to any of the murders committed by the gangsters of boozedom.

Big Jim Colosimo, vice purveyor in the 22d street and Wabash avenue area of Chicago, needed the pitiless and yet personable kind of henchman which the Five Points gang not infrequently bred. He was being badgered by blackmailers with threats of kidnaping and death. He sent for Torrio. The threats ceased, for Torrio was expert in running down the blackmailers and hard in his punitive measures, which were swift, deadly and often clouded with a mystery which made them doubly terrifying.

"Front Man" Becomes "Overlord."

He was also useful and tactful—above all tactful—as "front man" for bawdy house keepers who ran their dives more or less on the gang principle—that is, on the basis of common interests that could be best served by coöperation in deviltry. This arrangement gave the stylish reporters another opportunity to coin a high flown phrase. The allied divekeepers became known as "the vice syndicate." The effect of such phrasing was to make a crew of greasy, pimping scoundrels seem, to gullible persons, rather an imposing array of business men doing their best to keep the community bright and up to date. Of course a "syndicate" had to have an "overlord." So Torrio, "the front man," began to find his place in the carefree newspapers as "overlord of the vice syndicate."

Torrio's Ticklish Job.

The front man's job was general oversight of the gang of bawdy house keepers. Had this one failed to pay into the gang treasury his weekly or monthly assessment for police protection of the gang's bawdy houses? Then Torrio could say to the laggard, "You must close," and he could order violent measures to enforce his decision. If a night roysterer were robbed in a panel house, and if he "squawked," and if he were sufficiently important to be worth bothering about, then Torrio would go to the thieving bawdy house keeper, recover the money and restore it to the squawker.

Johnny Outgrows Big Jim.

Torrio was so smooth and so firm in enforcing discipline, fixing punishments, and keeping venal officials happy that he became a bigger man than Colosimo.

He organised vice in and around crossroad villages that had been decent. The automobile had made them easily accessible. Torrio took his hint from the respectable wayside inns where respectable people stopped for a chicken dinner. If the respectable people liked that, why would not the disreputable people like stopping at places where they could play slot machines and carouse with harlots? Furthermore, the late John E. W. Wayman, then state's attorney, had taken much of the brightness and profit out of the 22d street vice area by the reform drive of 1912. Many dives were closed. Then began the opening of "call flats" in numerous and widely separated areas in Chicago and its environs. Often nice neighborhoods were invaded. The night prowler would walk into such an establishment. He would see no harlot, but one would promptly be summoned by telephone.

Burnham First of Vice Villages.

This scattering of the traffic in women did not suit Torrio. It took many vice purveyors and much money from his control. Therefore, he concentrated his women in suburbs. Burnham, in Thornton township, Cook county, near the Indiana state line, became the first of the Torrio vice villages. It was just a mile square. Its notorious "boy mayor," Johnny Patton, was a pawn in gangdom's game, and the town's police force, though its orders might come from Patton, was working for Torrio. The place became a moral cesspool. The gangs of harlots were worked in three shifts a day and a "30 girl house" was counted on to pay $3,000 a month in profits.

Some of the brothels were built like barracks, with a bar and a large drinking room below stairs and dozens of small bedrooms above stairs. The rough patronage of foreign workers in

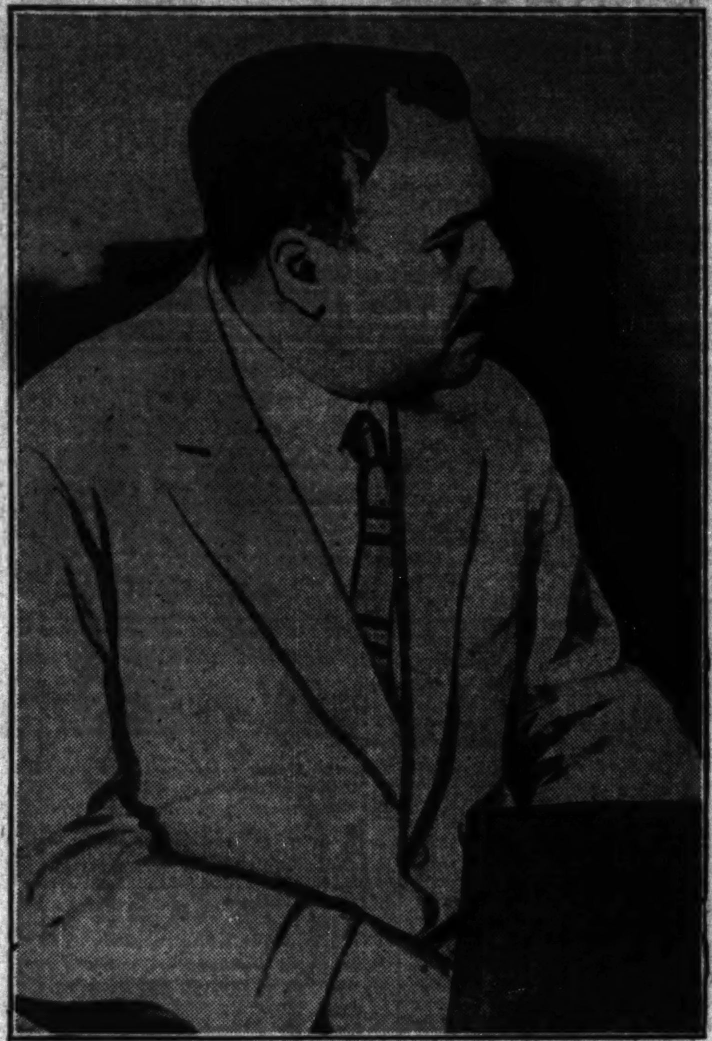
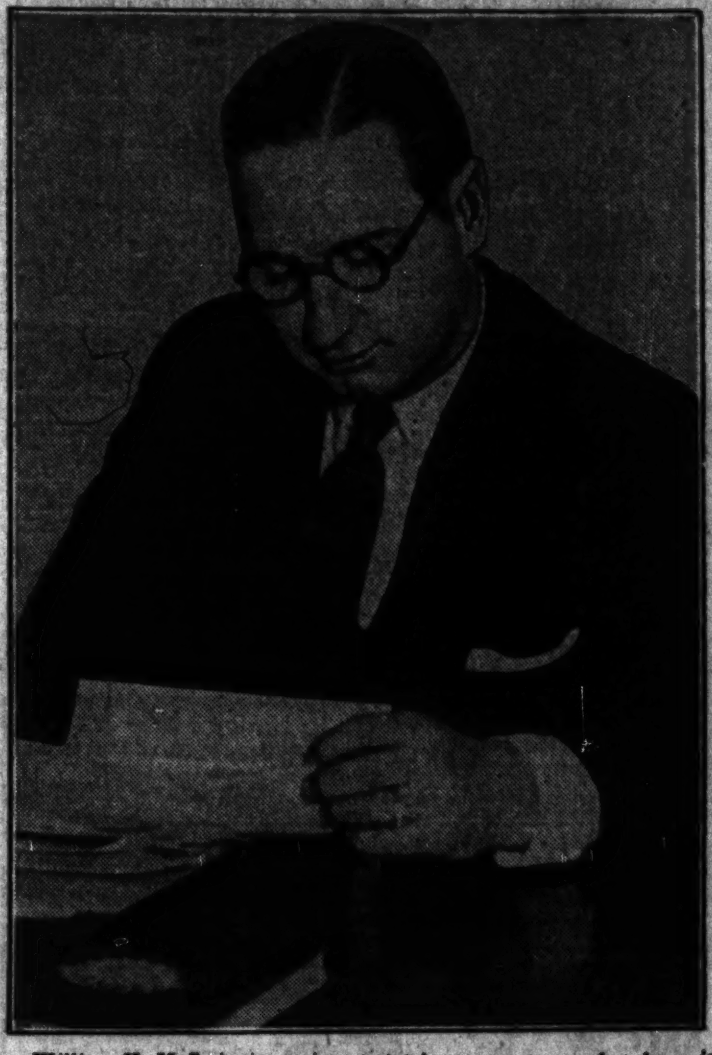
"IMPORTED" TORRIO



Big Jim Colosimo, vice purveyor on the south side, was being badgered by blackmailers with threats of kidnaping and death. He sent to New York for Johnny Torrio. Johnny came—and the trouble ceased.

WHO KILLED M'SWIGGIN?



William H. McSwiggin, assistant state's attorney, was shot down in Cicero while in the company of gangsters. The mystery of his murder, presumably committed by other gangsters, never has been solved.

O'Neill's "Dynamo" Probes Deep Religious Problems

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Eugene O'Neill, continuing his debates of the soul sicknesses that afflict the world, has come to the search for a believable God. A God, that is, that shall be believable to Eugene O'Neill and those who see eye to eye, or mind to mind, with him.

The play is called "Dynamo," and it is confessed by the author to be the first of a trilogy he has in mind. A trilogy "that will dig at the roots of the sickness of today" as he feels it, a sickness that he sees inspired by the death of an old God and the failure of science and materialism to set up convincingly a new God to take the place of the old.

Our primitive religious instincts, says O'Neill, demand an understanding faith in which we can find a meaning for life and which shall comfort our fear of death. What shall it be? What should it be?

"Dynamo" indicates that Mr. O'Neill has been quite as bewildered by his own discoveries as he leaves his audiences at the play's close. He boldly pits the God of the fundamental religionists against the God of an atheist protagonist, electricity, and proves to his own satisfaction, that one is as ineffective and shadowy as the other.

House Divided Against Itself.

He begins the play with the exposure of an ageing minister's blind and somewhat fanatical faith in a paternal God of the heavens, and ends it with the pastor's son, turned atheist, expending the same fanatical faith in a blind and bigoted worship of a power house dynamo as the generative force of the world. The result, as entertainment, is confused and a little empty. Indeterminate debates usually are. The emotions may be stirred, but they are left suspended and disappointment rather than satisfaction follows the adventure.

But the point is made in O'Neill's favor that with this first play of a trilogy, the author had no hope of approaching a solution of the question presented, or even a statement of his own convictions. "Dynamo" serves rather as a premise to clear the ground of two opposing factors—the God of the believers and at least one of the Gods of the unbelievers.

As such it becomes the tragedy of Reuben Light, investigator. The first scene shows the skeletonized homes of the Rev. Light and the Ramsay Fifes. You can see through not only the fourth wall, but all the other walls as well.

Hates His Godless Neighbor.

Below stairs in the Rev. Light's home, that worthy preacher of the gospel is praying for help and understanding. He is not guiltless of the lusts of the flesh, and his heart has been filled with bitterness and gall by his hatred of his neighbor, Fife.

Upstairs, Reuben Light, 18, and eager, dreams dreams of Ada Fife, the neighbors' daughter. She may be a lost soul according to the Light standards, but she is powerfully sweet and alluring to Reuben. The touch of her hand is agitating and the thought of her caresses enough to tempt a man to risk damnation.

Below stairs in the Fife home, Ramsay, the village atheist, a crude man and unlettered, but strong in conviction and proud of his self-taught skill as an electrical engineer, plans new and more devilish tortures for his reverend neighbor. Thus will he continue to make a guy of the Rev. Light and reveal the God with whom he boasts kinship as a curiously uninterested spectator of his disciple's activities.

Upstairs, Ada Fife stretched full length upon her bed reading, wonders about the signal she has promised to sound for Reuben to meet her. He is

IN New York and other eastern ports, where they have been introducing themselves to American audiences, they are rated as distinguished exponents of the art of the dance. This and That Thing About the Theater

And This Means About the Actors, Also.

By Frederick Donaghey.

MR. BENNETT is, by report, having a good time with his after-the-show sessions in the Woods. A conversazione of the sort has a distinct advantage—for Mr. Bennett, at any rate—over the usual speech by the star. This advantage is that the come-ons are self-labeled, so that Mr. Bennett is not put to the trouble of guessing: he knows that the man or woman who remains in a theater after the final curtain in order to discuss a play already seen is easy pickings, and that the entire process, however snide and hooey it may really be, is not going to injure the box-office prospects of "Jarnegan," even if there be no easily discernible benefit. Now-and-again, of course, a seeming come-on proves intractable. Thus, one of the men picked on the other night as a likely contributor to the "Jarnegan" symposium stood up long enough merely to say to Mr. Bennett: "I think your business is just to act." At least, I am told so. Whether it be true or not, the notion that Mr. Bennett's business is "just to act" is preposterous. Just to act may be Mrs. Fiske's business, or Alfred Lunt's, or Billy House's, or Miss Haidée Wright's; but acting is merely an avocation or, at the best, a side-line with Mr. Bennett, who for many, many seasons now has been a rapt believer that his business in life is just to talk, and to talk, and to talk.

And it isn't as if Mr. Bennett were good at talking. He isn't. I have been listening to his entr'acte and after-the-play speeches through at least two decades, and have yet to hear him say anything that added to the world's store of information, wit, or stuff for thought, while much of what he has said has been either insolent or in bad taste. It may be that I find so little in what he says on such occasions because I have long admired his natural equipment as an actor. Besides, like the man who is said to have proved recalcitrant when called upon to say something about "Jarnegan," I believe that the business of all actors, including Mr. Bennett, is just to act. Actors seldom have anything to say that is worth listening to,—especially when they talk about acting, about plays, or about the Theater. Most of the actors who go in for oratory as an offering of lagniappe make me murderously sore. I know that all the indications are that American playgoers love this sort of thing; but that proves nothing save that American playgoers are wrong, and that my desire to kill is just and righteous. There is no suffering more acute than that of listening to an actor trying to make a speech—unless it be the suffering caused by an author's making a speech. Any author, that is, save George Bernard Shaw.

Some of the clowns and the merry-andrews have been good entr'acte entertainers. Frank Daniels was immense at that sort of thing. So also was Raymond Hitchcock. I have heard De Wolf Hopper in so diverting and happy a mood on the apron that a fellow felt like paying for an extra ticket for the added diversion, whether or not Hopper threw in "Casey at the Bat." But these and others in kind were not seeking to glad-hand themselves through a spurious exhibition of gratitude to the audience, but were, rather, enterprising cut-ups shrewdly and skilfully adding to the joys to be derived from the show, itself. Of the speech-making others, I recall but two who had a gift for that sort of thing—Irving and Mansfield; but each was a somebody in the real sense: that is, a man who would have been at least conspicuous, if not actually eminent, in any field of activity. But the pavement outside the theater in the rain or snow or cold is a better place than the auditorium when George Arliss or Cyril Maude or Walter Hampden steps forward to utter thanks and to add a feeble, second-hand jest or two.

As to "Jarnegan," itself, I am of the belief that my next-morning report was sufficient. It is as gratuitously and offensively a dirty play as any I have sat through. I don't mean by this that the police should be called in, or anything like that: plays are not the concern of the police, whether they have to do with what the "Jarnegan" ads call the low-down on Hollywood or with what, in the case of "The Racket," might have been advertised as the high-up on Chicago. As an "exposé of Hollywood," the play is a joke: as an exposé of the articulate stage, it is eloquent. Incidentally, "Jarnegan" is a bad play in the sense that it is awkward, lopsided, and shapeless.

Mr. Lonsdale Improves.

"The High Road" is comedy of a kind that is increasingly difficult to write: that is, to write successfully for the box-office, and especially for the American box-office. It is the sort of thing Frederick Lonsdale is, according to most of the New-York and London play-reporters, particularly adept in writing; and the truth is that he is nothing of the sort. The light, thin, intelligent, and diverting piece so happily in performance in the Blackstone is easily the best play he has so far turned out—or, as I should qualify by adding, the best of his plays I have seen. He might have done as well or better with the theme of "On Approval" had he not tried the extra difficult trick of getting along with but four characters; whereas he has a character or two to spare in "The High Road." His "Spring Cleaning" was, I thought, enormously overrated in Chicago and, later, in New-York, with a final act that never really came through, although revised for him by experts. "Aren't We All?" was just a mess, and owed such theatrical effectiveness as it possessed [for Mme.

The Armchair Playgoer

By Fanny Butcher.

IN NEW YORK.

ON Monday night I was taken to Christopher Morley's Hoboken theater to see "After Dark." If I ever had more fun in a theater, the rapid approach of old age has erased the memory. Chris Morley recited a prologue at which the audience, filled with good Hoboken beer and a collection of cocktails, let itself go. It hissed and catcalled and yelled "Get the hook."

The burden of Mr. Morley's plea was that the audience restrain itself so that the paying customers could hear the actors. Three-fifths or more of the audience were New Yorkers. It is the smart thing to do to dine in Hoboken and go to the Rialto there. It is perfectly grand, for the audience takes as much of a part in the performance as do the actors.

You can read all about it in "The Seacoast of Bohemia," by Christopher Morley, which is just published. As we talked to him there was a stream of local boys, successful bankers, artists, actors out of a job, silk hatted bond salesmen, all trying to rate a nod from the great Chris, and, he being the great Chris, they got it.

If armchairs were only magic, like the carpets that have a way of transporting people about the earth, every one could go to the old Rialto in Hoboken and see "After Dark," by Dion Boucicault, one of the locomotive tunnel mellerdraymers of the past which Christopher Morley has revived. If they could, at least one perfect evening in the theater could be assured them. New Yorkers go over to the home of beer, have dinner, get highly happy, and are in a perfect mood for one of the best of the virtue-will-be-rewarded-but-not-before-vice-has-had-its-fling draymiers. The audience hoots and yells, claps and hisses, calls, and all the time laughs itself into hysterics.

Dig up your old Boucicault volumes, find "After Dark," imagine yourself in an audience that is gorgeously enjoying itself at a play that is priceless, and you will be as nearly in theatric bliss as a thousand miles' distance permits.

IN CHICAGO.

Tonight Chicago sees for the first time a play which had a great London success and a somewhat less thrilling New York career—"So to Bed," which lasted for 189 performances there. It is a play by James B. Fagan about a little affair in the life of one Samuel Pepys, diarist of parts—an affair, however, which does not appear in that immortal work. Samuel is a naughty gentleman, his wife the spiteful and jealous one of the diary, and there is merry sport on the part of King Charles II., from which both Samuel and his good wife suffer. The most descriptive word one can say about the play is that its title fits it exactly. Each act ends with the title's invitation.

On Tuesday evening the Goodman theater will present one of Ibsen's rather less popular opi, "When We Dead Awaken." On Wednesday evening the Civic Arts committee of the Woman's City club will take over the theater, thus introducing to many, perhaps, who have not realized it, the excellent and professionally expert work which this theater has been doing lately.

PUBLISHED.

"Yankee Fantasies," by Percy MacKaye, has just been issued in a new revised edition by Samuel French. It was first published in 1912, and the five one-act plays have been so increasingly popular and useful to small producing groups that this new edition was demanded.

"The Pilgrim's Progress of John Bunyan," by Wilson Rix (Appleton), is a clever dramatic arrangement of four stages of Christian's journey from the City of Destruction to the Celestial City, using John Bunyan's own words. So skillfully has Mr. Rix done his work that the plays are all easily within the powers of amateurs, and yet the four episodes have all the quality of a really impressive drama. The author has made every possible provision for production by inexperienced groups. The play was inspired, of course, by the tercentenary of the birth of John Bunyan.

This Thing and That About the Current Theater

By Frederick Donaghey.

York, and not for Chicago) to rewriting by an American stage-director. "The Last of Mrs. Cheney," as it was given in performance, was a ragout of six or seven well-known plays, with a bold draw for its principal episode on Pinero's "The Gay Lord Quex."

"The High Road" has its padding; but it is amusing make-weight, as in a scene where a grouchy tory of statesmanship, society, and everything else is thawed into unprecedented democracy of spirit and deportment by a new cocktail from the United States. The acting throughout is good, and is expertly made to serve as genuine "comic relief" to the tale of the actress who wangles herself out of an alliance with the British peerage. Performed as it is by the English players assembled by Mr. Dillingham, the piece is a delightful device for spending an evening. It is as truly a comedy of manners with reference to the Anglo-Saxon society of today as "The School for Scandal" is with reference to that of the Regency. Besides, it contains one of the best love-scenes in any new comedy of the last twenty years.

"Names Make News."

Miss Barrymore, although it was recently stated by her management that she would appear this season in no play other than "The Kingdom of God," is rehearsing one named "The Love-Duel," adapted by Zoë Akins from an Hungarian original. . . . Miss Akins, it may be remembered, wrote "Déclassée," wherein Miss Barrymore had vast popularity through two seasons.

Lowell Sherman, who has been good enough not to perform in Chicago in the two years since "A Woman Disputed," is thinking hard of giving up films to take part in something called "The Humbug," by Max Marcin.

George Scarborough, whose name was once familiar as a dramatist, re-emerges as the author of something named "Bad Babies."

Burton Churchill, here in 1926 in "Alias the Deacon," takes the place of James Bernard Fagan in support of Miss Frances Starr in "Fallen Leaves," which is a new title for the piece from the Russian heretofore called "Autumn Violins."

Noel Coward, who went out of his revue named "This Year of Grace" to undergo an operation, is still out of it, and not, it is thought, likely to return: he doesn't care to, it seems, and prefers to write. . . . And I, for one, care not so long as, in case the revue be brought hither, Miss Beatrice Lillie is in it: I'm not too cheerful with respect to Mr. Coward as an actor.

¶ ¶ ¶

Maxwell Anderson, who wrote the good comedy named "Saturday's Children" and helped Laurence Stallings to write the bully play named "What Price Glory" is in expectation of an early exhibition of a new piece, "Hell on Wheels."

Glenn Hunter is to have a go at one [illegible] in "Spring Is Here" an impending song-and-dance show.

Leslie Howard, Basil Rathbone, and Roland Young are loosely named for the principal man's rôle in the dramatization of "Jerome; or, The Latitude of Love." . . . Mr. Howard expects to come back to this country as the star of a London success named "Berkeley Square."

Miss Emma Dunn, not here since she acted with Henry Miller in "The Changeling," is expected to go to London for the rôle in "Courage" acted in New-York for months past by Miss Janet Beecher.

Max Reinhardt, it is said by Morris Gest, will stage "Hamlet" for use in this country next season by Alexander Moissi, who meanwhile will, it is added, take up the study of English.

Reginald Owen, who has had high praise in New-York and elsewhere for his acting as Cardinal Richelieu in the operetta named "The Three Musketeers," has given up the rôle, and is to go to London to act in a piece named "The Stag," by Beverley Nichols. . . . Expectation is that, if the play prove successful there, Mr. Ziegfeld will give it in this country with Mr. Owen, who may be identified by Chicago theater-goers as having been the goofy prince in Molnar's "The Swan" and something else in a goofy farce called "Pay to Bearer."

Miss Mary Newcomb was so successful with the London newspapers in her acting in "Jealousy" that, when Crane Wilbur withdrew from the piece, she engaged Godfrey Tearle to take up the masculine rôle and so continue the run.

John Van Druten, whose "Young Woodley" was at first banned by the British play-censor, has had the satisfaction of seeing the play go through a London run of 425 performances.

AMONG THE PLAYERS NOW IN TOWN

MISS VIOLET CODE WALTER KINGSFORD

MISS CODE is among those present in the tuneful, gay operetta of "Music in May," wherein her employment at present is potential rather than important: that is, her part is incidental, but her heart is in the words and music of Olga, the gay Russian sung and acted so well by Miss Gladys Baxter, whose understudy she is. . . . Unlike any other singer of operetta known to The Tribune, Miss Code is a native of Iceland. She is a niece of Laura Goodman Solverson, author of "The Viking Heart" and "The Lord of the Silver Dragon"; and she is, out of the theater, the wife of Charles Lawrence, one of the comedians in "Music in May."

Mr. Kingsford has the part of the celebrated Samuel Pepys in "And So to Bed," due tomorrow night in the Garrick. He was last in Chicago as the scoundrelly bookmaker in "The Sport of Kings," three years ago, in the Playhouse. He may be recalled from the cast of "Fanny's First Play," in 1914, in the Blackstone. And he took Ferdinand Gottschalk's place last Summer in the Pacific Coast performances of "The Command to Love."

Wiring 'Em for Noises.

Lessees of New-York theaters are not at all certain that the sound-movies are a passing phase of public taste, or that they will not take most of the trade that now goes to the silent screen. Six or seven of the principal playhouses there have been wired and equipped for sound-movies; and one of them is the Booth, operated by the austere Winthrop Ames. Some of Chicago's Loop theaters also are being equipped for the "talkies."

American Shows in London.

When "Show-Boat" shall have been performed for the last time in London's Drury-Lane Theater, that historic pile will house another American piece, "The New Moon," one of the current hits in New-York. Drury-Lane has for five years been used for nothing save American pieces, including "Rose-Marie" and "The Desert-Song." The British patriots rave in rage; but London's theater-goers seem to prefer the American shows.

SPRIGHTLY

MISS DOROTHY BARBER

She's in "Luckee Girl," winning a measure of individual attention by her dancing. Her rôle in that merry show is that of a cabaret-girl beset by fear that she is about to lose the love of Hercules, the romantic waiter acted so laughably by Billy House.

SINGS, DANCES, ACTS, AND VIOLINS

MISS ODETTE MYRTIL

SHE has the part of Georges Sand in "White Lilacs," due next Sunday night in the Selwyn; and "White Lilacs" is the operetta based, as to its score, on Chopin's music. . . . Miss Myrtil's past in Chicago largely had to do with "Countess Maritza," wherein she had the part of the Gypsy girl. She sang in that operetta, and danced in it, and acted in it, and played the violin; and she has, it is told, opportunity to do all these things in "White Lilacs."

Plays and Such of Ten Years Ago in Chicago Theaters

SUBJOINED are news and comment on plays and shows printed in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE of February 23, 1919—the date most nearly corresponding to today. The excerpts are verbatim, and not rewrites or summarizations.

Tim Murphy, the bright and shining light of the late lamented "Never Too Late," has joined the company which will appear with Miss Ruth Chatterton in George Scarborough's comedy, "In the Merry Month of May." Miss Laura Nelson Hall and Sidney Booth also are of the cast.

Tim Murphy's death was news a few weeks ago. Regardless of the worth of a play or of his part therein, his personality always caught the audience.

Miss Ethel Barrymore's success in "The Off-Chance" has been such that her sponsors have arranged for her the longest tour of her career. She will play all the way across the continent this Spring, visiting the Pacific Coast for the first time since 1911, when she was seen there in "Alice Sit-by-the-Fire."

"The Off-Chance" is among the conveyances of Miss Barrymore that have been forgotten.

Miss May De Sousa, one of our most cherished native daughters, writes from Australia that she has made the hit of her career in Melbourne as what the English call "principal boy" in "Goody Two-Shoes." She has been telling the interviewers there about Chicago politics, her début as a singer of Alderman Coughlin's "Dear Midnight of Love," and the discovery that she is a distant relative of John Philip Sousa, the bandmaster, all of which seems to intrigue them mightily.

Miss De Sousa had her day in the milder song-and-dance pieces, and was liked. Her name long since disappeared from the newspaper-columns devoted to the stage.

Miss Mabel Taliaferro is to return to the stage on March 7 in a comedy by Marvin Taylor, about whom I know nothing, called "Luck in Pawn." Stamford (Conn.) will see it first, if that interests you.

Miss Taliaferro's is another name not much in print in recent seasons, although she was for two years, in "Polly of the Circus," one of the two or three most prosperous stars in the country.

Twenty Years Ago

GOING back through the files to twenty years ago, or to the corresponding Sunday of 1909, the interests of theater-goers were catered to in THE TRIBUNE of February 21 by the paragraphs that follow.

In the Garrick, Frank Keenan will be presented as a star in the latest of Belasco productions to reach Chicago, "The Warrens of Virginia," the work of William C. De Mille. It is a story of Civil War days, with its scenes laid in the neighborhood of Appomattox Court House, Virginia. It is said to differ greatly from any war-drama of recent production. Its climacteric scenes are those which show the domestic phases of the struggle in the South; and from curtain to curtain not a shot is fired. In the character of General "Buck" Warren, Mr. Keenan is said to have a medium for his unusual talents quite as congenial as was that of Jack Rance in "The Girl of the Golden West." The company includes Christine Norman, Viola Rand, William McVay, Charles Waldron, and Mrs. Charles Craig.

The play wasn't so much, although Belasco'd to the last spotlight; but Mr. Keenan was immensely popular at the time, due to his vogue as Jack Rance, so that the engagement was fairly prosperous.

Mabel Taliaferro will begin a return-engagement in "Polly of the Circus," at the Illinois Theater on Sunday, February 28. During the former engagement of this petite little star in the early part of the season, both she and the play were decidedly popular.

A mild coincidence is that there is reference to Miss Taliaferro in this play in today's Ten Years Ago.

A special train of seventeen cars, said to be the longest ever devoted to a theatrical organization, will bring the production and company of "Little Nemo" from New-York to Chicago. Joseph Cawthorn, Billy B. Van, Harry Kelly, and Master Gabriel will be brought with the scenery.

The length of the train had small effect on the length of the engagement: "Little Nemo" was not a good show.

In "Via Wireless," which is coming to the Chicago Opera-House next week, the big scene is in the wireless-room aboard a ship in a storm. While the stage rocks and plunges, the operator hears a message from a wrecked yacht. It is the yacht bearing the hero, heroine, villain, and their atmospheric assistants back to New-York from Porto Rico.

Marconi's device was new in 1909, and had already been put to effective use in two or three plights at sea.

CAPITAL!

HERBERT MARSHALL

He's in the good rôle of the Duke in "The High Road," vis-à-vis with Miss Edna Best; and he is perfect in it. . . . Mr. Marshall was in Chicago in 1926-'27 with Cyril Maude in Michael Arlen's bad comedy named "These Charming People"; and he was good in that, too.

NEW IN MANHATTAN

THREE novelties are listed for the week in New-York theaters, whence come reports of attendance that is steadily mounting for the hits while it continues to be immense for the successes. However, but one of the three new pieces will be in what may be termed the open competition; for Miss Eva Le Gallienne sponsors a second, while a third is to be put on by a "group" down in Greenwich Village. . . . The three are:

"Meet the Prince," by A. A. Milne, with Miss Mary Ellis, Basil Sydney, Eric Blore, Moffat Johnston, J. M. Kerrigan, Miss Esther Mitchell, and Mrs. Alice Belmore Cliffe. . . . The play was shown some time ago in London.

"Katerina," by Andreyev, with Nazimova and other members of Miss Le Gallienne's company. . . . Andreyev wrote "He Who Gets Slapped," which was held by some Chicagoans to be uppity stuff when, late in 1922, it was given in the Playhouse by Richard Bennett.

"The Earth Between," by Vergil Geddes, with the performers of the Provincetown Playhouse. . . . To fill out, Eugene O'Neill's one-act piece called "Before Breakfast" will be acted by Miss Mary Blair, who once had space in the news-pages because she accepted the rôle of a white girl in O'Neill's "All God's Children Got Wings."

"Dynamo" Aims at Great Problem

By Burns Mantle.

an awful fish, this Reuben, as Ada sees him, but an interesting sort of biological specimen with which it is fascinating to experiment.

The wives of Fife and Light are weaker echoes of their mates. Mrs. Fife is the perfect moron, the simple child mind, trusting and untroubled by her husband's ravings. Mrs. Light is a good Christian wife and mother, barely conscious of a growing contempt for her husband's weaknesses; proud and ambitious for her beloved son, loyal to her home and her men and ready to make any sacrifice rather than let the feared intimacy of Reuben and Ada make headway.

Interprets Their Inner Thoughts.

By the use of the aside and the soliloquy as he employs them in "Strange Interlude" O'Neill reveals these characters and their inner thoughts during the first half of the first act of "Dynamo." It is rather a trying stretch of drama, with seemingly much that is simple and unimportant stated and restated.

Then the real action of the drama starts with a conspiracy on the part of Fife, the atheist, and his daughter Ada, to have Reuben Light and find out what sort of a boob he is. Has he any courage or is he a faint carbon of his would-be saintly father?

Fife has found the story of an apostate in the daily newspaper, the story of a man who had committed murder and confesses, to the embarrassment of his intimates and the exposure of his religion. He will repeat this story to young Light as his own life story and watch him squirm. Watch him run home to his father with the tale and then to the authorities. Watch him turn in terror from this home of the devil and renounce even his quickening love for a daughter.

The clandestine meeting of Reuben and Ada follows. The newspaper story is told and Reuben, unstrung by the recital, fights against the expected reaction, but finally weakens. Though sworn to secrecy, he does repeat the story to the Rev. Light, who grasps it as the supreme opportunity he has been waiting for to expose the atheist.

Son's Faith Is Shattered.

His father betrayed, his faith in God brought to test Reuben's own faith is shattered. Hysterically now he calls on the God of the heavens to act, to give evidence of his mightiness then and there by striking him dead, as a convert to the doubts of the unbelievers. Let God take three minutes to strike him dead or thereafter he will have none of Him or His teachings. When God fails to strike, Reuben shouts his defiance of all their beliefs and quits his family and his love in search of the truth.

A year later Reuben returns strong in unbelief. He has studied women and found them weak and sinful. He has defied God and remained unchastened. He has come to take Ada, as he is convinced she will give herself to him. He has found the God of the unbelievers the true God and electricity the creator of men and of worlds.

He takes a job in the power plant with Fife as the superintendent. Gradually his fanaticism grows until he sees in Ada the temptress who would lure him from his devotion to the Goddess Dynamo, his mother God. With this temptation he labors and when he again succumbs before the lure of Ada he hears the singing voice of Dynamo calling for sacrifice and expiation. In the end he kills the girl and electrocutes his own sinful body by throwing himself on Dynamo.

Contains One Powerful Act.

Emotionally "Dynamo" achieves its most effective scene with Reuben's defiance of God at the end of the first act. It was indicative, too, of the thought of the audience that this scene was greeted with prolonged applause. Thereafter the argument becomes, as it did in "The Great God Brown," more involved and less dramatically effective. The third act, set in an amazing scene inside the power house, rising through three stories of dynamos and machinery, the argument is rambling and somewhat involved. The story has traveled in a circle to an indeterminate conclusion. The atheist has changed places with the fundamentalist and the great problem of life and death is still unanswered.

The O'Neillites remain to applaud. But there is no heartiness or conviction in the applause. Depressed and mystified they file out of the theater. The play's reviewers were also mystified. No two of them agreed, save in the belief that the drama, as drama, is much less powerful and less important than "Strange Interlude." Many of them boldly proclaim it as so much "hooey." The more thoughtful of them are of a mind to suspend judgment and await the continuation and conclusion of the argument in the plays to come. The first of these, O'Neill says, will be called "Without Ending of Days." The second "It Cannot Be Mad."

The cast assembled by the Theater Guild is impressively equal to the task. Glenn Anders plays Reuben, gaining dramatically in power with the development of the character. George Gaul is the churchman, Dudley Digges the atheist, Claudette Colbert the Ada, Helen Westley the minister's wife, Catherine Doucet the Mrs. Fife.

Maybe Gene Tunney Inspired the Plot for This Picture Play

By Mae Tinee.

and he doesn't want to fight no mo', but Claire, a lady who will not be gainsaid, brings him to Old Port to box four rounds with a former sparring partner, for a charity bazaar.

Well—the fight is, of course, to be all in fun, BUT, the sparring partner has his ambitions, and he has been told that IF he should knock Jim out, chances are the world's championship would be his.

Jim comes to Old Port, remembers there is a Betty, meets with hard luck at which time he is accorded ONLY the sympathy of Betty and Claire's brother, who has a kid crush on the librarian.

Claire, whose only kick in being engaged to a champion had come from the fact that he WAS that little thing——

But this is where we stop telling you things.

You will find "The Spirit of Youth" interesting, if not unusual, and quite well acted by everybody but Dorothy Sebastian, who does an excellent PLUS bit of work, looking radiantly beautiful every minute of the time. Hard boiled, the male observer of this fillum who wouldn't like to have her in his home!

The picture is nicely staged, and photographed, and quite well directed.

News of Dorothy Sebastian.

Recurring to the subject of Dorothy Sebastian, the more you see of her in films, the more you want to know about her. So, having a little press stuff relating to her, I'll just slip it to you. Can't swear it's the truth, whole truth and nothing but the truth—but it's interesting and, undoubtedly, has its moments of veracity:

"People down in Birmingham, Ala., used to say that Dorothy Sebastian would lead a charmed life. She was just a little girl then, with a swift grace and a shy, appealing smile. But everywhere she went, there was a sort of glamour about her.

"'You are going to be famous some day,' a gypsy fortune teller told her.

"Dorothy pondered over this. Being sensible, she realised that fame didn't descend out of a clear sky, so she set about a means of capturing it. She loved to dance. She came to New York to be a famous dancer. Instead she landed in a fashion show.

"When her chance finally came to dance in George White's Scandals, instead of fame came a movie contract.

"'It seemed as if I never looked in the right place,' she says. 'I would have set out for Hollywood right away if I thought there was a chance for me in pictures. Instead I tried and tried to be a dancer, and then along came my big chance. I believe I was meant to be a moving picture actress, and that even when I was a little girl other people sensed I would become a familiar face. And I think if I had gone to Hollywood I never would have been anything but an extra girl at best. The thing was all planned for me. You see, I believe in fate! By going to New York I learned self-expression on the stage, and though, I didn't realize it myself, I was working toward the career that was really intended for me.'"

See you tomorrow!

The Voice of the Movie Fan

Advice in Jingles.

Dollink: Why don't you write a s'nario? You ought to know what's good. If I was sitting nice like you I know darn well I would. I'd pirate here and there a bit and steal a nifty plot and when I got a sure fire hit, I'd camp upon the "lot." Ah, yes indeed, I'd go out west and take my recreation with Carl and Cecil and the rest, right out there on "location." I'd save for me a nice, fat part and also I'd direct it. But, I forgot the mean upstart, whose job is to "correct" it. LOONEY LOUIE.

Editor's Note: You little old poet, you!

From a Jessel Fan.

Dear Mae: I read your review every morning and have always gone to see only those pictures that found favor with you . . . in short accepted your opinion as infallible. But, O, Mae, where did you get the idea that any one can get "good and sick," . . . to quote your words . . . hearing Jessel sing "My Mother's Eyes"? Or that the picture is not all that could be expected?

This is the first time I am writing to you and I am sorry that for once I have to disagree with you. I saw the picture today and think it wonderful. And Georgie, well, he is the greatest ever . . . bar none!

O, please, dear Miss Tinée, I just must have his picture. Will you be so kind as to let me know what to do to get it? I will be looking anxiously for your answer. And I will abide by your criticisms just the same in the future, but I'll go to see every Jessel play, regardless.

Thank you for your help and I hope you're not mad.

Your respectful movie fan,
W. L. D.

Editor's Note—If Georgie reads this letter you'll get the picture all right. Mad? Anything but! Come again.

THE BEST MOVIE I EVER SAW

If you will tell us what movie, in your opinion, rates above all the others you've seen, and why this particular movie is deserving of praise, we'll pay $1 for your letter if we print it. Address Best Movies, Chicago Tribune.

"Evangeline."

"Evangeline" is, even after a number of years, the best movie I have seen. After seeing the play I dreamed of it at night, and thoughts of it would come to me as I went about my household tasks. Even now I can close my eyes and enjoy that picture from beginning to end.

Had I a daughter of marriageable age I would first have her read the story as Longfellow wrote it; then I would have her see the very same moving picture interpretation of it which I so enjoyed were it possible.

This is the type of picture lessons our young people need. O. R. S.

"The Air Circus."

One of the most delightful and enjoyable movies I have ever seen was "The Air Circus." This picture is pertinent of the times and should have inspired many a lad to try his daring and courage in the field of aviation.

I was pleasantly surprised to see the fine acting of Sue Carol. For one who is a newcomer in the films her acting is natural and experienced. The picture had its pathos and smiles and was like a sweet breath of life. A. Y.

Superlatively Good.

I recently had the pleasure of seeing "The Flying Fleet," and consider it the best movie I have ever seen. Good acting, wonderful direction, and marvelous photography went to make up a picture rich in pathos, comedy, thrills and romance.

Its realism was one of its most delightful features. The devotion of the "bunch" for each other was touching and the egotism of Steve Randall was comic.

The pictures of the flying fleet and the airplane trip to Honolulu furnished enough thrills for ten pictures.

All in all, "The Flying Fleet" was a superlatively good movie. H. L.

Sundays Are Overcrowded with Concerts

By Edward Moore

By Edward Moore.

But it is an absurd condition from many points of view.

Soloist with Symphony.

Luckily the Chicago Symphony orchestra established its concert times at a period when Sunday concerts were not so well thought of and has kept to original schedules. Jacques Gordon is to be the soloist on Friday afternoon and Saturday night this week, and because he is going to play the Brahms Concerto, this is as good a place as any to reprint the tale that James Gibbons Huneker under his pseudonym of Old Fogy once told of Brahms:

"Brahms, so it is said, was an avowed enemy of the feline tribe. Unlike Scarlatti, who was passionately fond of chords of the diminished cats, the phlegmatic Johannes spent much time at the window, particularly of moonlit night, practicing counterpoint on the race of cats, the kind that infest back yards of dear old Vienna. Dr. Antonin Dvorák had made his beloved friend and master a present of a peculiar bow and arrow, which is used in Bohemia to slay sparrows. In and about Bohemia it is named in the native tongue, 'Slugj hym inye tech.' With this formidable weapon did the composer of orchestral cathedrals spend his leisure moments. Little wonder that Wagner became an anti-vivisectionist, for he, too, had been up in Brahms' back yard, but being near sighted, usually missed his cat.

"Because of arduous practice Brahms always contrived to bring down his prey, and then—O, diabolical device!—after spearing the poor brutes he reeled them into his room after the manner of a trout fisher. Then—so Wagner averred—he eagerly listened to the expiring groans of his victims and carefully jotted down in his notebook their ante-mortem remarks. Wagner declared that he worked up these piteous utterances into chamber music, but, then, Wagner had never liked Brahms. . . ."

Week of the Dance.

Those who go to the Cornell-Parker program today will see and hear something, so it is said, quite different. Miss Cornell has stepped out of the conventional field for her dances; Mr. Parker in costume and with scenery and properties tells stories in music—"diseur" is the technical term—of folklore, of strolling players of ancient times, of the folk music of today's Broadway. Musically Miss Cornell's part of the program takes in Scarlatti, Waldteufel, Debussy, Palestrina, Stravinsky, and Poulenc, a wide range, and it is said that no two are alike, nor do they even employ the same dance technique. It sounds more than commonly interesting.

This is the week of the dance, for on Wednesday afternoon Harald Kreutzberg and Yvonne Georgi are appearing at Orchestra hall. It will be their first time in Chicago, but New York, where they began their American tour, has been making much ado over them. One gleans that theirs is the dance art of German modernism, and much is said about its fantastic and exotic qualities. Apparently the ornamental and the grotesque come into juxtaposition.

Especially notable, continues an advance notice, is the "Dance of the Three Mad Figures," staged by Mr. Kreutzberg. This dance reveals the antics, contortions, and responses of three lunatics, maniacs of various degrees of insanity. The effect, as is told by New York critics, is most entertaining. The new dancing is sometimes cruel, monstrous and disturbing, but it is always interesting. "Ugly, finedish, bloodcurdling," are some of the adjectives used in describing the dances of Kreutzberg and Georgi; but they are "always magnificent," the writers continue.

An Interesting Concert.

One of the interesting concerts of the week, by what seems like a queer chance taking place not today, but Thursday evening, will be the first Chicago appearance of the French composer, Arthur Honegger. He will be presented at Murphy Memorial hall, 50 East Erie street, by the Chicago chapter of Pro-Musica.

Honegger is the composer of "Horace Victorieux," "Pastorale d'ete," and "Pacific (231)," as played at one time and another by Mr. Stock and the Chicago Symphony orchestra, of "Judith," brought over by Mary Garden to add to her répertoire with the Civic Opera, of "Le Roi David," which has not yet been performed in Chicago; of a large number of other works of great and small dimensions. He was a member of that somewhat apocryphal group, "Les Six" of Paris; in a few weeks he will conduct some of his own compositions with the Chicago Symphony orchestra. Those who have heard his music will know that he speaks the contemporary idiom.

In Thursday night's concert he will have the assistance of Mme. Andree Vaurabourg Honegger, pianist; Berty Jenny, mezzo-soprano; Richard Czerwonky, violinist, and Lillian Poenisch, clarinetist. The program will contain some of the music he has written between the years 1916 and 1928, a sonata for piano and violin, a sonatina for piano and clarinet, several groups of songs, some piano pieces, and a suite for two pianos which is still in manuscript.

Mostly About Music.

The art and literature department of the Chicago Woman's Aid will present its monthly recital tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Eva Gordon Horadesky will sing groups of folk songs, and an illustrated talk on Jewish folk songs of the past and present will be given by Harry Coopersmith.

The Civic orchestra of Chicago, Eric DeLamarter, will play at Orchestra hall this afternoon, presenting as soloists Charles Sindelar and Betty Cain in the Bach concerto for two violins and Saul Dorfman in Liszt's Hungarian Fantasy for piano and orchestra. Among the orchestral works will be the Mozart symphony in E flat, Frederick Stock's Symphonic Waltz, and Victor Herbert's Irish Rhapsody.

The board of directors and trustees of Olivet institute will gather for tea at the home of Harold F. McCormick, 675 Rush street, tomorrow afternoon, to hear Mrs. Charles Morgan McKenna talk on "Neighborhood Music Schools." Mrs. McKenna is a member of the extension council of the music division of the National Federation of Settlements, functioning under one of the funds of the Carnegie foundation. She is also chairman of the music division of the Chicago Federation of Settlements. Mrs. McKenna will tell of the community music schools in the larger cities of the country and also of what the Music Extension council has accomplished and of its plans for the future.

The Olivet Institute Music school, founded sixteen years ago, is now one of the largest community music schools in the country. It offers complete courses in piano, pipe organ, violin, voice, dramatic art, band and orchestral instruments, harmony, theory, and orchestral and choral training.

The Musical Art Fund society will sponsor an interpretive program of "Cavalleria Rusticana" at Maillard's tomorrow afternoon. The artists will be Mrs. Emanuel B. Phillipson, soprano; Eusebio Concialdi, baritone, and Evelyn Freedman, violinist, with Rezella Goldstine and Maymie Stillerman, accompanists. Mrs. Julius Stone will speak on "What Makes a Successful Artist."

Among impending joys is registered the first Chicago appearance of Yehudi Menuhin, 12 years old, and rated as the marvel of all wonders among youthful violinists. He will appear at the Auditorium March 3.

Burton Holmes in the third of his travel lectures at Orchestra hall this week will take as his subject "Motoring Through Spain," from Gibraltar to the Pyrenees. It will include Valencia, Toledo, Barcelona, Algeciras, Malaga, and Montserrat, interspersed with pictures of country life, dances, the fishing industry, pelota, and bull fighters.

The choir of St. James' cathedral, Cass and Huron streets, will sing Dr. Charles Wood's "The Passion of Our Lord According to St. Mark" under the direction of Leo Sowerby, choirmaster, at 5 o'clock this afternoon. Dr. Wood is organist of Caius college, Oxford, England.

Titled Ladies Crash Movie Gates—Once

By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special Correspondence.]—Hollywood recently has had several cases of so-called countesses and ladies from Europe who got enmeshed with the law while cutting a swath in the film colony.

One of these was Lady Diana Bathurst, whom the police records refer to as merely Virginia Hurst. She is now trying to get a writ of habeas corpus to avert a jail sentence imposed when local people went to court and claimed she took financial advantage of them.

Another was "Countess Charlotte de Chanquette," referred to by police as Claudia Windsor of Oregon. The Ambassador hotel was brutal enough to swear out a complaint charging her with forgetting a $494 board bill, and a judge was unfeeling enough to take the hotel's side of it.

The countess, like Lady Diana, got a stay of sentence and took out a $2,000 bond while uttering promises to bring Attorney Clarence Darrow here to see if she could not get justice.

Lady Alicia Cavendish is the latest to meet with a legal mishap. The police report set forth that she had been otherwise known as Mrs. Mabel Wright and was interested in trying to sell a newspaper publisher Florida land which "contained four different kinds of water."

Casson Ferguson, well known film actor who died last week, had just been given a rôle in De Mille's picture, "Dynamite." The double funeral of Ferguson and his wife, who was Catherine Mallon, film actress, was conducted with a sincerely sorrowing turnout of mourners from filmland. Husband and wife died within 36 hours of each other, both contracting pneumonia after flu.

Death Stalks Booze Route to Affluence

Torrio Shows Gangsters How to Get There.

By James O'Donnell Bennett.

nearby steel mills was especially catered to in the barracks. As a precautionary measure the seats in the big drinking room of such a place were benches firmly fastened to the walls. This was to prevent the revelers from braining one another with chairs when they became fighting drunk.

Grim Fate of "Dandy Joe."

There were more elaborate dives in Burnham. One of Torrio's places was the Burnham inn. Ike Bloom, who had run a notorious dive in 22d street, joined the march to Burnham and opened the Arrowhead inn, which he later sold to Colosimo. Other bawdy house keepers entered the square mile—among them Jakey Adler (recently kidnaped for ransom), Joe Grabner who was known as "the Jew Kid") and the Guziks, the last a name of special significance because it figures as a demonstration of Torrio's far reaching political power.

That indecency may properly be cleared away here.

The Guziks—Harry and Alma—were managers of the Roamer inn in the village of Posen, Cook county. It was a Torrio brothel. The Guziks were convicted in 1921 of selling a country girl into white slavery after having enticed her to the Roamer inn under pretense of employing her as a maid, then taking her clothes away from her. Her father rescued her. He said he was offered a bribe by Guzik to prevent prosecution. In every aspect the case was flagrant. In 1923 Gov. Len Small pardoned the Guziks in the face of vehement protests by the Juvenile Protective association and other reform bodies. He pardoned them while the Illinois Supreme court was considering their appeal from conviction. Pending the decision they were out on bail. Hence they never served an hour in prison.

Rotten Politics Behind It All.

Why was the pardon granted?

Torrio brought influence to bear on Springfield. Walter Stevens — then known as "the immune outlaw"—was one of Torrio's beer runners. And Walter Stevens had been useful in devious ways to the defense during Gov. Small's trial at Waukegan for having withheld interest on state funds when he was state treasurer. Furthermore, Torrio was persona grata to the Thompson-Lundin machine, which then was playing practical politics with the Small machine. He was persona grata to the Chicago machine because of his substantial contributions to funds that made the wheels go 'round.

The long and short of it is that the slime of the serpent was over everything Torrio touched from his Five Points days to his debauching of the most majestic and solemn power an executive can exercise—the power to pardon.

* *

The Guziks at It Again.

What was the result?

Within less than three months after Small pardoned them the Guziks were at it again and were doing well in a new dive they had built at 119th street and Marshfield avenue, just beyond the city limits of Chicago.

Some gangsters and vice purveyors entered the Burnham square mile and other Torrio vice fiefs without first making sure of a welcome from Torrio. That was foolish. Yea, it was fatal. One of them was "Dandy Joe" Hogarty, who got rough at a party in Burnham on one November night in 1916, and who, among other loose remarks, exclaimed: "I'll get that Wop!" He did not. A rattle of shots silenced the clatter of jazz and Dandy Joe's next stopping place was the morgue. "Benny" Dunn and Tommy Enright were fleetingly detained for this abrupt ending of the party, but were not annoyed with prosecution.

How the Money Rolled In!

And so it went—a careladen life for Torrio, but how the money rolled in! All Torrio's gains from selling women and running gambling hells were trifling, however, compared with his gains after the eighteenth amendment had ended licensed saloons and ushered in the selling by bootleggers of illicit whisky, gin, and beer to speakeasies, and to individuals.

* *

New Crimes to Beat New Laws.

A new kind of criminality then swiftly develops.

For it is the smooth Torrio who shows O'Banion and his rough type that bootlegging and beer running on a big scale and under organization are far more profitable than safe cracking.

The vital point in Torrio's scheme of organization is organization based on terrorism. The O'Banion type could be depended upon to provide ample terrorism, however meager their contribution of brains might be. Terrorism was O'Banion's specialty, as he proved when he helped to swing the Forty-second ward from its status as a Dorsey Crowe Democratic ward to a Robert Crowe Republican ward. He would wander into saloons and open fire with a brace of revolvers, not aiming at any one or anything in particular but making a chastening racket, "just to show," as one of his delighted observers put it, "that he really was one hard boiled florist and politician."

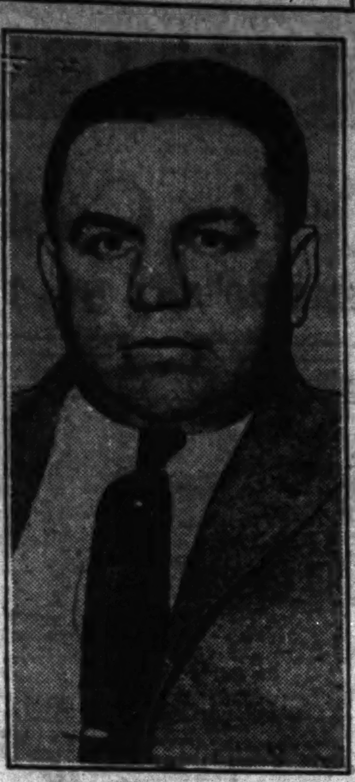
Torrio's Inspiration.

Soon after prohibition, Torrio buys a closed brewery with the idea of transforming it into a bagnio, but he sees the golden dawn coming and changes his mind, saying, "I don't see why I shouldn't make beer here." And he does—for his own bawdy houses. Soon he begins to supply other bawdy house keepers and to acquire more breweries. Others follow his lead. More and more of the old crime gangs drop robbery—or keep it incidental—and go into brewing and bootlegging.

But for about three years—say from 1920 until 1923—Torrio maintains strict control. It is the old story of gang organization which he had applied successfully when he was solely a purveyor of harlots. If a co-criminal has a brewery he must go to see Torrio about having it kept open. If he does not the federal authorities soon learn about that brewery, and the brewer's life becomes a burden. If the proprietor of a speakeasy does not buy his beer from Torrio or his allied brewers he soon learns something highly to his disadvantage in the shape of a bomb that blows the front out of his enterprise. If he persists in rebellion a lonesome death out on the prairie is the final admonition.

IN DEATH DUEL



Eddie Tancl, gangster, saloonkeeper, and former prize fighter, was killed in a furious gun play in front of his roadhouse after he had been warned to get out of Cicero.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Things Torrio Does Not Do.

All this time Torrio follows a certain regularity in his dealings. He keeps his word. If he says he will "be there tomorrow with the fifty grand" [$50,000], he will be there with it. He is neither a squawker nor a talker. He never talks about anybody. The practice of "ribbing"—that is, malevolently planting suspicion in A's mind by saying to A "I heard B say he was going to get you"—is not in his book.

As the money rolls in more and more abundantly Torrio not only ceases to fear officialdom but he also develops a political power that makes officialdom fear him. There had been a time when foreign-born gangsters removed their hats when they walked into a federal building. That was in the days when the government had put fear deep into them by its investigations under the Mann white slavery act. Once it was revealed that girls were being recruited in eastern cities and sent to brothels in Chicago. "Big Jim" Colosimo's bagnios were among those drawn into the investigation and he was scared sick.

But under Volstead gangdom's corruption funds are so large that not all federal deputies stand up against temptation. They ignore operations in many an illicit brewery when their noses know what is going on.

Torrio soon discovers that certain city police and county deputies are not more rigid.

Hence the plague spots spread like gangrene. There had been money in liquor and girls before prohibition. But there are fortunes in liquor and girls under prohibition.

The case of Stickney, a village eight miles southwest of Chicago city hall via Ogden avenue, is typical.

Torrio invades it and it becomes a byword for commercialized vice just as the old 22d street area in Chicago had been.

The Alarm Bell Sounds.

Bawdy houses are opened on sequestered side roads and they are connected by electric wire with gas stations a mile distant, and if a detail of "wrong coppers"—meaning honest ones—comes into view the lookout at the gas station presses a button. It sounds an alarm in the brothel, and by the time the investigators reach the place girls and booze have vanished.

With a man of Torrio's pertinacity, little by little means bigger and bigger.

His next move is to besmirch Cicero. It is a flourishing place of nearly seventy thousand inhabitants. It is the fifth largest community in Illinois, and the seat of the enormous plant of the Western Electric company.

The blight of Torrio has made Cicero a byword. Although he was not actively on that scene after he was shot down by rival gangsters in 1925 his henchman and, to a degree, successor, Al Capone, sustained the vileness of the Torrio tradition.

Unhappily for the decent residents of the community it was, as it still is, under the antiquated village form of government, which was easier for gangdom to handle than a more highly organized system would have been. It also has a large population of Polish born citizens with far from strict notions either of public order or of the individual's share of responsibility for maintaining it.

Entering Cicero in 1923, Torrio and Capone had it pretty thoroughly in hand by the close of 1924.

What the Booze Racket Brings.

One hundred and sixty-one saloons were then running wide open and this in the face of federal injunctions against some of them. Dozens of professional gambling houses flourished and nearly every cigar store and candy shop operated a side line of gambling devices. Whisky was sold at 75 cents a drink, beer at 25 cents for a small stein, and wine at 30 cents a glass. This was the schedule at Lauterback's place, a brick building at 48th avenue and 12th street, where there also was a large gambling room in which, so the experts said, ran the biggest roulette game in the middle west. They whispered, too, that as much as a hundred thousand dollars had been piled on the tables in Lauterback's at one time.

Gangdom's Branded Slave.

The gang was appallingly brazen. Outside the Ship at 2131 Cicero avenue, next to the elevated station, stood cappers who murmured to passersby, "Cash game inside. Step in!"

The big village became so utterly the branded slave of gangdom that the slightest hint of insurrection was terribly punished. In fact, gangdom got drunk with power. Even slick Capone lost his head, took to violence, and slugged one of the village officials as he came out of the village hall after a board meeting at which the official had said, done, or voted for something that displeased Capone. Another time gangdom did not wait until after the meeting to inflict punishment. An official was slugged at the meeting and the meeting was broken up.

The only thing done about either slugging was the effort made to hush them up.

It is sometimes said by persons more exasperated than informed that newspapers are in some measure to be blamed for the loose rein with which the gangsters of boozedom have ridden in Chicago and thereabouts. John Landesco of Chicago, who has made under university auspices the most thorough, exact and philosophic study of gangdom that is in any archives, does not agree with that view. "If," he said, "it were not for the newspapers, gangdom and its political henchmen and protectors would have stolen this town."

Certain Torrio and Capone's gangsters showed that they feared newspapers when they were reducing Cicero and parts adjacent to anarchy. They shot and kidnaped Arthur St. John, editor of the Berwyn Tribune. He had been valiantly fighting the invasion of Berwyn, which is just west of Cicero, by the gangsters of boozedom.

Another time Arthur's brother, Robert, of the Cicero Tribune tried to rescue Patrolman Youngworth of Cicero, whom Al Capone, his brother, Ralph, and Pete Pizzo, once a suspect in the O'Banion murder, were beating into unconsciousness in the street. Robert St. John in his turn was beaten nearly unconscious.

"Kill Him! He Got Me."

The Cicero election on April 1, 1924, was a riot. That was before Torrio and Capone had really established their reign. Eddie Tancl, gangster and saloonkeeper and once a prize fighter, still held power, and so valued it that he resisted the Torrio-Capone invasion and he refused to buy his beer supply from the Torrio gang. During the election riot Frank Capone, brother of Torrio's henchman, was killed. In August Tancl was warned by the invaders to get out of Cicero. He did not get out until November. Then he went in a coffin. He had been shot to death on a Sunday in front of his Hawthorne Inn roadhouse by Myles O'Donnell and James Doherty, gangsters. The gun play was furious. Tancl's last act was to hit his assailant, O'Donnell, with his emptied revolver and his last words—spoken to one of his waiters—were:

"Kill him! He got me."

Then Martin Simet, the waiter, jumped on the prostrate form of O'Donnell.

Such is life in a community containing one of the great industrial plants of the world when that community lies down before gangdom.

The Routine Aftermath.

The aftermath of the Tancl murder was per usual.

State's Attorney Crowe was highly indignant and the Chicago crime commission called an "anti-crime conference." Crowe, then newly elected, said: "Cook county is going to be dry and moral for the next four years. Every saloon and disreputable joint in the county is going to be closed. It is the end for liquor, beer, and vice."

So Crowe sent squads to raid the plague spots in Burnham, Burr Oak, Steger, Blue Island, and Cicero.

By the time the squads reached the brothels and speakeasies and gambling houses they were dark and empty. The raid had been tipped off to gangdom by the corrupted stratum of officialdom.

After the Tancl murder Crowe in November, 1924, had promised Chicago and Cook county four years—the length of his term of office—of dryness and morality. Seventeen months later his most conspicuous assistant, William H. McSwiggin, was killed in Cicero by gangsters. McSwiggin had prosecuted gangsters, but he also had a curious and still unexplained way of "playing around" with gangsters. He was killed in the company of gangsters, with some of whom he had been school-fellow, and the mystery of the murder has never been solved. Nobody was ever prosecuted for it.

Gangdom's Grip Relaxes.

The crime had one beneficial effect. It so concentrated public indignation on the civic corruption, the booze selling, and the gambling in Cicero and thereabouts that even the gangsters were frightened. Their grip on the community was never again as firm. But from early in 1923 until early in 1926 it had been pitiless and the profits had been enormous.

From records which were captured in 1925 at the "business headquarters" of the Torrio-Capone gang, 2446 South Michigan avenue, Chicago, it was estimated that those profits had run at least three million dollars a year for three years; probably more, for the complete records were not captured. Many thousands of dollars in checks of druggists and speakeasy proprietors were seized. One for $15,000 was from a large drug store on the north side of Chicago. The gang had its auditors, its lists of booze buyers, of venal police officers and prohibition agents, of sources of booze supply extending from rum row off New York harbor on the north to Miami, Fla., on the south, and its loose leaf ledgers showing the cost systems used in its bawdy houses in Burnham and elsewhere.

"Forget It—and Here's $5,000."

"Johnny Patton," said Police Sergeant Edward Birmingham, who assisted in this seizure of documents, "offered me $5,000 to forget the bookkeeping system."

John Torrio, you will remember, had shown old fashioned, plug-ugly safe cracking gangdom the way to a golden future when bogus prohibition was unloaded on our country. Outstanding phases of his methods have been unfolded in this chapter; other phases will be described later. For the moment we drop him because while he was bringing his system to perfection in the southern and southwestern parts of Chicago and Cook county the Genna brothers, hailing from the ancient and opulent Sicilian seaport of Marsala, were developing on the west side of Chicago a phase of the booze racket that produced more vile liquor, more concentrated murder and more general hell than any one family not seated on a throne had ever inflicted upon a bewildered community and an enfeebled official dom.

That hideous story will make next Sunday's chapter.

Viewpoints

By Clifford Raymond.

HISTORICAL judgments are lopsided because they try to be simple and concise and the event or the character is complex. The popular prejudice is in favor of solid primary colors.

There is a religious certainty that the Egyptians did not have as much right to the labor of the Israelites as the Israelites had to the land of the Canaanites. The rage of the Philistines against the people of Israel is quite as explicable as the rage of Virginia against John Brown of Osawatomie. Virginia would regard Jesse James as a better character than John Brown.

Charles Sumner had asked for the whipping he got from Preston Brooks. The speech which provoked it was an egotistic disregard of decencies in parliamentary expression under privilege. Heflin of Alabama never offended the proprieties as Sumner did. The south ignores the slave block. The north saw nothing else.

George III. couldn't believe that his American rebels were anything but very wicked people quite as offensive to God as they were to him. The offense of the Canaanites was that they had something Israel wanted. That was largely the original offense of the American Indians. Pharaoh's opinion of Moses was Nicholas' opinion of Lenin and Lord North's opinion of George Washington. If George III. had needed a confession of American wickedness he would have pointed to the Declaration of Independence as a slander of a patient and just king. It would have served as a denunciation of Cromwell in Ireland. Had George turned a Mongolian horde loose in New England? If so, where were the mountains of corpses? Without them why the rhetoric?

The people in the southwestern counties of Pennsylvania who engaged in the whisky rebellion against President Washington and Secretary of the Treasury Hamilton had a case as they saw it. Economically it was better than that of the colonists against the mother country, politically not so good. But in the nature of things they could not rebel. The colonists could and did.

Determined to Be Free.

It was sufficient for the American revolution that the colonials wanted to be free. It was good principle and policy to attack a British fiscal system and indict the moral purposes of a man who considered himself a hard working monarch and who was undeniably an example of domestic virtues.

Representation in parliament would not have satisfied the colonials. They simply did not want to be colonials. The status was unsatisfactory. They did not intend to recognize an innate superiority in the home breed. Their resentment probably would have increased if they had elected representatives and sent them to London to vote on stamp acts, tea taxes, etc. It would have been only another contact of the colonial and the overlord, and without changing the material consequences of acts of parliament would have taken away the logical and delightful reasons the Americans had for objecting.

The people of New England in the War of 1812 did several things: They sold provisions which kept the British armies sustained in Canada; they furnished some of the best troops used by the best American fighting leaders, Brown and Scott; they withdrew their organized and trained militia from federal uses; they cornered all the money, refused to buy bonds, and threatened secession.

If George Had Been Liberal.

If George III. had been liberal in advance of his days and had agreed with Sam Adams, James Otis, Joseph Warren, with Patrick Henry and Thomas Jefferson, the Declaration would have come later. It would have been shorter. It would not have had so much meat, but it would have come. And rightly. The desire of a people to be free does not need any other justification, if it succeeds. If it fails the justification is useless.

What saved the revolution when it was started was the fact that the Americans did not declare at the time their real purpose. It may have been [illegible] defined. They said they did not want independence. They said they were fighting a ministry and ministerial troops, not the crown and the king's troops. They wanted justice, not separation. In action they were decisive and certain. The British were undecided and uncertain.

The troops in Boston were not used as troops would have been if the purpose had been to exterminate defiant rebels. The British policy was hesitant and faltering when the American purpose was most determined and aggressive. The British did not believe that the trouble was as bad as it was and they did not want to make it worse.

Opposite Views.

The case of the south against the north in the events leading to the civil war in simple logic is extraordinary. A northerner can't see it and a southerner can see nothing else. To this day they look at each other in perplexity and amazement when the causes are brought up. It is incredible to the north that the south should think of the north as the rebel. It is incredible to the south that the north does not acknowledge the fact.

The north knows that the south voted itself out of the Union and set up another government. That, it is plain to a southerner, was the consequence of the north refusing to abide by the constitution. In southern opinion the northerners stated the case against themselves when they said that to accept government as it was under Buchanan and the Dred Scott decision would be a sin and that secession would be a virtue. There was the law and the constitution and the north was in rebellion. If that were the case, then the Union was breaking up under the blows the north was giving it and the southern states would allow the erring sisters to go in peace and they would preserve the constitution in a smaller union. They did so and the north attacked them by trying to send supplies to a hostile force in Fort Sumter.

The North Can't Understand.

This is brilliantly simple and logical, but to the north it is merely raving. A conception which puts the north in rebellion against the constitution and the laws of the Union to the north signifies bedlam. Did not the north resist the fugitive slave law? Did not some states pass laws against it? It was a bad law and should have been resisted. But it was the law. Did not the constitution protect a citizen in his possession of slave labor? But that was immoral and wrong. But it was the constitution.

The Dred Scott decision was the law of the land. Did not Lincoln say he would refuse to obey it as a political rule? It was a bad political interpretation of the constitution. It was the law. It was the last word of the final authority saying what the law was. The north elected Lincoln President. In doing so, to southern logic, the north broke up the Union, shattered the constitution, and became the rebel.

The equities of every war the United States has fought might be argued up and down. The proof is in the consequences. We regard them all as good.

CHURCH NEWS

Noted Preacher to Address Ministers

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

"THE Place of the Church in Character Education" is the subject of the address by Dr. Charles E. Jefferson for tomorrow morning at the monthly Union Ministers' meeting under the auspices of the Chicago Church federation at the Chicago temple, Clark and Washington streets, at 10:30. This meeting will be followed by a noon luncheon at 12:30 and the annual meeting of the Chicago Council of Religious Education at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium, 19 South La Salle estreet. The speaker will be the Rev. Allen A. Stockdale, D. D., pastor of the Rogers Park Congregational church, formerly of Toledo, O., who will talk on "Ignorance That Is Not Bliss." At 2:30 a Lenten feature will be presented by the Young People of St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church, "St. Claudia," by Marshall N. Gould. This drama will be given under the direction of Nelle C. Wiley, and is recognized as one of the few worthy religious dramas with a vital message. The effect of the life and death of Christ on the Roman mind is vividly portrayed.

The opening sermon of the men's mission at the Holy Name cathedral, State and Superior streets, will be preached this morning at the solemn mass at which the men's choir of the cathedral and the boy choristers will render the ordinary of the Missa Solemnis of Pietro Yon. The plain chant choir of Quigley seminary will sing the proper of the mass. Of interest concerning the music of the plain chant choir and the boy choristers is the fact that Father Hoover, director of the plain chant choir, and Father Mahoney, director of the boy choristers, studied under Msgr. Rella in Rome and use the same method as that used by the Schola Cantorum of the vatican in training the Sistine choir.

The girls of the Presbytery of Chicago will meet Saturday morning and afternoon at the First Presbyterian church, 64th street and Kimbark avenue, in their sixth annual Presbyterian Girls' conference. Dr. William H. Boddy, pastor of First church, will speak on "Adventuring in Christian Character" and Mrs. Katharine McAfee Parker, formerly of Shantung Christian university, Tsinan, China, on "Our Church," and six groups conferences will complete the program for the forenoon. Mrs. O. R. Sellers will preside at the luncheon. The principal address of the afternoon will be by Dr. Charles E. Jefferson, pastor of Congregational Broadway Tabernacle, New York City, on "World wide Adventuring." The general theme for the day is "Adventuring with Christ." Margaret Helen Cain, president of Older Girls' conference, will preside.

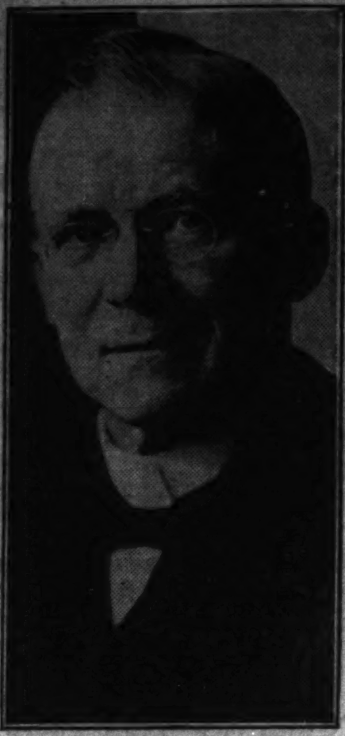
The new church, St. Luke's English Lutheran church, North Prospect avenue and Cedar street, Park Ridge, Ill., will be dedicated today with special services morning and afternoon. At 9:45, the Sunday school period, the Rev. David A. Davy, superintendent of the Inner Mission society, will be the speaker. The dedication service will be held at 11 o'clock a. m., when the pastor, the Rev. Walter D. Spangler, will officiate. The sermon will be preached by the president of the Illinois synod, Dr. John M. Bramkamp. Visitors from other churches and friends will take part in a vesper service of fellowship at 3 p. m., at which the following will be speakers: The Rev. Paul J. Gerberding, the Rev. J. R. E. Hunt, the Rev. E. P. Scharf, the Rev. Carl D. Gage, the Rev. R. Everett Carr, and Mayor John R. Anderson of Park Ridge.

This new church is complete in its appointments. Linked with the auditorium of worship, which provides for an audience of more than 600, is a spacious parish house, with comfortable provision for religious education and all other activities of the seven day a week modern church.

The Chapel guild of the Cenacle is giving a course of lectures Tuesday afternoons at 2:30 p. m. during Lent, the first of which was last Tuesday. Continuing each Tuesday afternoon the following still remain of the series: Feb. 26, Dr. George N. Shuster on "Catholic Problems in America," and March 5, Louis H. Wetmore on "The Orthodox Inheritage in English Literature," at the home of Mrs. Edward L. Cudahy, 1501 North State street; March 12, the Rev. E. J. Mullaly, C. S. P., on "Twenty-five Years on the Missions," and March 19, the Rt. Rev. Thomas V. Shannon, L.L. D., on "Mexico," at the home of Mrs. William Roy Carney, 3400 Sheridan road.

On Wednesday and Thursday at Atlantic City, N. J., will be held the annual meeting of the American section of the World Alliance of Reformed Churches. This group is made up of delegates chosen by the highest church judicatories of nine church bodies: Presbyterian church in the U. S. A., Presbyterian church in the U. S., United Presbyterian, Reformed church in America, Reformed church in the United States, General Synod Reformed Presbyterian, Associate Reformed Presbyterian, United church of Canada, Presbyterian church of Canada. Dr. W. I. Wishart of Pittsburgh, Pa., is president. Delegates from Chicago are: Dr. John Timothy Stone, Dr. A. H. Barr, both of the Presbyterian Theological seminary; Oliver H. Williamson, and Louis Bowman, palmer. Plans will be completed for the quadrennial meeting at Boston next June, which will be attended by representatives from Europe, Africa, Australia, Canada, and the United States.

SERMONS AND SERVICES in CHICAGO CHURCHES TODAY



THE REV. CHARLES EDWARD JEFFERSON, D. D., LL. D.

Dr. Charles E. Jefferson, pastor at the Broadway Tabernacle, New York City, one of the world's great preachers to one of the world's great audiences every Sunday, will be the speaker before the Sunday Evening club at Orchestra hall this evening. His last address in Chicago at this time will be on "World-Wide Adventuring," before the Presbyterian Girls' conference at the First Presbyterian church Saturday afternoon. He also speaks at the Fourth Presbyterian church at the vesper service at 4 p. m. today, and tomorrow morning at the Union Ministers' meeting at the Chicago temple on "The Place of the Church in Character Education."

Dr. Jefferson has had a unique pastorate at Broadway Tabernacle for over thirty years, and has built this great congregational church with a great idea back of it. In the heart of crowded New York City he has kept going at full blast a mighty church with an audience of 5,000 every Sunday.

THE RULES:

1. Every Sunday, the Chicago Tribune prints 3 pictures depicting the names of Capital Cities of the various States in the United States. There will be a total of 48 pictures—one for each of the 48 States. The public is invited to cut out these pictures, fill in the name of the Capital each picture represents and the name of the State. The Chicago Tribune will pay $10,000.00 in cash prizes to the persons who send in the nearest correctly named and neatest complete sets of answers in accordance with these rules. See prize list below.

2. This offer is open to everybody—men, women, boys and girls—except employes of the Tribune and their families. It makes no difference how old you are or where you live. You pay nothing. No work to do—no subscriptions to get. Just prove your skill. Accuracy will count. Neatness will count.

3. Pictures are to be submitted only in complete sets. The first three pictures were printed Sunday, January 13th. Hold all pictures until you have the complete set of 48. Then send them to "Capitals," The Chicago Tribune, Post Office Box 1589, Chicago, Illinois. All pictures must be in by midnight 21 days after the last picture has been published. No entries will be returned.

4. Each entry must be sent by First Class Mail, postage prepaid. Entries with insufficient postage will be returned by the Post Office Department. With your entry send a letter giving your name and address and the name of your favorite State—the one you like for your home, and tell why you like it best. Letters must not exceed 50 words. Elaborate entries are not necessary. Make your entry simple. The prime requirements are accuracy and neatness.

5. School Teachers Note: To interest school teachers in encouraging their pupils to enter this instructive and educational Game, the Chicago Tribune will award 5 prizes of $100.00 each to the teachers in public, parochial or private schools of grammar or high school grades, whose pupils rank highest among the winners. Teachers! This new Game will familiarize your pupils with all the State Capitals. Help them win!

6. You need not purchase The Chicago Tribune to compete. You may copy or trace the pictures from the originals and use the copies you have made. The Chicago Tribune may be examined at any of its Offices or at Public Libraries free of charge.

7. The judges will be a committee appointed by The Chicago Tribune. Their decision will be final. In case of ties a duplicate award will be paid to each tying contestant.

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

Lenten services for the week are: At the Garrick theater, the Rt. Rev. Irving Peake Johnson, bishop of Colorado, will be the speaker at the Lenten noonday loop services of the Episcopal Church club of Chicago. This morning at 11 o'clock Bishop Johnson preaches at St. Paul's church, 50th street and Dorchester avenue, and this afternoon at 5 o'clock at the Church of the Atonement, Kenmore and Ardmore avenues. In addition to his noonday engagements he will address directors of the Church club at luncheon Monday, following the theater service, and Tuesday noon the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, meeting at the Central Y. M. C. A., 19 South La Salle street.

The bishop's evening engagements are in the following Episcopal churches: Monday, St. Elizabeth's, Glencoe; Tuesday, St. Peter's, 621 Belmont avenue; Wednesday, Grace church, Oak Park; Thursday, Church of the Redeemer, 56th street and Blackstone avenue.

"Some Modern Aspects of Faith" is the subject of a series of lectures the Rev. Irvine Goddard, rector of Emmanuel Episcopal church, La Grange, is giving each Wednesday evening during Lent at St. Luke's Episcopal church, Racine.

This evening at 7:30 the Rev. Jesse E. Thorsen, pastor of Our Savior's English Lutheran church, Berteau and Laramie avenues, will preach a Lenten sermon, and on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock will give a Lenten "Message from the Cross."

Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock the Church Extension Board workers will hold a conference at the Warren Park Presbyterian church, 61st court and 21st street, the Rev. Stuart S. Pratt, pastor. The Rev. William McInnes of Perseverance Presbyterian church will speak on "Church Worship" and present an order of service for general discussion. "A Program for Youth" is the subject of an address by the Rev. Victor E. Marriott, director of religious education, Chicago Congregational Missionary society. During luncheon the inspirational hour will be led by Dr. Harrison Ray Anderson, co-pastor of Fourth Presbyterian church.

An installation service of the new pastor, the Rev. Frederick T. Mayer-Oakes, D. D., Ph. D., of the Plymouth Congregational church, 119th street and Stanton avenue, Whiting, Ind., will be held this evening at 8 o'clock. The Rev. Dr. Hayes of Gary, Ind., will preside and the sermon will be preached by the Rev. Robert J. Watson, Lombard, Ill. The Rev. Willard Crosby Lyon, Gary First Congregational church; the Rev. Walter H. Moore, East Chicago, Ind., and the Rev. Robert Hall, Michigan City, Ind., will also have a part in the service. The benediction will be pronounced at the close of the service by Dr. Mayer-Oakes, the newly installed pastor.

Dr. Mayer-Oakes, a native of England, had a large part of his training in his native land. Twenty years ago he was graduate fellow in the graduate school at Yale university and from there was elected university fellow in anthropology and psychology at Clark university, where he was research fellow for four years. Called in 1920, he served the First Congregational church, Oskaloosa, Ia., for seven years. He came to Whiting last November from Galesburg, Ill.

The celebration in honor of Dr. Charles Clayton Morrison having completed a service of twenty years continuously as editor of the Christian Century will be brought to its climax and close on Wednesday at a luncheon at the Palmer house at 12:15 p. m. Volumes of testimonial letters sent to him by subscribers to the Christian Century will be presented to him at this time.

Uncharted Seas

WHEN men first went down to the sea in ships there was little reckoning of the course they were to follow. Science had not yet produced the sensitive instruments that have enabled men to chart the sea lanes as accurately as the city streets or country highways. . . . As a result many ships were lost at sea. Today the most experienced navigators would hesitate to venture far from port without science at the helm. What nautical science has done for navigation medical science has done for disease prevention and cure. Years have been added to the average expectancy of life—infant mortality greatly reduced and many serious diseases almost completely robbed of their harmful effects.

However, despite the knowledge medical science possesses to secure the health of mankind, there is still an alarming amount of misery and death that could be prevented. For laws that make it impossible for ships to clear from port without the protection of nautical science do not prevail in medical science. Individuals must voluntarily seek its protection. Regular medical examinations will disclose functional disorders as well as evidence of any serious diseases like tuberculosis, heart disease, cancer or a social disease. No medical examination is complete unless it includes a blood and other laboratory tests. Most physicians make these tests a routine part of every examination.

Authorities state that social disease infection is primarily responsible for the death of 300,000 people annually, and that many additional thousands of men, women and children are condemned to hospitals, asylums and lives of wretchedness. The Public Health Institute offers a reliable, scientific medical service for the relief of social diseases. Organized by public spirited men not for profit its fees for examination and treatment are within the reach of all. Treatments are available even to those without immediate funds.

The Public Health Institute has three separate clinics in Chicago. The Departments for Men are located at 159 North Dearborn Street—just North of Randolph and 129 East Thirty-first Street—Corner of Indiana Avenue.

The Department for Women and Children is located at 72 East Randolph Street (2nd floor) between Wabash and Michigan Avenues—All clinic hours, 10 A. M. to 8 P. M. Daily Except Sunday. Phone Central 9383.

[Koehne Photo.]

Miss Janet Good, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Macy S. Good, is to be married on Tuesday evening at the First Presbyterian church on the south side to Foster Turner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tracy L. Turner. Other prospective brides, whose wedding dates have not been set, are Miss Barbara Farr, daughter of Mrs. Marvin A. Farr of 4737 Woodlawn avenue, who is engaged to Ronald Chinnock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Chinnock of Grand Rapids, Mich., and Miss Elizabeth Lamson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren A. Lamson of Winnetka, whose marriage to Warner G. Washburn will probably take place this year. Wesley Dixon is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley M. Dixon of 2350 Lincoln Park west. Mrs. Alfred M. Wolfe is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Stock, and the Wolfes' young son is named Frederick Stock Wolfe for his maternal grandfather. Miss Jean Milsted departs today with her mother, Mrs. Thomas G. Milsted, for a long absence abroad.

The Amazon, Africa, Ragusa on Itineraries

McCormicks, Adams, and McCutcheons Take Wing.

By Mme. X.

Of all the many and diverse spring outings planned by Chicagoites, two stand out from the rest because of their novelty and attractive possibilities. The first one is that on which the John T. McCutcheons embarked Feb. 15. If carried out as planned, this will take them, via the Panama canal, down the west coast of South America, over the Andes and to the head waters of the Amazon, by which somewhat untrodden route they will make their way to the Atlantic ocean and so homeward. As yet no tourist agency has opened this region and arranged tours for American trippers, though it is a safe bet that before long parties of happy, restless folk from Main street will be trotting about frightening the Amazonian anacondas and disturbing the crossword puzzle tapirs in their habitats.

Already equatorial and south Africa are so thoroughly invaded by these modern, though mild, Goths and Vandals that the fauna for which that continent is famous is vanishing like the morning mists after sunrise. Those vast herds of striped zebras are disappearing; those picturesque antelopes and gazelles are being exterminated; those unbelievable giraffes are almost extinct; those voracious lions are creeping into their jungle lairs to die of grief; these interesting cannibals are learning to eat canned goods; those once jocose hyenas are not laughing any more, and Africa will soon be no more interesting for tourists than is Kansas.

Plans Foreign Cruise.

The other alluring expedition planned by a prominent fellow citizen of yours and mine [if you be a Chicagoan] is that soon to be undertaken by Robert Hall McCormick. A year or two ago he bought and had fitted up a sturdy, shapely craft whose kind has been indigenous to the Adriatic since the times of ancient Rome. By the folk who sail on the Adriatic, its species is called "trabacola," meaning, I suspect, a boat especially adapted for cruising along that rocky shore. It belongs to the fleet of coasting vessels such as have from time immemorial traded up and down that famous inland sea. The name of this particular boat is the San Marco. It is of quaint cut and shape, having a broad beam and low, water lapping contour. Having been a craft devoted to the carrying trade, it has a steady gait.

When he bought it Mr. McCormick swept the hull clean and had built thereon a superstructure large enough to compass fine cabins, sleeping quarters, and all the other paraphernalia needed for luxurious voyages. He left the stalwart masts and their picturesque sails, of warm russet hues deepening to maroon, and installed an auxiliary engine so that if the wind failed steam could take the San Marco into port. The boat is handsomely furnished and fitted up. Any oriental satrap or Roman emperor, such as once sailed the Adriatic, might well envy Mr. McCormick and his company their surroundings.

Venice as Starting Point.

He is arranging to set sail from the Giudecca at Venice about April 1, when two of his guests will be Miss Agnes Carpenter of New York and Bar Harbor, and Mrs. Edith Shepard Fabbri. Ten days later his sister, Miss Elizabeth McCormick, will join the party at Ragusa, and together they will coast along that beautiful, wild and picturesque eastern shore, where history has been in the making so many centuries and promises to go turbulently on for some time to come. It is a coast backed by high mountains and dotted with islands which provide an almost continuous inner waterway, and many accessible harbors. As that part of Europe has never become what we Americans call civilized, the McCormick party will be comfortably independent of such hotels and inns as may furnish forth shelter to the wayfarer. It sounds like an idyllic expedition. No special route is planned; no term set for the outing. The host is depending on the whim of the moment to guide him and his party, an ideal way to travel. He leaves Chicago in a few weeks.

Miss McCormick is already packing up her charming apartment on East Walton place, and by the end of this coming week will go to New York to be with her two sisters, Mrs. Nelson Williams and Miss Mildred McCormick, both of whom live in New York. She sails for Italy early in March. When her sojourn with her brother is ended, Miss McCormick will make a little tour of Italy before going to Paris, where she will establish her headquarters for her summer abroad. She expects to return to her Chicago apartment in October.

Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick is also expecting to go to France in March, taking with her her daughter, Miss Eleanor McCormick, who was one of this season's most popular debutantes. They will do some motoring and return to their summer home in Bar Harbor in June.

Off for South Africa.

Another pair of wanderers who are again seeking such diversion as remote regions afford are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Adams, who are now on the high seas, if they have not already reached Capetown, South Africa, on their way to Victoria falls. What was once a rather inaccessible part of the globe, that territory washed by the Zambezi river in east Africa, is now a well organized traveler's paradise, and every year increasing multitudes make their

Season at Palm Beach Reaches Peak

Presence of Foreign Nobles Adds to Gala Affairs.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 23.—[Special.]—Another Palm Beach season has reached its "peak." Running true to this island's traditions, its most important social and sports affairs have reached a climax in these days surrounding Washington's birthday. Only one thing was lacking—the Royal Poinciana's charity ball—but the decease of that ancient and honorable institution was hardly noticed, what with the annual costume ball at the Bath and Tennis club, the regatta, Arthur Hammerstein's home talent charity show, with its $1,000 box seats and its galaxy of stage talent.

And, for golf addicts, there was the sight of Virginia Van Wie, the Chicago girl, battling to keep her title as Florida's woman champion.

Royal Visitors Present.

Through the many other large gatherings attending these gala days and nights, Prince Cyril of Bulgaria and Princess Aspasia of Greece move as central figures. The prince has made the acquaintance of quite a few prominent Chicagoans.

At the largest afternoon affair of the current season he was a guest at a tea and reception attended by Mr. and Mrs. Lucius P. Ordway, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Rasmussen, Mrs. Irving Hall Chase, Miss Muriel McCormick, and Mrs. George A. McKinlock.

Other Functions Listed.

Princess Aspasia of Greece and members of her party were entertained informally by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Chadbourne at their home, Villa Aloha. Before coming here the princess was joined in New York by Viscountess Fielding, who came from Chicago to be with her.

These are a few other hospitalities that attracted notice:

Mrs. Irving Hall Chase's luncheon at the Bath and Tennis club and Miss Eleanor Chase's dinner honoring Mrs. E. Howell Tompkins of New York.

At the Alba the Queen Isabella dining room was the setting chosen by Mr. and Mrs. Louis Levine to entertain many of their Chicago friends in honor of their guest, Mrs. Madeline Sapior. Mrs. Frederic McLaughlin, who drove up from Miami Beach, was a luncheon guest of Addison Misener, the architect, and Mrs. Carroll D. Keeler. Mrs. Cummings, Mrs. Irene Donnelly, Mrs. Elmer Rich, and Mrs. E. Preston Rowles were among guests at a luncheon for nineteen which was given by Mrs. Walton W. Parker at the Breakers. Mrs. Rowles is among the more recent Chicago arrivals at the Breakers.

Then there was the Bernardo Olshansky concert, which packed the Everglades club with what looked like its entire membership and subscribers' list. Among the Chicago patronesses were Mrs. McKinlock, Mrs. Florenz Ziegfeld, the Hon. Mrs. Frederick E. Guest, Mrs. George A. Rasmussen, Mrs. Chase, Mrs. Charles M. Hayes and Mrs. Charles E. Erbstein.

Guests Still Arrive.

The season has reached its peak, but there is little talk of departing, as in past seasons. Unusually late for some unaccountable reason, well known guests come in daily from the midwest.

Among these tardy ones was Hanson Randle, the Chicagoan who chose a Mediterranean cruise for early winter. Now he comes here to find strangers in his old place at the Poinciana.

Even in this assembly place of blondes, the blonde beauty of Mrs. Bert White is attracting the notice of those who hope to include her in at least one of the "younger sets." Mrs. White and her husband have joined the Poinciana's Chicago colony for the rest of the season. Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hines and Mr. and Mrs. Glen C. Crawford also came down this week.

Will Visit Cuba.

Prominent among visitors at the Poinciana just now is Mrs. E. R. Fifield of Chicago, widely known charitable and civic worker and past president of the Illinois Women's Athletic club. She will leave soon for Cuba. There she will make a short stay before returning home to organize a society charity circus she plans for April.

The Breakers reached the point where it is hunting for nooks and corners into which to pack such late arrivals as G. L. Plamondon, who came down from Illinois to join his mother, and Hamilton Vose Jr.

Charles H. Chadwick of Chicago has come to Whitehall to join Mrs. Chadwick, who has been here for some time with Mrs. Jacob Bauer and Mrs. H. Townsend McKeever.

The Everglades club, now filled, received among its last Chicago guests Mrs. August von Glahm, Sidney Gardiner, and Horace L. Haywood, while late comers at the Alba are T. J. Fleming, Mr. and Mrs. J. Hall and family, Mrs. John Koening, Mrs. H. Russell, and Mr. and Mrs. Leo Adler, all of Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Rich, who expected to return the latter part of the week to their home in Chicago, have decided to remain over for an additional ten days' stay at the Royal Poinciana.

Lent Finds Many Visitors at Aiken

AIKEN, S. C., Feb. 23.—An influx of Lenten visitors has been noted all week. The usual riding to hounds and polo have occupied the notables, with the cottage colony turning out for the dances at the Highland Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Manning Sage arrived this week and opened their cottage for the remainder of the season. Clarry Dolan of Philadelphia, who with Benjamin Crew has been hunting at Bainbridge, Ga., returned to Aiken this week.

Among others arriving were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lawrence, John R. K. Scott of Philadelphia, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Abbey, Mr. and Mrs. Seton Porter, Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Browning Jr., and Miss Mary Pearson.

WEDDINGS

No wedding or engagement announcement will be published in The Tribune unless it bears the signature, address, and telephone number of a parent of either the bride or bridegroom. Announcements should reach the society editor not later than the Wednesday morning preceding the Sunday they are to be published.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

way to the brink of that awful chasm. Those who have been there acknowledge that our own dear, much prized Niagara's classic nose is put rather out of joint in comparison with the size and splendor of Victoria falls. (Perhaps you will say that waterfalls have no noses to be so disjointed.)

While the rest of us make a great to-do when we start out to go just around the corner, Mr. and Mrs. Adams have the habit of slipping off on these long trips without a word to their friends and the first one knows of their doings is the receipt of a picture postcard depicting wild tribes in wilder settings. The Adamses are professionals in travel and know just what to take and what to leave at home, a great art. A little luggage and a long ticket make a fine combination. Most of us carry too much with us when we set forth on tours.

Air Trip to Florida.

Apropos of travel, two young men of this community have recently returned from an air trip to Florida. These forerunners of what will shortly become the prevailing mode of travel are Owen Jones and Lathrop Moss, both of Lake Forest. They are accomplished aviators, and each owns his own pair of wings. Owen Jones has had his aerial baptism, a baptism in sea water, when last year his plane took a dive into the ocean near Nassau, capital of the Bahamas. Although he was seriously injured in this accident, it has not weakened his love of flying nor diminished his intention to travel by air routes whenever possible.

While these two birdmen took about three days to make the trip via cloudland to Miami, it was because they preferred to break their flight and explore the intervening country. Their average speed was 126 miles an hour. As the maximum rate up to now is 300 miles, this was making pretty good time. Just think, 300 miles means five miles a minute! From Belmont avenue to Monroe street is four miles, a distance that the hurrying aviator could make in less than a minute. That's some speed!

Meanwhile, the miserable worms who still continue to crawl along the surface of the earth are wondering what security will be theirs when the air is thick with flyers. There are bound to be careless aviators who will let monkey wrenches fall, or their planes skid and drop to roofs or streets, unmindful of non-flyers. Shall we pedestrians of that era have to carry steel covered umbrellas? Or will armored tunnels be made for us in which to creep from place to place?

Be sure, gentle reader, to go to the polls next Wednesday to help accomplish the housecleaning started last spring by the voters of Chicago, which the autumn elections still further promoted, and which you can still further aid by rightly casting your ballot day after tomorrow. God knows, recent events have shown that Chicago's still in a sorry plight and will take a lot of rinsing out and many a sweeping before we can decently invite the world to come to see us in 1933. A party in a filthy house is an insult to those asked to be guests.

A Book from England.

There came to me from England a few days ago an exquisitely published book of the folio type in appearance. Its title in red letters on the cover page is "Git Le Cœur," beneath which in black letters are the words, "Poems by Lord Lymington." Further down one reads, "Editions Narcisses, 2 Rue Cardinale 2, Paris; MCMXXVIII." On very fine paper in beautiful type are set forth a remarkable collection of poems, stanzas that are sometimes curiously exalted and at others breathe a classic culture. The poet is Gerard, Lord Lymington, eldest son of the present earl of Portsmouth. The latter was best known to his Chicago friends, of whom he had a legion, as Noll Wallop. In the nineties of the last century he married Marguerite Walker, daughter of the late Samuel J. Walker, and aunt of the present Samuel J. Walker, Mrs. James A. Field, Mrs. John Paul Welling, Miss Carolyn Walker, Charles M. Walker, and Miss Edith Walker.

A wind of the morning blows through these exotic, Swinburnesque poems. Possibly they will be "caviar to the general," as it takes a reader well versed in classics, one familiar with French as well as English, one not unacquainted with older, more elaborate, more formal writing properly to appreciate and enjoy this undeniably remarkable work. It is like a rare, rather thrilling orchid, a something that has grown from a sturdy forest tree. The tree is America. The frail, vibrating blossom is the much more ancient civilization of old England, the England that bred Shakespeare, Browning, Swinburne, Burne-Jones; the England that is now quivering with what may be a final effort to renew life, genius, inspiration after Fate's most terrific attack, the world war.

The title, "Git Le Cœur," means, if I'm not mistaken, "Concerning the Heart," and all the poems deal with a young, eager soul's first contact with life described in metaphors. Poets have used such imagery throughout the ages as a garment for their emotions, as a splendid barge on which to float their dreams.

Here is the young poet's dedication "To M." It is entitled "The Unknown God."

"To you whose loveliness runs like a flame
In webs of beauty caught—
Dear barefoot gooseherd of our stars, who came
To me dew and wind wrought—

"Burning your incense at the hid high place,
Not knowing how you go,
Save that you travel on the lonely space,
Where dreams ebb to and fro—

"To you, pilgrim, who came in love to live
Where never heart had trod—
To you, these halt unsandal'd rhymes I give Who seek the unknown God."

Echoes of the World War.

Throughout the collection, like a breeze at nightfall, mournful, disturbing, are echoes of the world war; not in the themes, especially, but in a certain yearning seeking for the why and wherefore of a disturbing unrest. For one so youthful as the writer, a time among our young Americans of high hopes and happiness, there is a note of melancholy running through the writing of this offspring of a well known Chicago family. Here is one of the most definite and disturbing of the poems that illustrates what I've tried to describe. It is called "Burial Bitterness (C. G., Bois St. Quentin), 1918":

MISS MARGARET HENDRY.
[Fassel Photo.]
Mr. and Mrs. John Hendry of 3835 North Hamlin avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Margaret, to Lambert H. Keller of Long Grove, Ill.

"I laid you down and did not close your eyes;
In the long grass I put no mantle o'er you,
Nor hid your death from the unblenching skies—
They and the lark were all that came before you.

"At dark we made the careless earth your sheet;
One star in the black sconces of the night
Was fixed aloof from triumph of defeat,
Your vaulted chamber's lonely taper light.

"When you stood out across the midnight seas,
In bitterness I did not shed one tear;
Only I thought God slept with labored ease
And mumbled in His dreams with troubled fear."

Full of Disillusion.

Pretty good writing that, with something in it that follows the reader. After laying the dainty white book aside the thoughts return to it; the impulse to take it up again is irresistible. It is a palpitating document, a glowing stained glass window through which one peers into the very heart of youth today, a generation that looks at life in wide-eyed disillusionment. Perhaps Claude Bragdon is right when he says that the souls of this oncoming generation are from an older, riper, more sophisticated civilization than any from which we elders spring.

Lord Lymington married an American girl, a Miss Mary Post, of a well known Long Island family. They spend most of the year at their country place, Farleigh House, Farleigh Wallop, Basingstoke. Isn't that a thoroughly English name for an English estate? The earl and countess of Portsmouth are at present at Murchard Bishop, North Devonshire, another of the Portsmouth estates. The engagement of their second son, the Hon. Oliver Wallop, to Miss Jean Moore, a daughter of the Edward Moores, who once lived in Chicago and Lake Forest, was announced in the autumn.

Two Entertaining Parties.

Let no one say that this social season is dead and done with. The Paepcke and Aldis parties, given Feb. 16 and 17, were among the gayest, most delightful of the winter's entertainments. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Paepcke invited their friends to dinner at the Casino, followed by an amateur vaudeville of rare and delicious quality. On the program was a playlet by Arthur Meeker Jr., writ when he was 16 years old, a lively and humorous skit which kept the audience in roars of laughter from beginning to end. Among those who took part in the succession of sleeping car incidents which formed the theme were Miss Peggie Hambleton, Miss Marion McFadden, Miss Mary Meeker, Mrs. Paepcke, Miss Rue Winterbotham, Walter Frazier, and John R. Winterbotham.

Other features on the program were song and dance numbers, excellently rendered by some of these Thespians and Arthur Meeker Jr. and Philip Maher. Miss Rue Winterbotham made a great hit tootling on her water whistle and accompanying an inimitable orchestra led by John R. Winterbotham. Mrs. John R. Winterbotham's clog dance also was a work of art of a high quality. A Petrushka stunt by Mrs. Paepcke and Miss Hambleton was also highly delectable.

The Aldis party the following evening was given in the artistic and literary surroundings of the Cliff Dwellers' classic quarters. After a merry buffet supper, a delightful program of monologues was presented by Miss Helen Howe of Boston, generally conceded by the company there assembled as pushing Ruth Draper very hard in the latter's famous specialty. Both occasions show what our younger set can do in the way of brilliant entertaining. They set a high standard for such parties.

Flower Show Anticipated.

Events of increasing importance and beauty are the annual Garden and Flower Shows held at the Sherman hotel by the garden clubs of Illinois. The one for this season opens tomorrow night for a week's run. Mrs. Edith R. Fisher of the Glencoe Garden club is president of this Illinois Garden club. It includes some sixty-four garden clubs, all within a sixty mile radius of the city.

Amateur and professional gardeners will compete for the prizes that are offered in the many different classes of flowers, flower arrangements and garden and floral designs. There are eight classes in which the garden clubs will compete, among them being table decorations, window boxes, backyard adornment, toy gardens, flower pictures and conservation posters. As Chicago is said to be "the greatest commercial flower producing center in the world," the show has a far reaching importance. Flower lovers should attend it both for pleasure and profit.

MRS. VALLE C. FORD.
[Du Bois Photo.]
Mr. and Mrs. N. Hall Olson of 7016 Prairie avenue announce the marriage of their daughter, Esther Florence, to Valle C. Ford of 2536 East 73d street. Mr. and Mrs. Ford will reside at 7827 South Shore drive.

The list of patronesses for the show is long and imposing, including as it does eighteen well known society women, each of whom is an authority in the high and gentle art of garden design and flower growing.

A Sudden Passing.

The sudden death of Joseph Griswold Coleman nine days ago was a great shock to all who knew him. Up to the final moment of his more than usually long life he always had the mien of a man enjoying fine health and vigor. He was a great example of the value of temperate living. He never indulged in extremes of any kind, either of work or recreation. Steadily and firmly he walked through his eighty-one years of life with the same regular step that carried him daily down Michigan avenue to and from his office. He had an unusually equable disposition; he knew not moods; his greeting was always cheery, and his interest in his fellow men was unabated. Death would lose its terrors could we all pass through the door so quietly and swiftly. Robert Browning's matchless words come to mind in thinking on such a passing:

"With swift surprise,
Death flashed the truth eternal
In his eyes;
So this way he was blest."

"Bedtime Story" hour in the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Victor Martin

Is your health record as good as the Martin's?

"Every family could save a lot of sickness by using LIFEBUOY," says Mr. A. V. Martin "Its antiseptic lather removes germs"

"I LIKE Lifebuoy first because of what it is—a real health soap," says this enthusiastic father, Mr. A. V. Martin.

"We haven't had a day of sickness in our home for years. Then, too, if I get a cut or scratch, the first thing I do is see that it's washed out clean with Lifebuoy's antiseptic lather. My wife says that as a complexion soap, nothing compares with it—her clear skin is the best proof of that.

"As for the youngsters, I'm sure that both of them, playing with other playmates, touching toys, games, etc., are bound to pick up germs and they really need an antiseptic soap to help keep them safe.

"I think every family could save a lot of sickness by following our health rule—a sudsy washup with Lifebuoy right after work or play and always before eating."—Mr. A. Victor Martin, 3803 Gwynn Oak Avenue, Baltimore, Md.

A real health habit

Mr. Martin's letter is typical of thousands written us. Millions of parents know there's greater safety in Lifebuoy's germ-removing lather.

Your own family, too, needs health protection. Germs constantly get on hands from many things we must touch daily in common with others, such as books, money, telephones. But Lifebuoy's antiseptic lather removes germs. It guards against the 27 germ diseases that the famous Life Extension Institute and other health authorities tell us hands may spread.

Your family has to wash with some toilet soap anyway, so why not use Lifebuoy which gives added health protection—at no extra cost? You'll quickly learn to love Lifebuoy's pleasant extra-clean scent, which tells you Lifebuoy purifies, and which vanishes as you rinse. Adopt the Lifebuoy health habit today.

Mrs. E. E. Kretschmer is chairman of the annual breakfast which the Conference of Club Presidents is to give on Thursday in the Red Lacquer room of the Palmer House for the prize-winning artists in the exhibit of Chicago artists.

Mrs. Burnett D. Warner is presiding officer of the Lake View Woman's club, an organization of 500 members which meets every Tuesday at the Granada hotel.

Believes in Education of Adult Aliens

Polish Players Perform at Meeting.

By Roberta Nangle.

MEMBERS of the Lake View Woman's club have been congratulating themselves all week on the excellent program presented by their education department at last Tuesday's club meeting in the Granada hotel. That the program pleased them is not surprising, for it was, in a small way, a demonstration of what club women have done and are doing to Americanize the assorted races of the great melting pot.

Through the work of the federated clubs schools and settlements are maintained in Chicago through which potential citizens are equipped to take advantage of opportunities their home countries did not afford. The Lake View Woman's club, like its sister organizations, is interested in the education of the foreign born. At Tuesday's meeting, fifteen women from the foreign born class of the Haugen school were guests at luncheon. They told of their experiences since their arrival in this country and of the progress they are making in their citizenship classes.

In the afternoon a group of Polish players from the Northwestern settlement enacted a play showing what America has done to make life more attractive and more worth while for them. Patriotic music and songs by a chorus of settlement students concluded the program.

Education Department Important.

Since the club was founded in 1893, by women prominent in the public schools of the town of Lake View, its education department has naturally been one of its most important divisions. At present it functions under the chairmanship of Mrs. Frank W. Blakeley and sends delegates regularly to meetings of the American speech committee, the Vocational Training league, and to the joint committee on motion pictures. A branch of the department is the school decoration and scholarship committee, which has financed two scholarships through the Vocational league, and contributes funds to needy commercial course students at Lake View High school and to students unable to meet graduating expenses.

The other working units of the club include the social service, the art and literature, and the civics and economics departments. The social service group contributes to the School Children's Aid society, the Chicago Nursery and Half Orphan asylum, the Society for Prevention of Blindness, Beulah home, Marine hospital, United Charities, Glenwood Manual Training School for Boys, Aid for the Handicapped, and the Travelers' Aid society. It also provides suitcases filled with street clothing for girls at the Mary Bartelme home. On Friday this department will give a card party at Alice Baum's tearoom for the benefit of the Park Ridge School for Girls.

Luncheon to Raise Funds.

The civics and economics department is having a cafeteria luncheon on Tuesday to swell the club treasury. This department has committees which assist patients at the Elgin State, the Edward Hines, and the Oak Park Tuberculosis hospitals and provides taggers for legitimate tag days. The art and literature department is responsible for the cultural atmosphere of the club and furnishes programs on American art, English drama, ancient and modern music, and book reviews.

Mrs. Burnett D. Warner is the eighteenth president of the club and the other officers include Mrs. Homer C. Taylor and Mrs. David Bergstedt, first and second vice presidents; Mrs. Roe H. Cover, recording secretary; Mrs. Arthur E. Taylor, corresponding secretary; Mrs. J. M. Coen, treasurer, and Miss Grace Beyerlein, auditor.

DOWNTOWN CLUBS

At the new headquarters of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, 30 West Washington street, the following department meetings are scheduled for the coming week: The literature department at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning; the American home department at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning and the public welfare department at 2 o'clock that afternoon; the art department at 11 o'clock on Thursday morning; the Ninth district board of directors at 10:30 on Friday morning; the Ninth district education department at 1 o'clock that afternoon and the state education department at 2 o'clock the same afternoon.

The February business meeting of the Chicago Woman's club will be held in Curtiss hall next Wednesday at 2 o'clock. There will be a special business meeting of the club bulletin committee tomorrow at 1:30 o'clock, and at 2:30 o'clock the class in parliamentary law will meet. On Wednesday the drama class will present two plays, "The Dreamy Kid" and "Gaspard," at 11 o'clock in Curtiss hall. At 1 o'clock there will be meetings of the clippings committee and the constructive work for girls committee. The three French classes will meet at the usual hours that day. On Thursday the building committee will meet at 10 o'clock. At 11 o'clock the class in effective speaking will meet to give short speeches based on "The Support of Assertions." The group will meet at luncheon after the class. At 12:30 o'clock a luncheon will be given under the auspices of the mental hygiene committee, when "Some Illinois Problems in Psychiatry" will be discussed by Dr. Francis Gerty and Judge E. K. Jarecki. On Saturday the American speech committee will meet to discuss speech improvement for beginners.

The Woman's City club calendar for the week beginning tomorrow includes the parks and playgrounds committee self-service luncheon at 12:30 p. m. There will be an old-fashioned cabaret dinner dance at 7 p. m., under the auspices of the hospitality committee, with Mrs. Agnes Carroll Hayward as hostess. The Cook county affairs, public institutions, and jail committee will meet on Wednesday in the county building at Judge Jarecki's courtroom, followed by luncheon. The education committee will have as its speaker on Thursday at 4 o'clock Eston V. Tubbs of the board of education, who will discuss "The Curriculum in Our Public Schools." At 10 and 11 o'clock the French classes will be held, and at 10:30 a. m. the advanced class in parliamentary law and effective speaking.

The art and literature department of the Chicago Woman's Aid announces the regular monthly music recital under the direction of Mrs. Harry B. Kempner, chairman music committee, to be held tomorrow at 3 o'clock. The civic and philanthropy department will have a special feature program on Thursday at luncheon at 12:30 o'clock, when Dr. Morris Fishbein will speak on "Straining at Guinea Pigs and Swallowing Babies." The guests will include prominent physicians and the presidents of the important civic organizations.

The Council of Cook County Leagues of Women Voters will hold its regular monthly meeting tomorrow. The seven study groups will meet as usual at 10:30 at the league headquarters at 203 North Wabash avenue. CLUB ETHICS - - - -

By Maude Swalm Evans

THE prompt member walked into the committee room at exactly ten-thirty by her watch. The chairman was the only one before her.

"And Mrs. Hadley promised me she'd break one of her rules of conduct and get here on time," lamented the prompt member, "and here she isn't."

"And where's Mrs. Tine?" asked the chairman. "She wanted me to set the meeting half an hour ahead because she has an engagement at twelve. I knew it would result only in my getting here early and I told her that if we met promptly at ten-thirty we'd be through before twelve. And as you say, 'Here she isn't.'"

"Mrs. Pitty will probably come strolling in ten or fifteen minutes late and say she just had to do some shopping beforehand," guessed the prompt member. "And dear Miss Seeley, bless her heart, will be late because she had to take some flowers to a shut-in, or see a sick friend. She's so sweet about it that you can't hold it against her—being late, I mean."

"I waste so much time being prompt," said the chairman, "that every little while I decide to join the ranks of the 'always lates,' but somehow my early business training won't let me, and ten o'clock continues to mean ten o'clock, and two to mean two."

"I can understand one being late occasionally, no matter how carefully she plans not 'to be,'" reflected the prompt member. "Unexpected things have a way of happening, but the person who aims to be prompt won't let them happen often enough to be rated as an 'always late.'"

The door opened and the four missing members of the committee came into the room.

"Congratulate us; we're here on the dot," announced Mrs. Hadley.

The prompt member looked at her watch and then compared it with the clock on a nearby building. Her time was five minutes fast.

Question.

"Has the presiding officer the right to try to force her opinion of a question on the club?—B. B. L."

Reply.

On the contrary, it is her part to be neutral when she is presiding, and to endeavor to have all sides of a question presented.

This "footlight sheen" which so many women envy is not a secret formula confined to the stage. You can have the same lustre which commands such admiration.

Your WAVE Can Have This Glorious SHEEN

By Edna Wallace Hopper

THE first comment of my audiences is always about my hair. Men as well as women are attracted to it before they even see my skin, figure or any of the other signs of youth which make possible my career on the vaudeville stage as "The Eternal Flapper." This no longer surprises me. After all, why not admire a glowing, lustrous, wavy head of hair, as vibrant as youth itself?

At my "special matinees" women ask the secret of my glossy wave; they ask whether it is natural. There is no secret. Before setting my wave I apply the sheen with a comb. I call it my "Wave and Sheen" You can get a bottle at any toilet counter.

It is not a sticky, greasy substance. Wave and Sheen does not stiffen the hair. I could not tolerate that plastered effect because it hardens one's expression. The fascinating face is vivacious, but not hard. Wave and Sheen leaves your hair so soft as to be almost fluffy. The wave is caressingly flattering—soft in appearance and soft to the touch, but dancing with high lights. This is all one could wish.

Before buying a bottle I invite you to send for a trial tube and see what Wave and Sheen will do to enhance your beauty.

Paris Library Holds Annual Exhibition

By May Birkhead.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

(Copyright: 1929: By The Chicago Tribune.)

PARIS, Feb. 23.—The French poke fun at the Americans for calling certain achievements and possessions the "greatest in the world," but the tables are turned when it comes to the Bibliothèque Nationale, the colossal library in the rue de Richelieu in Paris, which is bigger than its nearest rival, the British museum in London, and when joined to the other three important Paris libraries, the Bibliothèque de l'Arsenal, the Bibliothèque Mazarine, and the Bibliothèque de Ste. Geneviève, no doubt makes Paris the center of the world's treasure house of books and manuscripts.

Last year Roland Marcel, the director of the Bibliothèque Nationale, visited several American cities, including Chicago, in order to keep abreast of the latest devices for library administration. Each year the Bibliothèque Nationale houses an interesting exhibition. For 1929 the evolution of book binding throughout ten centuries is being displayed. It is impossible to give more than a hint of the diversity and interest of this exhibition which illustrates the French sense of beauty and its genius for assimilation.

The Grolier Collection.

One of the most interesting groups is under the name of Jean Grolier, whose love of fine old volumes and perfect bindings is commemorated in the bibliophile Grolier club of New York. For many years he was a leading financier and held office as treasurer of France. His "ex libris" signified that his books belonged not only to himself but also to his friends. The gem of his collection of volumes is one bound in green morocco and printed by Asola, the successor of the celebrated Aldus, first given to Francis I. and given by him to Jean Grolier.

Historic interest is undoubtedly the keynote of this exhibition of extraordinary beauty and richness. Many of the volumes bear the arms of Catherine de Medicis, Diane de Poitiers, and Marie Antoinette, the ill fated queen who was executed during the French revolution in 1789 with her husband, Louis XVI.

The exhibition is completed by a remarkable series of old maps, one of which is a magnificent affair supposed to have been annotated by Christopher Columbus.

Financiers Interested.

At least two of the American delegates to the reparations commission, Owen D. Young and J. P. Morgan, who when in Paris indulge in their favorite hobby of collecting rare manuscripts, have taken time off from their reparations duties to see the exhibition.

Mr. Young's collection of William Makepeace Thackeray relics is supposed to be the largest in existence, while Mr. Morgan's library, housed in the annex to his residence in New York at Madison avenue and 38th street, is well known. His collection, which is one of the most remarkable private ones in the world of manuscripts and incunabula, is open to qualified research workers.

Among the distinguished Chicagoans here are Charles Dewey, financial adviser to Poland, and his wife and son, Charles Jr. The son is slightly ill here in hospital, while his parents are staying at the Hotel France et Choiseul. At the same hotel are Mr. and Mrs. John Baker, who are making an extended visit.

The Deweys are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Suzette de Marigny Dewey, to Frederick Moulton Alger Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Alger of Detroit. Mr. Alger is a grandson of Russell A. Alger, secretary for war in the McKinley cabinet. He was associated with Mr. Dewey in the latter's work in Poland.

Mr. and Mrs. Ford Rodman Carter have sailed home, after a short visit, during which they were extensively entertained.

Golf and Riding Sports at Pinehurst

PINEHURST, N. C., Feb. 23.—Golf and riding are the chief pastimes of the Lenten visitors. Miss Jessamine Goddard, one of the debutantes of the winter in New York, is the guest of the Misses Ann and Margaret Rose of Sewickly, Pa. Miss Mary Grace O'Brien of Detroit, who was in New York this winter, has returned to Pinehurst, bringing with her as her guest Miss Ann Elliott of Wilmington, Del. Mrs. Helen Phelps Stokes and Mr. and Mrs. Graham Phelps Stokes are here to remain the rest of the season. With them are Canon and Mrs. Anson Phelps Stokes of Washington.

Record Breaking Crowds at Miami

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 20.—[Special.]—The sun worshipers have invaded the Miami area. An army with banners, and more divisions of the army are arriving daily. If you are a resident or settled winter visitor you sigh as you open your morning mail, knowing you will find a request to select a nice, quiet hotel, preferably on the bathing beach, for Cousin Susan or Aunt Martha, and you know that hotels have been turning crowds away for some days.

The races are still on, the Sharkey-Stribling fight looms in the offing, and snow still blankets the north, so the crowds pour in, in numbers greater than the crowds of the famous days of 1925. Fortunately there are many more apartments and hotels than in those days, and it is possible to house all the visitors.

Many Chicagoans whose names you know are here, among them Mr. and Mrs. George Reinecke (Mabel Reinecke is how Chicago knows her). The Biglers entertained at luncheon at the Bath club last Tuesday for their guests. Others in the party were Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Mead of Chicago, who also have a home at Cocoanut Grove. Monday afternoon the Biglers gave a small tea at their place, "La Solana," and it proved to be a reunion of Chicagoans, for the Tiffany Blakes, Edward S. Beck, Mrs. Charles Deering and her guests, Walter Dill Scott of Evanston, Mrs. Chauncey McCormick and her guests, Mrs. Walter Borden, and Miss Betty Borden were all present.

On the same afternoon, over at Miami Beach, there was another gathering of Chicagoans. This time they were children, helping little Betty Swift, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Philip Swift, celebrate her first birthday. The party was held in the sunroom of the Pancoast hotel, where refreshments were dispensed, and later games were played on the beach.

The little guests, not all Chicagoans, were Phelps and Edward Swift, Barbara McLaughlin, Joyce Cummings, Danny Chapin, and Cason and Howard Calloway.

Clear Clogged Head!

Dangerous germs may enter through mouth and nose and lodge in delicate membranes. Keep nasal passage clear and antiseptically clean! At the first sign of clogged nostrils or stuffed head, apply a little Ely's Cream Balm in the nostrils. This well-known antiseptic cream has great penetrative powers; reaches every air passage of the head; clears out the germ-laden mucus; soothes and heals the inflamed membrane. Relieves any clogged condition in one minute. Get Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist today.

THE NEWER FROCKS

—make their awaited advent—and disclose certain definite trends and tendencies. They are supple, graceful, feminine, with new importance lent to classical lines and modern detail. Prints command the spotlight—bows are alluring tribute to the feminized styles—which are amply reinforced with pleating and plaiting, with ruching and ruffling, with lace, slender ornaments and draping. Here are presented interpretations of the coming fashions.

Beginning at the lowest left step, are reviewed:

A THE three-piece Tomboy Ensemble—with the slim, collarless coat of flat crepe, has a flared skirt with fitted yoke of similar material. The Blouse, of two hand-blocked scarfs, may be worn either tucked in or out. For Misses, in sizes 14 to 20 years. Priced at .... 29.74

B THE Companionate Print rightly originates in Paris. The Georgette, sleeveless frock, repeats the design of the short Flat Crepe Coat. Featured are three tiers of ruffles, a center bow and wide sash. For Misses, in sizes 14 to 20 years. Priced at .... 13.74

C EVERY feminizing influence is exerted in this frock of Flat Crepe, with Margot V inset at the neckline. Accordion to the three-tiered skirt. For pleated V's give a swinging dash Women, in sizes 36 to 44. Priced at 32.74

FIFTH FLOOR

D CHIFFON and Lace is an inimitable combination—and in this frock they are utilized to youthful advantage. A long threw of chiffon, a full bow, a skirt circular in effect, admit this frock to fashionable circles. For Women, in sizes 38 to 50. Priced at 22.74

FIFTH FLOOR

E CHARTREUSE is the striking color tone for this 2-piece Print Ensemble. The skirt—box and knife-pleated all around—matches the finger-tip jacket. The Blouse is of the solid shade. For Misses, in sizes 14 to 20 years. Priced at 19.74

F A CASCADE of points and bows gives an interesting lengthened back to this Crepe du Jour frock. The pinafore effect, the bow and lace themes are repeated at the wrists. Designed for Women, in sizes 36 to 44. Priced at .... 37.74

G FLUTING is the dominant motif of this Navy Georgette Frock, the circular jabot, the wide sash, and the semi-flare skirt are completed with the finely plaited ruffling. Designed for Women, in sizes 36 to 44. Priced at 16.74

Children Enjoy Sketching at Art Institute

Best Scholars in Lecture Course Given This Reward

By Eleanor Jewett.

We scarcely realize how much the Art institute means to the children of Chicago. Now and again a notice will come in from Dudley Crafts Watson, extension lecturer of the museum and the man who is responsible for most of the Art institute direction and inspiration which the children get. With that note a window is flung open and we see a little of how the children are being trained. This that follows is interesting in itself and for the things it suggests.

Feb. 2 saw the last Saturday afternoon of class sketching done by children of the public grade schools of Chicago under the instruction of Mr. Watson. About 250 children have been having a wonderful time on Saturday in Fullerton hall of the Art institute, where they were given board, and paper, and charcoal, to draw in a big, free way from a dashing pirate, a spangled dancer, or some other fascinating model. There were five weeks of this. And the five weeks were planned as a reward for those children who had been outstanding in their accomplishment during the regular autumn course of lecture demonstrations held by Mr. Dudley for talented students of the seventh and eighth grades.

Children Love It.

The brief play period, when the children drew from the models with the slightest of instruction but much wholesome and amusing comment, coming between the customary fall and spring lecture courses, has afforded a splendid training and encouragement for those who show particular ability in art, and the resulting work has left no doubt as to the value of the class. This course, like those it supplements, is conducted under the auspices of the James Nelson Raymond public school and children's lecture fund.

Those who have received three or more honorable mention awards for their work in the sketch class are: Dorothy Spicer, Flower Technical High; Claudia Eckert, Bryn Mawr; Miriam Damick, Van Vlissingen; Stella Danowicz, Hyde Park High; Herbert Pearson, Hawthorne; Mabel Tingle, Wadsworth; Earl Laun, Armstrong; Leroy Ratchek, Linne; Ruth Walter, Schurz; George Dulaney, Arnold; Ann Tholander, Le Moyne; Julian Leszcynski, Lafayette; Ruth Sylvan, Lake High; Eleanor Krometz, Van Vlissingen; Alonzo Chambliss, Douglas.

Other schools which have been well in the front in the number of honorable mentions received are Harper Junior High, Gage, La Salle, Fernwood, Dore, Parkman, Audubon, Hawthorne, Linne, Waters, Lowell and Barnard.

More About Etching Exhibit.

The etching exhibition in the print rooms of the Art institute clamors for more notice. The Chicago Society of Etchers has a tremendously fine show there. Pop Hart has three clever and virile prints. Lee Sturgis shows a group of his exquisitely finished etchings of the west. Ralph Fletcher Seymour shows two stunning prints, "Carmel Bay" and "Old Courtyard." Bertha E. Jaques has four delightful flower studies. Vernon Thomas Kirkbride shows us again several imaginative studies of children. Mrs. Kirkbride, by the way, is represented upstairs in the Chicago Artists exhibit by two intriguing paintings of children, one a child alone and the other a baby in its mother's arms.

Elizabeth Telling shows a quaint and prim little girl, "Patricia," and a not very successful portrait of R. L. E., who is, under the anonymous initials, Robert Lee Eskridge, the painter. Eugenie Glamen has an exquisite rendering of a sheep and lamb, "Maternity." Benson B. Moore tackled a hard job successfully in his print "Raccoons." Robert Lee Eskridge shows two crowded hours of Tahitian life in "Maupiti Village" and "Stone Fishing," this last is an impression of a similar conception in oils last fall in the American Paintings and Sculpture exhibition.

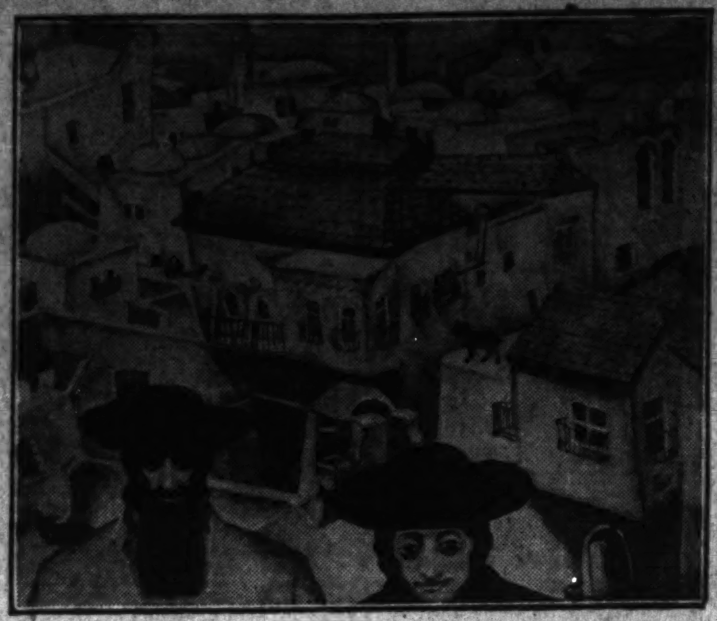
Tribune Tower Popular Subject.

The Tribune Tower, either in part or in whole, is found in four dissimilar prints, in Rose Crosman's superb "Tribune Doorway," in Charles W. Dahlgreen's majestic "Tribune Tower," in Charles A. Wilimovsky's "Towering Buildings," and in O. J. Schneider's "Michigan Avenue Looking North."

Among the other artists who help in the success of the exhibit are Chauncey F. Ryder, Allen Philbrick, John Skeaping, George Soper, Thomas E. Tallmadge, Diana Thorne, Henry Emerson Tuttle [who for the first time in my memory in this annual show gives us something besides his brilliant bird studies. His present "Root-bound" is fanciful, strong, and rugged; the "Afternoon" is very lovely], Charles H. Woodbury, Frances Foy, and Dirk Baksteen.



"JERUSALEM, THE OLD," by Todros Geller, from the Chicago Artists' exhibition current in the east wing galleries of the Art institute. Mr. Geller is a leader in the Jewish art movement in Chicago, and he is a potent factor in its development, both because of his own work as an artist and because of the decided impetus his teaching is giving to the art students under his direction. Mr. Geller is a modernist, but his feeling for the truth restrains his brush from taking liberties.

News of Artists.

A card from Joseph Birren gives the news that Mrs. Birren went to New Orleans for the Mardi Gras and that he himself is planning a trip to Europe, leaving the latter part of March.

The jury for the First International Photographic salon to be held under the auspices of the Chicago Camera club will consist of M. E. Baumberger, Milwaukee; J. H. McKay, Toronto, Canada, and O. C. Reiter, member of the Pittsburgh salon, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Among the members of the Chicago Camera club who had prints accepted by the Buffalo salon are Dr. F. W. Burcky, Clayton W. Mogg, Charles R. Phipp, John Skara, Max Thorek, Paul Wierum, and Frank E. Rich.

In Memory of Mr. McKee.

In memory of Mr. McKee, whose death shortly after Christmas was a great blow to his friends, whose names are legion, Walter S. Brewster is starting a fund to provide for a collection of prints which will be kept in the print department as part of the permanent collection of the Art institute. Mr. McKee built this department up from practically nothing during the seven years it was under his direction and care.

So that every one who was a friend of Mr. McKee may take part in this tribute to his memory, Mr. Brewster says no gift is too small. It is a glorious idea to commemorate a man who was universally liked. No one could meet Mr. McKee and go from him without a smile on his lips and a warmer feeling in his heart. He drew liking as easily and spontaneously as a child. As freely as a child gives, so did he give sincere liking and interest in return. Men of his character and qualities are too rare for his name to be permitted to slip from memory.

Lectures and Notes.

There will be one more Tuesday afternoon lecture given in Fullerton hall of the Art institute before the Scammon lectures, an annual series of the greatest interest, start March 5. The Fullerton hall lecture for this Tuesday is not in reality a lecture, but a concert, in charge of the Little Symphony Ensemble, George Dasch, conductor.

The Scammon lectures for this year will be six in number and deal with the topic "Lithography: an Art and a Process." The lectures will be given by Bolton Brown of Woodstock, one of the most distinguished lithographers of today and the teacher of George Bellows. The lectures will be given at 2:30 o'clock in Fullerton hall on the following dates: March 5, "The Chemistry and Physics of Lithography Put Into English"; March 7, "Why Lithography Is a Good Thing"; March 12, "What Senefelder Did"; March 14, "Golden Age of Lithography"; March 19, "My Ten Years in Lithography"; March 21, "Whistler, Pennell, Bellows—and the Future."

Last Tuesday there opened in the Children's museum on the first floor of the Art institute a children's oriental exhibit which is instructive and amusing, as well.

College data is usually of interest. A statement from Radcliffe gives us the information that the number of graduate students working in the fine arts at Radcliffe has increased 114 per cent in the last five years. The statment comes from Dean Bernice V. Brown. The growth of undergraduates concentrating in the same field of labor has increased 81 per cent during the same period. Fine arts stands fourth in order of choice among graduate students, with English, romance languages, and history preferred in that order ahead of it; among undergraduates the choice lies in English, romance languages, fine arts, with history in the fourth place.

Paul Bottenweiser of New York has loaned to the Chicago Art institute a most rare and valuable painting, "St. Jerome in a Landscape," by Vittore Carpaccio, a man who lived centuries ago [1478-1522], and who was a pupil of Gentile Bellini. He lived in Venice, where most of his better known works may still be seen on the walls of the churches which he was commissioned, in those far off days, to decorate with suitable mural conceptions. There are only four other Carpaccio paintings known to be in America.

Grand Duchess Marie of Russia, Touring Guest, Delights Eastern Society Folk

By Nancy Randolph.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—[Special.]—The Grand Duchess Marie of Russia is decidedly accomplishing her object. Having come to New York to accept several invitations offered her by various matrons, she has been jaunting all over the country as the guest of her delighted hosts. This week the duchess has been the guest in Philadelphia of the Joseph E. Wideners, who gave a large party in her honor at Elkins Park. She returned later to town with her host and hostess here, the Harry S. Blacks, who have been entertaining the duchess at the Plaza.

Inasmuch as there is only one fair excuse for social activity during Lent—and that charity—the musical that Mrs. Charles B. Alexander gave at her home, 4 West 58th street, on Monday, gathered much kudos for the schools for Negroes in South Carolina and Georgia. The proceeds are to be divided equally between the industrial school at Fort Valley, Ga., and the children's schools at Charleston, S. C. The artists were Princess Jacques de Broglie and Leslie Frick.

Among the subscribers were Mrs. Edgar Auchincloss, Mrs. George Zabriskie, Mrs. Francis McNeal Bacon, Mrs. A. Murray Young, Mrs. John Rutherford, Mrs. Lucius K. Wilmerding, Mrs. Robert Bacon, Mrs. Arnold Whitridge, Mrs. James Roosevelt, Mrs. M. Orme Wilson, Mrs. Marius De Brabant, Mrs. W. Russell Bowie, Mrs. Samuel Sloan, Mrs. Percy R. Pyne, Mrs. Morris Rutherford, Mrs. Joseph Clendenin, Mrs. Eliot Tuckerman, Mrs. Richard C. Colt, Mrs. Horatio Nelson Slater, Mrs. W. Gordon Crawford, Mrs. Alfred Seton, and Mrs. Henry C. De Rham.

Engagements Announced.

The debutantes are quite in the habit of choosing their partners late in what they might term "life." Lucie Lee Hall made her debut in 1927—when her parents, the Frank Griswold Halls, presented her at the inevitable Pierre gathering. Now Lucie has decided to join the ranks of the newlyweds, and her betrothal to Henry T. Skelding of New York and Pittsburgh was announced this week.

Lucie, however, has the excuse of study to account for her delay. After graduating from St. Mary's at Peekskill, she attended the Fontaine school at Cannes. After her debut she took up art and went abroad again to further her studies. Young Skelding is a Princeton '22 man, and a native of Pittsburgh. The wedding is to take place early in the spring and is to be followed by a honeymoon abroad.

Benefit for Wells.

Another Lenten charity affair is to take place on March 5, when a performance of "Follow Thu" will be given in aid of the Wells college building fund—though admittedly this is hardly a charitable matter.

At any rate, Mrs. Cleveland H. Dodge, one of our most energetic matrons, is an active member of the committee, among whose members are Mrs. William North Runk, Mrs. Arthur Brentano Jr., Mrs. Edward M. Cameron Jr., Mrs. Leslie Caspar Van Woert and Jane Williams.

Among the subscribers for the benefit performance are: Mrs. August Belmont, Mrs. Emmons Bryant, Mrs. Kenneth Clark, Mrs. David Comstock; Mrs. James S. Cushman, Mrs. Henry P. Davison, Mrs. Archibald Douglas, Mrs. Harold A. Hatch, Mrs. Arthur Curtiss James, Mrs. Robert S. Kilbourne, Mrs. Edward E. Loomis, Mrs. Dunlevy Milbank, Mrs. Seth M. Milliken, Mrs. William Fellowes Morgan, and Mrs. Swayne Phillips.

Newport is being guest to many visitors during Lent. The clemency of the weather has led cottagers to visit early and plan to be installed by the time spring is close. Maj. and Mrs. Lorillard Spencer, who have identified themselves closely with Newport civic as well as social activities, were there this week to inspect their villa, Chastellux, which they will occupy shortly.

Junior Leaguers Appear in Progra

By Mildred Jaklon.

The stationary quota of the smart populace, as well as those fashionables who, by now, have returned from their winter vacations, seems to be finding sufficient diversion, even if the current wail is "Everybody's away." At least, there probably will be enough Junior leaguers to make a large audience at the second of the programs being given by the recently evoked arts and interest committee to exploit the membership's talents for its own benefit. The literary program takes place tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the Drake hotel, followed by tea, and Mrs. McPherson Holt, Mrs. Preston Boyden, Mrs. Graham Aldis, and Mrs. James Herbert Mitchell are to appear.

The Chicago Smith College club has announced two lectures to be given on Tuesday morning and Thursday evening at the Fortnightly by President William Allan Neilson of the college. He is to be the house [illegible] Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Va[illegible] ing his three day stay.

The second of the Lenten [illegible] being sponsored for the Chapel [illegible] of the Cenacle is to be given by [illegible] George N. Shuster at the re[illegible] Mrs. Edward I. Cudahy on T[illegible] afternoon. Dr. Shuster's subject [illegible] to be "Catholic Problems in A[illegible] ica."

Several Chicagoans plan to [illegible] end of the week for the [illegible] Washington, D. C. Mrs. Pet[illegible] son is to be the guest of Mrs. [illegible] McCormick at her Washington [illegible] dence, and Mrs. Jacob Baur and [illegible] James W. Morrisson, ardent Re[illegible] ans, were both planning to go, at [illegible] reports.

Suburbanites and summer [illegible] owners in town are, many of them, [illegible] sisting their respective garden [illegible] this week with their representa[illegible] at the annual flower show taking [illegible] this week at the Hotel Sherman.

T. S. Tailer's Widow Is Seen at Asheville

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Feb. 23.—Among the visitors here this week was Mrs. Peter Goelet Gerry, whose home, the Frith, is one of the sights of Biltmore forest. Mrs. Gerry is to return to Washington shortly, where her social duties demand great attention. Another visitor here is Mrs. T. Suffern Tailer, widow of the noted sport enthusiast and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Brown of Baltimore. Others include Mr. and Mrs. Howard S. Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. St. John, Mr. and Mrs. James H. Chafey, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Wadsworth.

MY GREATEST THRILL

Write and tell us about the greatest thrill you ever experienced, and if we print your letter we'll pay you $1. Make your letters short and snappy. Address them to "Greatest Thrill" Editor, The Chicago Tribune.

In a Panic.

I was lonesome, one summer night, when my girl was out of town, so, having nothing better to do, I went to the circus in spite of storm clouds approaching.

The show had scarcely begun when the storm descended. Instantly lights went out, panic reigned, and it was every man for himself. I slid from my seat and crawled under the canvas. Anything, I thought, was better than to be caught in that frenzied mob. As I rose to my feet in the pitchy darkness, I slipped in the mud which was almost to my shoe-tops. I flung my hands out to steady myself and slapped the leather hide of some huge beast. The lightning disclosed the fact that I was in the midst of frightened, stamping elephants!

I swallowed my Adam's apple and somehow got out alive to a place of safety. B. W.

Gun Play.

We had just returned from our honeymoon and while I was reading a new magazine my husband was unpacking some of his things. He was a member of the police force and had left his gun unloaded in the bureau drawer.

Picking it up he playfully pointed it at me and said: "At last, fair lady, I have you in my power. Will you marry me or shall I shoot?"

"Go ahead and shoot," I laughingly replied.

He pulled the trigger and instinctively I ducked my head. A bullet shot out of the gun and tore a hole in the wall directly on a line where my head had been. We were both startled to think how a bit of fun had nearly turned into tragedy.

While we had been on our honeymoon my brother had used the gun and had put it away loaded. Needless to say, we never indulged in a bit of gun play like that again. J. M.

Falling Through Space.

Long before aviation was an accomplished fact I got my greatest flying thrill by sailing out from a third story window. I had been sitting on the sill, the window was open. The screen gave way and away I went. It was a wonderful thrill till I struck bottom.

I have had airplane rides, but they didn't give the thrill that that fall did. E. P.

A Terrace Garden Dinner To Wind Up a Winter Sunday at Chicago's Morrison Hotel

HARRY C. MOIR

TERRACE GARDEN MORRISON HOTEL

WHATEVER pastime you prefer on a frosty Sunday afternoon, it's a wise plan to save the best part of the program till the end—a merry dinner at the Terrace Garden, with fascinating dance music.

6 Delicious Courses From 5:30 to 9 P. M.

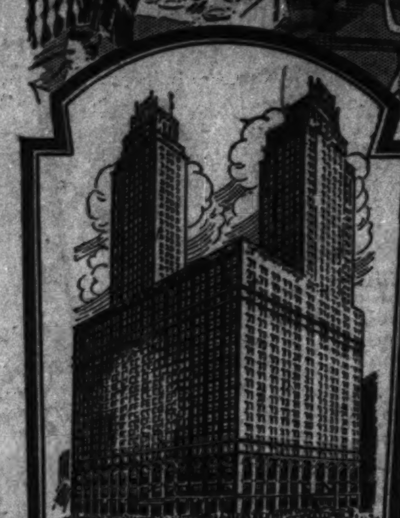
Entertaining friends here after a Sunday of outdoor pleasure is a favorite habit at all seasons of the year. From this time onward the Garden will present an even livelier spectacle, as tomorrow, Monday, marks the resumption of vaudeville programs at every meal.

Rates, $2.50 Up

Here, at Chicago's most central hotel location, revenues derived from subrentals pay all the ground rent, and the entire saving is passed on to the guests. Rooms are rented at $2.50 to $5 that would cost nearly double in any other leading hotel.

1944 Rooms with Bath

Every room is outside, with bath, running ice water, telephone, bed-head reading lamp, and Servidor. A housekeeper is assigned to each floor. Garage service is offered to all guests.



The New Morrison, when completed, will be the world's largest and tallest hotel—46 stories high, with 3,400 rooms.

VIRGINIA
HOT SPRINGS

The Vitamin and the Hot Springs

THE cardinal importance of certain foods was not accurately understood until that potent substance called the vitamin was identified. Old theories were then superseded—for example, the theory that stated that the perfect diet consisted of five ingredients and "freshness". Freshness, of course, was not enough.

Man does not yet know exactly why certain springs are a veritable boon to health, although much more is known about them now than formerly; but innumerable proofs of their efficacy—efficacy that in certain cases can be taken for granted—establish the fact.

Hundreds of guests who come to the beautiful Virginia hills and The Homestead only for golf, or riding, or dancing, or rest, or a delightful social life, carry home news of what they have seen the Springs do for others. And these "others" who have utilized the unexampled facilities for hydro-therapeutic treatments at The Homestead, take home more than news. They take home a vigor and revived enthusiasm they came to find.

A very interesting Booklet will be forwarded to you upon request.

SHAWNEE TRIBE GIVES NEW TEPEE THE ONCEOVER

Find Finds It Suits Need of Every Member.

Members of the Shawnee Country club inspected their newly completed clubhouse for the first time Friday night when the building was opened formally with a reception and tour in the afternoon and an evening dance.

The club was formed two years ago with the merging of the Evanston Country club and the old Ouilmette Country club, and plans were made for the new building on the Ouilmette site, at 311 Michigan avenue, Wilmette.

At that time it was decided that the clubhouse should be planned to suit the recreational activities of the whole family and Friday's tour showed how well the finished product lived up to the specifications.

Built in Style of Manor House.

The structure was designed by D. H. Burnham and company, whose firm members are also members of the club, and was built by J. B. French and company. Mr. French, too, is a member. The building is in the style of an old English manor house.

John A. Colby & Sons, who did the interior decoration, are also represented with club members. The English period style was carried out to the extent of reproductions of old needlepoint designs, heavily carved old pieces, and hand blocked curtains for the dining room in needlepoint design.

The center of interest for members of all ages is the huge swimming pool, 70 feet long and 25 feet wide, with its alcove for sun bathing and its window nook where afternoon tea or dinner may be served. At one side is a wading pool and sand pile for the very young children partitioned off from the main poolroom.

There is no ordinary gymnasium. It was decided instead to have two handball courts and bowling alleys.

Library, Lounge, and Ballroom.

Several cardrooms, a billiard room, library, large lounge, and ballroom, decorated with carved wood trusses and leading out into an open air terrace for summer dancing, are the chief recreation centers. From the entrance lobby a carved wood Elizabethan stairway leads up to the sec-

We are glad to apprise our readers that the bunch of keys belonging to Mr. Stevenson of 819 Clinton place, Evanston, has been recovered and is again in his possession. Mr. Stevenson was under the impression he had mislaid them, along with his tuxedo trousers, in the vicinity of the Evanston hospital and accordingly had so announced. The notice concluded: "Keep money. Please return trousers and keys." The many willing workers who interested themselves in the case will be gratified to learn that Mrs. Stevenson informed us at press time she had found the keys and trousers in a clothes closet. She asks that folks quit calling University 4531.

GROUND BROKEN FOR $1,500,000 HIBBARD HIGH

New School to Have Seats for 2,500 Pupils.

Ground was broken at noon Wednesday for the new $1,500,000 Hibbard Junior High school, to be erected at Carmen, Kimball and Christiana avenues. The exercises were attended by more than 1,200 persons, including school officials, representatives of various civic organizations, teachers, students and residents of the district. The new school is expected to be completed in time for the opening of the new semester next fall.

The ceremony was held at 12:30 o'clock and was preceded by a luncheon at the present Hibbard school, 3244 Ainslie street, for the honor guests invited by Thomas C. M. Jamieson, principal of the institution. School officials present included: Joseph F. Gonnelly, district superintendent in charge of junior high schools; Benjamin F. Buck, assistant superintendent of schools; James T. Gaffney, principal of the Roosevelt High school, and J. Leslie O'Brien, principal of the Hibbard elementary school.

Civic Leaders Present.

Other guests included: Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Beck, who were instrumental in the movement for the new school building; Robert Hecht, president of the Albany Park Kiwanis club; Dr. Joseph C. Ross, former president of the Albany Park chamber of commerce; Samuel Matson, commissioner of the Albany Park district; Erick Linn, ward committeeman; Mrs. Dan Pagenta, president of the Hibbard Junior High school Parent-Teacher association; Mrs. Joseph Mann, secretary of the association; Mrs. H. S. Landfield, president of the Hibbard Elementary school Parent-Teacher association; Arthur Johnson, editor of the Albany Park Times, and Attorney Sheldon Haddock.

Following the luncheon the school's drum and bugle corps of 65 pieces, dressed in blue and gold capes, led the parade to the new school site, where short talks were given by the representatives of the school administration.

Seats for 2,500 Pupils.

The new school, designed by Paul Gerhardt, architect for the board of education, will accommodate 2,500 students and will include many of the

EVANSTON BOYS CALL ON GIRLS TO HELP SHOW

Evanston Hi-Y members will enlist the aid of more girls for the first time this year when they put on their annual Hi-Y minstrel show next Saturday night at the Evanston Country club.

Ten specialty numbers, including the girls' chorus, a banjo quartet, and a double vocal quartet, will be featured on the program. Harry Sweeting is coaching the performance.

High school girls taking part in the show include Misses Betty Herb, Peggy McLaren, Hannah Lou Bird, Pauline Oelkins, Anne Wineburg, Sylvia Larson, Martha Chapman, Betty Bacone, Marjorie Loehte, Ruth Luther, Ginnie Michand, Dorothy Martin, Betty Barrows, Betty Fogarty, and Jean Faust.

Dave Coolidge, Jack Crook, Jack Foley, and Bob Cunningham will be end men, and Merril Coker, Frederick West, Cliff Fogarty, and Kimball Johnson compose the banjo quartet. Thirty-two other boys are taking part.

Edgewater Women Hold Scotch Program Tuesday

The Women's league of the Edgewater Presbyterian church will hold a Scotch program Tuesday evening in the community house, Kenmore and Bryn Mawr avenues. The Rev. Walter H. MacPherson of Joliet, Ill., will speak on the "Land of Robert Burns," in commemoration of the 170th anniversary of the poet's birth. The speaker will appear in Scotch costume. The program will also include "Southern Melodies," by Miss Kathleen Ryan and Miss Bernice Bell, and several selections by George Lane, soloist.

Rogers Park Social Club to Hold Dance Tonight

Members of the Rogers Park Social club will hold a novelty dance this evening in the grand ballroom of the Sheridan Beach hotel, 7301 Sheridan road. Miss Ida Frankel, 6800 Sheridan road, is chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements for the affair. Gus Novy and his orchestra will furnish the music for the dance.

WELLS ALUMNAE SPONSOR BOOK LECTURE SERIES

The Wells College Club of Evanston is sponsoring a series of six lectures on books and reading by Mrs. Anthony French Merrill on Wednesday mornings throughout the Lenten season in the Country Club of Evanston.

Mrs. Merrill is widely known in Evanston. This is her eighth season as a lecturer for the Wells College club. Mrs. John C. Husted, president last year of the club, is in charge of arrangements for the series. Proceeds will go into the general fund of Wells college, in Aurora, N. Y.

Tickets are being offered to patrons of former series, and if there are others available they will be offered to the general public.

Officers elected by the Wells club recently include: Mrs. Charles Bunnell, president; Miss Alice Kirby, vice president; Mrs. William Pooley, secretary and treasurer. There are about fifty alumnæ of Wells college now residing in Evanston.

Poet to Speak Thursday at Evanston Drama Club

John V. A. Weaver, author of poems "In American" will speak next Thursday afternoon before members of the Evanston Drama club at the Evanston Woman's club. Following Mr. Weaver's lecture tea will be served, with members of the Karl Way players of the New Evanston theater as special guests.

Gale P.-T. Group to Hold Bridge Party Thursday

The Gale school Parent-Teacher association will sponsor a bridge party Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. L. Mohr, 7727 North Marshfield avenue. Mrs. W. J. Hunt, 7704 Eastlake terrace, chairman of the ways and means committee, is in charge.

Observes 85th Birthday.

Mrs. Mina Ettlinger of the Park Lane hotel, Sheridan road and Surf street, celebrated her eighty-fifth birthday Wednesday with a party given for her nine children and several grandchildren, in the Congress hotel.

COUNTY JAIL SITE IS PROPOSED FOR SCHOOL OFFICES

Business Men Oppose Use for U. S. Prison.

Removal of the old county jail from the southwest corner of Illinois and Dearborn streets will be discussed by representatives of loop and north side civic organizations at a meeting to be held Wednesday noon, March 6, in the Virginia hotel, Rush and Ohio streets.

Members of business and improvement associations, Kiwanis and Lions clubs, women's clubs and other organizations will take the question under consideration, upon the invitation of the North Central association, sponsors of the meeting. Frederick M. Bowes, loop real estate dealer, and a vice president of the North Central association, will be chairman of the meeting.

Oppose Use as Federal Jail.

Prompted by a recent report that the federal government had plans under way to utilize the building, recently vacated by the city, for their prison purposes, the business men of the north central district urge that a united effort on the part of all north side business men and residents be made to halt the proposed plan and to recommend the use of the building for purposes other than a prison. The North Central association urges that the building be removed and the site selected as the location of the proposed new administration building of the board of education.

As a preliminary step to the meeting the association has placed the recommendation before the board of education. Such a plan would improve the near north side to a great degree, members of the association declare, and would bring the district a step nearer its future inclusion as a part of the downtown business section. The north boundary of the loop district is destined to move to Chicago avenue, business men point out.

Judge Hebel to Speak.

As the principal speaker for the movement to abolish the remnants of the former jail will be Judge Oscar Hebel of the Superior court and a resident of the district for many years. Organizations invited to attend the meeting have been requested by the North Central association to instruct their delegates to present the senti-

LET'S SEE LINDY'S TROPHIES, BOYS OF CHICAGO ASK

Want Them Brought Here for World's Fair.

Bring Lindy's trophies and the Spirit of St. Louis to the World's Fair in 1933!

That is the rallying cry of 1,600 youthful members of the Chicago's Boys' club No. 2 at 1725 Orchard street, and the lads by the hundreds are signing petitions addressed to President Rufus C. Dawes of the World's Fair, asking that the exposition officials do everything in their power to bring the famous aviator's flying machine and his numerous medals and trophies here for exhibition.

"I never saw anything like the way the boys are taking hold of this scheme," said Director Arthur Snyder of the club. "They are crazy with enthusiasm over the possibilities of the Spirit of St. Louis being brought here, along with the Lindbergh trophies. They are not only signing the petitions here in the club, but are also taking them to their school friends for other signatures, and in a few days they will have thousands of names to present to the World's Fair people."

Expansion Program.

The Chicago Boys' club, under the direction of General Superintendent John H. Witter and President George A. Hughes, is launching a program of expansion which will make it the greatest organization of its kind in the world. Backed by a board of leading business and professional men, it plans to combat crime and give the underprivileged boy a chance at normal, happy living by raising five million dollars for erecting and endowing twenty-five club buildings throughout the congested sections of Chicago. The program calls for the building of five clubs a year for five years.

Without making much noise, the Chicago Boys' club has been developing throughout the years as one of the important institutions of the city for the care of neglected boyhood. In 1901 John F. Atkinson opened the first Chicago Boys' club in a rented second story room near Van Buren and State streets.

Well Equipped Building.

The north side club was opened in 1910, and now possesses a splendidly equipped building and swimming pool, with all facilities for recreation, sports, industrial classes, study of art and music, and community center activities.

The south side club was started in 1916 and now has a membership of 750 boys, with buildings at 6405 South Hermitage avenue.

The west side club started in 1918 at 2801 South Ridgeway avenue and has an up to date building and a membership of 800 boys.

A permanent camp site of 110 acres and fine buildings is owned at Winona Lake, Ind., where 1,800 boys each year have delightful outings. Mr. Witter has been superintendent since 1912.

Boys are admitted to membership without regard to race or creed, and every boy can join. If he can't pay the small membership dues, he is given an opportunity to "work his way through" the club like older boys do through college. The 25 new clubs are expected eventually to take care of at least 50,000 underprivileged boys.

JOHN POWERS AGAIN TO HEAD N. TOWN GROUP

John Powers, 6339 North Western avenue, has been reëlected president of the North Town Business and Improvement association, it is announced. Other new officers are: Vice president, Herman Braun; second vice president, Fred Nelson; secretary, George Lindberg; and treasurer, Therese Garmithy.

The association is urging a new police station for the district and has named a committee headed by Henry B. Rance to interview Police Commissioner Russell. Other members of the committee are John Pickham, Arthur Arneman, Curtis F. Mellin, and Ald. A. K. Mose, [50th].

The association which has been advocating condemnation of a section of Rosehill cemetery for playground purposes, has decided to table the question until after the aldermanic elections, Feb. 26. The next meeting of the association will be held Feb. 18.

Asks Clubs to Join Fight on Ashland Assessments

The North End Improvement association of the 45th ward has invited other improvement organizations in the Ashland avenue district to join in a fight against high assessments on the widening of Ashland avenue, Clarence Niesen, president, reports.

VOICE of the NORTH SIDE

LAUDS ROGER PARK GROUPS.

Chicago, Feb. 21.—May I express my appreciation, through your neighborhood section, of the excellent community work being accomplished by various civic associations and individuals in the Rogers Park district? These groups have shown a constant willingness to do all in their power to make Rogers Park one of the most pleasant sections of the city in which to live, and although their efforts have not always been as successful as they desired or as we hoped they might be, the spirit with which they undertake the tasks is worthy of the highest praise.

Now, I understand the various organizations are combining their efforts and interests to further the promotion of improvements. Such a movement is also worthy of commendation. When a large group of prominent men and women coöperate in such a manner the success of their endeavor is practically assured.

Problems which they no doubt will attempt to solve are: Need for more small parks, improvement of street car service, additional police protection, improvement of crowded conditions in schools and street repair work. SUPPORTER.

WINNETKA'S VOTE TURNOUT WINS FLAG

By getting 90.8 per cent of its voters to the polls for the November election Winnetka won for the second time a flag presented by Fred A. De Peyster, president of the village's chapter of the Izaak Walton league. Kenilworth had won twice in succession, and the flag will become the permanent property of the north shore town that wins it three times. The picture shows the presentation ceremony at New Trier High school Monday. Left to right: Mrs. Edwin Hedrick, Mrs. Gilbert Kelly and Mrs. E. D. Snydacker, representing Kenilworth; Mr. De Peyster, Mrs. A. Montague Ferry, president of the Winnetka League of Women Voters; Mrs. John N. Vander Vries, Mrs. De Peyster, John N. most modern features in school equipment. The building will face on Kimball avenue between Carmen and Christiana avenues. Carmen avenue will be straightened to make room for the building. The center unit will be four floors high, while each of the wings will be three floors.

The offices and library will be located near the main entrance on the first floor. A unique feature will be an entry to the library from the street. In the south wing will be the swimming pool, locker rooms, individual shower and dressing rooms and a hair drying room, while in the north wing will be the assembly hall and boiler room. A social room, class rooms and the boys' work shops complete the ground floor plan.

Two Gymnasiums.

On the second floor will be located more class rooms and the girls' shop rooms, including cooking and sewing rooms. The south wing will contain two gymnasiums, one for girls, the other for boys, and the mechanical drawing rooms, while on the third floor of the south wing will be a corrective gymnasium. In the north wing of the third floor will be the cafeteria and music rooms. Art and science rooms will be located in the main unit on this floor. Additional class rooms will be available in the main unit on the fourth floor.

The new junior high school will receive students from eight elementary schools in the district bounded by Bryn Mawr avenue on the north, Crawford avenue on the west, Montrose avenue on the south, and Western avenue on the east. A staff of 90 teachers will be employed in the new school. The old building, which has housed both the elementary and junior high students, will be used exclusively as the elementary school. With the 20 portables at the rear of the building it has a capacity of 1,000 students.

Delta Zeta Mothers' Club Sponsors Benefit Concert

The Mothers' club of Delta Zeta sorority at Northwestern is sponsoring a benefit recital at the sorority house on the university campus at 2:15 o'clock next Thursday. BIBLE CLASS SEEKS 500 MEMBERSHIP AS TRIBUTE TO PASTOR

THE REV. H. W. VIRGIN.

As a tribute to the Rev. Herbert Whiting Virgin, the men's Bible class of North Shore Baptist church, Berwyn and Lakewood avenues, has been holding a membership drive as its final act on the eve of Dr. Virgin's departure for Jerusalem next Thursday.

The goal, expected to be reached today, is 500 members, which is twice the recent average Sunday attendance of 250 members. The class is divided into two divisions under the leadership of George C. Reid and S. M. Seator, chairman of the class. Under the direction of the division leaders are four majors and forty captains.

"Men at Work for Men in the Spirit of Christian Brotherhood" is the platform of the Bible class which has been meeting every Sunday morning with Dr. Virgin, pastor of the church, as teacher. An orchestra of sixteen pieces, under the direction of Miss Ruth Franzen, meets with the class.

Other officers are: President, C. J. Howell; vice president, J. E. Cookson; treasurer, H. M. McPheeters; secretary, A. V. Mooney, and assistant secretaries, Ralph Bookman and George Schultz.

Answers

Following are the answers to quotations previously published:

Quotation—Father, I cannot tell a lie. I did it with my little hatchet.

Answer—Of all the biographers of George Washington [1732-1799], the Rev. Mason L. [Parson] Weems is the only one who credits Washington with the above saying. In Weems' "Life of Washington" [1806] the cherry tree story familiar to all Americans is said to have come from an aged lady who was a cousin of George and as a girl spent much of her time in the family.

"When George," she said, "was about six years old, he was made the wealthy master of a hatchet, of which like most little boys, he was immoderately fond, and was constantly going about chopping everything that came in his way. One day, in the garden, where he often amused himself hacking his mother's pea sticks, he unluckily tried the edge of his hatchet on the body of a beautiful young English cherry tree, which he barked so terribly, that I don't believe the tree ever got the better of it. The next morning the old gentleman, finding out what had befallen his tree, which, by the by, was a great favorite, came into the house; and with much warmth asked for the mischievous author, declaring at the same time, that he would not have taken five guineas for his tree. Nobody could tell him anything about it. Presently George and his hatchet made their appearance.

"'George,' said his father, 'do you know who killed that beautiful little cherry tree yonder in the garden?' This was a tough question; and George staggered under it for a moment, but quickly recovered himself, and looking at his father, with the sweet face of youth brightened with the inexpressible charm of all-conquering truth, he bravely cried out:

"'I can't tell a lie, pa; you know I can't tell a lie. I did cut it with my little hatchet.'

"'Run to my arms, you dearest boy,' cried his father in transports, 'run to my arms; glad am I, George, that you killed my tree; for you have paid me for it a thousand fold. Such an act of heroism in my son is more worth than a thousand trees, though blossomed with silver, and their fruits of purest gold.'"—Rose Keller, 466 Hawthorne, Glen Ellyn, Ill.

[The foregoing is an exact quotation from Parson Weems, who started the famous story on its way. But for many years the good parson's narration of this and similar Washington anecdotes has been regarded with great skepticism, as the answer given below testifies.]

Answer—This cannot tell a lie incident is a brazen piece of fiction made up by the Rev. Mason L. Weems. Weems was a myth maker. An example is the history which he published of himself. He may have preached once to a congregation in which Washington sat. Later he described himself as rector of Mount Vernon parish, when no such parish ever existed. There was a Truro parish of which the church was called Pohick or Mount Vernon church. Washington was a vestryman of this church until 1785 when he moved his membership to Alexandria church. The Rev. Lee Massey was the pastor of both churches.

Weems in his biography had no trouble with Washington's public life but was thrown on his own resources for facts concerning the boyhood days. Very little is known of Washington's boyhood. The stories told by Weems are hopelessly and ridiculously false, according to biographers and historians. Every word and line is the offspring of a period fifty years later than Washington's childhood.—G. N. Wells, 3607 Elmwood avenue, Berwyn, Ill.

Quotation—To be prepared for war is one of the most effectual means of preserving peace.

Answer—This phrase which still holds good today was said by President Washington in his first annual address to both houses of congress. The address was delivered on Jan. 8, 1790. After referring to the recent adoption of the constitution by North Carolina Washington went on:

"Among the many interesting objects which will engage your attention, that of providing for the common defense will merit particular regard. To be prepared for war is one of the most effectual means of preserving peace.

"A free people ought not only to be armed, but disciplined, to which end a uniform and a well digested plan is requisite; and their safety and interest require, that they should promote such manufactories as tend to render them independent of others for essential, particularly for military, supplies."—V. Wlodek, 2230 South 56th avenue, Cicero, Ill.

NOTE—After presiding at the federal convention which framed the constitution Washington was elected the first President in 1789 and re-elected in 1793. He refused a third term and retired to Mount Vernon, where he died on Dec. 14, 1799.

Quotation—First in war, first in peace, first in the hearts of his countrymen.

Answer—On Dec. 26, 1799, twelve days after Washington's death, Col. Henry Lee of Virginia arose before both houses of congress and delivered the funeral oration which contains these memorable words. The phrase also appears in the resolutions on Washington's death written by Col. Lee and presented in the house by John Marshall. According to some authorities the term "fellow citizens" was used by Lee instead of "fellow countrymen."

The paragraph in which the words occur was as follows: "First in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen, he was second to none in the humble and endearing scenes of private life. Pious, just, humane, temperate and sincere; uniform, dignified and commanding, his example was as edifying to all around him as were the effects of that example lasting."

Col. Lee, the father of Robert E. Lee, famous confederate general, was one of the youngest and most brilliant leaders of patriot troops in the Revolutionary war. He was commander of a squadron of light cavalry known as "Lee's Legion." His dashing exploits in scouting and harrying the British won him the nickname of "Lighthorse Harry" and a gold medal from congress.

After Cornwallis' surrender at Yorktown, Lee retired from the army. In 1789 he was elected to the Virginia legislature and two years later became governor. In 1794 Washington sent him to suppress the whisky insurrection in Pennsylvania. He was a member of congress when Washington died and was chosen to deliver the funeral oration.

Lee again retired to private life in 1801. In the war of 1812 he was commissioned a major general, but was prevented from taking the field by a wound suffered in a Baltimore political riot. He died in 1818.—Mrs. Dora Reese, Grayville, Ill.

WEEKLY FORUMS DISCUSS NEEDS OF NEAR N. SIDE

Personality Is Next Topic for Community Council.

"What Is Personality" is to be the topic of discussion at 8 o'clock tomorrow night at the Lower North community council, 1120 North Clark street. These forums are held every Monday night from November to May.

The lower north community council, which keeps in touch with the neighborhood life, discovering needs of persons and organizations in the community, has just completed its tenth year. It serves as a clearing house for local problems, and is an agency for informing the community about itself. It is nonsectarian, nonpolitical and not allied with any organization.

Other Groups Use Quarters.

Every Monday the lower north child guidance center uses the council's rooms for its headquarters. This clinic is under the supervision of the Institute for Juvenile research and the University of Chicago. Every Wednesday afternoon there is a class for the instruction of mothers, which is under the supervision of the institute and the United Charities.

Meetings are held each month by the civic, educational, health, religious and social workers in the district. Luncheon is served and talks are given by specialists in various branches of social service and heads of local organizations. Discussions of problems follow.

Miss Frieda Foltz is executive secretary of the council. On the executive committee are Frederick T. West, chairman; Mrs. Robert P. Bates, vice chairman; Mrs. Arthur L. Farwell, vice chairman; Vincent E. Ferrara, treasurer; Miss Margaret Furness, recording secretary; Howard B. Bryant, James Curtiss, Mrs. James B. Herrick, Alfred T. Martin, Mrs. Bronson Peck, Albert Schroder, William Swannell, and James B. Waller.

Members of Advisory Board.

The advisory board consists of Emmons J. Alden, district superintendent of the bureau of streets; Dr. Norman B. Barr, Olivet institute; William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools; Dr. Duncan H. Browne, St. James Episcopal church; Dr. Irving S. Cutter, dean of Northwestern university medical school; H. A. Dalzell, Fourth Presbyterian church; Dr. Wilbur Johnson, M. T. S. Sedgwick street dispensary; Frederick J. Lane, assistant superintendent of schools; Miss Evelyn Dow Little, Eli Bates house; Miss Florence Nesbitt, United Charities; H. C. Newland, Y. M. C. A., and Dr. Robert E. Park, University of Chicago.

The council is indorsed by John V. Farwell, William O. Goodman, Miss Mary E. McDowell, Frederic F. Norcross, Wilfred S. Reynolds, Edward L. Ryerson Jr., and Col. Albert A. Sprague.

SHARPLY DIVIDE TWO FUNCTIONS IN NEW CHURCH

Wilmette Auditorium to Be for Worship Only.

BY VIRGINIA SCHMITZ.

A church that shall be a place for worship only and a neighborhood house that shall fill the needs of the whole community is the ideal set by members of the Wilmette parish Methodist Episcopal church in the planning and construction of their new $400,000 building, now under way.

THE REV. HORACE G. SMITH

Under their comparatively new pastor, the Rev. Dr. Horace G. Smith, who has achieved the reputation of being a building minister, plans were formulated in the spring of 1927. The first section, including the neighborhood building, is expected to be completed by the beginning of the summer. The church proper will not be ready for a year and a half.

Fifty-five years ago the congregation met in a frame structure valued at $600. There were twenty-three members of the church then, but the Sunday school with 90 enrolled pointed to the expansion of the future. Two of the charter members are still living and active in church work, Mrs. S. M. Dingee, whose brother-in-law once owned the site, and Mrs. William Panuska.

In 1908 a brick building was constructed at a cost of $35,000, which is still occupied and will not be torn down until the second unit is built.

Modified Gothic Architecture.

The new building will be of Lannon stone construction with Indiana limestone trim. The style of architecture is modified Gothic with the attention focused on the tower and cloister which connects the two units at the front. The church proper will stretch back along Lake avenue, and the neighborhood house will face Wilmette avenue. Granger & Bollenbacher are the architects.

"Everything," said Dr. Smith, "has been planned and designed to make the church a worshipful place, a room that in its atmosphere and appearance, its arrangement of light, shade and color is essentially a place in which to worship. And we do not intend to lessen this by holding other than religious services in it."

A large reception hall, or narthex, opens into the church auditorium where greetings and friendly talk may be exchanged before and after services. Plans have also been made for a small chapel to be open at all hours as a wayside shrine. This room will also be used for the men's Bible class, for small weddings and memorial services.

In the neighborhood unit numerous small rooms are provided for Sunday school classes and special groups. There also will be a neighborhood hall capable of seating 600 persons and equipped with a kitchen and a stage. Boy Scout and Girl Scout rooms will be provided with kitchens and a large but intimate club room is planned for the use of the younger married group.

Has Nearly 700 Members.

That the church has needed a new building has been evident for some time. In 1922 two residences were purchased for the use of the overflow from the Sunday school, which has an enrollment of more than five hundred. The church itself has a membership of close to seven hundred.

Dr. Smith, who hastened the work of building, has to his credit the neighborhood building of the North Shore Methodist church in Glencoe under his pastorate, as well as that of the Hemenway church in Evanston. He was formerly district superintendent of the Chicago western district.

T. C. Moulding is chairman of the general building and plans committee, and Raymond G. Kimbell, president of the Kimbell Trust and Savings bank of Chicago, is chairman of the finance committee.

The women's auxiliary committee includes Mrs. S. H. Darst, Mrs. J. T. Edwards, Mrs. Lee English, Mrs. J. B. Harper, Mrs. F. P. Proctor, Mrs. L. B. Springer, and Mrs. Carl Widney.

Among those prominent in the campaign are J. F. McGuire and A. N. Page. H. E. Poronto, who was active in the work, died recently before he could see the building go up.

Religious educational work has always been stressed in the Wilmette church and, with the increased facilities, Dr. Smith expects it to expand further.

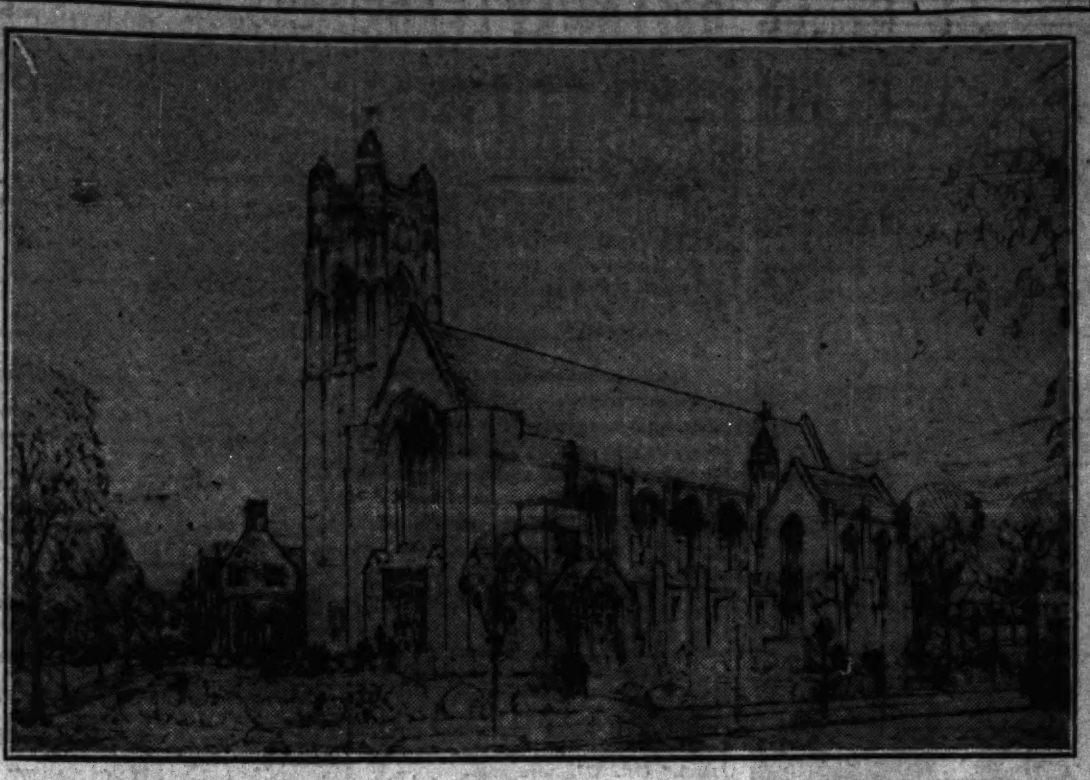
WILMETTE METHODISTS' $400,000 CHURCH



The Wilmette Parish Methodist Episcopal church, now under construction at Lake and Wilmette avenues. The building will consist of two units, the church proper and the neighborhood house, which is glimped in the background, all to be erected at a cost of $400,000. Granger & Bollenbacher are the architects. This drawing was rendered by Frank Venning.

DEMAND BETTER CAR SERVICE ON NORTH ASHLAND

Business Men Offer 5 Plans for Relief.

Operation of a two man street car system on the North Ashland avenue route was urged by members of the Irving-Ashland Business Men's and Property Owners' association at its latest meeting in Nelson's hall, 3918 North Ashland avenue. The new association was organized last month to promote immediate action on local improvements in the district, foremost of which are the street car facilities and the widening of Ashland avenue from Addison street to Irving Park boulevard. The street widening project has been assured by the city officials.

The coöperation of Ald. John J. Hoellen [47th] was enlisted in obtaining improvement of the street car service, which members of the association declare to be "the worst in the city." Five suggestions to improve or solve the problem on Ashland avenue were offered by the business men.

Five Suggestions for Remedy.

The suggestions were: Elimination of the street car terminal at Ashland avenue and Irving Park boulevard; operation of feeder buses from Irving Park boulevard to either Clark street or Devon avenue; extension of the street car route to Clark street; extension of the route east on Irving Park boulevard to Southport avenue, south on Southport avenue to Clybourn avenue and thence west to Ashland avenue, and entire elimination of the Ashland avenue route.

The speakers at the meeting, which was attended by 102 business men of the district, included John O'Connell, division superintendent of the Chicago Surface lines; Ald. Hoellen, and members of the association's transportation committee. A committee will be formed to make a survey of other route terminals, such as North avenue, Division street and Chicago avenue.

Back Three Other Projects.

Other improvements which the association decided to promote at once are: Establishment of a postal station in the district; additional police protection and improved street lighting.

Temporary officers of the association are: Chairman, Felix Coune, 3822 North Ashland avenue; secretary, Alfred J. Nelson, and treasurer, Louis Kreuger. Adoption of the charter and by-laws and election of permanent officers will be made at the next meeting.

Founder's Day Is Observed by Lake View P.-T. Body

The Lake View High School Parent-Teacher association celebrated Founder's day at its latest meeting in the school building, Ashland avenue and Irving Park boulevard. Mothers and daughters will be honored at the March meeting of the association, Mrs. S. E. Hopkins, secretary, reports.

Dr. Daniel P. MacMillan Heard by Waters P.-T. Body

Founder's day was observed at the meeting of the Waters Parent-Teacher association Monday in the school building, 2519 Wilson avenue. Dr. Daniel P. MacMillan, director of child study and educational research of the board of education, was the principal speaker.

contractor of 2071 Lunt avenue, caught at Miami Beach. It weighs 58 pounds, is six feet long, and required 45 minutes of Louie's valuable time to land. Frank B. Cheever, Mabel G. Reinecke's chief field deputy, telephoned us Monday, but we were out. Then we telephoned Frank, but he was out. Income taxes will soon be due and we are wondering if anything has happened to the infernal revenue department. We trust it's nothing trivial, Frank. Regards to Rogers Park.

After Fred Bach, the reliable butcher, had delivered the meat to 243 Laurel avenue, the other evening, it was discovered the bill was $2.43 more than had been reckoned on. Fred had absent-mindedly added in the address.

WE learn through our estimable fellow pressman, James Keeley, of another boon offered the traveling public by the Pullman company. By using an upper berth the passenger is enabled to travel farther for the same amount of money. Mr. Walter D. Warren, a student at the Valley ranch, Cody, Wyo., has figured it out. For examples one is bound to Chicago over the Northern Pacific from Billings, Mont.

"The distance from Billings to Chicago is 1,323 miles or 6,985,440 feet," cites Mr. Warren. "The equatorial radius of the earth is 20,923,600 feet, and the polar radius 20,853,657 feet. The radius of the earth at latitude 45 degrees would be approximately the arithemetic mean between the polar and equatorial radii, viz:

$$\begin{array}{r} 20{,}923{,}600 \\ 20{,}853{,}657 \\ \hline 2)\,41{,}777{,}257 \\ \hline 20{,}888{,}629 \text{ feet.} \end{array}$$

"Then from the diagram we have two arcs, the length of one 1,323 miles [6,985,440 feet] of a radius of 20,888,629 feet; and another arc of unknown length, but of radius of four feet greater than that of the known arc. Hence, to find the length of the unknown arc we may make the proportion as follows. Since the same central angle subtends both arcs we may say: The known arc is to its radius as the unknown arc is to its radius:

$$\frac{6{,}985{,}440\text{ feet.}}{20{,}888{,}629\text{ feet}} = \frac{X}{20{,}888{,}633\text{ feet}}$$

"Solving for X we have:

$$X = \frac{[20{,}288{,}633\text{ feet.}]\quad[6{,}985{,}440\text{ feet.}]}{20{,}888{,}629\text{ feet.}}$$

X = 6,985,441.3 feet [to nearest 10th].

"Thus we see that the upper berth travels about one foot four inches farther than the lower in going from Billings to Chicago."

It is simple. Mr. Warren explains that the excess distance is based on the assumption the traveler would occupy the berth all the way, which he concludes the traveler would not. So he then allows him nine hours in the berth, which would enable him to travel .318 feet farther than the lower berth passenger. In either event the boon will be popular with local Scotch.

NORTH SUBURBS TO TAKE PART IN GARDEN SHOW

15 Clubs to Have Displays at Hotel Sherman.

Chicago's north side and the north shore suburbs will be well represented at the annual garden and flower show, to be held this week at Hotel Sherman, according to plans announced by the individual clubs. At least 15 north side garden clubs, affiliated with the Garden Club of Illinois are coöperating with more than 40 other clubs to stage the show, which will open tomorrow for one week.

The Arcadia Terrace Garden club has entered exhibits in six groups, Mrs. Frederick A. Neef, president and chairman of the exhibits, reports. The exhibits will be: Window box, miniature garden, little garden, shadow box, conservation poster, and luncheon table. Mrs. Neef will be assisted by Mrs. William Kruse, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kurtz, Mr. and Mrs. John Torpe, Mrs. Torrel Peterson, and Mr. C. P. Stowel. The members of the Arcadia Terrace club will hold their meeting at the hotel on Saturday.

Four exhibits have been entered in the competition by the Evanston Garden club. The exhibits and chairmen are: Little garden, Mrs. Thomas H. Eddy; window box, Mrs. William Evans; shadow box, Mrs. A. Clement Wild, and luncheon table, Mrs. Willard Jacques, Mrs. Frank Parker Davis and Mrs. Arthur H. Boettcher. The club will hold its meeting at the show on Thursday.

Glencoe to Compete.

The Glencoe Garden club will also compete in most of the exhibits, Mrs. Percy Armstrong, vice president, reports. The exhibits and chairmen are: Luncheon table, Mrs. Sidney F. Beech and Mrs. Harry S. Sandberg; miniature garden, Mrs. Paul L. Battey; little garden, Mrs. Devroe E. Getman; shadow box, Mrs. Carl S. Miner; bud and branch, Mrs. Arthur W. Brintnall, and conservation poster, Mrs. Robert H. Moulton. Mrs. John Archibald Armstrong, a member of the Glencoe club, is in charge of the registration of all exhibits of the various clubs.

Wilmette will be represented with exhibits of two clubs—the Wilmette Garden club and the Evening Garden club. The Wilmette Garden club will hold its third annual luncheon for members and guests attending the show on Tuesday. The club's exhibits are being staged by Mrs. Charles N. Hurlburt, who won first prize in the north division of THE TRIBUNE's 1928 flower garden show. Members of her committee are: Luncheon table, Mrs. F. J. Kean and Mrs. John Clark Baker; window box, Mrs. Archibald Stinson; little garden, Mrs. David Cooke; floral pictures, Mrs. Walter Clark and Mrs. Alonzo J. Coburn, and conservation poster, Mrs. Burt L. Davis.

Other Clubs to Exhibit.

Mrs. Gordon Wilson is chairman of the Evening Garden club's exhibit. She will be assisted by: Luncheon table, Mrs. J. E. Worther and Mrs. C. M. Burlingame; window box, Mrs. J. A. Pancoast; miniature garden, Mr. Burlingame; floral pictures, Mrs. Ashton Taylor and Mrs. Gordon Wilson, and conservation posters, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Wilson and Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Ewer.

Other north side clubs that have entered exhibits are: North Town Garden club, North Shore Garden club, Kenilworth Home and Garden club, Highland Park Garden Study club, Little Garden club of Evanston, Garden club of Winnetka, Garden club of Deerfield, Ravinia Garden club, Lake Bluff Garden club, and the Lake Forest Garden club.

EVANSTON CLUB TO HEAR TALK ON TURKISH WOMEN

Mme Pierre Ponafidine will talk on "Woman-The Hope of New Turkey" Tuesday afternoon at a meeting of the Woman's club of Evanston in the clubhouse at 1702 Chicago avenue.

In the morning the Art Study class will meet in preparation for the club's eight annual art exhibit, to be held March 5, and 6. Benjamin K. Smith will lecture on "Motives in Acquiring Pictures."

Mrs. Stephen V. Balderston is chairman of the art committee, which will have charge of the coming exhibit. Others on her committee include: Mrs. Harry Jenkins, Mrs. Ulysses S. Grant, Mrs. Paul Milner, Mrs. Peter Bassoc, Mrs. Daniel Boone, Mrs. William V. Brothers, Mrs. Budd, Clarke Corbus, Mrs. Robert D. Cunningham, Mrs. Barry Gilbert, Mrs. Edward Lindley Jones, Mrs. Chester H. Taylor, Mrs. Percival Truman and Mrs. John A. Wheeler.

Tomorrow the young women's auxiliary will meet for a sewing hour and discussion of current books.

ments of their groups on the suggestion already made, or on other suggestions the organizations have to propose.

The association announced a proposal made to the state that it utilize the old Criminal courts building, Dearborn street and Austin avenue, as the headquarters of all state departments in Chicago.

Will Discuss Bridge Openings.

A second subject which the association will present for discussion is the question of extending the closed hours of the bridges. The matter is now before the city council and the north central business men will request the delegates to present resolutions to the city and to the war department recommending a restriction on bridge lifts between the hours of noon and 1:30 o'clock afternoon and to extend the morning closed period until 10:30 o'clock. Maj. Rufus W. Putnam will be the principal speaker on this subject.

EVANSTON VETS FORM EMERGENCY RELIEF CORPS

150 to Serve in Disasters, Fires, and Riots.

An emergency, relief corps, 150 strong, is being organized among members of Evanston post, No. 42, American Legion, under a plan drawn up and approved by the post and Chief of Police William O. Freeman of Evanston.

Under the plan, which has yet to be passed by the city council, the corps could be called out in case of fire, riots, disasters and storms, or crime epidemics and public hysteria. In the later cases they would patrol the streets and act as escorts for women.

Five Companies, Each with Captain.

Five companies will be formed of 32 men each, under the active direction of a captain, appointed by the directors of the post, but the post commander, Richard Chamberlin, at present, will be commander of the corps.

While the 150 or so who form the organized corps will do most of the active work the entire membership of 750 of the post will be ready for call in times of great emergency. If any of them are at the scene of an emergency, they are expected to volunteer their services in assistance.

May Volunteer for Traffic Duty.

Members of the corps may also volunteer for traffic duty with the approval of the captain of the corps.

Council action on the matter has been deferred because of tax problems which have swept all other issues aside, but it is expected that it will be handled favorably because of Chief Freeman's approval.

North Shore post, No. 21, announces that its annual stag and athletic entertainment is listed for early in April and adds, "Make up your parties." . . . Past Commander Terry O'Brien has been appointed Poppy day officer for Cook county. . . . North Shore's basketball team defeated Evanston, 35 to 12. . . . D. Hobart Passell has recently been appointed citizens' military training camp chairman of the post.

Lincoln Park post No. 481 will meet tomorrow night at their new "dug out" club room, 1938 North Clark street, basement of the North Park hotel. Refreshments will be served. The rooms are open every night and Sunday afternoons to ex-service men.

Harold A. Taylor post No. 47 was among the legion groups which conducted memorial services on the thirty-first anniversary of the blowing up of the battleship Maine. The services were conducted by Commander Dick Liner of Chicago Federal post No. 1525, Veterans of Foreign Wars, who is a member of Taylor post.

Edward Hines Jr., chapter, No. 10, Disabled American veterans, recently was host to 350 women and their escorts at a card and bunco party at Roosevelt hall, State and Lake building. Dancing was also one of the entertainment features and the vets temporarily forgot their injuries as they glided over the floor as in pre-war days. The affair was in honor of the women who assisted in the Forget-me-not drive last September. Miss Victoria Warrenson, general chairman of the drive, acted as hostess. Miss Bessie Robinson presided over the bunco and card party.

Verdun and Surface Lines posts will be hosts to the Second district, Feb. 26, at the 122d Field Artillery armory.

Among the American Legion membership contests now on is that of Cook county versus all of Wisconsin. At the latest Wisconsin convention, the state commander issued the challenge which was accepted by the Cook county commander. Last year's membership in Cook county was 29,000 as against the total enrollment in Wisconsin of 32,000. At last reports, Cook county was in the lead by 3,000.

Entertainment in plenty has been arranged for the initial social event of Medill-Tribune post, No. 348, to be held in the Bal Tabarin at the Hotel Sherman tomorrow night. Members of the post and eligible candidates may secure tickets from any of the membership committee or from Adjutant E. F. Classen.

Members of Marine post, No. 273, have requested that the age limit for service men applying for duty on the police force be waived or raised. In view of the training obtained while in the service, they believe that a special dispensation of this nature would be fitting.

As a result of the membership campaign being conducted by Western Union post, No. 260, Commander B. D. Stoll reports a 100 per cent membership of the eligible employés in the Western Union building. A "Louisville 1929 Convention" club is being organized by the post.

Advertising Men's post No. 38 will hear an illustrated lecture by Mrs. Gladys M. Petch at its meeting tomorrow noon at Hotel Sherman. Mrs. Petch's subject will be "Across Norway by the World's Wonder Railway."

Buddies of company M, 131st infantry, will hold their tenth annual banquet and reunion at the Morrison hotel Thursday night. The doings begin at 7 o'clock and all former members of the outfit are invited to attend. At last year's reunion sixty-six veterans were present, some traveling from California and Florida to attend. This year at least 150 are expected. Secretary Russell Loh, 1656 Farwell avenue, assures a good time, with plenty to eat.

Tuesday night at 8:30 o'clock Verdun post, No. 472, will hold a "very short" business meeting at the 122d Field artillery armory, after which there will be a "big blow out," sponsored by Surface Line and Verdun posts, for the district officers of all the posts of the second district. Eats and vaudeville. "Don't be among the missing," warns the entertainment committee. "It's your hard luck if you are."

SIX PARK GROUPS UNITE IN VAUDEVILLE SHOW

The second of the winter vaudeville entertainments arranged by the young people of the small parks in the Lincoln park district was given during the last two weeks in the six small parks. Each of the parks contributed an act to the show, which was given Monday evening at Stanton park, Tuesday at Seward park, and Thursday at Lake Shore park. The picture shows girls representing Chase park. Left to right: Betty May Hanks, Frances Spencer, Ruth Nail, Myrtle Clemons, Henrietta Helmes, and Peggy Marshall. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

RELIEF CHIEF

Richard Chamberlin, commander of Evanston post No. 42, American Legion, will be the first head of an emergency relief corps organized by the veterans.

INDORSE BONDS OF TWO MILLION FOR BOULEVARD

Indorsement of the proposed $2,000,000 bond issue of the Lincoln park board, which will be submitted to the voters at the aldermanic election Tuesday, has been given by various north side organizations in letters received by the park commissioners, Carlos Ames, secretary of the board, reports. The bond issue has been proposed by the commissioners to extend the Lincoln park boulevard system north from Montrose avenue to Lawrence avenue. Within a year the board will request permission of the state legislature to issue additional bonds to extend the park to Devon avenue, Mr. Ames said.

Mr. Ames made public letters of indorsement received from Paul Gerhardt, chairman of the entertainment committee of the Chicago Yacht club; Si Mayer, president of the Automobile Club of Illinois, and W. B. Strong, secretary of the Streeterville Lions' club. Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club, previously had announced the indorsement of the bonds by that organization, Mr. Ames said.

Other letters, he said, were written by V. J. Curto, president of the Central Uptown Chicago association; William G. Fortmiller, president of the Subdivision Citizens' association of the 45th ward; Benjamin Blumenthal, chairman of the board of directors of the Central North Clark Street Improvement association; Walter E. Schneider, secretary of the Uptown Chicago Lions' club; Clement J. Wall, president of the board of trustees of Buena Memorial Presbyterian church, 4301 Sheridan road, and Dr. C. Copeland Smith, president of the Copeland Smith league.

Clubwomen of Kenilworth Hold 34th 'Birthday Party'

The thirty-fourth birthday party of the Neighbors was celebrated by Kenilworth clubwomen, Tuesday, with a luncheon and program. Mrs. Charles Howard Bent, president of the club, introduced Mrs. Anne Higginson Spicer as toastmistress. Six former presidents, Mrs. Anson Peck, Mrs. Victor Sanborn, Mrs. Calvin Case, Mrs. John Howard Jones, Mrs. Kelso Farley, and Mrs. Spicer, were present. Among those who gave toasts were Mrs. Victo Sanborn, Mrs. Arthur Ruf, Mrs. John Hicks, Mrs. H. G. Seeley, Mrs. Edwin Hedrick, and Miss Bernice Bulley. Following the luncheon, Miss Charlotte Dakin of the Northwestern university school of speech gave a group of dramatic readings. Mrs. Harry Weese was chairman in charge of the affair.

SCHOOLS STAGE PLAYS SETTING OF WASHINGTON

Observe Birthday with Varied Programs.

For the second time in two weeks children in most of the north side schools paused Thursday to pay homage to the memory of one of the nation's great Presidents. The life and work of George Washington was commemorated last week in a manner similar to the programs given in the schools of Feb. 11 in honor of the birthday anniversary of Abraham Lincoln. In many of the schools the various classes gathered for a joint program in the assembly halls, while in other buildings the celebrations were held in the classrooms.

On Friday all school children were invited to attend a free motion picture portraying the events in Washington's life which was exhibited in the James Simpson theater of the Field museum in Grant park. Numerous groups of children were organized to see the picture by school teachers, scout leaders, and heads of various other community organizations.

Joint Program at Stone School.

At Leander Stone school, 6239 North Leavitt street, a Washington-Lincoln patriotic program was held Thursday afternoon in the assembly hall. A playlet, "Lafayette's Toast," was presented by the pupils of the sixth grade. Principal characters in the cast were played by Vernette Price, James Murray, and Merle Fink, while the others took minor parts.

At Hibbard Junior High school, 3244 Ainslie street, the entertainment was again given under the direction of the drum and bugle corps, which opened the entertainment with a salute to the flag. Pupils of home room No. 312, under the supervision of Miss Ella M. Wallace, gave a play, "Boys of '76." In the cast were Irving Kraus, Norman Kramer, Irwin Hayman, Morton Levine, Morris Schwartz, and Albert Sultan.

Three programs were given at Stewart school, 4524 Kenmore avenue. On the first floor children of the first grade, of which Miss Josephine Burns is teacher, gave a playlet entitled "Our Country's Flag." The second floor entertainment comprised a flag drill and the singing of patriotic songs by the third grade, of which Miss Agnes Smith is teacher, while another playlet, "Washington School Days," was presented on the third floor by the sixth grade under the direction of Miss Mary Donahue.

Honor All February's Children.

Both Washington and Lincoln as well as other famous American men and women who were born in February were honored at the program given in Jahn school, 3149 North Lincoln street. A playlet, "Mother February's Children," was given under the direction of Miss Lenore Hicks.

"Washington School Days" was the title of a playlet given at Waters school, 2519 Wilson avenue, by the sixth grade pupils. Miss Leona Denson is teacher of the class.

At Schiller school, 700 Vedder street, Miss Catherine McKeon was in charge of a play, "Washington and Lincoln." In other schools a period was devoted either in assembly or in class room to commemorate the life of Washington in song, readings and recitations.

Claude V. Ruffle Elected President of Melwood A.C.

Claude V. Ruffle, 1426 Barry avenue, was elected president of the Chicago Melwood Athletic club at a recent meeting in the clubhouse, 1437 Oakdale avenue. Other officers elected were: Secretary, Irving Anderson; treasurer, Louis Franchina; sergeant at arms, Stanley Stone, and publicity manager, Clifford Mueller. The new vice president will be elected at the next meeting of the club.

RAVENSWOOD TO ACT AS HOST OF KIWANIS MEETING

The annual conference of the Illinois-Eastern Iowa district of Kiwanis clubs, will be held March 14 in the Masonic temple, Wilson and Paulina avenues, with the Ravenswood Kiwanis club as hosts. The conference will begin with the noon meeting, followed by a business session in the afternoon. A dinner dance in the evening will end the one day convention. Wives of Kiwanis members are invited to attend the noon meeting and the dinner dance.

The nine Kiwanis clubs in the division are Ravenswood, Albany Park, Logan Square, Chicago, Northwest Town, Edison Park, Libertyville, Park Ridge and McHenry.

John R. Basiger, publicity manager of the Lincoln Park commission gave an illustrated talk on the park developments and activities in the various playgrounds at the last meeting of the Ravenswood club. The next meeting of the club will be held in the Three Links building, 4740 North Western avenue. A change of the club's regular meeting place is under consideration.

45TH WARD BODY LOSES FIGHT FOR NEW FIRE HOUSE

Clarence Niesen, president of the North End Improvement association of the 45th ward, reports that efforts of the association to secure the replacement of the old fire house at 2214 Barry avenue with a new building have failed. A letter from Fire Commissioner A. W. Goodrich, in reply to an inquiry made by representatives of the association, stated that lack of funds made it impossible to construct a new fire station.

Had the fire department bond issue been passed last April, Commissioner Goodrich said, all the old buildings might have been replaced. Steps are to be taken to have the city council authorize the placing of the fire department proposition on a future ballot, the commissioner added.

University Guild of Evanston to Hear Baird

Stewart Baird, young Harvard graduate, will entertain the members of the University Guild of Evanston at their meeting on Monday, March 4, at 2:30 o'clock in Annie May Swift hall, on the Northwestern university campus. Mr. Baird, for whom the term diseur is said to have been originated, will sing or talk four groups, including some takeoffs on popular personages. He will be accompanied by Miss Hadassah McGiffen.

BACKERS CLAIM GALLOWAY LEADS IN 50TH WARD

Aldermanic Candidate Has 5,500 Indorsements.

Notices of indorsements received at the headquarters of Wiley K. Galloway, who is running for alderman of the Fiftieth ward to supplant Ald. A. K. Mose, brought the total to more than 5,500 last night. Included in the list of Galloway's followers who have given notice of their support are 200 local business men and more than 5,000 residents.

Galloway's ability as a lawyer and his fitness for the job were attested to last week by Col. John H. Wigmore, dean of Northwestern law school, of which he is a graduate. "I believe that his type of citizen is one that would honorably and effectively fulfill the position of alderman," Col. Wigmore said.

Backers Claim Lead.

Active supporters of Galloway, who is indorsed by the ward Deneen organization, say that he is gaining what appears to be a comfortable lead over his opponents.

Galloway, who is a printer by trade, began practicing law in Chicago in 1919, and at the same time working nights as a linotype operator for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

A resident of the ward for twelve years, he is seeking election on a platform of improvement for the district. Because of his experience as a lawyer and his knowledge of the ward's needs, his supporters are confident that he will succeed in ushering through the council ordinances for much needed improvements, particularly for the north end of the ward which have thus far been sought unsuccessfully.

Public Service Is Keynote.

Running as a nonpartisan, "public service" has been announced as the keynote of his aims in the council. Business groups, civic organizations, women's clubs, and influential individuals have declared themselves in his favor because of this political principle.

Economy in public expenditure in order to reduce taxes will be sought by Galloway if he is elected, he says.

His principal opponents are: Ald. Mose, Curtis F. Mellin, and Arthur W. Arneman. Other candidates in the race are Carl H. Lundquist and Harry A. Martin.

HOMER BUCKLEY GIVES EVANSTON TIPS ON SELLING

Homer J. Buckley, former president of the Advertising Clubs of the World and former chairman of the Advertising Council of Chicago, addressed members of the Evanston Chamber of Commerce Monday noon at the North Shore hotel.

He discussed better methods of merchandising and outlined to the store owners means by which they could meet modern competition. More than a hundred men and several women turned out for the meeting.

William J. Hamilton, postmaster of Evanston, will be the speaker at tomorrow's meeting in the North Shore hotel.

THE CHUCKLE COLUMN

Lawyer—Of course, you will sue for damages?

Mandy (who has just been knocked down by a truck)—Damages? Ah don' want no damages. Ah wants repairs.

AL SCHULTZ,
1440 Winona street.

Cop—You're under arrest.

Cross-eyed man—What for?

Cop—You look crooked.

LOUIS KLIMEK,
1637 North Paulina street.

Flint—She's got a mean pair of knees.

Steel—Yeh, they're always knocking each other.

STEPHEN REYNOLDS,
6133 Kenmore avenue.

Jones—Have you ever had any friends?

Smith—Yes, I've had my wife and my dog, and believe me that was some dog.

BERNARD COHEN,
1440 Clifton Park avenue.

Sambo—What kind of cigars does yo' smoke, Rastus?

Rastus—Robinson Crusoes.

Sambo—What kind is dem?

Rastus—Castways, dumbell, castaways.

J. A. POKORNI,
1432 Irving Park boulevard.

Teacher—How did you break your tooth, Mary?

Seven year old—I did it shifting gears on a lollypop.

EVELYN LARSON,
806 Altgeld street.

Boy, reading epitaph—"Here lies a lawyer and an honest man." What does that mean, Dad?

Father—Two men in one grave.

DANIEL GOTT,
624 North Monticello avenue.

Little boy—Mom, I was ahead of the class today.

Mother—How did that happen, sonny?

Boy—Well, the teacher asked how many legs an ostrich had and I said three.

Mother—Why, son, an ostrich only has two legs.

Boy—I know but all the other kids guessed four and I was closest.

LEO SCHRAM,
2043 Cullom avenue.

Mr. Newlywed—Last night I dreamt that you'r mother was ill.

Mrs. Newlywed—O, you brute! I heard you laugh in your sleep.

ALICE LEWIS,
3318 Sheridan road.

Musical mother—If baby won't go to sleep, bring her here and I'll sing to her.

Nurse—It won't do any good, madam. I've already threatened her with that.

BEN BERKOWITZ,
5041 West Fullerton avenue.

Co-ed—My boy friend has just graduated from a musical college.

Ditto—Why, not really?

Co-ed—Yes, Sing Sing.

LESTER COLLINS,
2481 Davidson street.

Mother, to badly bruised son—Didn't I tell you to count a hundred before you started fighting?

Son—Yes, but Jack's mother only told him to count fifty.

FRANK LONG,
1535 West 83d street.

Scotchman—Are you the barber who cut my hair the last time?

Barber—I don't think so. I've only been here for six months.

MILTON RITZLIN,
1865 South Lawndale avenue.

Mrs. Gabby—My husband was furious yesterday. He found a love letter addressed to me.

Mrs. Jones—Had it been opened?

Mrs. Gabby—No, that was the trouble; he wrote it himself once.

RAPHAEL WILHELM,
1811 Howe street.

Judge—The police say that [illegible] your wife had some words.

Prisoner—I had some, but I [illegible] get a chance to use them.

D. H. [illegible]

HOW TO BUILD PUSHER MODEL TOLD BY EXPERT

Plane's Propellers Are Behind the Wings.

Here is the second of The Tribune's articles on airplane model building. Mr. Hamburg, airplane model expert, is not only going to tell you how to build and fly the pusher—he's going to answer your questions on plane construction. When you're up against a knotty problem write to him and he'll help you solve it. Send the question, with a 2 cent stamp for answer, to him at league headquarters, American Boy building, Second and Lafayette boulevards, Detroit, Mich.

BY MERRILL HAMBURG.
[Secretary Airplane Model League of America.]

When Wilbur and Orville Wright made their first successful airplane, more than twenty-five years ago, it was a "pusher"—the propellers were behind the wings. Today THE TRIBUNE is going to tell members of the Airplane Model League of America how to build a corking little model pusher—one that embodies many of the principles the Wrights so carefully worked into their machine.

Last week boys and girls of Chicago learned how to make an all wood glider. The pusher is much like it in principle and construction—all major parts are of wood, and they are put together in much the same way. But it has a propeller and a rubber motor, and it soars for many seconds.

And the young aeronaut who successfully builds and flies it is doing the best job he can to prepare himself to construct the more complicated models THE TRIBUNE is going to describe later in the spring. More than that. He's getting himself ready for the official contests to be conducted locally by THE TRIBUNE and nationally in Detroit in June by the American Boy magazine, co-sponsor with this paper of the A. M. L. A.

May Mean Detroit Trip.

The chances are that the builder who starts with this pusher will eventually win the trip to Detroit. So get busy now!

First, materials. The Tichenor Midget [the pusher is named after Frank A. Tichenor, a vice president of the league] has balsa wing and elevator, motor stick, rudder [fin], and propeller. The motor is ⅛ inch flat rubber, 22 inches long. Metal parts are made of .020 music wire, with the exception of the thrust bearing, which is slightly heavier.

Perhaps you're already equipped with these materials, for they're all included in the special league all wood kit, which lots of local league members obtained last week to build the glider. It contains everything from ready made propeller to delicate wire parts. If you haven't the kit, you can get it by sending 65 cents in check or money order to the supply department, A. M. L. A., American Boy building, Second and Lafayette boulevards, Detroit, Mich.

You'll get with the kit the A. M. L. A. manual—an invaluable help to model builders. It tells how to bend balsa, how to carve a propeller, how to do all the things an expert model builder must know. It can be obtained separately for 5 cents from League headquarters.

Now Ready to Start.

Once you have the materials you're ready to start. The motor stick should get your first attention—sand it and carve it down to the exact size shown in the diagram. It will be ⅛x3-16x10 inches when you've finished. Now cut the fin from a piece of flat balsa 1-32 inch thick. Note the dimensions carefully. Glue the fin on to the rear end of the motor stick—for greater strength some builders prefer to carve a tiny groove in the stick to receive the fin. Be sure that it is set at a slight angle, so that it will cause the plane to circle when you've finished it. The diagram gives you the angle and position of the fin.

Cement the front hook to the under side of the fuselage, and the thrust bearing to the rear end—again the drawing shows you how. Now take your propeller—already prepared and drilled if you're using the League kit, but a job you'll have to do according to the directions in the manual if you're not—and insert the propeller shaft. Notice that, since the model is a pusher, the shaft goes through from the straight leading edge. Be very certain that the propeller shaft is straight; otherwise your prop will wobble and upset the balance of the plane. And make sure that the prop itself is sanded as fine as you can make it—light should show through it when you hold it before a window.

The Wing Is Simple.

When the shaft is through the prop, bend the projecting end back upon itself in a U and push the U so that the short end locks itself in the prop. Ambroid the prop lightly all around its hub for strength. After it is dry, put the two small brass washers on the shaft, slip the shaft through the eye in the bearing, and you may hook the two strand motor to the front hook and the shaft.

The wing and elevator, respectively 1-32 inch and 1-64 inch thick, are simple. Both are flat balsa, of the dimensions shown on the diagram, bent into a dihedral angle at the center. A jet of steam from the tea kettle in your kitchen will make the balsa pliable, if you hold it in the steam for some minutes; then you can bend it to the desired angle and allow it to dry and stiffen.

You must cut a notch ⅛x⅛ inch in the wing's trailing edge. This allows it to fit snug against the rudder.

Ready to Take Off.

If you are an expert builder you'll give the wing "washin" and "washout." To give the right wing washin, as you look at the model from the front, bend the leading edge up; to give the left wing washout, bend its leading edge down. The moisture in your breath will soften the wood and make it bend to the position you want.

Fasten the wing and elevator to the motor stick with two rubber bands. And you're ready to take off!

First, glide the plane several times to find the right adjustment of the wing and elevator. When you get an easy, loafing glide, give the propeller 150 turns, counter-clockwise. Hold the fuselage in the right hand, the prop in the left; when you're ready release the prop and give the plane a gentle push forward.

Then watch her fly!

Sometimes Erratic.

The pusher type of plane is sometimes erratic, but there are a number of ways of overcoming balkiness. One is the use of washin and washout—these counteract the torque, or twist, the whirling propeller gives to the machine. Wing setting is another.

You can have a whale of a lot of pleasure with the Tichenor Midget. You can fly it, if it's carefully made, for as long as 60 seconds; 30 seconds is a good flight, and will win an official honor certificate from league headquarters if you send in a record of the flight approved by an adult who saw it, together with ten cents to cover issuing and mailing the certificate.

What's more, you can teach yourself the fundamentals of model building and of aviation by making it perform properly. And you'll be getting ready to get to work on the next plane in THE TRIBUNE's series—the high climb R. O. G. This ship is a corker—a model with balsa frame but Japanese tissue covered wings. It zooms like an army pursuit ship—your club can have high climbing contests with it as well as endurance trials. And it's small enough so that you won't need a big room to fly it in. An ordinary parlor will do.

So watch for next week's article.

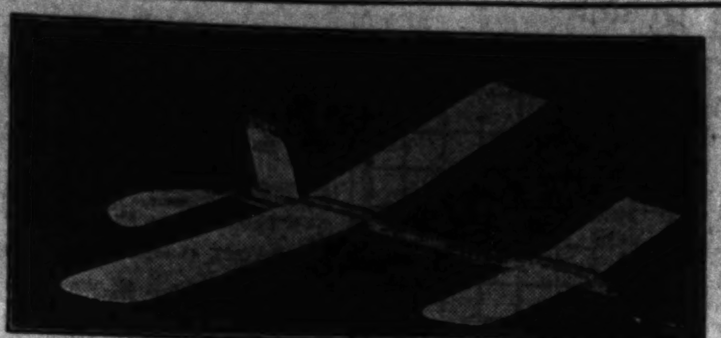
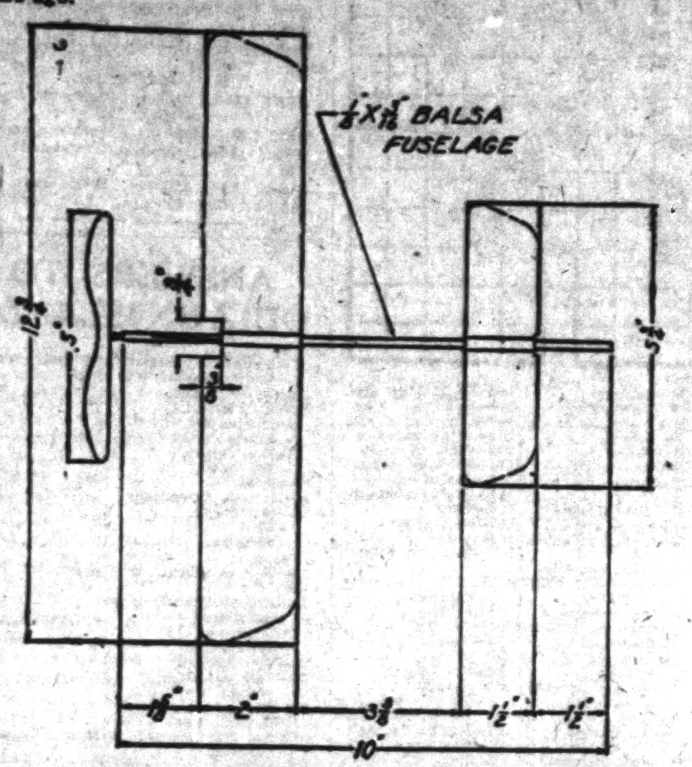
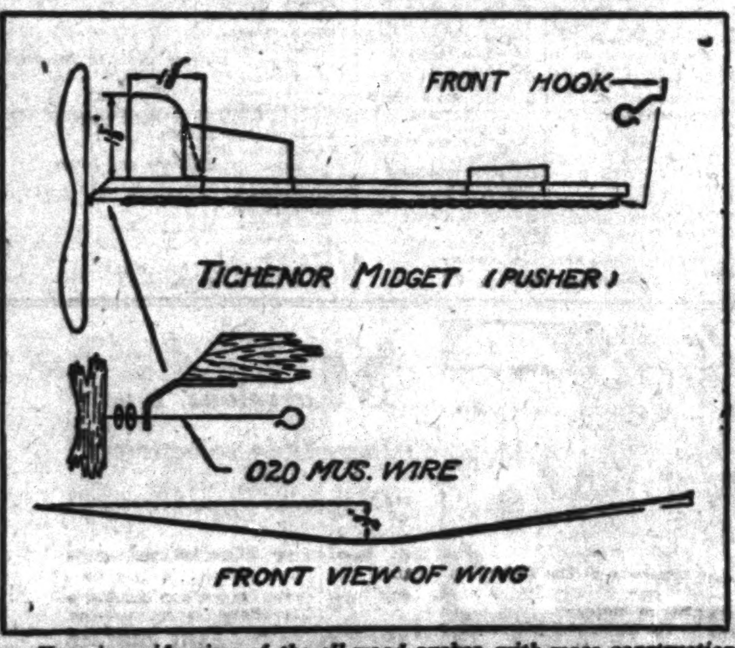
THE TICHENOR MIDGET



Here is a model plane that embodies many of the principles the Wrights worked into their first successful airplane more than twenty-five years ago.



This diagram shows details of wing, elevator and motor stick of the Tichenor Midget. Study them carefully before starting work.



Here is a side view of the all-wood pusher, with more construction details. The front view of the wing shows "washin" on the right side. The leading edge is bent upward.

Dr. Cutter Today's Speaker in Academy of Science

Dr. Irving S. Cutter will be the speaker at the regular weekly program this afternoon in the assembly hall of the Academy of Sciences, Lincoln park at Clark and Center streets. His subject, "Indian Fights and Fighters," will be illustrated with lantern slides.

MUSICAL ART FUND WILL SPONSOR OPERA PROGRAM TOMORROW

MRS. BERNARD NEUBURGER.

The Musical Art Fund society is sponsoring a musical interpretation program to be given tomorrow afternoon following the monthly luncheon of the society at 308 South Michigan avenue. Mrs. Bernard Neuburger, 3500 Sheridan road, and Mrs. Meyer Rosenberg, 1217 Rosemont avenue, are chairmen of the program. More than 25 north side women are actively interested in the society, which provides scholarships for artists of proved ability.

The story of the opera "Cavalleria Rusticana" and its author, Mascagni, will be given by Mrs. Robert Nathan, president of the society, preceding each part of the opera presented by the participating artists. The artists will be Mrs. Emanuel B. Phillipson, 665 Sheridan road, soprano; Eusebio Concialdi, baritone, accompanied by Miss Evelyn Freedman, violinist, and Miss Resella Goldstine and Miss Maymie Stillerman, pianists.

Other north side women of the program committee are Mrs. Harry M. Fisher, 528 Belmont avenue; Mrs. Louis R. Lipstone, Shoreham hotel; Mrs. Lewis B. Berger, 511 Brompton place; Mrs. Max Monblatt, McCormick hotel; Mrs. A. I. Jacobson, 3520 Sheridan road; Mrs. H. L. Spitalny, 5708 Kenmore avenue; Mrs. Leon Waldman, Rogers Park hotel, and Mrs. Lewis Berger.

CONTESTS HELP BOYS TO BUILD BETTER PLANES

North Side Youngsters Cite 1928 Lessons.

"If you want to learn how to improve your model planes, enter a contest!"

That's what hundreds of north side model aviators were saying last summer, when they took part for the first time in contests. And that's what builders will be saying when they start competing against each other for the cups and other awards to be offered in the coming TRIBUNE contest.

By pitting his skill against other boys, the builder puts his own indoor or outdoor plane to the supreme test. If he's beaten, he has a chance to see the winner's plane in action, to learn how it is adjusted, to note the length of the propeller or the shape and angle of the wing or the other details of construction that make the winner's ship more efficient in the air.

Learned Much at National Meet.

Last year at the national contest in Detroit, 250 contestants from all parts of the country learned more than they might have learned in many months of experiment. They saw an indoor model plane of revolutionary design win for its owner a trip to Europe! This tractor, built by Aram Abgarian of Detroit had a curved wing instead of the usual flat one. The tail surface was negatively curved, or cambered. And the ship flew for nearly six minutes.

This very plane will be described by THE TRIBUNE in a future issue. And perhaps in THE TRIBUNE contest some boy will bring forth a ship that will be an improvement on the cambered wing tractor.

Other entrants in the national contest by watching more experienced builders, learned tricks of adjustment, and of winding motors that added seconds to their flight. One boy, Albert Schwartzkopf, of Norfolk, Va., had found difficulty in getting his plane to stay in the air one minute. An observer watched him winding his motor for a third trial.

Learned Secret of Success.

"Give it more turns," he advised. "Some of these boys are putting more than two thousand winds on their motors. Wind it up tight. It it breaks, put on another motor."

Schwartzkopf had been giving his motor only a thousand turns. Acting on the advice of the observer, he doubled the number. On that very flight his ship stayed aloft more than three minutes and won him a bronze medal.

Start working now for THE TRIBUNE contest, to be held early in June. Build the models that will be described each week. They're the best ships that have yet been designed. Experiment with and improve on them. Then, when the contest date rolls around, you'll be ready.

Small Parks Hold Basket Tourney Week of March 4

The annual championship basketball tournament of the small parks in the Lincoln park system will be held during the week beginning March 4, John R. Basiger, publicity manager, reports. The games will be played in the gymnasiums at Chase park, Leland and Ashland avenues, and Lake Shore park, Chicago avenue and Lake Shore drive. Gold and silver medals will be awarded members of the first and second place teams in the four classes, 100, 115, and 135 pounds, and more than 135 pounds.

PARK DISTRICTS OF NORTH SIDE VOTE TUESDAY

33 Candidates Running for Five Boards.

The names of 33 aspirants to jobs as commissioners of the five north side park districts will appear on the ballots Tuesday, according to John S. Rusch, chief clerk of the board of election commissioners. Two candidates each are to be elected in Albany, Ridge avenue, Ravenswood Manor Gardens, and River park districts, while there is only one vacancy in Hollywood Park district and only one candidate.

Candidates have filed petitions with the board on a great variety of platforms and with many "political principles."

One Unopposed Candidate.

The one candidate who is certain of election is Arthur L. Paulson, who is unopposed for commissioner of Hollywood Park district.

Albany Park district, with 12 candidates for the two positions, is the most popular of the north side taxing bodies. Clarence Hansen and Arthur C. Wilhelm are designated as "nonpartisan candidates for lower taxes"; Fred W. Lee and C. August Yourgquist are on a platform of "parks without politics," and Barney Ochakoff, Samuel Solomon, Alexander Kaplan, and Edward H. Artucci run under the designation of "nonpartisans." Edward Gregor and Harry A. Freeman are after "lower taxes and better playgrounds."

"Give the women a representative!" is the cry of Mrs. Selma Savit, the only woman candidate for office in Chicago's park districts, while Morris Seigleman is campaigning for "more athletic activity."

Nine Candidates in River District.

Nine candidates seek election in River Park district. Fred J. Bohn, Albert F. Otte, and Elroy C. Sandquist designate themselves as "community playground builders," while John M. Justus and Thomas M. Stanell are campaigning under the slogan "Protection for the Children." "Nonpartisan" candidates are: Maurice E. Walsh, Alexander J. Topp, Irvin W. Keil, and Thomas Ellingson.

In Ravenswood Manor Gardens district Paul W. Herbst and Joseph Casterton promise "lower taxes," and John A. Miller, Charles G. Carlson, George T. Schmidt, and Charles H. Eckel are "people's nonpartisans."

Richard V. Jackson, J. P. Smith, and H. G. Sigmund are "nonpartisan" avenue park district, while George T. candidates for commissioners of Ridge O'Snea differs in that he is the "people's nonpartisan" candidate. Walter Butler declares himself to be a "community playground builder."

FINDS BLUCHER LETTER AMONG FATHER'S PAPERS

THE TRIBUNE's printing a scene from a motion picture based on the battle of Waterloo reminded John G. Schoffen, 2840 Seminary avenue, that he is in possession of what purports to be the original of a letter written by Field Marshal Blucher in 1814 to the sovereigns allied against Napoleon. Mr. Schoffen said he found the letter among the papers of his father.

The letter was an appeal to the allied sovereigns to prevent a proposed retrograde movement by the German troops in France and to place additional soldiers under Blucher's command for combat with Napoleon. In the letter Blucher cited reasons why the contemplated retreat would be disastrous to the German army. The letter is dated Feb. 22, 1914. Blucher's great victory of Laon followed two weeks later.

WORLD TO HEAR PRESIDENT TAKE OATH OF OFFICE

Elaborate Plans Laid for Broadcast.

The inauguration of Herbert Hoover and Charles Curtis on March 4 will be broadcast to the entire world. Acting upon the belief that the ceremonies should be universally available, officials of the National Broadcasting company are laying elaborate plans for covering this most important of national functions.

The inaugural ceremonies will be sent through the air to potentially every home in the United States. It will also be sent on short wave length for international consumption. The five hour program, beginning at 11 o'clock in the morning and ending at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, will be the most ambitious broadcast in radio history. The number of pickups, microphones, announcers, and air reporters will exceed those used in any event previously put on the air.

Solemn and Light Moments.

It will be a brilliant and impressive function, indeed—the inauguration of the thirty-first President of the United States. The solemn moments on the capitol steps when President Elect Herbert Hoover is administered the oath of office. Equally solemn moments in the senate chamber when Vice President Elect Charles Curtis is sworn in with the new senate. Then the lighter, gayer moods of the parade. Its bands, its troops in dress uniforms, its dignitaries, its flags and bunting. A gamut of color, action, and thrills, with Washington, the city beautiful, as the background.

Microphones, thirty of them, will tell the story to those who cannot be present to witness it. And to tell it faithfully they must do more than merely record the speeches and addresses and the shouts of the crowd. They must paint a mammoth canvas, throwing into colorful relief the central theme—the ceremony on the capitol steps.

The story cannot be told too well. The N. B. C. is doing much with this thought in mind. It has augmented its Washington announcerial staff with announcers from New York including Graham McNamee, Milton J. Cross, John B. Daniel, and William S. Lynch. It has enlisted the aid of Washington observers, men familiar with the dignitaries from every part of the country taking part in the ceremonies. And it has acquired the talents of air reporters, men who are master craftsmen, who wield words pungently and fluently. It has been equally busy in other phases of the broadcast, perfecting the machinery of transmission, endeavoring to make the program a perfect whole, technically as well as artistically.

Senate Yields to Modernity.

Perhaps the most interesting mechanical phase of the work is the construction of a special soundproof booth in the senate chamber. For the first time in history that sanctuary of zealously guarded traditions, where the senate snuff box, the salt cellars with their drying sand, and other hallowed relics are preserved in their erstwhile places, has yielded to modernity. Lest the microphone embarrass the mellowed atmosphere of the chamber, however, it will be placed in a special booth, constructed in a corner and designed to fade into the general decors of the walls, to look, in fact, as though it weren't there at all.

In the booth, David Lawrence, nationally known political writer and analyst, will take his place before the microphone and describe the proceedings in the senate chamber, when the inaugural broadcast is opened with the swearing in of Vice President Elect Charles Curtis and the new senators.

The program will continue with the inauguration of the President, the progress of the presidential party back up Pennsylvania avenue to the White House with the parade in its wake. This will be followed by a two hour review of the parade as it passes the court of honor at the White House.

Senator Moses in Charge.

Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire, chairman of the joint inaugural board, is in charge of arrangements of the broadcast. The program will be available to the fifty-eight stations asociated with the N. B. C. and others. Penetrating every corner of the country, a closeup of their own people in Washington will be sent to the folks back home. Through ,the ether other links will be forged when the program is sent by short wave transmission to Europe and elsewhere, thus permitting the people of foreign nations to join with the American people in this most significant of national functions.

Clever Play Prevents Game in Auction Bridge Broadcast

The sixteenth of a series of twenty radio auction bridge games will be broadcast from W-G-N, The Chicago Tribune station on the Drake hotel, Tuesday, at 3:30 p. m.

The contestants will be R. L. Rutter of Spokane, Wash., a prominent bridge player of his home state, who is paired with Mr. Work against Miss Annie Blanche Shelby of Portland, Ore., another sterling player of the northwest, and Mr. Whitehead.

Following are the advance hands for game sixteen:

Mr. Work.

That even experts are helpless when the cards are against them and in the hands of equally skillful players was the rather comforting message which listeners carried away from Tuesday's radio bridge game, broadcast from Station W-G-N.

In this game, Mrs. Hamilton P. Jones, New Orleans, La., played with Mr. Whitehead against Mr. Work and Mr. R. F. Rode of Miami, Fla. The hands were:

Mr. Rode.

Mr. Work [dealer].

C—10, 9, 4.

The bidding of the hand was obvious—one diamond by Mr. Work, dealer, in the south; a defensive bid of one heart by Mrs. Jones, west; one spade by Mr. Rode, north; and two hearts by Mr. Whitehead, east. Mr. Work, opening the second round of bidding, assisted his partner's call by bidding two spades, for which suit he had unusual support. Mrs. Jones was unable to go any further in hearts, as her hand was only strong enough for a following bid in the first place. The distinction between an initial bid and a following bid is that an initial or opening suit bid of one guarantees to the partner two quick tricks at least; but when an opponent has bid one of a suit, the following player may properly bid a five carder with less than two quick tricks. The reason is that it may be his last opportunity to show his suit to his partner. Should he pass, he may not have another chance to declare.

Contract, Two Spades.

After west's pass, Mr. Rode, north, of course passed. East also passed, as he could not expect game in hearts if his partner could not rebid after his assist, and it seemed quite possible that he and his partner could keep opponents from game.

As Mr. Rode, north, became declarer, Mr. Whitehead, in the east, had the initial lead, for which he chose his king of hearts. From Mr. Work's hand, which became dummy, declarer played the singleton 7 of hearts. This singleton caused Mrs. Jones, west, to stop and think before playing.

She saw no chance for making more than one trick in hearts, regardless of whether her partner or declarer held the queen. Dnmmy had ample trumps for ruffing, and five diamonds that one ruff would establish. Unless north had three diamonds, west, if she did not win the first trick, could not hope to obtain the lead at any time during the play. North could discard any losing clubs in his own hand on dummy's diamonds.

West saw but one chance to break declarer's game—and that was the immediate lead of clubs through any high clubs declarer might hold, up to any that east had in his hand. If east's side strength for his heart assist happened to be the ace-king or the ace-queen of clubs, east and west could take two club tricks, and west could ruff east's third lead of clubs.

Covers Partner's King.

Having thus analyzed the situation, Mrs. Jones, west, covered her partner's king of hearts with the ace, in order to lead a club. Mr. Rode, north, played the 5 of hearts.

Mrs. Jones led the jack of clubs; Mr. Rode, declarer, played the king, hoping to establish dummy's 10 on the third round, as he could do if the adverse clubs were split 4-3. Mr. Whitehead won with the ace of clubs; dummy played the 4.

Mr. Whitehead continued with the queen of clubs; dummy played the 9; Mrs. Jones the 7; declarer the 3. Mr. Whitehead then led the 2 of clubs; dummy played the 10; Mrs. Jones trumped with the 3 of spades; and Mr. Rode, declarer, had to follow suit with the 5 of clubs.

East and west had therefore taken four tricks and saved game before declarer could get started. Regardless of what Mrs. Jones led next, declarer could get in, exhaust the adverse trumps, and take the rest of the tricks. Therefore declarer scored for three-odd at spades—27 points for tricks and 90 for four honors in his own hand and fifth in his partner's.

Had Mrs. Jones, west, not won the first trick by overtaking her partner's king, nothing that east could have led could have prevented declarer from making game. Declarer would have won any card led by east except the ace of clubs, and that lead would have presented declarer with a club trick. In the latter case, the third trick would have been declarer's inevitably, and he would have exhausted the adverse trumps, established south's diamonds, used a trump in the south hand as entry, and discarded his own losing club on south's long diamonds.

The Bid at Contract.

The contract bridge bidding of this hand would be quite interesting. South would start with one diamond, just as in auction. West might be more timid about bidding the heart, but, in the opinion of Mr. Work, she should do so. Mr. Work finds that in contract players are too prone to abstain from following bids which they would unhesitatingly make in auction, and which in contract often prove to be valuable.

After west's one heart, north should bid two spades. The bid of the unnecessary number would be made to show real strength to south, and would be fully justified by the fact that south had bid initially. Without south's bid, one spade would be the most that north could declare.

After north's two spades, east would be placed in an embarrassing position. There is much to be said for his hand, and he could safely bid three hearts if his partner's had been an initial heart bid. However, the partner of a player who has made a following bid should be careful in assisting that bid because it has not shown the strength that an initial bid would guarantee. However, as east could not know that west did not have strength for an initial bid, and as west has a doubleton in one of the adverse suits, he probably would feel justified in risking the three heart bid, although of course he would be happier about it if north had bid only one spade, so that he could show his assistance by bidding two hearts.

As far as the determination of who is to be declarer and the size of the contract is concerned, it would not matter whether east bid or pass; in either event south would bid four spades. It is true that he has already announced his diamonds, but he has not shown his great strength in his partner's suit, nor the value of his hand in support of spades by reason of its having only a singleton of the adverse suit.

If east gave his heart assist, the play would be the same in both games; but if east were shut out by north's two spades, west might not feel justified in making her overtaking coup on trick one.

EXPERTS FACED BY PROBLEMS IN TELEVISION

Optimism Out of Order Until They Are Solved.

Cambridge, Mass., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Practical television is confronted by three major problems, according to D. E. Replogle, radio engineer.

Until these are overcome, wholly or in part, he says, "undue optimism is out of order." He points out that television is a most complicated branch of engineering, involving an intimate knowledge of radio, electricity, mechanics, gaseous conduction, distortionless amplification, modulation and demodulation, photography and optics.

In outlining the three principal problems to be solved in television he says:

"Our first is that of detail. It is a most intricate one, involving dot elements, time coefficients, luminous intensity, accurate synchronization, and available wave channels. Because of the width of a channel required television is not possible on standard wave lengths.

Must Use Short Waves.

We are compelled to resort to short waves, which are by no means universal in their application. We shall have to utilize three separate but simultaneous short wave channels if we are to meet the peculiarities and requirements of urban, rural, and long distance reception.

"The width of the channel used, say 100 kilocycles, determines not only the dimensions of the television image but the amount of detail possible. Both high and low frequencies are essential. If we delete the lows we introduce extraneous shadows and change the tone of the picture. If we cut off the highs we eliminate sharp lines essential to good detail. Cutting off the highs also limits us to slow motion.

"Our second major problem is that of luminosity. We have accomplished wonders with present neon tubes of low candle power, but there still is room for a world of improvement. It seems probable that we shall have to develop a lamp capable of vastly greater illumination.

Synchronization Necessary.

"Our third problem is that of synchronization. Already speed controls with centrifugal governors making and breaking contacts across speed-control resistances have been developed. It seems probable, however, that the ultimate solution will be found in the use of breaking devices which will regulate the scanning disc by means of a definite frequency impressed on the television carrier wave along with the picture.

"The problem of a nation-wide television service is a most serious one. In the beginning at least we may make use of the so-called radio movies. The advantages of film pickup are numerous. The subjects may be filmed under ideal conditions. Positive prints may be widely distributed and broadcast by any station without special skill or expensive equipment. It is thus possible to effect a nation-wide hookup without the use of wire lines."

HALF NORWEGIAN LISTENERS DODGE RADIO LICENSE

OSLO, Feb. 23.—Fifty per cent of Norway's radio fans are license evaders, according to a recent report. This report shows that 27,000 of the 62,800 licenses have not been renewed, and, in addition, it is estimated that listeners have never applied for licenses.

The police are said to be engaged in one of the biggest drives ever conducted against radio license dodgers, but their work is made particularly difficult by the fact that the listeners are widely scattered, many of them living on lonely farms.

EUROPE FACES A BIG TASK IN CLEANING UP AIR

Different Languages Add to Difficulties.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Radio officials and engineers, who will meet at Prague, Czechoslovakia, in April to assign wavelengths to European broadcasting stations, face an even more difficult task than that of allocation in the United States, experts here declare.

The demands for channels of more than 20 nations, the propinquity of countries speaking different languages and the short distances between many of the large cities in Europe, present a problem that calls for the highest engineering and diplomatic ingenuity, says Commander T. A. M. Craven, technical adviser to the federal radio commission.

Interest Grows Rapidly.

While the number of stations and listeners is less than in the United States, interest in broadcasting is growing rapidly. Europe has almost five times as many potential listeners as this country. Owing to the lack of unified control of broadcasting, the allocation problem is such as would obtain in this country, if radio were under separate supervision by the states, Commander Craven says.

Europe has about 245 broadcasting stations as compared with more than 600 in the United States. Nearly all are government owned or operated under close governmental supervision. Operating expenses are defrayed by revenue from the tax paid by owners of receiving sets, and there are few commercially sponsored programs.

Two 40,000 Watters.

The majority of European stations range from 200 to 1,000 watts and only nine have power of 10,000 watts or more. RAI, Moscow, and a station at Lahitas, Finland, both using 40,000 watts, are the most powerful. There is a 30,000 watt station at Motala, Sweden, and a 25,000 watt transmitter at Hootwijk, Holland.

In addition to the 550 to 1,500 kilocycle band which is also used by broadcasting stations in this country, the European stations use the longer waves from 160 to 224 kilocycles.

Considerable attention is being given to synchonization, particularly in England, where several stations operate simultaneously by this method on the same wavelength.

TIBBETT, NASON GIVE KENT RADIO HOUR TONIGHT

Musical genius produced by the soft sunshine of California and the rock-ribbed coast of New England will be jointly responsible for the Atwater Kent Radio hour tonight when Lawrence Tibbett, baritone, and Harold Nason, pianist, provide the program, which will be broadcast by W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel at 8:15 o'clock.

SPEAKING of matters in the sports world, how about a little radio horse race this morning? Imagine that you're hearing this over the air:

Ar, there's the boots and saddles call already, summoning Frankie Boy and Waxwork to the post. It sure is a terrible day for a horse race. It's been drizzling all day, with fogs and mists scudding over the countryside, and only the dyed-in-the-wool racing fans have come out to see the show.

It's so drizzly that the two horses were led over here from the stables with light blankets covering them. The track is soggy and slow—there are pools of water along the rail in spots—and the spectators have been keeping under cover. Most of them are lingering down around the betting booths, in the arcade under the grandstands, chatting after making their bets at the windows and eating hot dogs.

There aren't many of them out here standing around the paddock, and there's nobody leaning on the rail in front. It's kinda hazy over there on the back stretch. I'll bet the jockeys will be covered with mud after they've gone one furlong.

Here they come now—Sammy, the postboy, is leading 'em out on the track; there won't be much parading today—they're sloshing right down the muddy track to the starting post. Frankie Boy, ridden by Jockey Al Winter, has the rail; and Waxwork, with Jockey Red Kershaw up, is the other steed.

They're not very skittish; this weather has dampened their spirits. Now they're up behind the barrier, they're turned around—the starters are pulling 'em up to the tape. Frankie Boy and Waxwork—have you picked your winner yet? The crowd is silent now, and all gathered in the grandstand and clubhouse—waiting for that flash—gosh, look at what a solugh of mud that track is! Watch 'em; Watch 'em!

The start will be up here to our left.

They're off! Frankie Boy slips in the ooze as the barrier leaps up, and Waxwork is off to a lead of over a length—Frankie can't get going in the mud—he slips and slothers in the slime—and now, when he arches his back and convulses a little, he manages to start—here they come down the home stretch, and Waxwork is a length and a half in the lead! Waxwork slides over to the rail—can you hear that splashing in your radio horn? These babies are not mud hens, you can see that!

Feet flying out at all angles—look at them wallowing past us! There they go—and cruising 'round the first turn—Waxwork has better footing and he's stretching his lead as they're rounding the bend—they are bouncing like rocking horses — AND WAXWORK IS LEADING FRANKIE BOY BY TWO LENGTHS AT THE QUARTER DISTANCE! . . .

Kinda misty over yonder—they're sloshing into the back stretch—and Jockey Winter's face and silks are slathered with mud and slime. . . . Every yard splashes up a new coat of mud from the slipping hoofs of Waxwork. . . . The crowd is yelling, but its pretty hard to urge horses on in this weather. . . . Jockey Kershaw is getting better control over there on the back stretch—yep, he's coming up. . . . Frankie Boy is swimming up toward Waxwork—he's gaining—he's gaining—a length and a half behind, galumphing through the mire . . . he's getting close, getting closer to Waxwork. . . . FRANKIE BOY IS TRAILING WAXWORK ONLY BY A LENGTH AT THE HALF DISTANCE. . . .

They seem to be learning how and they're moving a little faster now. . . . Waxwork on the rail, plowing through the mud and water, as they hit the turn. . . . Look at 'em sail around that curve. . . . AND FRANKIE BOY IS INCHING UP—INCHING UP ON THE TURN—KERSHAW'S BOOTIN' HIM HOME—THE HORSES' LEGS ARE SLIDING APART—and here they come swerving into the home stretch. . . . And they'll come squushing toward us. . . . Frankie Boy creeping closer and breaking down the lead—BOY, he's MOVING NOW. . . . FRANKIE BOY ONLY A HALF LENGTH BEHIND AT THE THREE-QUARTER POLE.

Red Kershaw, up on Frankie Boy, is as black as a coal miner. . . . FRANKIE BOY'S OVERTAKING WAXWORK!—here they come!—jockeys close together now, and they look as tho' they were flaying each other with the whips. . . . NECK AND NECK THEY ARE. . . .

COMING HOME. . . . COMING ON. . . . Look at 'em—FRANKIE BOY UP WITH WAXWORK. . . . NECK AND NECK. . . . Here they are out here. . . . FRANKIE DIVES AHEAD AND HE HOLDS HIS FOOTING. . . . THERE THEY GO. . . . FRANKIE BOY WINS BY A NECK FROM WAXWORK!

The Chicago Tribune Station on the Drake Hotel

416.4 Meters—720 Kilocycles SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 24

The Children's Concert . . 5:30

ORDINARILY children and Sunday just don't get along. But the W-G-N Symphony Orchestra gets together each Sunday afternoon and spends half an hour playing nice, live music picked especially to amuse children. And for that half hour Pat Barnes forgets his dignified self and becomes a kid. He discusses the pieces and their composers, telling what kind of men they were and where they lived. For variety, Eleanor Jewett, who knows all about pictures, will tell you about a painting in today's roto section called "Adobe and Snow." It's a delightful picture of an Indian on his horse and his mud house behind him. Irving K. Manoir painted it. And the Funny Paper—Uncle Quin will read it, all eight pages, beginning at noon.

AND the mood changes to the mighty fullness of a symphony orchestra. It changes again; this time to a rollicking comedy, discarding the serious mask and lifting the corners of its mouth in mirth. Then another swift swerve in mood to the impatient tempo of the colorful African dance. No matter what you ask of a "dance" orchestra you will hear played by Jean Goldkette and his W-G-N Dance Orchestra. 3:30 . . . 10:05 . . . 10:45 . . . 11:35.

UPTOWN TO HAVE FAIR TO BOOST MONUMENT FUND

Lions Club Is Arranging Event for April 8-13.

Committees for the Uptown Trade exposition, to be held April 8 to 13 under the auspices of the Uptown Lions club, have been announced by Edward C. Carlton, president of the club. Proceeds of the exposition, which will be held in the Broadway armory, will go into the fund for the world war memorial which the club will erect in 1930 on the triangular plot of ground at the intersection of Broadway, Sheridan road, and Montrose avenue.

E. C. Harrell has been named general chairman of the exposition and Walter E. Schneider will be treasurer. The reception committee is composed of R. M. Rickert, chairman; Frank G. Haggerty, Lee K. Glynn, Dr. Bruce L. Stocking, Dr. Roland A. Weber, Emil Maass, Jack G. Storey, and Thomas G. Lundgren.

Other Committees Named.

Harry C. Meek is chairman of the booths committee, assisted by Carl Johnson, Fred C. Klein and Emil Frank. The organizations committee is composed of D. H. Lyall, chairman; Mr. Harrell, Mr. Carlton and Mr. Meek; M. R. Pollack is chairman of the publicity committee, assisted by Robert W. Simpson and W. O. Gundlach, and John P. Keating is chairman of the "Miss Uptown" committee.

The attractions will include a musical revue by 30 professional performers, a style show, public wedding, election of "Miss Uptown" and a specialty act on each of the six nights. The organizations committee is canvassing north side clubs and societies enlisting their coöperation in the exposition.

Fund Already Started.

A resolution for the establishment of the monument to be known as the Uptown war memorial was adopted by the club on Nov. 15 and since that time the memorial committee, of which Mr. Meek is chairman have been making plans for raising funds. The first event to aid the fund was a benefit boxing show, sponsored by the club last month. Other members of the committee are Lisle C. Hart, Dr. Stocking, Mr. Klein and Mr. Storey, designer of the monument.

The monument will consist of a shaft on which is mounted a miniature airplane, while on three faces of the base will be figures of a soldier and a marine in action and a sailor standing at attention. The plot on which the memorial will be erected has been donated by the city, and the Lincoln Park board has guaranteed perpetual care of the ground.

Cash Prizes for Amateur Photographs

Amateur camera artists may now see their favorite efforts printed in the Metropolitan section of The Tribune. Every week The Tribune will pay $5 for the best photograph taken by an amateur. It will pay $3 for the second best and $2 for the third.

Pictures should be taken in the Chicago area and home scenes will be given the preference. Send in that snapshot of Mary playing with her toys or grandpa sitting by the fire smoking his pipe, of Tom and Jack and their snow man.

Address all entries to Photo Contest, Metropolitan Section of The Tribune. The name and address of the photographer should be written plainly on the back of the print as well as the names of all persons in the picture.

The contest is open only to amateurs and the editor will be final judge. Theme, treatment, and clearness of the print all will be taken into consideration. No pictures will be returned.

LUTHERAN BODY CELEBRATES 15TH ANNIVERSARY

The fifteenth anniversary of the Ascension Lutheran church, Lincoln street and Cornelia avenue, will be celebrated today with a special service at 11 a. m.

The Rev. E. O. Wannagat, pastor, is in charge of festivities. He is the third pastor at the church since its organization in 1912.

The Rev. H. H. Hanson was the first pastor. He was succeeded in 1914 by the Rev. C. E. Derr, who was active pastor until 1924, when the Rev. Wannagat took charge.

Under the leadership of these three pastors Ascension church has enjoyed consistent progress. The large membership is unusually active. Large attendance is reported every Sunday, and at the mid-week Lenten services conducted every Wednesday.

Interior Wins First Prize in Photo Contest

First prize of $5 in The Tribune's contest for amateur photographers of the north side was awarded this week to Howard Graebke, 6124 North Rockwell street, for his picture of F. C. Graebke napping over The Sunday Tribune. The second prize, $3, went to Dr. R. T. Sugars, 4503 North Oakley avenue, for "Friendly Enemies" (below). A picture of Marguerite and Holt Jamieson out for a ride, made by Mrs. C. W. Jamieson, 403 West Lake street, Libertyville, won the third prize of $2.

HONOR MEDALS GIVEN STUDENTS BY LEGION POST

American Legion medals have been presented at three schools by North Shore post No. 21 to students selected by their classmates and teachers as having the requisite qualifications.

Theodore Hoffman and Martha Hoyne of the Stockton Junior High school, Henry Cottrell and Lily F. Jacobson of the Trumbull school, and Joseph H. Leviton and Marjorie I. Dreyer of the Pierce school were those singled out for honors.

Courage, service, scholarship, leadership and honor for the boys and character and companionship for the girls—were the qualities considered in making the awards.

H. T. Huber, senior vice commander of the post, and Mrs. D. H. Passell, president of the auxiliary unit, presented the medals at Stockton Junior High school last Thursday afternoon. On Thursday also Mrs. M. L. Heidelberg of the auxiliary and D. H. Passell of the post made the presentations at Trumbull.

L. T. O'Brien, past commander of the post, and Mrs. M. L. Heidelberg presented the medals at the Pierce school on Friday.

Similar awards are presented twice a year throughout the state under the direction of E. P. Hayes of 596 Hawthorne place, Chicago, chairman of the state committee.

Win Traffic Policeman for Lincoln and Belmont

Ald. William H. Feigenbutz [45th] reports that arrangements have been made for the stationing of a traffic policeman at the intersection of Lincoln, Belmont and Ashland avenues. Ald. Feigenbutz and business men of the district have been attempting to get a policeman for the corner for months, but inasmuch as the intersection is the dividing line between the North Robey, Town Hall and Sheffield police districts, the location had been termed "No Man's land," because neither of the stations would consent to giving up its men for continuous duty there.

LAKE VIEW PLAYERS STAGE FIRST DRAMA FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

"The Torch Bearers," George Kelly's three act farce, will be presented by the Lake View Community players at the Atheneum theater, Southport, Lincoln, and Wellington avenues, Friday and Saturday.

ALFRED STURY.

This is the first production of the recently formed organization. The Lake View players are banded together in a civic group for the purpose of presenting plays of a high caliber.

Miss Luceba C. Lobdell, who has acted with various amateur groups and is noted in the community for her readings, plays the rôle of Mrs. J. Duro Pampinelli, the central figure. Joseph E. Murphy, known through his work in local church presentations, playing the leading male rôle. Miss Evelyn Carlson will play the leading ingénue rôle.

Miss Ethel Jaynes, principal of Burley school, at Ashland and Barry avenues, is cast in an important rôle. Miss Karla Wimmler, Miss Blanche Simpson, and Miss Betty Diesel are the other women in the cast. Fred Bialk, Mick Zittenfield, Walter Glatz, Earl Jarvis, and E. P. Strass also play prominent rôles.

Alfred Stury, who studied in Munich under Max Reinhardt, is directing "The Torch Bearers." Leo A. Lerner is business manager of the organization.

Bateman P.-T. Luncheon.

The Parent-Teacher association of Newton Bateman school will have a foodcraft luncheon at 12:30 o'clock on Wednesday, at 1222 Wilson avenue.

STONE SCHOOL TO TRY OUT NEW TEACHING PLAN

At the last meeting of the Leander Stone school Parent-Teacher association, the members appropriated $80 to establish the Staunton method of individual instruction in the 5th and 6th grades of the school, 6239 North Leavitt street. The association hopes, Mrs. Charles Gregg, president said, that the system may be adopted in all of the grades. The board of education has not been able to install the system and consequently the association voted to finance the system in the two grades.

The system, members say, has been tried out in schools of Evanston for some time and has been declared highly successful. Educators have recognized it as the most highly scientific and effective method of teaching, in that each student progresses according to his or her ability and is neither hurried nor hampered. The system costs approximately $1.50 per student to operate.

Bateman P.-T. A. to Hold Card Party to Buy Radio

The Newton Bateman Parent-Teacher association will meet Wednesday noon at 1222 Wilson avenue, according to Mrs. Charles J. Wood, president. The meeting will be a benefit card party to raise funds for the radio which the association is purchasing for the school, 4220 North Richmond avenue. The committee in charge includes Mrs. Charlotte Blessing, Mrs. Elsie Spitzer, Mrs. Magdalene Tyson, and Mrs. Emily Tschappat.

Art Exhibit to Be Held by Stockton School Class

Children of the art class of Stockton Junior High school, 4430 Beacon street, will sponsor an "Art Day" program to be given in the assembly hall, Wednesday and Thursday afternoons. A playlet "The Louvre," under the direction of Miss Sybil Archibald, art teacher will be given. Proceeds of the entertainment will be used to buy pictures for the school building.

1929 OAK PARK TRUE TO IDEALS OF ITS FOUNDER

'Twas Kettlestrings Grove in Early Years.

BY ONEY FRED SWEET.

That the characteristics of "the largest village in the world" are not the result of mere chance may be gleaned by an afternoon's perusal of historical data contained in a niche of Scoville institute, Oak Park.

The Scoville institute—American Romanesque in style and built of bluish white limestone quarried in Lyons—though dedicated in 1888 when Oak Park had a population of only 3,907, has not been submerged architecturally by the Chicago suburb of the present with its 64,000 inhabitants. Nor has the modern trend of the village, caught in the swirl of a complex civilization, drifted away from the influences of which the substantial structure is a symbol.

There is at least one case in the institute that has lock and key. The young woman in charge was guarding its contents tenderly. Still, if I were interested in backgrounds and bygones, access to the fading, thin volumes would be permitted.

Outlined Hope for Institute.

Then I became interested in a small volume that the young woman had taken from the shelf. I was on the page that gave an account of the speech of James W. Scoville when he presented the institute building to the community:

"A young man from the east, after a weary tramp across the unbroken prairie, found shelter beneath the spreading branches of an old oak upon the spot where stands the building this day open for inspection. It is the result of my best efforts, and in the coming ages I doubt not that it will reveal to those who here assemble the purpose for which it was erected. . . . I hope and trust that it may have an elevating and refining influence upon all who may enter its walls and prove a blessing not only to this but future generations."

He had not hoped in vain. The books of the library association, already in existence, had been moved into the building at its opening. And as for future generations, the library today is said to be one of the most complete in the state, the circulation

LEADING LADY

MISS COLISTA LONG.
[Russell Photo.]

The Standard Bearers, an organization of girls of the Washington Boulevard Methodist Episcopal church, Washington and Austin boulevards, will give a play in the church parlors Friday evening, March 1. The skit, entitled "The Betty Wales Girls and Mr. Kidd," by Margaret Waide, is being directed by Mrs. B. McHenry.

Miss Colista Long will have the leading part. Other members of the cast are: Ruth Brunkow, Marjorie Lufkin, Juliette Kimball, Mabel Ravenscroft, Virginia Beecroft, Reva Kamper, Ruth Dickinson, Barbara Harris, Lenore Scharschug, and Helen Swaney.

Edgebrook Manor Paving Is Postponed for Year

An order directing the board of local improvements to defer for a period of one year proceedings to pave strets in Edgebrook Manor was passed by the city council last Monday. Ald. Thomas J. Bowler [41st] introduced the order following protests from residents of the district against the paving on the ground that they did not want it, did not need it at present, and that the petitions to the board requesting it were fraudulent.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs Anent the Passing Throng.

BY FRED PASLEY.

CHIEF OF POLICE CHARLES LEVY of Berwyn has submitted his annual report to the city council. It shows that during the 366 days of 1928 only one (1) murder was committed. It had nothing to do with the bootleg industry. It was committed during a theater holdup when the woman cashier was shot. The four men implicated are serving life sentences at Joliet penitentiary.

For the information of strangers and others in our midst, we should like to explain that Berwyn is a neighborhood entity of that Metropolitan Chicago one reads so much about in the papers. A ten cent ride on the L, forty minutes from the loop. Paved streets, telephones, radios, churches, schools, Boy Scouts, garden clubs, and everything. In fact, some of our best friends commute from there. Chief Levy polices this home owning—mostly—community of 47,000 people with 32 men. A ratio of one policeman to every 1,469 inhabitants.

We realize that easterners will think we're kidding—that there's no such place in Metropolitan Chicago as Berwyn—but we know it—we've even put it down on our projected Cook tours as exhibit A. We know it, and when the civic torch sputters and the "I Will" spirit bends—bends, mind you, but never breaks—under stress of such ordeal as the seven man massacre in North Clark street, we can retire Dad Dearborn to our own Bok sanctuary and with uplifted eyes and steadfast soul murmur into his drooping ear, "Yes, Daddy, there is a Berwyn."

IT occurs to the editor that here is the time and the place to remark that Dr. Sylvia Fiala Napper enjoys the distinction of being the first Bohemian-American dentist. She lives at 2757 West 22d street. There are now about 4,000 dentists in Chicago, of whom not more than 100 are women. So Our Town thinks it is meet they should be recognized. Anyway, Dr. Napper recently visited her farm in Kentucky and called at Bardstown, where Stephen Foster wrote "My Old Kentucky Home," and where Louis Philippe, king of France, when he was the exiled Orleans prince, had a stomach ache. Nobody now remembers the stomach ache, but everybody can whistle "My Old Kentucky Home." We wish they couldn't. But to get back to Dr. Napper's call. The aged custodian at the Foster shrine, when he learned the nature of her profession, read from a clipping that a Miss

LEWIS INSTITUTE CALLS SONS AND DAUGHTERS HOME

Varied Program Offered for 5-Day Reunion.

Graduates of former years will gather at Lewis institute, 1949 West Madison street, in a five day alumni reunion starting tomorrow morning. Each day will be devoted to a special group of graduates according to the years they received their diplomas, with a windup program for all the alumni.

Officers of the Lewis union, the alumni organization which is sponsoring the homecoming, are: President, Howard P. Savage, past national commander of the American Legion; vice president, Charlotte Bendix; secretary, Grace F. Hinchliff; executive board, Paul B. Juhnke, Craig B. Haglewood, and J. Hall Taylor.

Alumni classes between the years of 1921 and 1928, inclusive, are to meet tomorrow. Following the registration at 9 o'clock the old grads are to be escorted through the scenes of their former tussles with trigonometry, chemistry and other branches of learning. Luncheon will be served at 12 o'clock and a further tour of the classes will take place in the afternoon, with exhibits in home economics, metallurgy, engineering and other subjects as a special feature. The remainder of the day will be given over to educational motion pictures and lectures. Edwin Herbert Lewis, dean of the faculty, will formally welcome the alumni at 7:30 o'clock. Dancing in the gymnasium beginning at 9:30 o'clock will wind up the first day's program.

Second Day for 1916 to 1920.

Classes graduated from 1916 to 1920, inclusive, will meet on the second day. Headliners on the program include a basketball game at 3:30 o'clock in the gymnasium between Lewis and the American College of Physical Education. Inspection of classes, lectures by faculty members, and movies make up the remainder of the day's activities.

A lecture is to be given at 7:30 o'clock by John D. Nies, dean of engineering. At 8:30 o'clock a concert will be presented in the auditorium by Ilse Forster Gilbert and Ruth Bellinger, with Archer Farrell as accompanist, and the members of the Pipes of Pan club. The artists performing

H. J. Ruggles continues as manager of the chamber.

Following the entertainment Mr. Ruggles left for Springfield, where he joined with south side civic associations in a movement to obtain the passage of a bill before the legislature in the interest of the Calumet harbor project.

NORTHWESTTOWN BODY MAPS DRIVE FOR 150 MEMBERS

The revival of the Northwesttown Business Men's association last week is not to stop with the election of officers, according to Howard I. Wells, president, but is to start immediately on an intensive membership campaign preparatory to working ou a program of improvement for the district.

The group of thirty-five met for the first time in two years last Wednesday and resolved to approach merchants on North avenue between Lawndale and and Keeler avenues in an attempt to get 150 members within the next few weeks.

West Town Forum Stages Ibsen Play on Wednesday

The High Prairie Trail chapter of Awaken," will be presented by the West Town forum at the Goodman theater Wednesday night. The performance will close the 1928-'29 season of the forum's activity. Mrs. Margaret Sanger, who was scheduled to address the forum on "Birth Control and the Present Generation" tonight, has canceled her engagement on account of illness.

Elmhurst College Glee Club Entertains Today

The Elmhurst College Glee club, Elmhurst, under the direction of John C. Minnema, will present its first annual home concert in the Elmhurst college gymnasium Tuesday evening.

133 GROUPS, ALL SORTS, ENLIST FOR BUS FIGHT

Start Tomorrow, Battle On Till April.

One hundred thirty-three west side organizations will join forces with the Chicago West Town Chamber of Commerce and the Northwest Federation of Improvement clubs tomorrow to fight for feeder buses for the north-west side.

Representatives of civic, social, and educational groups will appear on the witness stand in the hearing before the Illinois commerce commission, and it is expected that their testimony will continue well into April.

The first of thirty-three organizations under the leadership of the chamber of commerce will be represented on the stand tomorrow morning, their testimony continuing through the month, after which men from 100 groups under the auspices of the federation of improvement clubs will appear.

These Groups Aid Fight.

Included in the chamber's thirty-three west side bodies which will give the evidence will be the Roosevelt Road Commercial association, Garfield Park club, West Town Active club, South Cicero Avenue Business association, West Division Street Business Men's association, West Chicago Avenue Improvement club, West Center Lions club, Northwest Civic federation, North Austin Manor Neighborhood club.

O. W. Holmes, president of the improvement club federation and an attorney, will question witnesses.

The 100 groups which will follow the chamber's thirty-three include Lions clubs, Kiwanis clubs, parent-teacher associations, and independent groups of women. The latter have given valuable aid to the cause, according to Mr. Holmes.

Fifty Resolutions Voted.

In addition to these, 50 other organizations, foremost of which is the Northwest Real Estate board under the leadership of George C. Eckhoff, have adopted resolutions supporting the movement to obtain feeder buses.

The federation is convinced that the Chicago Surface lines are willing to operate feeder buses if the commerce commission gives them the right, Mr. Holmes said.

1929 OAK PARK TRUE TO IDEALS OF ITS FOUNDER

'Twas Kettlestrings Grove in Early Years.

of its books exceeding a quarter of a million a year. Cultured clubs have made its halls their meeting place through the years—the Chautauqua circle, the G. A. R., the Nineteenth Century club.

Watched Growth from Two Houses.

The pioneer founder of the institute had seen many changes come to the village. Two houses in the locality when he had arrived, and "he had lived to see the Oak Park postoffice serve a population of more than 13,000," with churches and schools and society halls meeting the eye at every turn.

James W. Scoville, I discovered, had taken special satisfaction in planning schemes that required years for fruition. He was what was termed "long headed." Though a mathematician, the poets were his favorite authors.

It was the mathematician who, in 1854, bought 160 acres just east of Oak Park avenue. There was no figure given as to what he paid. Probably considerably more than Joseph Kettlestrings, Oak Park's first settler, who paid $1.25 an acre. W. B. Ogden assured Mr. Scoville that the land would some day go to $500 an acre. It did.

I have forgotten where I read this phrase in the library, "Wealth ends with life; character is immortal." But it was somewhere in the data concerning Oak Park's pioneers.

Another motive besides the beauty of the landscape is attributed to Joseph Kettlestring's decision to be Oak Park's first settler. There was not a vestige of civilization to greet this pioneer's eye in 1833, but when the land was opened for preëmption he purchased a quarter section on the ridge because it was "the only dry land" between Chicago—itself then just an outpost—and the Aux Plaines [Des Plaines] river.

'Twas Kettlestrings' Grove.

"Kettlestrings' Grove" would probably have been difficult for the required quick pronunciation of "L" guards, but it was the community's first name, and there is a tablet near Scoville institute that will keep alive the memory of its owner, no matter how thoughtless and hurrying the throngs of coming generations.

It was Mr. Kettlestrings who saw to it that the new town had a schoolhouse. He donated a site for the purpose and he saw "that the best teachers should be hired and that the school should become an inducement to homeseekers."

And on Sundays the little schoolhouse was used as a place of worship. And when the building was abandoned for these purposes, it became Temperance hall.

I was told by Oak Parkers that it is the churches and schools that have been the two most important factors in contributing to its growth.

The town of Kettlestrings and his fellow pioneers points to recent statistics which indicate that the total number of illiterates in Oak Park is only 161, or less than one-half of 1 per cent of the population. The curriculum of Oak Park and River Forest Township High school, it is added, is so thorough that credits are acceptable to practically every university in the country.

Recalls Early Church.

Mrs. P. J. Kester, 217 South Harvey street, who was born in Oak Park in 1856 and whose father, Christian Schaubel, once owned a fourteen acre farm that went the subdivision route, says one of her most vivid girlhood impressions is of the Union church.

"At first," she says, "persons of all denominations crowded there, later to launch churches of their own. Church people came early to the community from all over Chicago. And many retired ministers. The various churches aided each other in pioneer days and that spirit of coöperation still exists when there are so many fine edifices."

Among the original members of that Union Ecclesiastical society are to be found the names of the Scovilles, O. W. Herrick, H. W. Austin, M. C. Niles, E. O. Gale, Samuel Dunlop and J. W. Kettlestrings. The church was nonsectarian in character but its creed was evangelical and its affiliation was Congregational.

Austin Wiped Out Saloons.

It was one of this group—Henry W. Austin Sr.—who, in 1873, arranged with the village board to dispose of the three saloons then in existance in the village. Mr. Austin, with the assurance that no new licenses would be issued, bought the three saloons, their stocks and fixtures, and held an auction sale of the furniture. Some of the early residents are said still to possess pieces of the furniture in their homes today.

The year 1871 saw matters assume a settled shape in Oak Park, according to one historian, but John Lewis in his "Chapters of Oak Park History," recalls that up until 1882 there were no paved streets, no sewers, no water supply, no street railways and no public improvements of any kind.

Public improvements seem to have dated from 1882. Citizens began to seek home rule. Following the lead of other communities, notably Berwyn and Hawthorne, Oak Park sought disconnection from the town of Cicero. At the end of spirited political strife, the village government was inaugurated in 1902.

Review Recalls Oldtimers.

A valuable little volume in the historical niche at Scoville institute, "Halley's Pictorial Review," links the past up to the time of its publication in 1898 when Oak Park's population was 8,740.

Halley tells of all the oldtimers, including Reuben Whaples, who built a log cabin just west of Harlem avenue in 1845, and a tornado, we glean, scattered the house and its possessions over the prairie. He recalls John Henry Quick of Harlem, N. Y., who engaged early in the subdivision game; Augustin Porter, "a public spirited man with an expansive mind, who exercised a beneficial influence in his day"; Amos Squire Pack, who conducted the postoffice under the name of Noyesville; Samuel Dunlop, "held in esteem by all who knew him"; Dr. R. M. Lackey, "possessor of strong sympathies and many friends"; T. Andrew Vogt, "no better known man in Oak Park of early days"; Milton Cleveland Niles, "a liberal patron of social and religious movements"; Elijah W. Hoard, "a splendid neighbor"; Dr. Orin Peak, "Oak Park's first physician"; Origen W. Herrick, "who taught school for five years, served as postmaster and a member of the town board."

Mr. Halley's booklet then comes down to the Oak Park of the time—Spanish-American war year. Among the advertisements are those of Congleton & Abbott, "the popular livery and boarding stables"; William S. Johnston & Sons, giving special attention to "carriage repairing, trimming, and painting"; and Wright Elsom Jr., "best facilities in Oak Park for storage of bicycles."

Schools and Churches Keep Pace.

Many a mile of paving has been laid in Oak Park since those days and many an automobile—replacing the bicycle and the carriage—has whizzed over them. Many an apartment building has sprung up in the village. But the new churches and schools have kept pace.

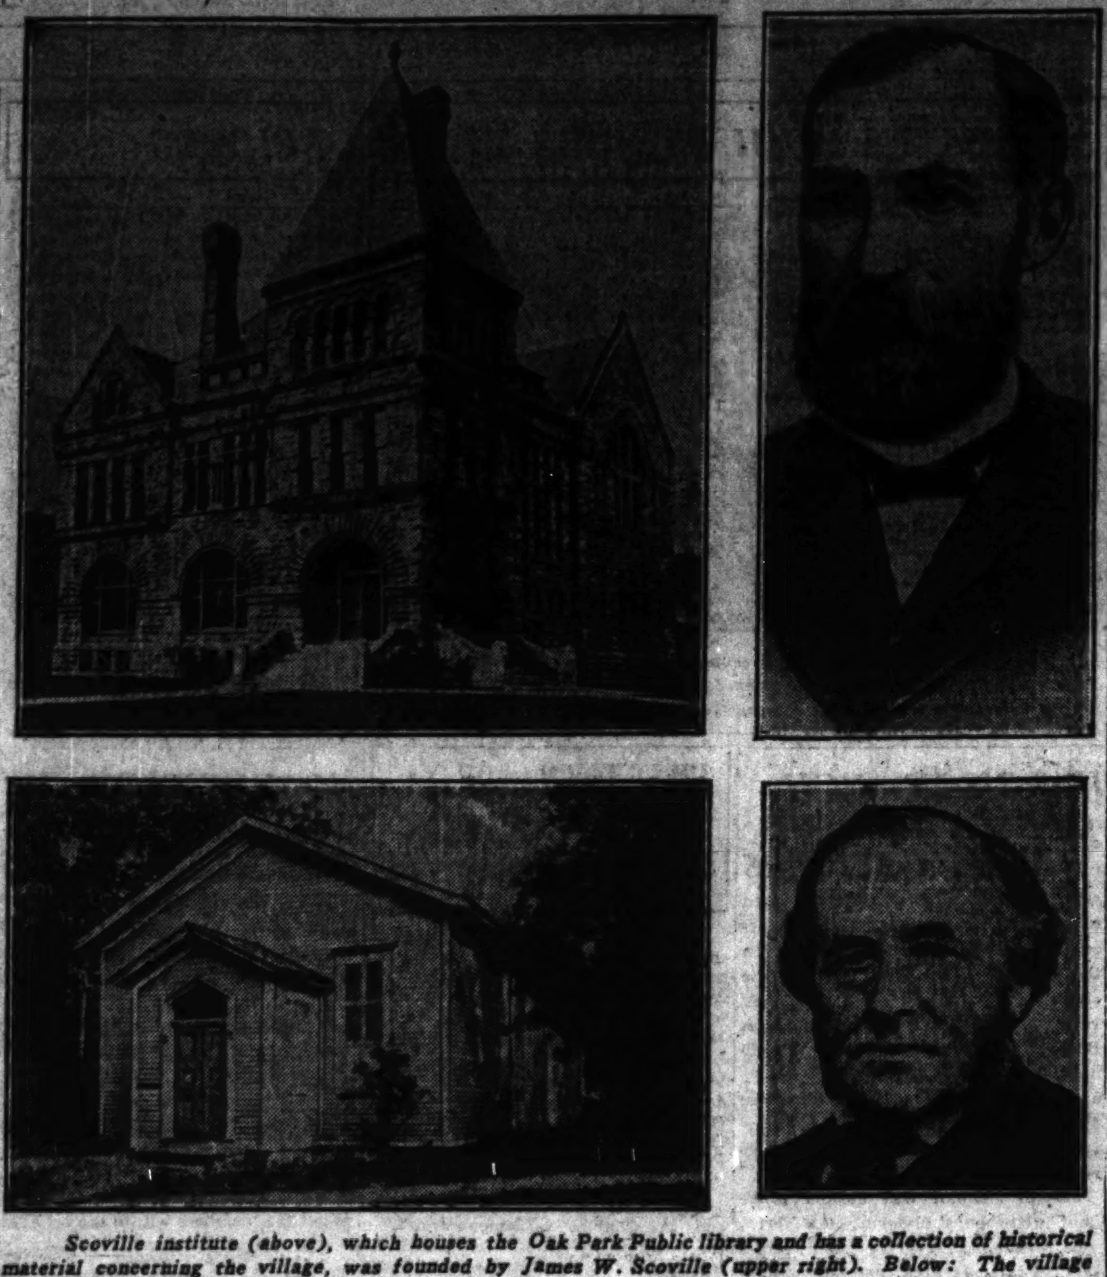
Back in 1848 when James W. Scoville paused on the elevated spot where the institution now stands—an unsubmerged landmark—and, while resting under the shade of a fine oak tree, was struck by the classic beauty of the landscape, it is hardly probable that, even with his "long headedness," he visualized the Oak Park of today.

"Elevating and refining influences" were what he sought for the community, however, and the substance of these qualities is not subject to change.

The young woman, turning the key again in the lock of the case containing historical data in a niche of Scoville institute, asked me what I had found, particularly.

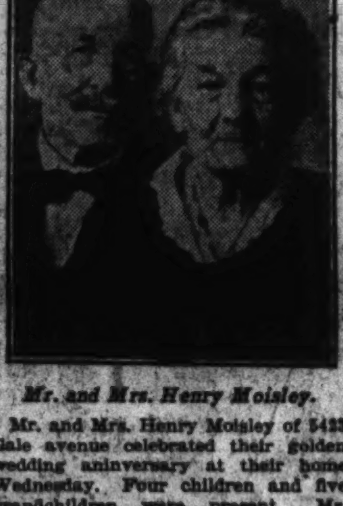
I told her it seemed to me that Oak Park had been particularly wise in picking the proper persons for its pioneers.

FIGURES IN OAK PARK'S PIONEER DAYS



Scoville institute (above), which houses the Oak Park Public library and has a collection of historical material concerning the village, was founded by James W. Scoville (upper right). Below: The village suburb's first church and school building, later known as Temperance hall, and Joseph Kettlestrings, first settler.

ENDURING LOVE



Mr. and Mrs. Henry Moisley.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Moisley of 5423 Gale avenue celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at their home Wednesday. Four children and five grandchildren were present. Mr. Moisley was born 77 years ago at a farmhouse at the intersection of two toll roads, Milwaukee and Elston avenues. Mrs. Moisley was born on the high seas 72 years ago en route from Germany. They have lived at their present address forty-five years. Mr. Moisley was pensioned by the Chicago and Northwestern railroad seven years ago after serving thirty-five years.

Answers

Following are the answers to quotations previously published:

Quotation—Father, I cannot tell a lie. I did it with my little hatchet.

Answer—Of all the biographers of George Washington [1732-1799], the Rev. Mason L. [Parson] Weems is the only one who credits Washington with the above saying. In Weems' "Life of Washington," [1806] the cherry tree story familiar to all Americans is said to have come from an aged lady who was a cousin of George and as a girl spent much of her time in the family.

"When George," she said, "was about six years old, he was made the wealthy master of a hatchet, of which like most little boys, he was immoderately fond, and was constantly going about chopping everything that came in his way. One day, in the garden, where he often amused himself hacking his mother's pea sticks, he unluckily tried the edge of his hatchet on the body of a beautiful young English cherry tree, which he barked so terribly, that I don't believe the tree ever got the better of it. The next morning the old gentleman, finding out what had befallen his tree, which, by the by, was a great favorite, came into the house; and with much warmth asked for the mischievous author, declaring, at the same time, that he would not have taken five guineas for his tree. Nobody could tell him anything about it. Presently George and his hatchet made their appearance.

"'George,' said his father, 'do you know who killed that beautiful little cherry tree yonder in the garden?' This was a tough question; and George staggered under it for a moment, but quickly recovered himself, and looking at his father, with the sweet face of youth brightened with the inexpressible charm of all-conquering truth, he bravely cried out:

"'I can't tell a lie, pa; you know I can't tell a lie. I did cut it with my little hatchet.'"—Rene Keller, 466 Hawthorne, Glen Ellyn, Ill.

Answer—This cannot tell a lie incident is a brazen piece of fiction made up by the Rev. Mason L. Weems. Weems was a myth maker. An example is the history which he published of himself. He may have preached once to a congregation in which Washington sat. Later he described himself as rector of Mount Vernon parish, when no such parish ever existed. There was a Truro parish of which the church was called Pohick or Mount Vernon church. Washington was a vestryman of this church until 1785 when he moved his membership to Alexandria church. The Rev. Lee Massey was the pastor of both churches.

Weems in his biography had no trouble with Washington's public life but was thrown on his own resources for facts concerning the boyhood days. —G. N. Wells, 2607 Elmwood avenue, Berwyn, Ill.

Quotation—To be prepared for war is one of the most effectual means of preserving peace.

Answer — This phrase which still holds good today was said by President Washington in his first annual address to both houses of congress. The address was delivered on Jan. 8, 1790. After referring to the recent adoption of the constitution by North Carolina Washington went on:

"Among the many interesting objects which will engage your attention, that of providing for the common defense will merit particular regard. To be prepared for war is one of the most effectual means of preserving peace.

"A free people ought not only to be armed, but disciplined, to which end a uniform and a well digested plan is requisite; and their safety and interest require, that they should promote such manufactories as tend to render them independent of others for essential, particularly for military, supplies." — V. Wlodek, 2330 South 58th avenue, Cicero, Ill.

Quotation — First in war, first in peace, first in the hearts of his countrymen.

Answer—On Dec. 26, 1799, twelve days after Washington's death, Col. Henry Lee of Virginia arose before both houses of congress and delivered the funeral oration which contains these memorable words. The phrase also appears in the resolutions on Washington's death written by Col. Lee and presented in the house by John Marshall. According to some authorities the term "fellow citizens" was used by Lee instead of "fellow countrymen."

The paragraph in which the words occur was as follows: "First in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen, he was second to none in the humble and endearing scenes of private life. Pious, just, humane, temperate and sincere; uniform, dignified and commanding, his example was as edifying to all around him as were the effects of that example lasting."

Col. Lee, the father of Robert E. Lee, famous confederate general, was one of the youngest and most brilliant leaders of patriot troops in the Revolutionary war. He was commander of a squadron of light cavalry known as "Lee's Legion." His dashing exploits in scouting and harrying the British won him the nickname of "Lighthorse Harry" and a gold medal from congress.

After Cornwallis' surrender at Yorktown, Lee retired from the army. In 1789 he was elected to the Virginia legislature and two years later became governor. In 1794 Washington sent him to suppress the whisky insurrection in Pennsylvania. He was a member of congress when Washington died and was chosen to deliver the funeral oration.

Lee again retired to private life in 1801. In the war of 1812 he was commissioned a major general, but was prevented from taking the field by a wound suffered in a Baltimore political riot. He died in 1818.—Mrs. Dora Reese, Grayville, Ill.

PARK DISTRICTS VOTE TUESDAY ON 47 ENTRANTS

Two to Be Named for Each of Five Boards.

Forty-seven candidates are in the race for commissioners of the five west side park districts, according to John S. Rusch, chief clerk of the board of election commissioners. Two are to be named in each district at the election Tuesday.

A large number of platforms are represented by the candidates, particularly in the Northwest Park district, the largest of the minor districts.

"Honesty, efficiency, and lower taxes" are being sought by Harry J. Kaminski and Julian Strzyzewski, while John Schwabe differs slightly in that he promises "honesty, economy, and lower taxes."

Other Candidates and Platforms.

"Lower park taxes" has been the campaign slogan of Oscar T. Nelson, Norman H. Hansen, William A. Schlupp, and John J. Daley. Albert E. Bennett and William C. Thorsen are after "more playgrounds" and A. E. Olson and Frank M. Kalteux are campaigning simply under the designation of "Republicans."

Wallace A. Nelson, Walter C. Lange, and Thomas O. Lee declare that they are "nonpartisans," while John Rader seeks election on a platform of "equal justice to all." William J. Pierce promises to give the community "improved parks."

Of the twelve candidates for commissioners of Jefferson Park, four are designated as "nonpartisans." They are M. J. Marinello, Otto E. Gerski, John J. King, and Charles E. Kost, while Clarence O. Milner, Julian Kaczanowski, Arthur Anderson, and Edward H. Krause are "citizens' nonpartisan" candidates. Arthur C. Naumann and Charles W. Kirschner represent the "property owners' organization," and Abner G. Erickson and Wenzel J. Wiese are after "lower park taxes."

Irving Park Candidates.

Seven candidates seek the two positions as commissioners of the Irving Park district. Merrill J. Moffatt, John E. Smith, Bernard A. Rooney, Paul H. Schleir, and James W. Hamilton are designated as "nonpartisans" and Roman V. Wandrowski is the candidate of the "citizens' nonpartisan" group. Walter E. Ryan is campaigning with the slogan "justice to all."

Five of Norwood Park district's seven candidates are "nonpartisans." Carl R. Peterson, John N. Chapman, Isaac S. Shirey, Walter F. Helwig, and Leonard H. Miller are on that ticket. "Taxation with equal representation" is the cry of John G. Krieter, while Rudolph C. Radkopf wants "economical improvements."

Robert H. Puleston represents the "taxpayers' party" in his campaign for commissioner of Edison Park. James E. Krum and William J. Stark are nonpartisans, Alexander Sauter seeks "lower park taxes," and Mathias F. Pers promises "better parks."

Boy Patrol Dons Sam Browne Belts

Sam Browne belts, such as are being obtained for members of all schoolboy safety patrols in Chicago, were presented this week to the patrol of Hammond school, 21st street and California avenue. VOICE of the WEST SIDE

LIKES HISTORICAL ARTICLES.

Chicago, Feb. 16.—It is seldom that I take time to write to the newspapers, for two reasons: First, my letters are usually thrown into the wastebasket; second, when they are printed nothing is ever done as a result of my efforts. However, this time I'm writing hoping against hope that my epistle will find a place in your columns.

Please print a little more topical news in your Metropolitan section and fewer articles that might have appeared any time within the last five years. And please print more historical articles—stories having to do with the early days in our city. Now that I've had my say I shall return to the background and ponder on the chances of my letter being published. H. S.

TWO HOLLYWOODS.

Hollywood, Ill., Feb. 20.—I trust you will note my letter comes from the Chicago suburb served by your Metropolitan section rather than from the movie colony. In this connection I wish to say that our Hollywood was in existence before the California town came into being. We were not named after the latter as persons often infer. My grievance, however, has to do with the recent naming of a Chicago community as Hollywood Park. It seems to me there are enough names to go around without such a similarity that very likely will be confusing in the matter of mail delivery. R. A. W.

OAK PARK LOOP

WEST SIDE SHOPPERS SHOULD KNOW OAK PARK!
WHERE YOU HAVE NO PARKING PROBLEMS

Progressive Oak Park merchants now offer you better values than ever before.

The biggest and best of Chicago's Loop merchants are already established in Oak Park with their wide selections of merchandise and values. Others are following their lead, and, joining with progressive local merchants, are making it possible for west side and suburban shoppers to obtain Loop service without its attendant parking problems and transportation difficulties.

OAK PARK CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

MAYWOOD LAYS PLANS TO "CURE" ITS SORE SPOTS

Trees to Hide Madison Street Dump.

An effort to "cure" the sore spots in Maywood was made at a meeting of the Maywood Chamber of Commerce on Monday night. Matters touched upon by the speakers included the village dump at Madison street and the Des Plaines river, the smoothing out of Maywood streets, an incinerator for the village, and proposed zoning changes along Washington boulevard.

Highway Commissioner T. J. Lynch declared Maywood the best located village either east or west of the Des Plaines river.

Best Water in U. S.

"Maywood," said Mr. Lynch, "is about ready to come into its own. She has the best water of any town in the United States. There are churches of all denominations here and the schools are of the best. Transportation is good.

"I feel there is a wonderful future for Maywood. There must be zoning for more people to come to Maywood to bring more business. Washington boulevard, from First avenue west, should have apartments. There are also too many business districts for Maywood's population."

Village Trustee N. A. Aimer said that when Madison street from the river to First avenue is paved in the spring, trees and shrubbery would go in also and the front view of the dump, at least, would not be unsightly. He stated that he had made efforts to get billboard companies interested in the spot to shut off the unsightly view. He said that merchants, under the cover of night, hauled in decaying fruits and vegetables and dumped them just over the curb to decay. He stressed the needs of an incinerator.

School Principal to Help.

Mrs. W. H. Wright declared that bringing strangers into Maywood by Madison street was like using the basement way or back door entrance to the home in receiving guests. "Do away with the back doors of your community," she urged.

W. C. Robb, Proviso High school principal, said the school would do its share in making Madison a good looking street. He predicted that the high school enrollment would double during the next seven years, and he told of plans being drawn for an auditorium seating 5,000 persons, additional class rooms and an athletic field.

It was the longest chamber of commerce meeting held in Maywood in recent years.

COUNCIL RACERS OF 39TH WARD EXPLAIN AIMS

Seven candidates for alderman of the 39th ward solicited the votes of more than 500 men and women at Falconer school, 3000 North Lamon avenue, last Monday night. The nonpartisan review of aldermanic candidates was sponsored by the Central Northwest Busines association.

Ald. Frank A. Ringa asked to be reelected because of his service during the last four years. Frank J. Reilly, who has the indorsement of the Municipal Voters' league, was not present.

Frank R. W. Schmidtke, president of the 39th Ward Federation of Improvement clubs said he would "represent the people and not any individual interests." William A. Koreyo told the gathering that he would cast his vote in the council against graft and political corruption. John Kowalski briefly stated his record in civic affairs and declared he had no political affiliations or obligations.

A "business administration" would be introduced in the city hall by him, Gustave A. Hines said. If elected, he promised, a monthly public statement of account would be made to the voters, thus leaving no room for padded pay rolls or graft.

Leo Winiecki, former commissioner of public service, pointed to his long experience in public office as a qualification for alderman.

Raymond T. O'Keefe, director of organization for the business group, presided.

BRIGHTER LIGHTS PROPOSED FOR OAK PARK AREA

Street lights by which one can read a newspaper are desired by Oak Park business men since a delegation visited Kenosha last week, where such a system has recently been installed. Plans and estimates for installing a powerful street lighting system in the Lake-Marion-Wisconsin-Harlem district of the village are now being prepared by the Business Men's association.

The village will coöperate in obtaining the improvement, according to Paul E. Zimmerman, president of the business group. Large stores which have recently come to Oak Park have also pledged their support.

Italian War Ace Talks to the Park Ridge P.-T. Assn.

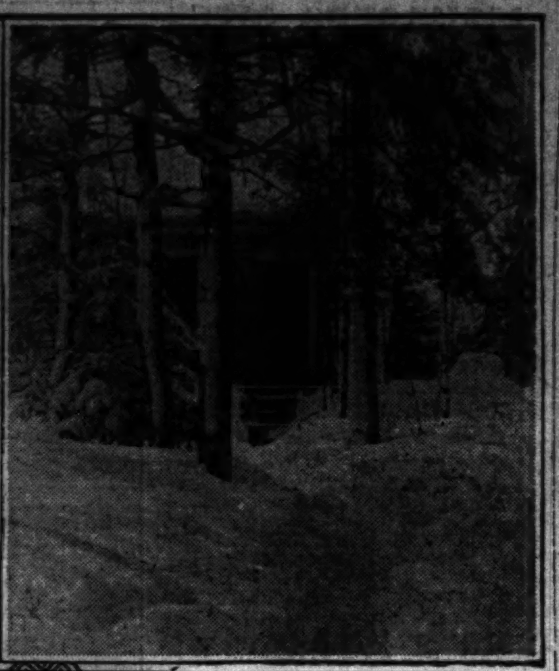
"The Brotherhood of Man" was the subject of an address given by Capt. Ernesto Melanti, a noted Italian flyer who gained his reputation as an ace during the war, at a meeting of the Park Ridge Parent-Teacher association last Monday afternoon at Jorgenson hall, Park Ridge.

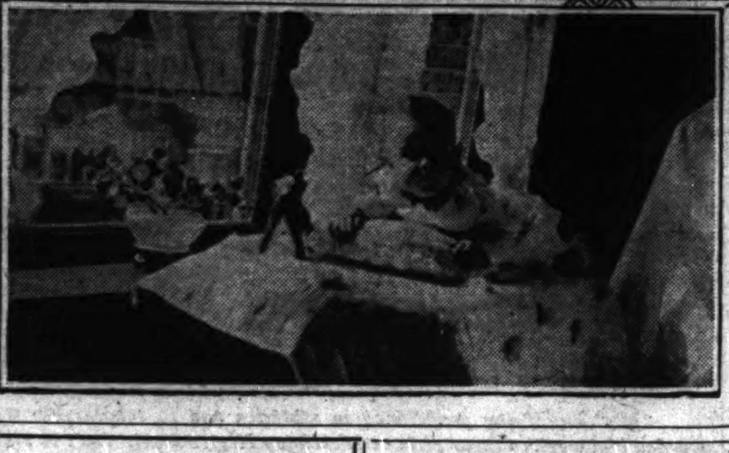
The grammar school band presented two numbers and pupils of the third and sixth grades were led in songs by Miss Spannenbarger, director of music at the school.

Fathers of Edison Park to Learn Scout Work

Parents of Boy Scouts of Edison Park will no longer be unversed in the indoor and outdoor activities of Scouts. A training class for fathers of Boy Scouts is being organized by the Edison Park Methodist church. Ferdinand Pribinow, who will conduct the course, has been scout executive for six years.

DAVID AND GO-GO WIN A PRIZE





The first prize of $5 in The Tribune's contest for amateur photographers of the west side was awarded this week to Harvey Jellies, 765 Euclid avenue, Glen Ellyn, for his picture of David Allan Jellies and his dog Go-Go. "Snow from the North," by Mrs. A. L. Hansen, 2521 North Fairfield avenue, won the second prize of $3. To "Laddie Boy," by Mrs. E. C. Cornell, 217 South 16th avenue, Maywood, was awarded the third prize of $2.

ESSAY WINNER

Ruth Rehr, a senior in Proviso High school and a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Rehr, 242 Des Plaines avenue, Forest Park, was the winner of the Lincoln essay contest, sponsored by the school and open to 265 seniors.

TOM POWERS AWARDED 1929 D. A. R. TROPHY FOR ESSAY ON CLARK

TOM POWERS.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Tom Powers, a senior at the Oak Park and River Forest Township High school, was declared the winner for 1929 in the annual contest for essays, held under the auspices of the George Rogers Clark chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. The award was announced with appropriate ceremonies at the high school on Thursday. The winner's subject was "The Work of George Rogers Clark in Relation to the Development of the United States."

Mrs. Alexander Sclander, regent of the chapter, presented the award. This carries with it the engraving of Tom's name on a cup which also carries the names of previous winners.

Those who received honorable mention were:

Genevieve Lewis—"The Inauguration of Washington."

Lydia Jones—"The Colossus of the Federalists."

Eleanor Walker—"The Importance of the American Frontier in the Development of America."

Marjorie Stolzenburg—"Patrick Henry."

Frank Norian—"Washington and the Constitution."

In 1918 the George Rogers Clark chapter instituted this essay contest, the purpose being to develop interest in the study of the revolutionary period of American history. The contest is open each year to all members of the senior class of Oak Park High school.

Each essay must be of about 2,000 words. The general subject for this year's contest was "Any person, event or phase of life during the period of making America." There were forty essays submitted.

The members of the patriotic education committee of George Rogers Clark chapter determined the winner. They are: Mrs. William Mathews, chairman; Mrs. L. B. Joslyn, Mrs. R. Pabodie, Mrs. A. C. Leebrick, and Mrs. William Drieske.

Curtis was practicing dentistry in London in 1758. That's that. Dr. Napper is past president of the ladies' auxiliary of the Bohemian Charitable association of Chicago, and we hope she and all her friends like this little item.

Mrs. Mark Christy, who used to live in Austin but now is living with her husband and son on a farm near Crown Point, Ind., won the husband calling contest conducted by the Lake county farm bureau, we learn. Mrs. Christy, who formerly sang in a church choir here, was an easy winner, the judges describing her as possessed of a powerful voice, and magnetic personality.

SERGT. Walter McGloon of the Cragin police station has been cited for gallantry and decorated with the title of doctor. The award was made during his attendance at the recent St. Elizabeth nurses' ball at the Edgewater Beach hotel. Sergt. McGloon was gliding easily about the polished surface of the ballroom floor when the dainty slipper of a lady dancer collided with his right shoe. "So sorry, Doctor," said the lady, as per partner lifted her clear of Sergt. McGloon's other shoe. "Don't mention it," laughed Sergt. McGloon. "Your little dogs can't fret me." There was more good natured bantering and for the rest of the evening the sergeant was known as Dr. McGloon.

Alfred Montrose, who has just purchased the Jefferson Park Paint and Wall Paper store at 4758 Milwaukee avenue, has a message for all better halves. "Wise housewives," he says, "have abandoned the idea of doing their papering and painting at one period of the year. Now they paint and redecorate a room at a time. This makes it possible for them to shut off the room in which the work is being done and keep the rest of the house clean. It eliminates chaos and promotes contentment in the family by preventing wear and tear on friend husband's temper."

Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Weisenborn of 1637 North Maplewood avenue yesterday celebrated their golden wedding anniversary with a dinner party at Kleven's hall, 3544 Palmer street. There were present some fifty friends and their two sons, William and Samuel, with their families. The Weisenborns have lived in Chicago for 38 years.

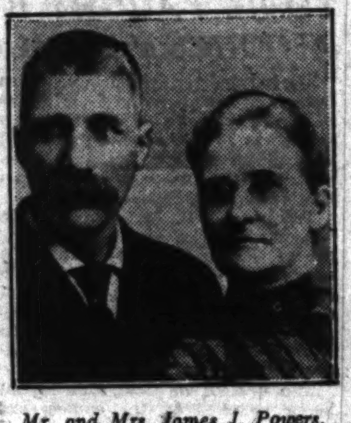
WE learn through our estimable fellow pressmen, James Keeley, of another boon offered to the traveling public by the Pullman company. By using an upper berth the passenger is enabled to travel farther for the same money. Walter D. Warren, a student at the Valley Ranch, Cody, Wyo., has figured it out mathematically. For example, between Billings and Chicago on the Northern Pacific, a distance of 1,323 miles, an upper berth travels about one foot four inches farther than a lower. It is, as the reader will readily understand, a matter of arcs and the polar and equatorial radii of the earth.

Sig. Berg of 5142 Concord place is so as to be around after his experience at the home of William Beyer, 1623 North Keeler avenue. They were playing pinochle and Mr. Berg was dealt thirteen spades and two aces—a perfect hand.

The popularity of Bill Cissell is again proved by the fact that the Bill Cissell club has been organized by 47 boys ranging in years from 10 to 16 in Jefferson Park. Marvin Hachmeister is president; Raymond Drechek, vice president; Theodore Bock, secretary, and Frank Mueller, treasurer.

W. C. King, secretary of the O'Shea Knitting mills, and a citizen of good repute, sends us an affidavit and picture of a sailfish, which Louie Lund, the building contractor, of 2071 Lunt avenue, caught at Miami Beach. It weighs 58 pounds, is six feet long, and required 45 minutes of Louie's valuable time to land. The picture is now on exhibition in the gallery of ye ed's sanctum and may be viewed by the public at large any time it can get past the doorman.

Their Golden Day



Mr. and Mrs. James J. Powers.
[Garvin Photo]

More than a hundred guests and friends were present at the golden wedding reception of Mr. and Mrs. James J. Powers, at their home, 316 East 25th street, Wednesday afternoon, following a solemn high mass in their honor at St. James' Roman Catholic church. Mr. Powers, who is 73, is stil lactively employed by the Stewart & Ashby Coffee company, and both he and his wife, who is 70, have lived in Chicago all their lives. In his youth Mr. Powers gained a reputation as a baseball pitcher. They were married in Holy Name cathedral Feb. 20, 1879, and have two daughters and four grandchildren.

Cash Prizes for Amateur Photographs

Amateur camera artists may now see their favorite efforts printed in the Metropolitan section of The Tribune. Every week The Tribune will pay $5 for the best photograph taken by an amateur. It will pay $3 for the second best and $2 for the third.

Pictures should be taken in the Chicago area and home scenes will be given the preference. Send in that snapshot of Mary playing with her toys or grandpa sitting by the fire smoking his pipe, of Tom and Jack and their snow man.

Address all entries to Photo Contest, Metropolitan Section of The Tribune. The name and address of the photographer should be written plainly on the back of the print as well as the names of all persons in the picture.

The contest is open only to amateurs and the editor will be final judge. Theme, treatment, and clearness of the print all will be taken into consideration. No pictures will be returned.

Trinity High School Girls Discuss Foreign Missions

Work in the home and foreign mission fields was discussed each day during the last week at the assemblies of the students of Trinity High school for girls in River Forest. One of the classes was in charge of the program each day and took up some phase of mission work. Members of the Mission club attended an open meeting of the Spiritual Leadership union in the auditorium of St. Ignatius church in Rogers Park on Friday evening.

Church Gives Party for Medical Center Students

Judge Francis B. Allegretti spoke at the annual student night of the Third Presbyterian church, Ashland boulevard and Ogden avenue, Monday night. More than 100 medical, dental, and pharmacy students of the neighboring medical center were present. Music was furnished by a 50 voice chorus including members of the Wesley hospital staff and the church choir.

Alternates are: Gertrude Alderman, Margaret Hewiston, Eleanor Karasek, Quentin Fischer, Emmett Farrell, and Stanley Hendrickson.

Half Chicago Motorcycle Licenses Sold on West Side

The motorcycle is passing, but it is passing more slowly on the west side than on the other two sides of Chicago. During January and the first week of February, 66 of the 132 motorcycle licenses issued from the city collector's office were for west side residents. North side residents have taken out 36 licenses, while south siders, who are almost twice as numerous as north siders, have obtained only 35.

Includes 300 Stores

Taking its last "dollar day" in August as a criterion, W. N. Hall, chairman of the retail affairs committee of the Oak Park chamber of commerce, predicts that more than 20,000 visitors will attend the "dollar day" doings scheduled to take place in Oak Park, Tuesday, Feb. 26.

Three hundred merchants are participating in the event, which will not be restricted to any one business section but will cover the village. Stores will be open in the evening for the benefit of those who cannot do their shopping during the day.

Austin Women Voters Listen to Candidates

The Austin League of Women Voters held two meetings during the last week for the purpose of hearing various aldermanic candidates. Questions were asked from the floor covering such topics as tax assessments, parks, playgrounds, schools and street repairing, widening and cleaning. At the request of several members, Mrs. Charles K. Mohler outlined the duties and the powers of aldermen. The next regular meeting of the league will be held March 15 at the Central Plaza hotel. Mrs. George C. Sikes will be in charge and Miss Edith Rockwood will be the speaker.

Ebinger P.-T. A. Celebrates Its Fifth Anniversary

A Founder's day program marked the fifth anniversary of the Ebinger Parent-Teacher association of Edison Park and the thirty-second anniversary of the founding of the state Parent-Teacher association last Wednesday evening at the Ebinger school. The Rev. J. J. Braun, pastor of the Edison Evangelical church, was the speaker of the evening. Members of the safety patrol troop of the school gave a short play and a drill. Honorary guests were Mrs. Edward W. Jackson, district director of District 1 of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers, and Mrs. L. Kopecky, chairman of the safety committee of the Northwest Council of Parents and Teachers.

Irving Park Catholic Club Visits Chinatown

Members of the Irving Park Catholic club enjoyed a unique form of entertainment Wednesday afternoon when they were taken upon a tour of Chicago's Chinatown by Mrs. Henry Glug, chairman of the art department of the club. Frany Moy, mayor of Chinatown, and Tom Lee, assistant mayor, were guests of the association upon this occasion, and Mrs. Katherine Young, Chinese teacher, acted as the docent for the tour. The trip was preceded by luncheon in a Chinese restaurant. Showing the club members some of the art of the orient was the object of the excursion.

WELCOME LEGION AUXILIARY HEADS HERE TOMORROW

Posts and Women's Units Arrange Dance.

Legion posts will coöperate tomorrow in the welcoming to Chicago national officers of the American Legion auxiliary. The distinguished guests include Mrs. Boyce Ficklen Jr., national president of the American Legion auxiliary; Mrs. Gwendolyn Wiggin MacDowell, national secretary, and Mrs. Freda S. Kramer, national vice president for the northwestern division. The trio will be in Chicago Monday and Tuesday to attend the area child welfare conference of the auxiliary.

Mrs. Ficklen will be the guest of the department of Illinois at a dinner-dance at 6:30 o'clock Monday evening in the gold room of the Congress hotel. Mrs. A. C. Duncan, president of the state department, has planned a full program for the officers, including a visit to the veterans' hospitals. Arrangements for the dinner-dance are in charge of Mrs. Melville Mucklestone, president of the Cook county council of the auxiliary. Mrs. Glenn Suthers is in charge of reservations.

The area conference will be held at the Congress hotel tomorrow and Tuesday for the Legion and auxiliary. Representatives from central states will be in attendance.

The semi-final basketball games for the sixth and ninth districts will be held today under the auspices of Albany Park post at the Legion hall, 4833 North Kedzie avenue. The first game will be at 1 o'clock. Conway post versus Harold Taylor post, lights and heavies. Des Plaines post team, represented by St. Mary's Training school lights and heavies, will play Albany Park post. St. Mary's will bring its band.

Allied post, No. 226, started off its membership campaign on Thursday night at Walsh's hall, Milwaukee avenue and Noble street, with David L. Shillinglaw, state commander, and Chester R. Davis, department rehabilitation chairman, as guests and principal speakers at its meeting.

The Bugle, a snappy little newspaper gotten out by Berwyn post, No. 422, calls attention to the agitation by Berwyn for the purchase of the Gage farm for park and playground purposes. "It would seem," comments the editor, "that this offers the Legion an opportunity to take an active part in the promotion of so worthy a civic improvement."

Edward Hines Jr., chapter, No. 10, Disabled American veterans, recently was host to 350 women and their escorts at a card and bunco party at Roosevelt hall, State and Lake building. Dancing was also one of the entertainment features and the vets temporarily forgot their injuries as they glided over the floor as in prewar days. The affair was in honor of the women who assisted in the Forget-me-not drive last September. Miss Victoria Warrenson, general chairman of the drive, acted as hostess. Miss Bessie Robinson presided over the bunco and card party.

Verdun and Surface Lines posts will be hosts to the Second district, Feb. 26, at the 122d Field Artillery armory.

Among the American Legion membership contests now on is that of Cook county versus all of Wisconsin. At the latest Wisconsin convention, the state commander issued the challenge which was accepted by the Cook county commander. Last year's membership in Cook county was 30,000 as against the total enrollment in Wisconsin of 33,000. At last reports, Cook county was in the lead by 3,000.

Entertainment in plenty has been arranged for the initial social event of Medill-Tribune post, No. 348, to be held in the Bal Tabarin at the Hotel Sherman tomorrow night. Members of the post and eligible candidates may secure tickets from any of the membership committee or from Adjutant E. F. Classen.

Members of Marine post, No. 273, have requested that the age limit for service men applying for duty on the police force be waived or raised. In view of the training obtained while in the service, they believe that a special dispensation of this nature would be fitting.

An emergency relief corps, 150 strong, is being organized among members of Evanston post, No. 42, American Legion, under a plan drawn up and approved by the post and Chief of Police William O. Freeman of Evanston.

Under the plan, which has yet to be passed by the city council, the corps could be called out in case of fire, riots, disasters and storms, or crime epidemics and public hysteria. In the later cases they would patrol the streets and act as escorts for women.

Five companies will be formed of 32 men each, under the active direction of a captain, appointed by the directors of the post, but the post commander, Richard Chamberlin, at present, will be commander of the corps.

While the 150 or so who form the organized corps will do most of the active work the entire membership of [illegible] at the post will be ready for call in times of great emergency. If any of them are at the scene of an emergency, they are expected to volunteer their services in assistance.

Members of the corps may also volunteer for traffic duty with the approval of the captain of the corps.

Council action on the matter has been deferred because of tax problems which have swept all other issues aside, but it is expected that it will be handled favorably because of Chief Freeman's approval.

Roseland post, No. 43, has made good in its drive for members, according to Commander Ralph De Cook. "In the first four days of the drive 69 names were added to the roster. Careful estimates indicated that we have reached the state quota of 478, and that we will reach our own quota of 551 before we close the doors of our recruiting station at 11311 Michigan avenue on March 1," he said.

Winners in Industrial Girls' Cage League

Montgomery Ward chain store girls' basketball team defeated the Florsheim Shoe company team Wednesday night at the West Side Y. W. C. A., 101 South Ashland avenue, by a score of 14 to 8 to win the championship of the Industrial Girls' Athletic association. More than 300 persons, mostly men, watched the final tournament. The picture shows the Montgomery Ward team. Left to right: Florence Allen, Lillian McArdle, Katherine Frodenburgh, Marion Davis, Burt Porter, Olga Sunde, and Josephine Foley.

Mrs. Gwendolyn Wiggin MacDowell, national secretary of the auxiliary, also will be a special guest at the dinner dance.

MAINE STUDENTS ENTER POLITICS TO SAVE SPORT

More than 700 students of Maine township high school have gone in for politics in earnest. Every one of them has pledged himself to work at the polls in Park Ridge and Des Plaines on March 16, when the voters will act on a proposal to increase the school's share of the taxes from 1.37 per cent to 2 per cent.

The motif behind it all is the fact that the students have just learned that their new high school building, now under construction after a delay of a decade, will not have a swimming pool unless additional money is provided. Maine high school has boasted a championship team for several years and, without a pool, the students see the end of the school's biggest athletic asset.

The demand of the student body that the school's share of the taxes be increased as allowed by law was favorably voted on by the members of the school board of the township after parents, alumni and civic leaders threw their support to the plan. The proposal, as a result, will appear on the township ballots next month. The cost of the swimming pool will be around $25,000.

"Maine high has grown out of its swaddling clothes and serves a metropolitan community instead of two small villages of several decades ago," said Charles M. Himel, principal, in an address made during a "pep" assembly held by the pupils. "The citizens of this district are in favor of better educational facilities, and it is the duty of every one of you students to bring the electorate to the polls."

Speeches in favor of the campaign were also made by Samuel Marzulo, swimming team coach; Miss Jessie Purves, girls' team coach; Frances Weurst, president of the senior class and member of the girls' team, and Robert Farnum and Robert Jordan, members of the boys' team.

WASHINGTON DAY PLAYS GIVEN AT McKINLEY HIGH

Two outstanding events in the life of George Washington were depicted in the Washington's birthday activities at the McKinley High school, 2040 West Adams street. The scene at Valley Forge was presented by one of the senior history classes and the Washington inaugural by the other. In the first presentation Frank Maggio took the part of Gen. Washington and Marie Nykolshyn portrayed Martha Washington. Boys of the class were cast as soldiers.

In the inaugural scene Thomas Janusewski took the rôle of George Washington and Regina Thiel that of Martha Washington. William Walsh portrayed Chancellor Livingston, who administered the oath of office. Lawrence Du Four was seen as John Adams.

A series of speeches describing various pictures and statues pertaining to Washington was given by the art class of the school. A patriotic musical program closed the program.

GLEN ELLYN VOTES ON SUNDAY MOVIES AGAIN THIS SPRING

Citizens of Glen Ellyn will have another opportunity to register their approval or disapproval of Sunday motion pictures when the question comes up for voting again in the spring elections.

The measure lost by only 11 votes last year and both factions predict an easy victory this time. As there were 1,075 names on the petition presented by Cyril Weston asking permission to show Sunday movies and only 750 are required to place a question on the ballot only minor legalities stood in the way of its presentation once more to the townspeople.

Jesse Wagner, village clerk announced, however, that it would be there. Between 2,800 and 3,000 persons, he stated, will be eligible to vote at the coming election.

J. A. SCHILLER'S MANAGERS CITE HIS EXPERIENCE

Assert He Would Battle Faherty in Council.

Managers of J. A. Schiller, candidate for alderman of the Fortieth ward, in addresses to voters last week, cited his experience in city hall matters as proof of his ability to handle the job.

He has held two secretarial positions with legislators, they pointed out. First he served with the late Ald. Joseph O. Kostner, chairman of the city council committee on local industries, streets and alleys, and then with Congressman A. J. Sabath.

Served as Aid to Busch.

Schiller was appointed assistant corporation counsel and served under Francis X. Busch throughout the Dever administration, 1923 to 1927. At that time he was the city's sole representative in the real estate experts' case which resulted in a judgment of $2,245,604 in favor of the taxpayers.

Would Demand Faherty Quit.

They added that, if elected, he would press for the resignation of M. J. Faherty as president of the board of local improvements, and had promised to take othtr stèps toward obtaining changes in the city's executive department.

Schiller is a member of the Ravenswood Manor Garden Improvement association and lives at 4434 North Fairfield avenue.

ELMHURST SCOUTS TO BE TAUGHT BY AMERICAN LEGION

Elmhurst Boy Scouts are to learn something about a variety of subjects ranging from brick laying to banking, according to plans perfected by the Elmhurst American Legion, T. H. B. post, No. 187, in coöperation with the Elmhurst Scout council.

Teachers will be recruited from Legion members who are experts in the various fields, which will include carpentry, plumbing, first aid, bird study, and business methods. The course of study will be prepared by the Scout officials, as a preliminary leading up to merit badge tests in the various lines.

The first of its kind, this school is being watched by the county, state, and national organizations of both groups, with a view to the establishment of similar units throughout the country, if it is successful.

The Legion is also sponsoring the formation of an Elmhurst Civic council with representatives from all organizations, to take action on civic matters of general interest. One of the first activities will be the formation of a Sunday Evening club.

A post committee is now investigating the possibility of painting the name of the city in large letters on some roof to distinguish the community in air commerce.

The post will again sponsor a junior baseball team, and practice will begin as soon as the weather permits. The local team, in charge of Lester V. Leavitt, post athletic director, emerged as district champions last year.

New Parent-Teachers' Body Formed in Elmhurst

A new parent-teacher association has been formed at the recently completed Washington school in Elmhurst, Mrs. George L. Lette being the elected president. Other officers are Mrs. A. N. Hammerschmidt, vice president; Mrs. George D. Kemler, secretary, and Mrs. Arthur P. Wilson, treasurer. For the rest of this year the organization will function with the Hawthorne association as the Hawthorne-Washington P.-T. A., but the officers will formulate a program for separate activity to begin in the fall. Mrs. George P. Starr, Aurora, district director, and Mrs. A. H. Finnemore, president of the Elmhurst council, were the speakers at the organization meeting.

HOW TO BUILD PUSHER MODEL TOLD BY EXPERT

Plane's Propellers Are Behind the Wings.

Here is the second of The Tribune's articles on airplane model building. Mr. Hamburg, airplane model expert, is not only going to tell you how to build and fly the pusher—he's going to answer your questions on plane construction. When you're up against a knotty problem write to him and he'll help you solve it. Send the question, with a 2 cent stamp for answer, to him at league headquarters, American Boy building, Second and Lafayette boulevards, Detroit, Mich.

BY MERRILL HAMBURG.
[Secretary Airplane Model League of America.]

When Wilbur and Orville Wright made their first successful airplane, more than twenty-five years ago, it was a "pusher"—the propellers were behind the wings. Today THE TRIBUNE is going to tell members of the Airplane Model League of America how to build a corking little model pusher—one that embodies many of the principles the Wrights so carefully worked into their machine.

Last week boys and girls of Chicago learned how to make an all wood glider. The pusher is much like it in principle and construction—all major parts are of wood, and they are put together in much the same way. But it has a propeller and a rubber motor, and it soars for many seconds.

And the young aeronaut who successfully builds and flies it is doing the best job he can to prepare himself to construct the more complicated models THE TRIBUNE is going to describe later in the spring. More than that. He's getting himself ready for the official contests to be conducted locally by THE TRIBUNE and nationally in Detroit in June by the American Boy magazine, co-sponsor with this paper of the A. M. L. A.

May Mean Detroit Trip.

The chances are that the builder who starts with this pusher will eventually win the trip to Detroit. So get busy now!

First, materials. The Tichenor Midget [the pusher is named after Frank A. Tichenor, a vice president of the league] has balsa wing and elevator, motor stick, rudder [fin], and propeller. The motor is ⅛ inch flat rubber, 22 inches long. Metal parts are made of .020 music wire, with the exception of the thrust bearing, which is slightly heavier.

Perhaps you're already equipped with these materials, for they're all included in the special league all wood kit, which lots of local league members obtained last week to build the glider. It contains everything from ready made propeller to delicate wire parts. If you haven't the kit, you can get it by sending 65 cents in check or money order to the supply department, A. M. L. A., American Boy building, Second and Lafayette boulevards, Detroit, Mich.

You'll get with the kit the A. M. L. A. manual—an invaluable help to model builders. It tells how to bend wire, how to carve a propeller, how to do all the things an expert model builder must know. It can be obtained separately for 5 cents from League headquarters.

Now Ready to Start.

Once you have the materials you're ready to start. The motor stick should get your first attention—sand it and carve it down to the exact size shown in the diagram. It will be ⅛x3-16x10 inches when you've finished. Now cut the fin from a piece of flat balsa 1-32 inch thick. Note the dimensions carefully. Glue the fin on to the rear end of the motor stick—for greater strength some builders prefer to carve a tiny groove in the stick to receive the fin. Be sure that it is set at a slight angle, so that it will cause the plane to circle when you've finished it. The diagram gives you the angle and position of the fin.

Cement the front hook to the under side of the fuselage, and the thrust bearing to the rear end—again the drawing shows you how. Now take your propeller—already prepared and drilled if you're using the League kit, but a job you'll have to do according to the directions in the manual if you're not—and insert the propeller shaft. Notice that, since the model is a pusher, the shaft goes through from the straight leading edge. Be very certain that the propeller shaft is straight; otherwise your prop will wobble and upset the balance of the plane. And make sure that the prop itself is sanded as fine as you can make it—light should show through it when you hold it before a window.

The Wing Is Simple.

When the shaft is through the prop, bend the projecting end back upon itself in a U and push the U so that the short end locks itself in the prop. Ambroid the prop lightly all around its hub for strength. After it is dry, put the two small brass washers on the shaft, slip the shaft through the eye in the bearing, and you may hook the two strand motor to the front hook and the shaft.

The wing and elevator, respectively 1-32 inch and 1-64 inch thick, are simple. Both are flat balsa, of the dimensions shown on the diagram, bent into a dihedral angle at the center. A jet of steam from the tea kettle in your kitchen will make the balsa pliable, if you hold it in the steam for some minutes; then you can bend it to the desired angle and allow it to dry and stiffen.

You must cut a notch ⅛x⅛ inch in the wing's trailing edge. This allows it to fit snug against the rudder.

Ready to Take Off.

If you are an expert builder you'll give the wing "washin" and "washout." To give the right wing washin, as you look at the model from the front, bend the leading edge up; to give the left wing washout, bend its leading edge down. The moisture in your breath will soften the wood and make it bend to the position you want.

Fasten the wing and elevator to the motor stick with two rubber bands. And you're ready to take off!

First, glide the plane several times to find the right adjustment of the wing and elevator. When you get an easy, loafing glide, give the propeller 150 turns, counter-clockwise. Hold the fuselage in the right hand, the prop in the left; when you're ready release the prop and give the plane a gentle push forward.

Then watch her fly!

Sometimes Erratic.

The pusher type of plane is sometimes erratic, but there are a number of ways of overcoming balkiness. One is the use of washin and washout—these counteract the torque, or twist, the whirling propeller gives to the machine. Wing setting is another.

You can have a whale of a lot of pleasure with the Tichenor Midget. You can fly it, if it's carefully made, for as long as 60 seconds; 30 seconds is a good flight, and will win an official honor certificate from league headquarters if you send in a record of the flight approved by an adult who saw it, together with ten cents to cover issuing and mailing the certificate.

What's more, you can teach yourself the fundamentals of model building and of aviation by making it perform properly. And you'll be getting ready to get to work on the next plane in THE TRIBUNE'S series—the high climb R. O. G. This ship is a corker—a model with balsa frame but Japanese tissue covered wings. It seems like an army pursuit ship—your club can have high climbing contests with it as well as endurance trials. And it's small enough so that you won't need a big room to fly it in. An ordinary parlor will do.

So watch for next week's article.

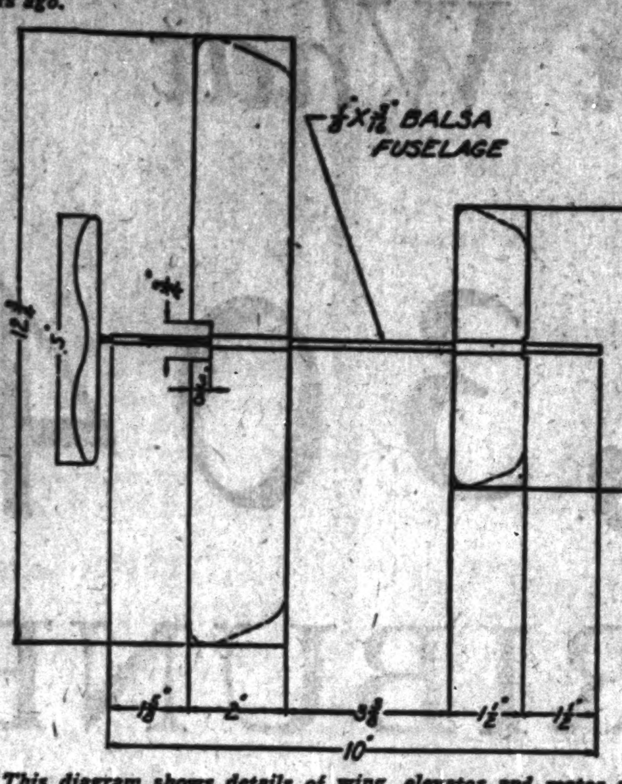
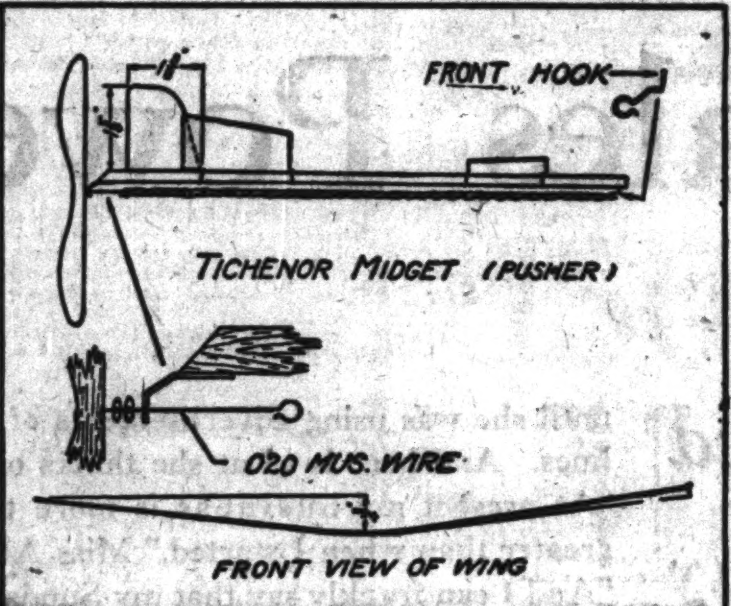
THE TICHENOR MIDGET

Here is a model plane that embodies many of the principles the Wrights worked into their first successful airplane more than twenty-five years ago.



This diagram shows details of wing, elevator and motor stick of the Tichenor Midget. Study them carefully before starting work.



Here is a side view of the all-wood pusher, with more construction details. The front view of the wing shows "washin" on the right side. The leading edge is bent upward.

CONTESTS HELP BOYS TO BUILD BETTER PLANES

West Side Youngsters Cite 1928 Lessons.

"If you want to learn how to improve your model planes, enter a contest!"

That's what hundreds of west side model aviators were saying last summer, when they took part for the first time in contests. And that's what builders will be saying when they start competing against each other for the cups and other awards to be offered in the coming TRIBUNE contest.

By pitting his skill against other boys, the builder puts his own indoor or outdoor plane to the supreme test. If he's beaten, he has a chance to see the winner's plane in action, to learn how it is adjusted, to note the length of the propeller or the shape and angle of the wing or the other details of construction that make the winner's ship more efficient in the air.

Learned Much at National Meet.

Last year at the national contest in Detroit, 250 contestants from all parts of the country learned more than they might have learned in many months of experiment. They saw an indoor model plane of revolutionary design win for its owner a trip to Europe! This tractor, built by Aram Abgarian of Detroit had a curved wing instead of the usual flat one. The tail surface was negatively curved, or cambered. And the ship flew for nearly six minutes.

This very plane will be described by THE TRIBUNE in a future issue. And perhaps in THE TRIBUNE contest some boy will bring forth a ship that will be an improvement on the cambered wing tractor.

Other entrants in the national contest by watching more experienced builders, learned tricks of adjustment, and of winding motors that added seconds to their flight. One boy, Albert Schwartzkopf, of Norfolk, Va., had found difficulty in getting his plane to stay in the air one minute. An observer watched him winding his motor for a third trial.

Learned Secret of Success.

"Give it more turns," he advised. "Some of these boys are putting more than two thousand winds on their motors. Wind it up tight. It it breaks, put on another motor."

Schwartzkopf had been giving his motor only a thousand turns. Acting on the advice of the observer, he doubled the number. On that very flight his ship stayed aloft more than three minutes and won him a bronze medal.

Start working now for THE TRIBUNE contest, to be held early in June. Build the models that will be described each week. They're the best ships that have yet been designed. Experiment with and improve on them. Then, when the contest date rolls around, you'll be ready.

Consider Making Quarry Into West Side Playground

Plans for making a playground of two blocks of filled stone quarry east of Campbell avenue and north of Grand avenue have been made public by the superintendent of the bureau of small parks, bathing beaches and playgrounds, and are being considered by a city council committee. No objections to the project have thus far been voiced by aldermen. Part of the playground, to be named in honor of Ald. Joseph Higgins Smith [32d], will be ready for use by west side children next summer, according to Walter Wright, head of the bureau.

St. Francis Guild to Meet.

Members of St. Francis Guild will meet Thursday at St. Mary's Home for Children, 2822 Jackson boulevard.

LET'S SEE LINDY'S TROPHIES, BOYS OF CHICAGO ASK

Want Them Brought Here for World's Fair.

Bring Lindy's tropies and the Spirit of St. Louis to the World's Fair in 1933!

That is the rallying cry of the 790 youthful members of the Chicago Boys' club, No. 4, 6405 South Hermitage avenue, and the lads by the hundreds are signing petitions addressed to President Rufus C. Dawes of the World's Fair, asking that the exposition officials do everything in their power to bring the famous aviator's flying machine and his numerous medals and trophies here for exhibition.

"Few things have interested the boys more," said Mr. Cook, director of the club. Enthusiasm is at its highest over the possibilities of the Spirit of St. Louis being brought here, along with the Lindbergh trophies. They are not only signing the petitions here in the club but also are taking them to their schools for other signatures, and in a few days they will have thousands of them to present to the World's Fair people."

Launch Expansion Program.

The Chicago Boys' club, under the direction of General Superintendent John H. Witter and President George A. Hughes, is launching a program of expansion which will make it the greatest organization of its kind in the world. Backed by a board of leading business and professional men, it plans to combat crime and give the underprivileged boy a chance at normal, happy living by raising $5,000,000 for erecting and endowing twenty-five club buildings throughout the congested sections of Chicago. The program calls for the building of five club buildings a year for five years.

Without making much noise, the Chicago Boys' club has been developing throughout the years as one of the important institutions of the city for the care of neglected boyhood. In 1901, John F. Atkinson opened the first Chicago Boys' club in a rented second story room near Van Buren and State streets.

Started in 1916.

The South Side club was started in 1916 and now has a membership of 796 boys, with buildings at 6405 South Hermitage avenue.

The North Side club was opened in 1910 and has a splendidly equipped building and swimming pool, with all facilities for recreation, sports, industrial classes, study of art and music, and community center activities.

The West Side club was started in 1918 at 2801 South Ridgeway avenue, and has an up-to-date building and a membership of 800 boys.

A permanent camp site of 110 acres and fine buildings is owned at Winona Lake, Ind., where 1,600 boys each year have delightful outings. Mr. Witter has been superintendent since 1912.

Boys are admitted without regard to race or creed, and a boy who can't pay the small membership dues, is given an opportunity to "work his way through" the club like older boys do through college. The 25 new clubs are expected to take care of at least 50,000 under privileged lads

ROSARY COLLEGE STUDENTS HEAR TALK ON LIVING

Students of Rosary college in River Forest listened to a lecture Friday morning on "Learning and Living." The lecture was delivered by James T. McDaid, a member of the school cabinet. He showed how one can and will carry out one's patriotic duties as a citizen by proper use of one's education.

The Rt. Rev. Archmandaite Philip Salome will give a lecture before the students on Thursday afternoon. He will speak on "The Message from Egypt and Greece." All pupils and the faculty will attend.

The Mothers' club will hold its monthly meeting in Rosary school hall Tuesday afternoon. It will be an open meeting, featured by bridge and other card games. Mrs. Walter Herr is social chairman.

Jewish Institute Players Stage Drama Next Sunday

A play, "The Chief Thing," by Nicholas Evrienoff, is being rehearsed by the Players' guild of the Jewish People's institute, 3500 Douglas boulevard, for production next Sunday. Joseph Buloff is director and producer. The playwright describes the production as "a comedy for some, a drama for others."

The cast includes Alfred Saxe, Mollie Kross, Joseph Kasper, Anne Tucker, Bernard Wall, Maurice H. Simen, Edith Wolinsky, William Rogoff, Sylvia Mendelsohn, Philip Twersky, Paul Bloomfield, Syd Hoffman, Jean Felsen, Cecile Wolf, Bernard Rosencrans, Abraham Fienglass, and Asa Namgora. Belle Mendelsohn is secretary of the group.

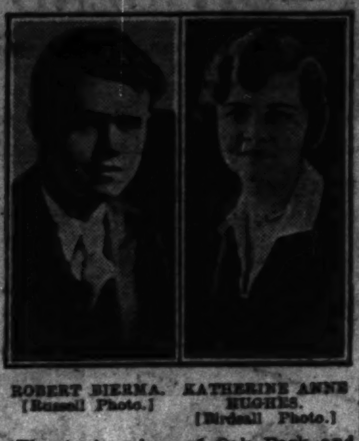
Women's Auxiliary of M. A.C. Stages Dance Saturday

The women's auxiliary of the Midwest Athletic club will give a dance Saturday in the main dining room of the club, 6 North Hamlin avenue. Music will be provided by Benson's All-Star dance orchestra of the Stevens hotel. The dance will be the first activity conducted under the auspices of the new auxiliary officers. Mrs. Joseph Mills is president; Mrs. George Dehn, vice president; Mrs. Sol Westerfeld, recording secretary; Mrs. Bernard Baer, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. L. M. Watson, treasurer.

K. of C. Lecturer.

Quin O'Brien, attorney and lecturer, was the chief speaker at a meeting of Charles Carroll council of the Knights of Columbus, 4711 West Madison street, Tuesday. Mr. O'Brien, who has spent several seasons on chautauqua circuits, spoke on "In the Footsteps of the Church and its Founders."

Head Their Class



ROBERT BIERMA. [Russell Photo.] KATHERINE ANNE HUGHES. [Birdsall Photo.]

The junior class of Oak Park and River Forest Township High school has just completed the selection of its officers. Robert Bierma was elected president by the 1930 classmen. Katherine Anne Hughes was chosen as vice president. Nina Tucker will be secretary and Walter Lunde treasurer.

GATHERS 14,000 PICTURES FOR USE OF PUPILS

Librarian at Humboldt Finds Big Demand.

Compiling one of the largest and most interesting picture collections in the Chicago Public library system has been for fifteen years the hobby of Miss Ada M. Lanquist, 872 North Francisco avenue, head librarian at the Humboldt branch, 2553 West North avenue.

Miss Lanquist may be found any day working at her desk clipping interesting pictures from numerous publications that are piled on her desk, or pasting and labeling them for the use of the library patrons. This scene has been a daily occurrence for more than fifteen years, and today she can boast of the 14,000 pictures that fill six huge files. Most of the other branches in the system find two small files sufficient for the number of pictures they have in their collections.

Nearly 60,000 Loaned.

Not only is the Humboldt collection the largest among the branch libraries, but, according to Miss Lanquist, it has the largest circulation. More than 55,170 pictures were loaned to the public in 1927 and 59,045 pictures were taken out in 1928.

The collection is composed of educational pictures entirely. Teachers may take out complete sets of pictures that tell an illustrated story of the cotton industry, from the time the cotton is planted until it is manufactured into the finished product. Sets of this type are popular among the teachers in northwest side schools, who assert that teaching is easier when interest is aroused among the pupils with the aid of the pictures.

Encourage Home Study.

Pupils are also asked by their teachers to take pictures from the Humboldt branch to look over carefully at home. Teachers say that geography and history become more interesting when the daily school work in those subjects is supplemented by examining illustrations.

The collection also contains pictures showing the dress of many of the foreign countries since 1850 and for that reason the collection is used extensively by artists, authors, and dramatic directors.

LAWNDALE GETS BETTER STREET RAILWAY SERVICE

Improvements in Lawndale transportation are now taking place as a result of efforts of the Great West Property Owners' association of the Lawndale district. Repairing of the Sixteenth street surface line tracks has begun and a new type of street car has been promised for Sixteenth street and Roosevelt road. A committee consisting of A. Oswianza, president; A. Groupe, secretary, and Albert Blumenfeld, attorney for the association, held a meeting recently with the superintendent of the surface lines and asked for the needed improvements. The new cars will accommodate twice as many passengers as the old, and there will be a greater number of cars in transit during the rush hours.

The Great West Property Owners' association of the Lawndale district was formed about a year ago. Meetings are held once a month at the offices of the association, 3350 Roosevelt road. Residents of Lawndale wishing to join may call at the offices any evening.

P. T. A.s of Elmhurst Talk of Character Training

Character and religious training were the subjects of discussion at the annual Founders' day observance of the Elmhurst council of Parent-Teacher associations in the Hawthorne school auditorium Wednesday evening. R. W. Fairchild, superintendent of the Elgin schools, discussed "Character Training in the Schools," while John Banford McKendry, community director of religious education in Oak Park, spoke on "Week Day Religious Training."

Mrs. A. H. Finnemore, president, also introduced Mrs. Ervin F. Wilson, first vice president, who sketched the history of P.-T. associations.

Pupils Learn About Milk.

Students of Nathaniel Pope school learned the intricacies of modern milk production at their monthly meeting in the school auditorium Tuesday. Miss Nina Grieser of the educational department of a dairy company, presented three reels of motion pictures with a talk. The meeting was sponsored by the Parent-Teacher association.

How One Business Woman Found Out What

1,251,304
SUNDAY TRIBUNES

Mean in Sales Power!

Miss Jane Adams Invested a Few Dollars in Sunday Tribune Advertising—and Saw Her Business Double in Less Than Two Years!

MISS JANE ADAMS is the owner of an interior decorating and furniture selling business at 5817 Kenmore Avenue. Less than two years ago she decided to invest a few dollars in a small Sunday Tribune advertisement in the Metropolitan Section. Her first ad more than paid for itself in sales within the first few days. In addition, it brought her many good leads which she later developed into sales.

More than satisfied with the results, Miss Adams inserted another advertisement the following Sunday. It paid out as quickly as the first one. And inasmuch as her advertising was paying for itself week by week, she continued with it, gradually increasing the size until she was using advertisements of about 150 lines. And here is what she thinks of it today: "At present my business is more than 100% greater than when I started," Miss Adams says. "And I can frankly say that my Sunday Tribune advertising deserves unlimited credit for this achievement. I have tried many other forms of advertising, but none did the job the way the Tribune has done it."

Scores of others have won similar success with Sunday Tribune advertising in the Metropolitan Section. You can do the same the moment you decide to start—for now the cost is so low that every business, small as well as large, can easily spare the money.

A few dollars—as little as you wish to spend — will start you on the way. And the following Sunday your offer will appear before three out of every four families on your side of the city.

Decide now to spend a few dollars as Miss Adams did and find out for yourself how this amazing sales power can help your business! Call Superior 0100 early tomorrow morning and ask for "Local Display." No obligation to you whatever. Tear out the memo coupon now so that you won't forget to start the ball rolling for your biggest year in business!

LAWRENCEMANOR SEWER PROJECT UP TOMORROW

Court to Hear Motion for Early Trial.

Notice to appear tomorrow before Judge J. G. Van Kueren of the county court to argue a motion for immediate trial on the proposed sewer system for Lawrence Manor was served on the city attorneys last Thursday by George F. Scheck, attorney for residents of the district. Mr. Scheck will make the motion in behalf of the Lawrence Manor Improvement association, a group including the majority of property owners in the area bounded by Gunnison and Bryn Mawr avenues and Austin and Mobile avenues. The association is leading a fight against "assessment sharks," who seek to delay installation of the sewer system by contesting the amounts of special assessments levied by the board of local improvements on property owners who would be served by it. If they are successful in obtaining a delay, the case may not be heard for more than a year, according to Mr. Scheck.

Insanitary Condition.

He will join forces with the city attorneys in demanding an immediate hearing on the ground that an extremely insanitary condition exists in the Lawrence Manor district, since it is entirely without sewers.

Three firms of lawyers who specialize in assessment cases have obtained the signatures of approximately 30 per cent of the residents, their clients consisting mainly of the foreign element, according to B. C. Snart, chairman of the improvement club's committee in charge of the campaign.

These lawyers have no interest in the district whatsoever, Frank Demski, former president of the group says, but they will receive for their fees one-third of the amount they save their clients if they win the case. In addition, they receive 50 cents from each resident as a filing fee, he points out, while the total cost to them for filing objections is $3. Since they have more than 100 clients, they will receive $50 for an expenditure of $3.

District Flooded.

In the spring and other rainy seasons the district is flooded, Mr. Demski said at a meeting of the association last week, and cellars are full of water most of the time. Even the fact that a boy was drowned in a flooded cellar last year has not opened the eyes of some residents to the necessity of a sewer which will drain off the water, he declared.

C. W. Holmes, president of the Northwest Federation of Improvement clubs, has thrown the support of his group to the Manor association, and will also appear in court tomorrow on behalf of the improvement. He will collaborate with Mr. Scheck in preparing the arguments in favor of allowing the board of local improvements to proceed with plans already adopted.

The board of local improvements says the work can begin early in spring if the proceedings are not tied up in court.

Local men active in the work are: [illegible] Guetl, president of the association; Mr. Demski, Mr. Snart, and [illegible] Weickart, another past president.

LEWIS INSTITUTE READY TO START ALUMNI REUNION

Varied 5 Day Program Opens Tomorrow.

include A. Allison, E. Gielow, W. Kirby, M. Loridans, T. McGill, H. Rifkind, W. Skatch, V. Sleeter, E. Sims, L. Smith, W. Wood, G. Zenker, A. Zilmer, and John Beckerman, director. Dancing will follow the entertainment.

Alumni from 1911 to 1915, inclusive, will meet on Wednesday. The evening lectures are to be given by Fred A. Rogers, professor of physics and electrical engineering, and Paul D. Juhnke, chief load dispatcher of the Commonwealth Edison company. A musical porgram by alumni of the institute will be offered at 8:30 o'clock. The performers will be Eugene F. Dressler, Marie Nagl Crossland, J. Beckerman, A. Zilmer, and V. Sleeter, with William Lester as accompanist.

Science Professors to Lecture.

Old graduates from 1906 to 1910, inclusive, will gather on Thursday. The daytime program will follow the preceding day's activities and the evening lecture will be presented by Warren R. Smith, professor of chemistry. At the conclusion of Prof. Smith's talk alumni will hear Victor L. Sherman, assistant professor of mechanical engineering.

Members of the 1901 to 1905 classes are to meet on Friday. Prominent on the evening program is a one act play, "Poor Maddalana," to be acted by the following students: Walter Tenny, Maxine Newman, George Speyer, and Lucile Newman.

The final day will be devoted largely to all classes before 1901, with every one invited to the afternoon and evening features. Prof. Harvey D. Lemon will speak in the auditorium at 5 o'clock, and the homecoming dinner for alumni will take place immediately afterward.

A meeting of all the old grads in the auditorium at 8 o'clock will bring together the entire alumni association. The festivities will come to a climax in a dance and mixer beginning at 9 o'clock.

The general committee for homecoming is headed by John Usher Smyth. Chairmen of the other committees are Ella Dannehy Bunting, publicity; Grace Gordon Hood, refreshments; George Lee Tenney, music, and Olive Pierce Hazel, drama. The activities for each day are being handled by committees, of which the following are chairmen: D. D. Higgins for Monday, Antoinette West for Tuesday, Harold Holmquest for Wednesday, Hosmer Allyn for Thursday, Charlotte Bendix for Friday, and W. A. Goodman for Saturday.

OAK PARK C. OF C. MEMBER DRIVE OPENS MARCH 18

"How Changing Habits Affect Business" was the subject of the meeting of the Oak Park Chamber of Commerce Thursday evening at the Oak Park Arms hotel. Will A. Foster, chairman of the advertising council of the National Dairymen's association, was the principal speaker.

A program of work for the year, it was announced, will be definitely arranged by March 1.

T. R. Leth, chairman of the membership committee, announced that the week of March 18 has been selected for a drive for new members, Leonard D'Ooge, the secretary, announced that his office is rapidly assembling the necessary information to make the efforts of the campaign workers effective.

O. C. Bracse, president, asserted that the Chamber's program will benefit not only the business men but all the citizens in the village, and expressed confidence that the organization will win large additions to its membership.

Kesser Maarin Dance.

A dance and beauty contest will be given by the young people's auxiliary of the Kesser Maariv congregation tonight in the Rogers Park hotel, Sheridan road and Pratt boulevard. The auxiliary will hold a jai alai party Thursday night at the fronton, Clark street and Lawrence avenue.

WORLD TO HEAR PRESIDENT TAKE OATH OF OFFICE

Elaborate Plans Laid for Broadcast.

The inauguration of Herbert Hoover and Charles Curtis on March 4 will be broadcast to the entire world. Acting upon the belief that the ceremonies should be universally available, officials of the National Broadcasting company are laying elaborate plans for covering this most important of national functions.

The inaugural ceremonies will be sent through the air to potentially every home in the United States. It will also be sent on short wave length for international consumption. The five hour program, beginning at 11 o'clock in the morning and ending at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, will be the most ambitious broadcast in radio history. The number of pickups, microphones, announcers, and air reporters will exceed those used in any event previously put on the air.

Solemn and Light Moments.

It will be a brilliant and impressive function, indeed—the inauguration of the thirty-first President of the United States. The solemn moments on the capitol steps when President Elect Herbert Hoover is administered the oath of office. Equally solemn moments in the senate chamber when Vice President Elect Charles Curtis is sworn in with the new senate. Then the lighter, gayer moods of the parade. Its bands, its troops in dress uniforms, its dignitaries, its flags and bunting. A gamut of color, action, and thrills, with Washington, the city beautiful, as the background.

Microphones, thirty of them, will tell the story to those who cannot be present to witness it. And to tell it faithfully they must do more than merely record the speeches and addresses and the shouts of the crowd. They must paint a mammoth canvas, throwing into colorful relief the central theme—the ceremony on the capitol steps.

The story cannot be told too well. The N. B. C. is doing much with this thought in mind. It has augmented its Washington announcerial staff with announcers from New York including Graham McNamee, Milton J. Cross, John B. Daniel, and William S. Lynch. It has enlisted the aid of Washington observers, men familiar with the dignitaries from every part of the country taking part in the ceremonies. And it has acquired the talents of air reporters, men who are master craftsmen, who wield words pungently and fluently. It has been equally busy in other phases of the broadcast, perfecting the machinery of transmission, endeavoring to make the program a perfect whole, technically as well as artistically.

Senate Yields to Modernity.

Perhaps the most interesting mechanical phase of the work is the construction of a special soundproof booth in the senate chamber. For the first time in history that sanctuary of zealously guarded traditions, where the senate snuff box, the salt cellars with their drying sand, and other hallowed relics are preserved in their erstwhile places, has yielded to modernity. Lest the microphone embarrass the mellowed atmosphere of the chamber, however, it will be placed in a special booth, constructed in a corner and designed to fade into the general decors of the walls; to look, in fact, as though it weren't there at all.

In the booth, David Lawrence, nationally known political writer and analyst, will take his place before the microphone and describe the proceedings in the senate chamber, when the inaugural broadcast is opened with the swearing in of Vice President Elect Charles Curtis and the new senators.

The program will continue with the inauguration of the President, the progress of the presidential party back up Pennsylvania avenue to the White House with the parade in its wake. This will be followed by a two hour review of the parade as it passes the court of honor at the White House.

Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire, chairman of the joint inaugural board, is in charge of arrangements of the broadcast. The program will be available to the fifty-eight stations associated with the N. B. C. and others. Penetrating every corner of the country, a closeup of their own people in Washington will be sent to the folks back home.

Clever Play Prevents Game in Auction Bridge Broadcast

The sixteenth of a series of twenty radio auction bridge games will be broadcast from W-G-N, The Chicago Tribune station on the Drake hotel, Tuesday, at 3:30 p. m.

The contestants will be R. L. Rutter of Spokane, Wash., a prominent bridge player of his home state, who is paired with Mr. Work against Miss Annie Blanche Shelby of Portland, Ore., another sterling player of the northwest, and Mr. Whitehead.

Following are the advance hands for game sixteen:

Mr. Work.
S—5, 4, 3.
H—K, 8.
D—9, 8, 5, 3, 2.
C—K, 8, 7.

Miss Shelby.
S—K, J, 10, 9, 2.
H—Q, J, 6.
D—A, K, J.
C—6, 2.

N.
W. E.
S.

Mr. Whitehead.
S—8, 7, 6.
H—10, 7, 4, 3, 2.
D—7, 6, 4.
C—4, 3.

Mr. Rutter [dealer].
S—A, Q.
H—A, 9, 5.
D—Q, 10.
C—A, Q, J, 10, 6, 5.

That even experts are helpless when the cards are against them and in the hands of equally skillful players was the rather comforting message which listeners carried away from Tuesday's radio bridge game, broadcast from Station W-G-N.

In this game, Mrs. Hamilton P. Jones, New Orleans, La., played with Mr. Whitehead against Mr. Work and Mr. R. F. Rode of Miami, Fla. The hands were:

Mr. Rode.
S—K, Q, J, 10, 5.
H—Q, 10, 5.
D—7, 6.
C—K, 5, 3.

Mrs. Jones.
S—4, 3.
H—A, J, 9, 8, 6, 4.
D—Q, J, 5.
C—J, 7.

N.
W. E.
S.

Mr. Whitehead.
S—9, 7.
H—K, 3, 2.
D—8, 4, 3.
C—A, Q, 8, 6, 2.

Mr. Work [dealer].
S—A, 8, 6, 2.
H—7.
D—A, K, 10, 9, 2.
C—10, 9, 4.

The bidding of the hand was obvious—one diamond by Mr. Work, dealer, in the south; a defensive bid of one heart by Mrs. Jones, west; one spade by Mr. Rode, north; and two hearts by Mr. Whitehead, east. Mr. Work, opening the second round of bidding, assisted his partner's call by bidding two spades, for which suit he had unusual support. Mrs. Jones was unable to go any further in hearts, as her hand was only strong enough for a following bid in the first place. The distinction between an initial bid and a following bid is that an initial or opening suit bid of one guarantees to the partner two quick tricks at least; but when an opponent has bid one of a suit, the following player may properly bid a five carder with less than two quick tricks. The reason is that it may be his last opportunity to show his suit to his partner. Should he pass, he may not have another chance to declare.

Contract, Two Spades.

After west's pass, Mr. Rode, north, of course passed. East also passed, as he could not expect game in hearts if his partner could not rebid after his assist, and it seemed quite possible that he and his partner could keep opponents from game.

As Mr. Rode, north, became declarer, Mr. Whitehead, in the east, had the initial lead, for which he chose his king of hearts. From Mr. Work's hand, which became dummy, declarer played the singleton 7 of hearts. This singleton caused Mrs. Jones, west, to stop and think before playing.

She saw no chance for making more than one trick in hearts, regardless of whether her partner or declarer held the queen. Dummy had ample trumps for ruffing, and five diamonds that one ruff would establish. Unless north had three diamonds, west, if she did not win the first trick, could not hope to obtain the lead at any time during the play. North could discard any losing clubs in his own hand on dummy's diamonds.

West saw but one chance to break declarer's game—and that was the immediate lead of clubs through any high clubs declarer might hold, up to any that east had in his hand. If east's side strength for his heart assist happened to be the ace-king or the ace-queen of clubs, east and west could take two club tricks, and west could ruff east's third lead of clubs.

Covers Partner's King.

Having thus analyzed the situation, Mrs. Jones, west, covered her partner's king of hearts with the ace, in order to lead a club. Mr. Rode, north, played the 5 of hearts.

Mrs. Jones led the jack of clubs; Mr. Rode, declarer, played the king, hoping to establish dummy's 10 on the third round, as he could do if the adverse clubs were split 4-3. Mr. Whitehead won with the ace of clubs; dummy played the 4.

Mr. Whitehead continued with the queen of clubs; dummy played the 9; Mrs. Jones the 7; declarer the 3. Mr. Whitehead then led the 2 of clubs; dummy played the 10; Mrs. Jones trumped with the 3 of spades; and Mr. Rode, declarer, had to follow suit with the 5 of clubs.

East and west had therefore taken four tricks and saved game before declarer could get started. Regardless of what Mrs. Jones led next, declarer could get in, exhaust the adverse trumps, and take the rest of the tricks. Therefore declarer scored for three-odd at spades—27 points for tricks and 30 for four honors in his own hand and fifth in his partner's.

Had Mrs. Jones, west, not won the first trick by overtaking her partner's king, nothing that east could have led could have prevented declarer from making game. Declarer would have won any card led by east except the ace of clubs, and that lead would have presented declarer with a club trick. In the latter case, the third trick would have been declarer's inevitably, and he would have exhausted the adverse trumps, established south's diamonds, used a trump in the south hand as entry, and discarded his own losing club on south's long diamonds.

The Bid at Contract.

The contract bridge bidding of this hand would be quite interesting. South would start with one diamond, just as in auction. West might be more timid about bidding the heart, but, in the opinion of Mr. Work, she should do so. Mr. Work finds that in contract players are too prone to abstain from following bids which they would unhesitatingly make in auction, and which in contract often prove to be valuable.

After west's one heart, north should bid two spades. The bid of the unnecessary number would be made to show real strength to south, and would be fully justified by the fact that south had bid initially. Without south's bid, one spade would be the most that north could declare.

After north's two spades, east would be placed in an embarrassing position. There is much to be said for his hand, and he could safely bid three hearts if his partner's had been an initial heart bid. However, the partner of a player who has made a following bid should be careful in assisting that bid because it has not shown the strength that an initial bid would guarantee. However, as east could not know that west did not have strength for an initial bid, and as west has a doubleton in one of the adverse suits, he probably would feel justified in risking the three heart bid, although of course he would be happier about it if north had bid only one spade, so that he could show his assistance by bidding two hearts.

As far as the determination of who is to be declarer and the size of the contract is concerned, it would not matter whether east bid or pass; in either event south would bid four spades. It is true that he has already announced his diamonds, but he has not shown his great strength in his partner's suit, nor the value of his hand in support of spades by reason of its having only a singleton of the adverse suit.

If east gave his heart assist, the play would be the same in both games; but if east were shut out by north's two spades, west might not feel justified in making her overtaking coup on trick one.

RADIO SET FOR PLANES.

A radio receiving set recently designed by the signal corps of the United States army for use in aircraft is said to be only 3¾ inches thick, 14¾ inches wide, and 8 7-16 inches high, and to weigh only twelve pounds.

EXPERTS FACED BY PROBLEMS IN TELEVISION

Optimism Out of Order Until They Are Solved.

Cambridge, Mass., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Practical television is confronted by three major problems, according to D. E. Replogle, radio engineer.

Until these are overcome, wholly or in part, he says, "undue optimism is out of order." He points out that television is a most complicated branch of engineering, involving an intimate knowledge of radio, electricity, mechanics, gaseous conduction, distortionless amplification, modulation and demodulation, photography and optics.

In outlining the three principal problems to be solved in television he says:

"Our first is that of detail. It is a most intricate one, involving dot elements, time coefficients, luminous intensity, accurate synchronization, and available wave channels. Because of the width of a channel required television is not possible on standard wave lengths.

Must Use Short Waves.

We are compelled to resort to short waves, which are by no means universal in their application. We shall have to utilize three separate but simultaneous short wave channels if we are to meet the peculiarities and requirements of urban, rural, and long distance reception.

"The width of the channel used, say 100 kilocycles, determines not only the dimensions of the television image but the amount of detail possible. Both high and low frequencies are essential. If we delete the lows we introduce extraneous shadows and change the tone of the picture. If we cut off the highs we eliminate sharp lines essential to good detail. Cutting off the highs also limits us to slow motion.

"Our second major problem is that of luminosity. We have accomplished wonders with present neon tubes of low candle power, but there still is room for a world of improvement. It seems probable that we shall have to develop a lamp capable of vastly greater illumination.

Synchronization Necessary.

"Our third problem is that of synchronization. Already speed controls with centrifugal governors making and breaking contacts across speed-control resistances have been developed. It seems probable, however, that the ultimate solution will be found in the use of breaking devices which will regulate the scanning disc by means of a definite frequency impressed on the television carrier wave along with the picture.

"The problem of a nation-wide television service is a most serious one. In the beginning at least we may make use of the so-called radio movies. The advantages of film pickup are numerous. The subjects may be filmed under ideal conditions. Positive prints may be widely distributed and broadcast by any station without special skill or expensive equipment. It is thus possible to effect a nation-wide hookup without the use of wire lines."

Band and Orchestra Will Give Family Party Program

Capt. Patrick Conway's famous concert band and Joe Green's marimba combination orchestra will be the entertainers tomorrow night in the family party program, broadcast by W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel, and a coast to coast network of thirty-eight other broadcasting stations. Their performance will be unusually varied, the band and orchestra alternating and combining in special features.

NO RADIO EQUIPMENT.

It is estimated that there are 10,000,000 homes in America without radio equipment of any sort.

LOUD SPEAKERS ARE BECOMING COMMON IN INDIA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 23.—Reports from India state that the use of loud speakers and of broadcasted speeches at large public meetings is increasing rapidly. The frequency of tremendous gatherings of 25,000 or 30,000, such as the meeting of the Indian National congress, for which every one of the 25,000 seats provided were booked well in advance, has made the use of loud speakers necessary. The broadcasted speech has followed naturally. It is only three years since loud speakers were first used in India, when at Christmas, 1925, Krishnamurti addressed the Theosophical society in Madras in this manner.

ROYALTY ON AIR

The voice of King George V. was broadcast twice during 1928 through the British Broadcasting corporation, the queen's but once, and the prince of Wales' four times.

DE LUCA, PAPI IN JOINT CONCERT TOMORROW NIGHT

Picture music—an exhibition of old and new masters of composition designed to bring a series of romantic, heroic, or sentimental events vividly to the minds of listeners—is the underlying feature of the joint program to be presented by Guiseppe De Luca, Metropolitan opera baritone, and a concert orchestra directed by Genaro Papi, former conductor of the Metropolitan, during the family party tomorrow night over W-G-N, The Chicago Tribune station on the Drake hotel.

De Luca, leading baritone of the Metropolitan, is one of the remarkable interpreters of the poetry of song. His capacity for creating character in music has been recognized in all great opera and concert centers. From the age of twenty to the present time his appearances have been occasions for presentation of distinct, cameo-clear delineations of elemental human emotions in music. No matter what language he uses, the meaning of his songs is so strikingly presented that any listener may understand it. In the same way Papi has utilized the orchestra to dramatize music for his audiences.

REMOTE CONTROL BIG FACTOR IN RADIO IN BERLIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 16.—In addition to its studio microphones the Berlin broadcasting station is declared to have permanent broadcasting facilities in fifteen theaters, five hotels, seven sports arenas and race courses, five educational centers, and others in museums, cathedrals, churches, and public buildings.

PLAN STATION IN IRELAND.

Because storms so frequently interrupt communication by wires, it is proposed to erect a powerful wireless station in northern Ireland.

SPEAKING of matters in the sports how about a little radio horse this morning? Imagine that hearing this over the air: there's the boots and saddles already, summoning Frankie Boy Waxwork to the post. It sure is day for a horse race. It's drizzling all day, with fogs and scudding over the countryside, only the dyed-in-the-wool racing have come out to see the show. so drizzly that the two horses led over here from the stables light blankets covering them. The is soggy and slow—there are of water along the rail in spots the spectators have been keep- under cover. Most of them are lingering down around the betting booths, in the arcade under the grandstands, chatting after making their bets at the windows and eating hot dogs.

There aren't many of them out here standing around the paddock, and there's nobody leaning on the rail in front. It's kinda hazy over there on the back stretch. I'll bet the jockeys will be covered with mud after they've gone one furlong.

Here they come now—Sammy, the postboy, is leading 'em out on the track; there won't be much parading today—they're sloshing right down the muddy track to the starting post. Frankie Boy, ridden by Jockey Al Winter, has the rail; and Waxwork, with Jockey Red Kershaw up, is the other steed.

They're not very skittish; this weather has dampened their spirits. Now they're up behind the barrier, they're turned around—the starters are pulling 'em up to the tape. Frankie Boy and Waxwork—have you picked your winner yet? The crowd is silent now, and all gathered in the grandstand and clubhouse—waiting for that flash—gosh, look at what a splugh of mud that track is! Watch 'em; Watch 'em!

The start will be up here to our left.

They're off! Frankie Boy slips in the ooze as the barrier leaps up, and Waxwork is off to a lead of over a length—Frankie can't get going in the mud—he slips and slothers in the slime—and now, when he arches his back and convulses a little, he manages to start—here they come down the home stretch, and Waxwork is a length and a half in the lead! Waxwork slides over to the rail—can you hear that splashing in your radio horn? These babies are not mud hens, you can see that!

Feet flying out at all angles—look at them wallowing past us! There they go—and cruising 'round the first turn—Waxwork has better footing and he's stretching his lead as they're rounding the bend—they are bouncing like rocking horses—AND WAXWORK IS LEADING FRANKIE BOY BY TWO LENGTHS AT THE QUARTER DISTANCE! . . .

Kinda misty over yonder—they're sloshing into the back stretch—and Jockey Winter's face and silks are slathered with mud and slime. . . . Every yard splashes up a new coat of mud from the slipping hoofs of Waxwork. . . . The crowd is yelling, but its pretty hard to urge horses on in this weather. . . . Jockey Kershaw is getting better control over there on the back stretch—yep, he's coming up. . . . Frankie Boy is swimming up toward Waxwork—he's gaining—he's gaining—a length and a half behind, galumphing through the mire . . . he's getting close, getting closer to Waxwork. . . . FRANKIE BOY IS TRAILING WAXWORK ONLY BY A LENGTH AT THE HALF DISTANCE. . . .

They seem to be learning how and they're moving a little faster now. . . . Waxwork on the rail, plowing through the mud and water, as they hit the turn. . . . Look at 'em sail around that curve. . . . AND FRANKIE BOY IS INCHING UP—INCHING UP ON THE TURN—KERSHAW'S BOOTIN' HIM HOME—THE HORSES' LEGS ARE SLIDING APART—and here they come swerving into the home stretch. . . . And they'll come squuushing toward us. . . . Frankie Boy creeping closer and breaking down the lead—BOY, he's MOVING NOW. . . . FRANKIE BOY ONLY A HALF LENGTH BEHIND AT THE THREE-QUARTER POLE.

Red Kershaw, up on Frakie Boy, is as black as a coal miner. . . . FRANKIE BOY'S OVERTAKING WAXWORK!—here they come!—jockeys close together now, and they look as tho' they were flaying each other with the whips. . . . NECK AND NECK THEY ARE. . . . COMING HOME. . . . COMING ON. . . . Look at 'em—FRANKIE BOY UP WITH WAXWORK. . . . NECK AND NECK. . . . Here they are out here. . . . FRANKIE DIVES AHEAD AND HE HOLDS HIS FOOTING. . . . THERE THEY GO. . . . FRANKIE BOY WINS BY A NECK FROM WAXWORK!

416.4 Meters—720 Kilocycles SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 24

The Children's Concert . . 5:30

ORDINARILY children and Sunday just don't get along. But the W-G-N Symphony Orchestra gets together each Sunday afternoon and spends half an hour playing nice, live music picked especially to amuse children. And for that half hour Pat Barnes forgets his dignified self and becomes a kid. He discusses the pieces and their composers, telling what kind of men they were and where they lived. For variety, Eleanor Jewett, who knows all about pictures, will tell you about a painting in today's roto section called "Adobe and Snow." It's a delightful picture of an Indian on his horse and his mud house behind him. Irving K. Manoir painted it. And the Funny Paper—Uncle Quin will read it, all eight pages, beginning at noon.

NEW SEWER PLAN PROPOSED FOR BERTEAU AVENUE

Project Would Result in 2 Million Saving.

A resolution instructing the board of local improvements to plan a $1,000,000 sewer in Berteau avenue to replace present plans for one costing $3,000,000 was passed by the city council last Monday. The resolution proposing a saving of $2,000,000 was introduced by Ald. Thomas J. Bowler [41st].

According to the proposal of Ald. Bowler, a sewer draining the homes in the newly annexed northwest district west of Narragansett avenue, now without sewers, could be constructed to empty into a sewer planned by the sanitary district of Chicago to flow north and south along the Des Plaines river. The original plan of the board of local improvements was to construct a seven and one-half mile sewer in Berteau avenue, serving the entire northwest territory and draining eastward into the north branch of the Chicago river.

Feared Heavy Assessments.

For 14 years residents of the district between the Chicago river and Narragansett avenue blocked moves of the board to get an ordinance for this sewer through the courts. They complained that they would be assessed heavily, while they would benefit only slightly, since they already had fairly adequate sewerage. Only the district west of Narragansett avenue really needed a sewer, they said, and only residents of that section should pay the assessment.

A sewer is a necessity for the area to be served by the newly proposed system, Ald. Bowler says, since basements of homes are continually flooded and sanitation is endangered by the absence of water draining facilities. The district east of Narragansett avenue does not have the same condition, since it is served by sewers in Montrose avenue and Irving Park boulevard.

No Legal Objection.

There would be no legal objection to the proposed sewer draining to the west instead of to the east, sanitary district engineers assured Ald. Bowler and a city council committee headed by him which conferred with the district trustees last week.

Members of the committee which has been working on the project since last December are Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th], John A. Massen [48th], John W. Chapman [40th] and Frank A. Ringa [39th].

BUSINESS MEN ASK CAR LINE ON 26TH STREET

A resolution requesting the city council to obtain an extension of the Twenty-sixth street car line west from Kenton avenue to Cicero avenue was adopted by the Crawford Business Men's league last Friday night.

This improvement would be of great benefit to business men of Twenty-sixth street, according to R. F. Toepper, secretary of the league. The laying of three blocks of tracks and the cutting through of Twenty-sixth street under the Belt line tracks and would make popular transfer points of this street and Cicero and Crawford avenues, the resolution says.

At present there is no way to get to Cicero by street car in that district, and thousands of residents of the Twenty-sixth and Crawford district must go to work by a round-about way. Business on the street would be greatly increased by movement on Twenty-sixth street between Cicero and Chicago, members of the league believe. At present, they feel that they have no access to the trade which is really right at their door, a few blocks to the west.

Another point brought out is the fact that with the completion of the Crawford avenue bridge this year, residents of Cicero would be able to come east on Twenty-sixth street to Crawford avenue and then transfer and go into the district south of the river. Such a connection with the south side has been the desire of southwest side residents for 20 years, they say.

Another Loop Store to Open Oak Park Branch

Oak Park's fast growing shopping center around Lake and Marion streets is about to acquire another branch of a loop store. Baskin, dealers in men's clothing, has leased the southwest corner of Lake and Marion streets, which the Royal Palms restaurant has occupied for several years. The first and second floors are now undergoing extensive changes, and the store will be similar to the loop shops of the firm.

Berwyn D. A. R. Chapter Gives Dinner for Husbands

The High Prairie Trail chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution of Berwyn, was hostess to members' husbands at a Washington birthday dinner last Thursday at the Berwyn hotel. This is Illinois' youngest chapter, less than a year old. The Rev. G. B. Williamson was the speaker. Mrs. Arthur Brogue, the regent, presided. Mrs. R. H. Wade is program chairman.

Mothers Save Papers to Help Boys' Camp Fund

More than 1,000 Austin housewives have promised not to throw away their old newspapers as a result of an intensive drive by boys of the Austin Y. M. C. A. last week. The boys want to collect the papers May 4 and sell them to obtain funds for the annual "Y" summer camp.

BABY WOODLAWN READY TO HAVE CHEST THUMPED

Faces Fair Contest Physicians This Week.

Examinations of children in the baby health contest, to be held in connection with the Woodlawn community fair, March 4 to 8, inclusive, will take place Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week at the Hayes hotel, 64th street and University avenue.

When registration closed Wednesday at noon, more than 400 babies had been entered in the contest, according to Louis R. Harris, manager. The purpose of the contest, Mr. Harris said, will be to determine the baby in most perfect physical condition on the south side.

The fair, which will be sponsored by the Woodlawn Business Men's association and the Associated Clubs of Woodlawn, will be held in the two ballrooms at the White City, 63d street and South Park avenue.

Predict Attendance of 50,000.

Reports from campaign managers of the girls who are candidates for "Miss Woodlawn" show that the number of tickets sold for the affair will far exceed the expectations of the business men who are sponsoring the fair. According to Theodore Becker, president of the Woodlawn Business Men's association, more than 50,000 persons are expected to attend the fair on the five evenings it will be held.

Enthusiasm among the members of the organization who have named candidates for "Miss Woodlawn" is running high. Each club is boosting its candidate by an extensive advertising campaign throughout the community. Pictures of the candidates and the organization sponsoring them are appearing in many of the windows of Woodlawn merchants and pep meetings of the members of these organizations are held weekly to urge them to greater efforts in the sale of tickets so that their candidate may win.

Miss Esther Davis, 6546 Greenwood avenue, has been chosen as the candidate for the MacCormac School of Commerce, 1170 East 63d street. Miss Davis is known throughout the community for her church work. She is a Sunday school teacher at Woodlawn Baptist church, 62d street and University avenue, and a sponsor of the Junior Hi-Y, an organization composed of students of the junior and high

PARK DISTRICTS OF SOUTH SIDE VOTE TUESDAY

Last minute withdrawals have left only five candidates in the race for commissioners of the two south side small park districts, according to John S. Rusch, chief clerk of the board of election commissioners. Two commissioners are to be elected Tuesday in each of Ridge and Fernwood Park districts.

All but three men have withdrawn their names as candidates for office in Ridge Park. Robert C. Heidt and Stephen are on the ballot as "tax payers" candidates, and Robert N. McMurry is a "nonpartisan."

Edward W. Peterson and Benton M. Hopkins are candidates for "home rule and low taxes" in the Fernwood district.

Traffic Lights Installed at Lake Park Corners

Traffic signal lights, ordered by the city council a few weeks ago, were installed yesterday at 43d street and Lake Park avenue, and 47th street and Lake Park avenue. Ald. Bert A. Cronson [4th] obtained the order.

ALL SOUTH SHORE TO GET TOGETHER AND TALK IT OVER

Plans Completed for Fellowship Dinner.

More than 500 persons are expected to attend the third annual good fellowship dinner to be held March 6 under the auspices of the South Shore temple, 7215 South Jeffery avenue. The purpose of the dinner is to promote friendliness and coöperation among members of all churches and other organizations of the section.

THE REV. WILLIAM BODDY.
[Moffett Photo.]

Dr. William Boddy, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, 64th and Kimbark avenue, will be the principal speaker. The Rev. M. Russell Boynton, pastor of Bryn Mawr Community church, 70th street and Jeffery avenue, will make the opening address, and Dr. Claude W. Kelly, pastor of the Parkside Baptist church, 1500 East 60th place, will give the invocation.

An invitation has been extended to Julius Rosenwald to come to the banquet as a special guest of honor.

The Essex choir, which is composed of members of Essex Community church, 74th street and Blackstone avenue, will furnish the musical entertainment for the affair.

Again James W. Newhouse is chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements for the affair. To the efforts of Mr. Newhouse has been attributed much of the success of the two earlier dinners, the first at Bryn Mawr Community church, and the second at the Southmoor hotel, 67th street and Stony Island avenue.

More than 27 community organizations are members of the ministerial association. They include churches, parent-teacher associations, business men's groups, and various organizations scattered in the south shore area. Each of these groups will attend the banquet in a body or send a score of representatives.

The Young Ladies' society of the South Shore temple, under the supervision of Rabbi George Fox, will serve the dinner.

OUR trained investigator has unleashed his bloodhounds on the trail of a rumor that Walter Lichtenstein of the First National bank, who has a daughter at Vassar, was guilty of poetry in the last number of the school publication. We quote a sample stanza:

She registered at Vassar, where the highbrows seem to go
In search of greater culture and the things they wish to know;
We read the regulations and we prayed unto the Lord
To strengthen her in trials by fire before the college board.
We felt the war was over when our darling topped the grade,
And Vassar wrote to tell us she was in the Big Parade.
We answered myriad questions, then we wrote a husky check
That left the old sock empty and the bank account a wreck.

Walter hitherto has lived a blameless life at 5536 Dorchester avenue.

BEVERLY HILLS WOMAN'S CLUB TO GIVE COMEDY

"You and I," a three act comedy by Philip Barry, will be given as the annual production of the Beverly Hills Woman's club Wednesday afternoon in the Ridge park fieldhouse, 96th street and Longwood drive. The play will be repeated the evening of the same day for the husbands of the members.

The play is being given under the direction of Mrs. Henry E. Heineman, 1625 West 102d street. Mrs. A. De Clercq is stage manager and Mrs. Rees Roberts is prompter. Several selections will be given by the club chorus at both performances.

The cast follows: Maitland White, Mrs. Henry Heineman; Nancy, his wife, Mrs. John Tomajan; Roderick White, Janice Gray Lester; Veronica Duane, Virginia Hovey Jackson; Jeffrey Nichols, Mrs. Frances Evans; G. T. Warren, Mrs. Frank Staely; and Etta, the maid, Mrs. Kingsley Coleman.

Oakdale Swedish Group Gives Play Wednesday

Members of Alpha Gamma Gamma, an organization of the Oakdale Swedish Mission church, will present two one act plays, "Sewing for the Heathen," and "Honest Peggy" next Wednesday and Thursday in the church, 88th street and Normal avenue. Included in the casts are: Miss Martha Ellstrom, Miss Vivian Law, Miss Ora Thorsen, Miss Hazel Sneltzes and Miss Alta Mason.

MRS. JOHN BAIN CHURCH WINDOW IS DEDICATED

Dedication of a window to the memory of Mrs. John Bain, wife of the south side banker and south park commissioner, took place last Sunday at Drexel Park Presbyterian church, 64th street and Marshfield avenue.

"Sarah the Steadfast," a sermon based on Mrs. Bain's life, was preached by the Rev. Clinton C. Cox, pastor of the church she attended, and where Mr. Bain teaches a men's Bible class. Members of the class attended the dedication in a body.

Vocal selections by Mrs. Catheryne Bly Utesch and members of the vested choir comprised the music of the memorial program.

READY TO COUNT FOLK WHO'D RIDE 71ST ST. BUSES

Surface Lines' Engineers to Make Survey.

The first step in an effort to obtain feeder buses on 71st street will be made this week when representatives of the Stony Island Business Men's association will meet engineers of the Chicago Surface lines to tour the district to investigate its transportation needs.

According to Gustave Kluge, vice president and chairman of the improvement committee of the association, some definite agreement regarding feeder buses on 71st street will be made at the meeting with the engineers next week.

Ready to Let Widening Contracts.

The fact that Ald. William Meyering [8th] recently introduced a resolution in the city council for an ordinance that would make 71st street a through street and the fact that the bureau of streets expects to let contracts for the widening and paving of 71st street from Cottage Grove avenue to Stony Island avenue March 15 requiring to start on or before May 1, will be cited to the engineers.

A movement to have the street widened was started three years ago by the business men of the community who believed that the growth of the neighborhood was retarded because 71st street was almost a blind street at Cottage Grove avenue and motorists were compelled to use 67th or 73d streets to reach Stony Island avenue.

The fact that the Illinois Central railroad had tracks in the street for almost the entire mile between Cottage Grove and Stony Island avenues also caused motorists to avoid the thoroughfare.

New Route Across Whole City.

When the widening is completed it will open a new traffic artery from the western city limits to the lake. This improvement and the proposal to make 71st street a through street, it is believed, will relieve traffic conditions on many of the other cross town streets, and take motorists through a section that is thus far under developed because of poor condition of the street.

William J. Hubrich, president of the Business Men's association, has pointed out that the residents of the

REALTY BOARD HEAD TACKLES DRAIN PROBLEM

So. Shore Group Installs James C. Williams.

James C. Williams, president of the South Shore Securities company, 2406 East 75th street, was installed as president of the South Shore Real Estate board at a dinner at the Shore Swedish club.

More than 100 real estate men in the community who attended the dinner heard Mr. Williams point out the important projects that the organization will work on this year.

"Outstanding in our activities during 1929," said Mr. Williams, "will be a vigorous attempt to find a solution for the disposal of surface water in our district. Every man here knows that we must find some immediate remedy for the sewer condition. It deserves the deepest interest of every one of our members and I intend to give my sincere effort to finding the proper solution to this problem.

Supports Zoning Changes.

"We are going to take an active interest in the proposed zoning changes in our section of the city. This is of vital importance to our organization and as your president I am going to ask every member to give me his assistance in this proposed activity as well as in the plans being made to arouse greater interest among the people of the south side in the apartments we have to offer."

Upon being asked whether the World's Fair in 1933 would aid the community, Mr. Williams responded with the following answer:

"The World's Fair is going to mean a great deal to the south side, and especially the south shore. During 1929 our organization should pledge itself to support the World's Fair and the work that is being done in its behalf. We are including in our program of outstanding activities this year the boosting of the Fair."

Has Membership of Fifty.

The South Shore Real Estate board was organized in 1927. The board has a membership of more than fifty firms.

Officers installed in addition to Mr. Williams were: Vice President, John P. Quigley of John P. Quigley and company; Secretary, John C. Jorn of J. C. Jorn and company; Treasurer, E. J. Radke of the Bryn Mawr State bank.

Speakers at the dinner included: Clayton F. Smith, county recorder; Charles Ringer, county assessor; Ald. William D. Meyering [8th], and Ald. William A. Rowan [10th].

LAWNDALE GETS BETTER STREET RAILWAY SERVICE

Improvements in Lawndale transportation are now taking place as a result of efforts of the Great West Property Owners' association of the Lawndale district. Repairing of the Sixteenth street surface line tracks has begun and a new type of street car has been promised for Sixteenth street and Roosevelt road. A committee consisting of A. Oswianza, president; A. Groupe, secretary, and Albert Blumenfeld, attorney for the association, held a meeting recently with the superintendent of the surface lines and asked for the needed improvements. The new cars will accommodate twice as many passengers as the old, and there will be a greater number of cars in transit during the rush hours.

The Great West Property Owners' association of the Lawndale district was formed about a year ago. Meetings are held once a month at the offices of the association, 3350 Roosevelt road. Residents of Lawndale wishing to join may call at the offices any evening.

Jewish Club to Dance.

The Progressive Jewish Men's club of Chicago are having a "Get Acquainted" dance this evening at the B. B. temple, 5028 Champlain avenue.

Contest Babies Get Preliminary Once-Over

Some of the 300 babies entered in the contest to be held in connection with the Woodlawn fair were given a preliminary examination by Dr. Jesse R. Gerstley, a member of the board of examiners, when their mothers took them to fair headquarters. The babies, left to right: Shirley May Hough, Robert Luttrell, Joyce Marie Hoffman, Lincoln Hodges, and William Joseph West. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Answers

Following are the answers to quotations previously published:

Quotation—Father, I cannot tell a lie. I did it with my little hatchet.

Answer—Of all the biographers of George Washington [1732-1799], the Rev. Mason L. [Parson] Weems is the only one who credits Washington with the above saying. In Weems' "Life of Washington" [1806] the cherry tree story familiar to all Americans is said to have come from an aged lady who was a cousin of George and as a girl spent much of her time in the family.

"When George," she said, "was about six years old, he was made the wealthy master of a hatchet, of which like most little boys, he was immoderately fond, and was constantly going about chopping everything that came in his way. One day, in the garden, where he often amused himself hacking his mother's pea sticks, he unluckily tried the edge of his hatchet on the body of a beautiful young English cherry tree, which he barked so terribly, that I don't believe the tree ever got the better of it. The next morning the old gentleman, finding out what had befallen his tree, which, by the by, was a great favorite, came into the house; and with much warmth asked for the mischievous author, declaring at the same time, that he would not have taken five guineas for his tree. Nobody could tell him anything about it. Presently George and his hatchet made their appearance.

"'George,' said his father, 'do you know who killed that beautiful little cherry tree yonder in the garden?' This was a tough question; and George staggered under it for a moment, but quickly recovered himself, and looking at his father, with the sweet face of youth brightened with the inexpressible charm of all-conquering truth, he bravely cried out:

"'I can't tell a lie, pa; you know I can't tell a lie. I did cut it with my little hatchet.'

"'Run to my arms, you dearest boy,' cried his father in transports, 'run to my arms; glad am I, George, that you killed my tree; for you have paid me for it a thousand fold. Such an act of heroism in my son is more worth than a thousand trees, though blossomed with silver, and their fruits of purest gold.'"—Rene Keller, 465 Hawthorne, Glen Ellyn, Ill.

[The foregoing is an exact quotation from Parson Weems, who started the famous story on its way. But for many years the good parson's narration of this and similar Washington anecdotes has been regarded with great skepticism, as the answer given below testifies.]

Answer—This cannot tell a lie incident is a brazen piece of fiction made up by the Rev. Mason L. Weems. Weems was a myth maker. An example is the history which he published of himself. He may have preached once to a congregation in which Washington sat. Later he described himself as rector of Mount Vernon parish, when no such parish ever existed. There was a Truro parish of which the church was called Pohick or Mount Vernon church. Washington was a vestryman of this church until 1785 when he moved his membership to Alexandria church. The Rev. Lee Massey was the pastor of both churches.

Weems in his biography had no trouble with Washington's public life but was thrown on his own resources for facts concerning the boyhood days. Very little is known of Washington's boyhood. The stories told by Weems are hopelessly and ridiculously false, according to biographers and historians. Every word and line is the offspring of a period fifty years later than Washington's childhood.—G. N. Wells, 3807 Elmwood avenue, Berwyn, Ill.

Quotation—To be prepared for war is one of the most effectual means of preserving peace.

Answer — This phrase which still holds good today was said by President Washington in his first annual address to both houses of congress. The address was delivered on Jan. 8, 1790. After referring to the recent adoption of the constitution by North Carolina Washington went on:

"Among the many interesting objects which will engage your attention, that of providing for the common defense will merit particular regard. To be prepared for war is one of the most effectual means of preserving peace.

"A free people ought not only to be armed, but disciplined, to which end a uniform and a well digested plan is requisite; and their safety and interest require, that they should promote such manufactories as tend to render them independent of others for essential, particularly for military, supplies." — V. Wlodek, 2330 South 56th avenue, Cicero, Ill.

NOTE—After presiding at the federal convention which framed the constitution Washington was elected the first President in 1789 and re-elected in 1793.

Quotation. — First in war, first in peace, first in the hearts of his countrymen.

Answer—On Dec. 26, 1799, twelve days after Washington's death, Col. Henry Lee of Virginia arose before both houses of congress and delivered the funeral oration which contains these memorable words. The phrase also appears in the resolutions on Washington's death written by Col. Lee and presented in the house by John Marshall. According to some authorities the term "fellow citizens" was used by Lee instead of "fellow countrymen."

The paragraph in which the words occur was as follows: "First in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen, he was second to none in the humble and endearing scenes of private life. Pious, just, humane, temperate and sincere; uniform, dignified and commanding, his example was as edifying to all around him as were the effects of that example lasting."

Col. Lee, the father of Robert E. Lee, famous confederate general, was one of the youngest and most brilliant leaders of patriot troops in the Revolutionary war. He was commander of a squadron of light cavalry known as "Lee's Legion." His dashing exploits in scouting and harrying the British won him the nickname of "Lighthorse Harry" and a gold medal from congress.

After Cornwallis' surrender at Yorktown, Lee retired from the army. In 1789 he was elected to the Virginia legislature and two years later became governor. In 1794 Washington sent him to suppress the whisky insurrection in Pennsylvania. He was a member of congress when Washington died and was chosen to deliver the funeral oration.

Lee again retired to private life in 1801. In the war of 1812 he was commissioned a major general, but was prevented from taking the field by a wound suffered in a Baltimore political riot. He died in 1818.—Mrs. Dora Reese, Grayville, Ill.

Proposes Giving Alley for School Playground

An ordinance to vacate a part of the alley in the block bounded by Kimbark and Woodlawn avenues and 54th and 55th streets was sent to the city council committee on streets and alleys last Monday by Ald. Leonard J. Grossman [5th]. It provides for vacation in favor of the Catholic bishop of Chicago for use by the new St. Thomas the Apostle school, which occupies the block, and is desired to become part of a playground for children of the school.

Women to Meet.

"Making Light of the Mystery" will be the subject of a lecture by William A. Durgin of the Commonwealth Edison company at the meeting of the Hamilton Park Women's club next Tuesday at the Hamilton Park field house, 72d street and Normal avenue. Mrs. Harry B. Garrett, 7010 Stewart avenue, chairman of the applied education department of the club, will be in charge of the program.

Normal Park Daughters and Mothers Will Dine

Next Thursday evening the annual mothers' and daughters' dinner will be held at the Normal Park Presbyterian church, Yale avenue and 71st street, and it is expected that 250 guests will be in attendance. Invocation will be given by the Rev. Clifford L. Le Duc, pastor of the church, and the toastmistress will be Mrs. Homer S. Bare, 7048 Princeton avenue. Miss Marie Hesse, 7120 Eggleston avenue will be the principal speaker.

PETITIONS FIGHT ZONE CHANGE IN BEVERLY HILLS

12,000 Signatures Are Sought by April 15.

Petitions asking the city council to prevent the passage of an ordinance establishing new zoning regulations for the Ridge community were placed in the hands of delegates from all of the organizations affiliated with the Ridge civic council at a meeting of that group Tuesday evening in Morgan Park high school, 110th street and Hermosa avenue.

At a recent meeting of the zoning committee of the city council, other interests in the community urged the passage of the ordinance.

Won Delay in Council.

The introduction of the resolution aroused the groups affiliated with the civic council, whose representatives asked the zoning committees of the city council to wait until an alderman is elected from the 19th ward before the matter is placed before the council for a vote. Since the election of Donald S. McKinlay, former alderman, as a municipal judge, the community has been without an alderman.

At the meeting Tuesday evening, plans were made for a thorough canvas of the entire community and 12,000 persons are expected to sign the petitions. They will be collected about April 15 and presented to the zoning committee May 1.

Oppose Change of Any Kind.

The petition, which was drawn up by Judge McKinlay and James G. Skinner, a former assistant corporation counsel, states that the signers oppose any change in the volume regulations of the present ordinance on zoning either now being sought or which may be contemplated. It adds that the residents of the community purchased property in the neighborhood on the expectation that the district would remain as originally zoned.

ROSARY COLLEGE STUDENTS HEAR TALK ON LIVING

Students of Rosary college in River Forest listened to a lecture Friday morning on "Learning and Living." The lecture was delivered by James T. McDaid, a member of the school cabinet. He showed how one can and will carry out one's patriotic duties as a citizen by proper use of one's education.

The Rt. Rev. Archmandaite Philip Salome will give a lecture before the students on Thursday afternoon. He will speak on "The Message from Egypt and Greece." All pupils and the faculty will attend.

The Mothers' club will hold its monthly meeting in Rosary school hall Tuesday afternoon. It will be an open meeting, featured by bridge and other card games. Mrs. Walter Herr is social chairman.

Women of Englewood A. C. Have Luncheon, Card Party

Members of the women's committee of the Englewood Athletic club held their monthly luncheon and card party Tuesday in the Circassian Walnut room of Marshall Field & Co. In the absence of Mrs. R. W. Fisher, general chairman of the committee, who is in Florida, arrangements for the affair were in charge of Mrs. George H. Buckly, assistant chairman. She was assisted by Mrs. David L. Swanson, chairman of the entertainment committee; Mrs. William P. Swain, chairman of the reception committee, and Mrs. B. F. Bellis, chairman of publicity.

Bowen P.-T. Party.

The annual benefit card party of the Bowen Parent-Teacher association will be held Thursday at the Windsor Shore club, 7526 Yates avenue. At the last monthly meeting of the organization Mrs. Charles Shaffer was presented with a gavel and appointed her nominating committee. Miss Margaret Schlundt gave a talk on the advantages of studying foreign languages in high schools.

Honor Frances Willard.

Mrs. William T. Crain, 418 West 60th street, was hostess Thursday at the monthly meeting of the Englewood W. C. T. U. The program was a memorial in honor of Frances Willard and included several musical numbers. Mrs. Mary Heafon led the devotional service. Mrs. Crain was assisted by Mrs. Charles Nelson, Mrs. Ira Odell and Mrs. George Kelly.

Members of the Parker high school Parent-Teacher association will hold a card and bunco party Thursday afternoon at the Tudor tea room, 266 West 66th street. At a meeting of the organization Wednesday, David M. Davidson, principal of Medill high school, spoke on "Problems of the High School Age."

VOICE of the SOUTH SIDE

YOU'RE WELCOME.

Chicago, Feb. 19.—I want to tell your readers of the wonderful response to the publicity we received regarding the baby show which is being held in connection with Woodlawn Community fair. After your story in last Sunday's Metropolitan section, we received more than 100 entries for the baby contest. To each of the mothers who entered their children in the contest we asked: "Where did you learn about the contest?" and each mother answered with the same reply: "The Metropolitan section of THE TRIBUNE." LOUIS R. HARRIS.

HE LIKES US.

Chicago, Feb. 20.—You will want to hear that the Metropolitan section of THE TRIBUNE is one of the most popular sections of your paper in my community. There is no activity in our park that is given notice in your section that does not bring a large response and immediate approval from the residents of the territory in which the park is located. Many of the residents did not know about some of our activities until reports of them appeared in your section. I determined this because many of our newer participants have told me they read about the activity in the Metropolitan section. I believe that it is one of the best in your paper and I hope that printing community news will be continued always.

O. C. ROSS,
Director of Ogden Park.

Cash Prizes for Amateur Photographs

Amateur camera artists may see their favorite efforts printed in the Metropolitan section of The Tribune. Every week The Tribune will pay $5 for the best photograph taken by an amateur. It will pay $3 for the second best and $2 for the third.

Pictures should be taken in the Chicago area and home scenes will be given the preference. Send in that snapshot of Mary playing with her toys or grandpa sitting by the fire smoking his pipe, of Tom and Jack and their snow man.

Address all entries to Photo Contest, Metropolitan Section of The Tribune. The name and address of the photographer should be written plainly on the back of the print as well as the names of all persons in the picture.

The contest is open only to amateurs and the editor will be final judge. Theme, treatment, and clearness of the print all will be taken into consideration. No pictures will be returned.

SCHOOLS HONOR WASHINGTON IN SONG AND STORY

Variety of Pageants and Plays Presented.

Pupils of all of the south side schools celebrated Washington's birthday Thursday by presenting plays, giving the famous addresses of the father of his country and giving readings concerning his life.

At Taylor school, 99th street and Avenue H, under the direction of Miss ebecca Freeman, Mrs. Judith Fanarvy and Mrs. Helen Heer, the pupils of the third grade presented "The Life of George Washington." "If Washington Were Living Now" was recited by Howard Frank, and "Washington," a song, was sung by the pupils of room 204.

Nida Eneralli, Joan Lithgow, and Joe Tokrajag presented "Dates in Washington's Life." "Mount Vernon Bells," a song, was sung by Eugene [illegible], while Helen Henderson, Edith Barna, William Juvancio, and Albert Hausler recited "Washington's Birthday."

Plays at Sullivan School.

"The Price of Liberty" was presented by the pupils of Sullivan school, 83d street and Coles avenue, under the direction of Mrs. Katherine Hallinan. [illegible] Swajkowski, 8th grade student, played the part of George Washington. Under the direction of Miss Helen Grosshans, the fifth grade pupils gave "General Washington's Christmas Dinner." The following children composed the cast: Emily Kalinowski, Eleanor Lakedy, Jenny Bolinski, Melvin Warner, Sidney Sosin, Earl Peterson and Albert Walkowski.

Forty-five pupils of Ward school, 27th street and Shields avenue, paraded through the building sang patriotic songs and gave Washington readings in each room. In the assembly, the children of the fifth grade, under the direction of Mrs. Thelma Switzer, presented "George Washington." Those who took part are: Rose Tassone, Joe Marzula, Dan Tellerino, Maisie Bruno, Florence Rubino, Lucy Marana, Nancy Dimenzo, and Lucy Kelly.

Sutherland Pupils Give Pageant.

At Sutherland school, 2124 West 101st street, Miss Jenny Jenkinson directed the pupils of the eighth grade in "Washington Milestones," a pageant depicting the life of the first President as a young man. "The Fame of Washington" was presented by the fourth grade students under the direction of Miss Marie Dargan. Miss Mary Ryan, sixth grade teacher, directed the pupils of her class in "The Builders," a short sketch showing Washington's service to the country during the days after the American revolution. The students of the third grade, under the direction of Miss Isabella Herriott, presented "The Making of the First Flag." The program at the school was concluded by Nancy Brown and Jane Caldwell, who did a minuet dance.

Members of the Second district of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs presented 22 silk flags to Perry school, 91st street and University avenue, Thursday at the Washington day program in the assembly hall of the school. Under the direction of Miss Mary J. Duggan the pupils of the fifth grade presented "The First Flag" and the foreign born children recited a "Pledge of Allegiance to the American Flag."

Three Programs at Thorpe.

Three assemblies were held in honor of Washington at Thorpe school, 89th street and Burley avenue, lower grades, intermediate grades, and the higher grades, each with a different program.

The lower grade program consisted of a flag drill by the pupils of the kindergarten, under the direction of Miss Betty Sutherland and Miss Augusta Kriewitz; "Washington Birthday," a recitation by John Andretith, James Matthews and Ernest Horsasian, under the direction of Miss Gladys Boteler, and patriotic selections by "Uncle Sam's Band," the kindergarten rhythm orchestra.

"Brief Biographies of Washington" were given by Eva Casaf and Edith Langbeen at the intermediate grade program. "The Making of the First Flag" was presented by Sophie Konck and Sophie Jerick, and "Like Washington" was given by Stanley Rakik, Edward Cutkodich, George Fiekman, and Raymond Anderson under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Hegberg.

The upper grade program consisted of "George Washington," a poem by Helen Brokop; "Washington's Fame," a reading by Edward Raffel; "Comfort Him," a song by the eighth grade girls, and "A Complaint Against King George," a reading by the eighth grade boys, under the direction of Miss Ethelyn Hopkins.

Plays and Pageant at Park Manor.

The program at Park Manor school, 70th street and Rhodes avenue, included "The Borrowed Book," a play presented by pupils of the third grade under the direction of Miss Julia D. Mitchell; "Washington Takes Command of the Army," a play given by the fourth grade students under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Shanley, and "Washington's Boyhood," a pageant presented by the seventh and eighth grade pupils under the direction of Mrs. A. T. O'Hearn and Miss Katherine Calloway.

Pupils of Marquette school, 66th street and Richmond avenue, presented "The Story of the First Flag." Those who took part were Dorothy Carley, Betty Miller, Eugene Rubesso, and Clifford Kiefer.

"Spirit of Days Gone By," a play reviewing the important events in the life of George Washington, was given by the following students: Jack Greinke, William Young, Frances Cibec, Joseph Goldberg, Russell Tallent, Evelyn Lease, Mabel Goeb, George Brown, Billy Uhle, Marie MacKenzie, Helen Lyons, Ada Duchesneau, Marguerite von Eerbandt, Mathew Duzkowitcz, Madeline Lyons, Ernestine Stonbraker, Paul Zayner, Anna Murphy, Lorraine Kirchoff, Beverly Gelhaus, Joseph Gallagher, and Mildred Jonak.

P.-T. Groups to Play Cards.

The Parker senior high school Parent-Teacher association will hold a card party at the Tudor, 266 West 66th street, at 2 o'clock Wednesday. Pivot bridge will be played.

CELEBRATE WASHINGTON DAY WITH QUADRILLE

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs Anent the Passing Throng.

Beach hotel Wednesday morning. It was a becoming red, the girls foregathering for their second annual banquet. Dr. Gertrude Slaughter spoke. Julia Stancik of 205 East 115th street is president. Miss Fargher says her first name—Wynogene—is American Indian, but that her last one is Manx, which readers will remember in connection with the well known isle. X marks the spot.

Gresham, one of our thriving communities out Beverly Hills way, is going to have a station worthy of its character, Vice President L. C. Fritch of the Rock Island lines announces. Also the 87th and 88th street subways will be built this year. Much credit for the improvements is due E. H. Arnold, president of the Gresham Improvement association, and associates.

ARGO is booming. A new store and office building, which will house the Argo State bank, is to rise in the heart of the business district at Archer avenue and West 63d street. Chicago earth—the best investment anywhere.

Herman Stern of 6654 Stony Island avenue, newly elected president of the Woodlawn Optimist club, is the author of a homely phrase that will bear endless repetition: "No club is a success unless it have a worthy objective."

We now propose to discuss Berwyn. Chief of Police Charles Levy has submitted his annual report to the city council, which shows that during the 366 days of 1928 only one [1] murder was committed. It had nothing to do with the bootleg industry. It was committed during a theater holdup when the woman cashier was shot. The four men implicated are now serving life sentences at Joliet penitentiary.

For the information of strangers and others in our midst we should like to explain that Berwyn is a neighborhood entity of the Metropolitan Chicago one reads so much about in the papers. A ten cent ride on the L, forty minutes from the loop. Paved streets, telephones, radios, churches, schools, boy scouts, garden clubs and everything. In fact, some of our best friends commute from there. Chief Levy polices this home owning—mostly—community of 47,000 people with 22 men. A ratio of one policeman to every 1,469 inhabitants.

We realize that easterners will think we're kidding—that there's no such place in Metropolitan Chicago as Berwyn—but we know it—we've even put it down on our projected Cook tours as Exhibit A.

WE see where good old Bill Borden—this town's Ed Howe—is going great guns with his candidate for alderman, Heeza Lyar. He has announced his platform, including his stand on transportation. "Where do you stand on transporation?" Bill asked his candidate. "About the middle of the car," said Heeza. So we know where he stands. Needless to add, Our Town is for Heeza Lyar. Two editors can't be wrong, Bill. Tell the 50,000 friends to laugh that off.

Mrs. Mark Christy, formerly of Austin, but now living with Mr. Christy and their son on a farm near Crown Point, our popular taxi Gretna Green, won the husband calling contest conducted by the Lake county farm bureau, her voice carrying farther than that of any other contestant. We are not informed how far, but any hungry husband knows his missus' voice will carry very far for either breakfast, luncheon or even dinner, as we laughingly term supper.

NEW HOPE REFORMED CHURCH WILL HOLD ITS FIRST SERVICES TODAY

The Rev. Richard Vandenburg, of Grand Rapids, Mich., will preach the sermon that will dedicate the new Hope Reformed church, Seventy-eighth street and Lincoln avenue, March 4, at eight o'clock in the evening. He is a former pastor of the church.

Additional dedication ceremonies will be held on the nights of March 5, 6, 7 and 8. The Rev. Charles G. Kindred, pastor of the Englewood Christian church, 6625 South Stewart avenue, will preach at the community night services which will be held in connection with the dedication March 6.

The Rev. Isaac Van Westenburg, pastor of the church, will preach the first public sermon at ten o'clock this morning when he throws open the doors of the new church for the first time and the church congregation, which is composed of more than 250 persons, gathers for worship in their own church after four months of meetings in temporary quarters.

The new church was erected at a cost of more than $120,000 and stands on a plot of ground 147 by 125 feet. The auditorium, which has a seating capacity of more than 600 persons, is equipped with the most modern furnishings. A large pipe organ is one of the outstanding features of the building.

4 GENERATIONS WITHOUT DEATH, MISHAP, DIVORCE

Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Peterson and their seven children have never seen themselves in print before. And that is the reason, chiefly, that they are now.

No deaths, no divorces, no accidents, no serious illnesses, no quarrels, nothing has disturbed the even tenor of their ways. Six daughters and one son, all married, ten grandchildren and two great grandchildren now make up the Peterson line. Mr. Peterson, who is 69, still works at the stock yards, and Mrs. Peterson, who is 71, still keeps house for him at 7406 Normal avenue.

All of them have stayed in Chicago, living on the south side within easy distance of each other so reunions are frequent. It's a good risk to be related to this family even by marriage. There isn't a widow or a widower among them.

John Grady Elected Head of St. Clara Choral Club

John Grady was elected president of the St. Clara Choral club of St. Clara Catholic church, 64th street and Woodlawn avenue, at a recent meeting of that organization. Other officers elected were: Secretary, Miss Betty Keefe, and treasurer, Miss Josephine Blum. The new librarians are Miss Elsa Sauter and Miss Agnes Melody. Mrs. L. A. Hollis was elected the new social chairman, and she will be assisted by Mrs. George Harrington.

Shrubs to Be Planted at Beverly Manor Corners

Adopting the suggestion of their president, Maurice Lanthier, members of the Beverly Manor Civic club voted at a meeting last week to decorate the street intersections of their district with shrubbery. Each of the four corners will be landscaped. It will be the work of the association to maintain the shrubbery after it is planted this spring.

community and those communities along 71st street have been suffering for many years because of the lack of proper transportation facilities. The nearest east and west car lines in that section are in 75th street and 67th street.

H. H. Haylett, managing vice president of the Greater South Side chamber of commerce, has for some time, been urging the representatives of the groups in the vicinity of 71st street to support a movement to remedy transportation conditions in the southwest part of the city. Mr. Kluge announced that Mr. Haylett would represent his organization at the meeting with the engineers next week.

GUILD PRODUCES REVUE ENTIRELY OF OWN MAKING

"Royal Love," a two act musical revue written and directed by Miss Jeanette Krulewich, was presented before a well filled house last Sunday evening by the members of the Chicago Arts guild in the Central theater, Wabash avenue and Van Buren street.

"Dream of Dreams," the theme song of the presentation, was written by Irving White, a member of the organization, and sung by Sam Aplon, who played the rôle of King Hildar. Melba Goodman played the part of Princess Helene, the beautiful girl whom the dashing young American revue director was trying to marry. The part of the American was played by Jack Friedman.

Others of the cast were: Herbert Hobson, Sidney Grass, Helen Herman, Hubert Schloss, Babette Froehlich, Emile Guttmann, Ethel Goodman, Julius Siegal, Irving White, Harry Rosenfield, Rella Wolf, Peggy Holt, Esther Goodman, Harry Miller, and Sylvia Goodman.

U. OF C. GROUP GIVES PLAY AT CHURCH TONIGHT

The Chicago Seminary players, a group of students from the divinity school of the University of Chicago, will present, "The Valiant," a one act play by Holworthy Hall and Robert Middlemass, this evening at Auburn Park Methodist church, 75th street and Harvard avenue.

The play has won seventy-five prizes and was given recently by the players at Hyde Park Congregational church and in the chapel of the divinity school.

Gregory Vlastos is the director, and the cast will include: Alan Jenkins, A. C. Walker, Harold M. Hildreth, Aldru Harmon, Harold O. Hatcher, and A. G. La Mar.

Martha Washington Club to Hear Talk on Homes

An illustrated lecture on "Famous Colonial Homes and Historic Inns," by Mrs. J. S. Maurer will be the feature of the program to be presented at the meeting of the Martha Washington Women's club Friday afternoon at the Blackstone hotel. Mrs. Dennis Gent, contralto, will sing. Mrs. William R. Pinckard, 6200 Kenwood avenue, president, will preside at the meeting.

OPERA LECTURE TO BE HEARD BY WOMAN'S CLUB

The department of music of the Englewood Woman's club will present Miss Tina Mae Haines at the morning session of the club in the Englewood Masonic temple, Yale avenue and Normal parkway, tomorrow. Miss Haines, a lecturer and organist, will give a lecture recital, accompanied with vocal illustrations, and her topic will be: "The Opera, Past, Present, and Future."

Mrs. Ranson Rice Jr. of 7140 Normal boluevard will give music news and Mrs. G. Henry Mundt, 7000 South Shore drive, chairman of music, will preside.

Announcement has been made of an organ recital to be given by Miss Hines on March 22 at St. James' Methodist church, 46th street and Ellis avenue.

Marquette Presbyterians to Debate Next Sunday

The Christian Endeavor society of the Marquette Park Presbyterian church will hold a debate next Sunday at 6:45 p. m. The subject will be: "Resolved, That a Young Man Can Do More Good as a Missionary to Africa than as a Preacher in America." Berenice Bennewitz and William Rea will take the affirmative and Dorothy Chase and William Mabee the negative. The judges will be the Rev. Leon Arpee, Paul Peterson, and Harold Newmeller.

Morgan Park Class Dines.

The fifth annual birthday dinner of the Win Some class of Morgan Park Methodist church, Longwood drive and 110th place, was held Thursday evening and more than 400 were in attendance. Mrs. Herbert Siddall, president of the class, gave an address of welcome, and Charles Abrams, Sunday school superintendent, gave the invocation. The principal speaker was Anthony Czarnecki, who spoke on "This, Our Country."

FORM P.-T. GROUP AT DIXON SCHOOL; INDUCT OFFICERS

Parents and teachers of the new Arthur Dixon school, which is being constructed at 83d street and St. Lawrence avenue, met Monday in the clubrooms at 8005 Eberhart avenue to organize the Arthur Dixon Parent-Teacher association and install the newly elected officers. Mrs. J. Pringle, who is active in south shore parent-teacher work, was the installing officer. Mrs. George Jordan was installed as president; Mrs. William Abbott and Mrs. John Sett, vice presidents; Mrs. M. W. Gillogly, recording secretary, and Mrs. J. L. Bradley corresponding secretary. These officers will take up their duties at a meeting tomorrow afternoon and the new organization will meet the first Monday in each month at the Martha Ruggles school until Dixon school is completed.

Crerar Presbyterians Acquire Site for Church

The lot at the southwest corner of 81st street and Calumet avenue has been purchased by the congregation of the Crerar Presbyterian church, 7907 South Park avenue, and it is expected that the work on the new building will start about March 1. The plans for construction are now being approved. The Rev. William H. Reeves, acting pastor, announces that the building will be built in units, the first containing the community house, a gymnasium, Sunday school rooms and a chapel.

Loretta Auxiliary Names Mrs. J. P. M'Graw President

Mrs. J. P. McGraw was elected president of the Loretto Woodlawn auxiliary at a recent meeting of the organization in the parlors of Loretto academy, 65th street and Blackstone avenue. Other officers elected were: Vice president, Mrs. A. O. O'Rourke; corresponding secretary, Mrs. John Brown; recording secretary, Mrs. William B. Traynor, and treasurer, Mrs. Harry J. Gallagher.

SCHOOL CHILDREN OUTFIT MATES' NEEDY FAMILIES

The theory that wearing plenty of clothes was a health measure prompted pupils of Van Vlissingen school, 137 West 108th place, to conduct a drive to provide them for needy fellow pupils during the last few months, according to Roy C. Horine, principal. The children conducted the campaign for clothes under the guidance of the bureau of child welfare of the Chicago health department.

The children of 12 families were completely outfitted, and a great many articles were given to individuals to supplement their clothing which was not adequate to their needs, Mr. Horine says.

Catholic Retreat.

The annual retreat of McHale-Englewood court, Catholic Daughters of America, is to be held at the Cenacle, 513 Fullerton parkway, from 3 o'clock next Saturday afternoon to 3 o'clock Sunday evening.

HAGAMANN VETS READY TO OPEN GAY MARDI GRAS

Varied Program Offered 2 Nights This Week.

Raymond J. Hagamann post No. 495 will stage a Mardi Gras at Viking temple, 69th street and Emerald avenue, Wednesday and Thursday nights of this week. Among the features will be dancing, vaudeville, side shows, confetti, refreshments and a bathing beauty contest.

The event will, according to those in charge, be something "entirely different." Dr. S. Wall is in charge of the registrations for the contest. Merchants in the neighborhood have been supplied with tickets.

More than 400 persons attended a dinner given recently by Jackson Park post No. 555 for the six members of L. H. Drury post No. 876, Grand Army of the Republic, recently. A revue and vaudeville acts constituted the program at a stag smoker held later by the Legion post. Plans for an open meeting March 15 are being prepared by Orville Cost, chairman of the entertainment committee.

Woodlawn post, No. 175, is to be host to the posts of the third district on Wednesday night, when the monthly meeting will be held at the clubrooms, 1208 East 63d street. The champion drill team of Woodlawn post, No. 175, is to appear at an exhibition drill at a dinner-dance to be given in honor of Mrs. Boyce Ficklen Jr., national president of the American Legion auxiliary, tomorrow night at the Congress hotel.

◆

Members of South Shore post, No. 388, will give a band concert and boxing show next Thursday evening at the Jeffery theater, 71st street and Jeffery avenue. The proceeds of the concert will be used to pay for the instruments and uniforms of the members of the post band.

South Shore post band is rehearsing for the post's mammoth show to be held the night of Feb. 28 at the Jeffery theater. George B. McMillen and John E. Titus are musical directors of the organization. Fred B. Houghton and Stanley M. Black are managers.

Roseland post, No. 49, has made good in its drive for members, according to Commander Ralph De Cook. "In the first four days of the drive 69 names were added to the roster. Careful estimates indicated that we have reached the state quota of 478, and that we will reach our own quota of 551 before we close the doors of our recruiting station at 11211 Michigan avenue on March 1, he said.

◆

Edward Hines Jr. chapter, No. 10, Disabled American veterans, recently was host to 250 women and their escorts at a card and bunco party at Roosevelt hall, State and Lake building. Dancing was also one of the entertainment features and the vets temporarily forgot their injuries as they glided over the floor as in prewar days. The affair was in honor of the women who assisted in the Forget-me-not drive last September. Miss Victoria Warrenson, general chairman of the drive, acted as hostess. Miss Bessie Robinson presided over the bunco and card party.

Verdun and Surface Lines posts will be hosts to the Second district, Feb. 28, at the 122d Field Artillery armory.

◆

Among the American Legion membership contests now on is that of Cook county versus all of Wisconsin. At the latest Wisconsin convention, the state commander issued the challenge which was accepted by the Cook county commander. Last year's membership in Cook county was 29,000 as against the total enrollment in Wisconsin of 32,000. At last reports, Cook county was in the lead by 2,000.

Entertainment in plenty has been arranged for the initial social event of Medill-Tribune post, No. 842, to be held in the Bal Tabarin at the Hotel Sherman tomorrow night. Members of the post and eligible candidates may secure tickets from any of the membership committee or from Adjutant E. F. Classen.

◆

Members of Marine post, No. 273, have requested that the age limit for service men applying for duty on the police force be waived or raised. In view of the training obtained while in the service, they believe that a special dispensation of this nature would be fitting.

◆

Advertising Men's post No. 38 will hear an illustrated lecture by Mrs. Gladys M. Petch at its meeting tomorrow noon at Hotel Sherman. Mrs. Petch's subject will be "Across Norway by the World's Wonder Railway."

Buddies of company M, 131st infantry, will hold their tenth annual banquet and reunion at the Morrison hotel Thursday night. The doings begin at 7 o'clock and all former members of the outfit are invited to attend. At last year's reunion sixty-six veterans were present, some traveling from California and Florida to attend. This year at least 150 are expected. Secretary Russell Loh, 1656 Farwell avenue, assures a good time, with plenty to eat.

Tuesday night at 8:30 o'clock Verdun post, No. 472, will hold a "very short" business meeting at the 122d Field artillery armory, after which there will be a "big blow out," sponsored by Surface Line and Verdun posts, for the district officers of all the posts of the second district. Eats and vaudeville. "Don't be among the missing," warns the entertainment committee. "It's your hard luck if you are."

An emergency relief corps, 150 strong, is being organized among members of Evanston post, No. 42, American Legion, under a plan drawn up and approved by the post and Chief of Police William O. Freeman of Evanston.

Under the plan, which has yet to be passed by the city council, the corps could be called out in case of fire, riots, disasters and storms, or crime epidemics and public hysteria. In the later cases they would patrol the streets and act as escorts for women.

Five companies will be formed of 22 men each, under the active direction of a captain, appointed by the directors of the post, but the post commander, Richard Chamberlin, at present, will be commander of the corps.

While the 150 or so who form the organized corps will do most of the active work the entire membership of 750 of the post will be ready for call in times of great emergency. If any of them are at the scene of an emergency, they are expected to volunteer their services in assistance.

Members of the corps may also volunteer for traffic duty with the approval of the captain of the corps.

Council action on the matter has been deferred because of tax problems which have swept all other issues aside, but it is expected that it will be handled favorably because of Chief Freeman's approval.

Legion posts will coöperate tomorrow in the welcoming to Chicago national officers of the American Legion auxiliary. The distinguished guests include Mrs. Boyce Ficklen Jr., national president of the American Legion auxiliary; Mrs. Gwendolyn Wiggin MacDowell, national secretary, and Mrs. Freda S. Kramer, national vice president for the northwestern division. The trio will be in Chicago Monday and Tuesday to attend the area child welfare conference of the auxiliary.

Mrs. Ficklen will be the guest of the department of Illinois at a dinner-dance at 6:30 o'clock Monday evening in the gold room of the Congress hotel. Mrs. A. C. Duncan, president of the state department, has planned a full program for the officers, including a visit to the veterans' hospitals. Arrangements for the dinner-dance are in charge of Mrs. Melville Mucklestone, president of the Cook county council of the auxiliary. Mrs. Glenn Suthers is in charge of reservations.

The area conference will be held at the Congress hotel tomorrow and Tuesday for the Legion and auxiliary. Representatives from central states will be in attendance.

HAMILTON PARK WOMAN'S CLUB GIVES PLAYS

Two plays, "Ever Young" and "The Rebellion of Youth," were given by the Hamilton Park Woman's club Thursday evening at the Englewood Masonic temple. Mrs. Gwendolyn Wiggin MacDowell, national secretary of the auxiliary, also will be a special guest at the dinner dance.

BUSINESS MEN ASK CAR LINE ON 26TH STREET

Want Extension to Cicero Avenue.

A resolution requesting the city council to obtain an extension of the Twenty-sixth street car line west from Kenton avenue to Cicero avenue was adopted by the Crawford Business Men's league last Friday night.

This improvement would be of great benefit to business men of Twenty-sixth street, according to R. F. Toepper, secretary of the league. The laying of three blocks of tracks and the cutting through of Twenty-sixth street under the Belt line tracks and would make popular transfer points of this street and Cicero and Crawford avenues, the resolution says.

At present there is no way to get to Cicero by street car in that district, and thousands of residents of the Twenty-sixth and Crawford district must go to work by a round-about way. Business on the street would be greatly increased by movement on Twenty-sixth street between Cicero and Chicago, members of the league believe. At present, they feel that they have no access to the trade which is really right at their door, a few blocks to the west.

Another point brought out is the fact that with the completion of the Crawford avenue bridge this year, residents of Cicero would be able to come east on Twenty-sixth street to Crawford avenue and then transfer and go into the district south of the river. Such a connection with the south side has been the desire of southwest side residents for 20 years, they say.

Mexico Is Mobilized Against Rebel Bands

GUADALAJARA, Jalisco, Mexico.—(AP)—Troops of all branches of the service are to be concentrated here within a month for a decisive drive against the bandit and rebel bands operating in Jalisco. The outlaw and insurgent movement is more intense in Jalisco than in any other part of the country, the marauders taking advantage of the retreats afforded by the mountainous nature of the territory.

France Gives $200,000 to National Theaters

PARIS.—(AP)—France will spend 5,000,000 francs [$200,000] on its subsidized theaters at Paris in 1929. The opera gets half the whole sum, the Comedie Francaise and the Opera Comique a million francs each, the Odeon theater 400,000 francs, and the National Popular theater installed in the Trocadero 200,000.

BARGAINS

Fair Treatment.

Last fall I purchased a pair of suede pumps. After wearing them a few weeks I noticed they felt too short, but thinking they might be all right after wearing them awhile, I did not return them.

Three months later I noticed a callous on my left foot, so went to a chiropodist, who informed me I was getting a bunion and that it was caused from wearing too short a shoe. Upon returning the pumps I told the salesman the trouble I had had.

I was much surprised when he told me I could choose a different style shoe. Treating customers in this manner will always keep old ones and bring new ones. R. L. B.

Making It Right.

Some time ago I bought a floor lamp at one of the great mail order houses. When the lamp was delivered I attached and lit it.

Later in the day it suddenly grew dark, and when I went to turn on the electricity it would not burn. I called up the electric company and they said a broken wire in the floor lamp had caused the trouble. They charged seventy cents for repairs.

I wrote to the store and told them of the trouble. Soon I received a letter of apology, asking me to send the bill to them.

They sent me the amount of the bill, plus five cents, to cover the cost of the stamps which I had used. J. P.

Unusually Square.

I experienced one of the best examples of real shoppers' service last spring that I have noted for a long time.

I had bought a new straw hat, paying a five spot for it. The day was extremely windy and as I stepped out of the door, the wind whiffed my new lid from my head and sent it rolling out into the street where a passing auto reduced it to pieces. The clerk from whom I had just bought the hat saw the whole performance. Calling me back into his store, he fitted me again with a new hat, refusing to take a cent for it. I could hardly believe it.

It was such an unusually "square" deal that I'm seeing to it that this store gets, not only my trade, but many of my friends, as well. E. J. B

Re-Plated to Suit.

I had a silver coffee pot that was badly tarnished. I took it to a jeweler and he had it silver plated for me. It cost me six dollars and in about a year it commenced to wear off.

I told the jeweler about it and he said to bring it down. I did so and in a week or so I stopped in the store and one of the clerks handed me the coffee pot wrapped up, so I didn't see it until I got home. I was so surprised when I did see it to find it just like new. I was delighted with it and there were no charges. So I will always patronize that store and speak a good word for it whenever I can.

ATTACK PARKING OF STREET CARS AS AUTO HAZARD

Residents of So. Hamlin Hear Plan of Relief.

A mass meeting of residents of the district to protest against the parking of street cars at 63d street and Central Park avenue was held Tuesday night in Eberhardt school auditorium, 65th street and Homan avenue, under the auspices of the South Hamlin Avenue and Vicinity Property Owners' association.

Members of the association contend that a traffic pocket is formed by the parking of street cars going only as far as Central Park avenue on the north side of 63d street from Central Park to St. Louis avenue, and the resultant switching of through street cars to the lane on the south side of the street.

Increased Accident Hazard.

Thus, they say, motorists not acquainted with the condition traveling east on 63d street will meet street cars traveling west on the same side of the street, and the chances for accidents are heightened.

The only remedy for the condition, according to William F. Stelzer, president of the association, is to demand that the officials of the Chicago surface lines run all the street cars through to Cicero avenue.

Suggests Ban on Auto Parking.

At a meeting of the association last week N. B. Quinn, assistant superintendent of transportation of the surface lines, is reported to have told the members that the condition could not be remedied for several years. It would, he said, be impossible to remove the pocket.

He suggested, however, that members of the association ask the city council to pass an ordinance prohibiting parking of private automobiles on the block at any time. This would eliminate congestion, he said, and would lessen the danger of accidents.

Electricity Replaces Oil Lamps in Arctic

Shoppers' Service Tales

Won Her Patronage.

I bought a pair of fabric gloves at a sale for 35 cents at one of the largest stores. They were very nice, but the clasps would not remain closed.

I took them back to see what could be done to make them stay clasped and I was told nothing else could be done but to put on new ones, which they were kind enough to do on gloves for which I paid the small amount of 35 cents. They won my patronage.

Courtesy Appreciated.

Recently, while passing through a strange city I went into a cafeteria, mistaking it for a restaurant. As I stood near the door wondering if I could manage a crutch and a tray at the same time, for I am crippled, the woman seated at the desk beside me said: "Madam, I'll send a girl to help you," which she did.

The girl proved to be good natured and accommodating, holding my tray and waiting patiently till I had made my choice of various good things and then piloted me to a vacant table.

I don't know if it is the rule in that cafeteria to give a helping hand to all handicapped guests or not, but I shall always remember the courtesy and kindness I received there.

Unquestioning Service.

Before leaving for a European trip I bought 6 pair of shoes. On trying to wear them, they did not suit. Not being able to obtain shoes on the trip, I had to wear not less than three pair. On my return I made a complaint. The manager of the department looked at the shoes, and said, "They did not give the right last. Just return all six pair and we will credit your account."

This was done. No exchange, no trouble, no questions asked; shoes taken back, even the worn ones, at full price.

A Solid Walnut Piece.

Last summer I went into a second hand furniture store to see if I could sell my baby carriage or trade it for a park stroller.

Not dreaming of purchasing anything else, I casually looked around the store and saw in a corner a five shelved, spooled, solid walnut whatnot. Almost shaking with excitement I asked the dealer how much it was. His reply astounded me.

"Well, I paid $1.50 for it a year ago, so guess you can have it for $3.00!"

Imagine my bargain when I can sell it any time for at least $25. K. R.

Clerk Was Interested.

On my last birthday I was given 2½ yards of material for a dress. Of course, it is hard to find a pattern which calls for such a short length, and I searched many hours for a style I liked. After many disappointments I went to a department store, where I told the clerk the style I preferred and the length of my material.

She was not long in finding just what I wanted, and she also helped me in figuring out the pattern so I would have enough material.

This store, one in which I seldom shopped, has become my shopping center and always gets a good recommendation from me. W. T.

Englewood Women's Club to Hear Miss Jessie Harding

Miss Jessie Harding, well known reader and artist, will present the program at the meeting of the Englewood Women's club tomorrow afternoon at the Englewood Masonic temple, 67th street and Yale avenue. HOW TO BUILD PUSHER MODEL TOLD BY EXPERT

Plane's Propellers Are Behind the Wings.

This is the second of The Tribune's articles on airplane model building. Mr. Hamburg, airplane model expert, is not only going to tell you how to build and fly the pusher—he's going to answer your questions on plane construction. When you're up against a knotty problem write to him and he'll help you solve it. Send the question, with a 2 cent stamp for answer, to him at league headquarters, American Boy building, Second and Lafayette boulevards, Detroit, Mich.

BY MERRILL HAMBURG.
[Secretary Airplane Model League of America.]

When Wilbur and Orville Wright made their first successful airplane, more than twenty-five years ago, it was a "pusher"—the propellers were behind the wings. Today THE TRIBUNE is going to tell members of the Airplane Model League of America how to build a corking little model pusher—one that embodies many of the principles the Wrights so carefully worked into their machine.

Last week boys and girls of Chicago learned how to make an all wood glider. The pusher is much like it in principle and construction—all major parts are of wood, and they are put together in much the same way. But it has a propeller and a rubber motor, and it soars for many seconds.

And the young aeronaut who successfully builds and flies it is doing the best job he can to prepare himself to construct the more complicated models THE TRIBUNE is going to describe later in the spring. More than that. He's getting himself ready for the official contests to be conducted locally by THE TRIBUNE and nationally in Detroit in June by the American Boy magazine, co-sponsor with this paper of the A. M. L. A.

May Mean Detroit Trip.

The chances are that the builder who starts with this pusher will eventually win the trip to Detroit. So get busy now!

First, materials. The Tichenor Midget [the pusher is named after Frank A. Tichenor, a vice president of the league] has balsa wing and elevator, motor stick, rudder [fin], and propeller. The motor is ⅛ inch flat rubber, 22 inches long. Metal parts are made of .020 music wire, with the exception of the thrust bearing, which is slightly heavier.

Perhaps you're already equipped with these materials, for they're all included in the special league all wood kit which lots of local league members obtained last week to build the glider. It contains everything from ready made propeller to delicate wire parts. If you haven't the kit, you can get it by sending 65 cents in check or money order to the supply department, A. M. L. A., American Boy building, Second and Lafayette boulevards, Detroit, Mich.

You'll get with the kit the A. M. L. A. manual—an invaluable help to model builders. It tells how to bend wire, how to carve a propeller, how to do all the things an expert model builder must know. It can be obtained separately for 5 cents from League headquarters.

Now Ready to Start.

Once you have the materials you're ready to start. The motor stick should get your first attention—sand it and carve it down to the exact size shown in the diagram. It will be ⅛x3-16x10 inches when you've finished. Now cut the fin from a piece of flat balsa 1-32 inch thick. Note the dimensions carefully. Glue the fin on to the rear end of the motor stick—for greater strength some builders prefer to carve a tiny groove in the stick to receive the fin. Be sure that it is set at a slight angle, so that it will cause the plane to circle when you've finished it. The diagram gives you the angle and position of the fin.

Cement the front hook to the under side of the fuselage, and the thrust bearing to the rear end—again the drawing shows you how. Now take your propeller—already prepared and balanced if you're using the League kit, a job you'll have to do according to the directions in the manual if you're not—and insert the propeller shaft. Notice that, since the model is a pusher, the shaft goes through from the straight leading edge. Be very certain that the propeller shaft is straight; otherwise your prop will wobble and upset the balance of the plane. And make sure that the prop shaft is sanded as fine as you can make it—light should show through it when you hold it before a window.

The Wing Is Simple.

When the shaft is through the prop, bend the projecting end back upon itself in a U and push the U so that the short end locks itself in the prop. [illegible] the prop lightly all around the hub for strength. After it is dry, put the two small brass washers on the shaft, slip the shaft through the hole in the bearing, and you may hook the two strand motor to the front hook and the shaft.

The wing and elevator, respectively 1-32 inch and 1-64 inch thick, are simple. Both are flat balsa, of the dimensions shown on the diagram, bent into a dihedral angle at the center. A jet of steam from the tea kettle in your kitchen will make the balsa pliable, if you hold it in the steam for some minutes; then you can bend it to the desired angle and allow it to dry and [illegible].

You must cut a notch ⅛x⅛ inch in the wing's trailing edge. This allows it to fit snug against the rudder.

Ready to Take Off.

If you are an expert builder you'll give the wing "washin" and "washout." To give the right wing washin, as you look at the model from the front, bend the leading edge up; to give the left wing washout, bend its leading edge down. The moisture in your breath will soften the wood and make it bend to the position you want. Fasten the wing and elevator to the motor stick with two rubber bands, and you're ready to take off!

First, glide the plane several times to find the right adjustment of the wing and elevator. When you get an easy, loafing glide, give the propeller 150 turns, counter-clockwise. Hold the fuselage in the right hand, the prop in the left; when you're ready release the prop and give the plane a gentle push forward.

Then watch her fly!

Sometimes Erratic.

The pusher type of plane is sometimes erratic, but there are a number of ways of overcoming balkiness. One is the use of washin and washout—these counteract the torque, or twist, the whirling propeller gives to the machine. Wing setting is another.

You can have a whale of a lot of pleasure with the Tichenor Midget. You can fly it, if it's carefully made, for as long as 60 seconds; 30 seconds is a good flight, and will win an official honor certificate from league headquarters if you send in a record of the flight approved by an adult who saw it, together with ten cents to cover issuing and mailing the certificate.

What's more, you can teach yourself the fundamentals of model building and of aviation by making it perform properly. And you'll be getting ready to get to work on the next plane in THE TRIBUNE's series—the high climb R. O. G. This ship is a corker—a model with balsa frame but Japanese tissue covered wings. It looms like an army pursuit ship—your club can have high climbing contests with it as well as endurance trials. And it's small enough so that you won't need a big room to fly it in. An ordinary parlor will do.

So watch for next week's article.

CONTESTS HELP BOYS TO BUILD BETTER PLANES

North Side Youngsters Cite 1928 Lessons.

"If you want to learn how to improve your model planes, enter a contest!"

That's what hundreds of south side model aviators were saying last summer, when they took part for the first time in contests. And that's what builders will be saying when they start competing against each other for the cups and other awards to be offered in the coming TRIBUNE contest.

By pitting his skill against other boys, the builder puts his own indoor or outdoor plane to the supreme test. If he's beaten, he has a chance to see the winner's plane in action, to learn how it is adjusted, to note the length of the propeller or the shape and angle of the wing or the other details of construction that make the winner's ship more efficient in the air.

Learned Much at National Meet.

Last year at the national contest in Detroit, 250 contestants from all parts of the country learned more than they might have learned in many months of experiment. They saw an indoor model plane of revolutionary design win for its owner a trip to Europe! This tractor, built by Aram Abgarian of Detroit had a curved wing instead of the usual flat one. The tail surface was negatively curved, or cambered. And the ship flew for nearly six minutes.

This very plane will be described by THE TRIBUNE in a future issue. And perhaps in THE TRIBUNE contest some boy will bring forth a ship that will be an improvement on the cambered wing tractor.

Other entrants in the national contest by watching more experienced builders, learned tricks of adjustment, and of winding motors that added seconds to their flight. One boy, Albert Schwartzkopf, of Norfolk, Va., had found difficulty in getting his plane to stay in the air one minute. An observer watched him winding his motor for a third trial.

Learned Secret of Success.

"Give it more turns," he advised. "Some of these boys are putting more than two thousand winds on their motors. Wind it up tight. If it breaks, put on another motor."

Schwartzkopf had been giving his motor only a thousand turns. Acting on the advice of the observer, he doubled the number. On that very flight his ship stayed aloft more than three minutes and won him a bronze medal.

Start working now for THE TRIBUNE contest, to be held early in June. Build the models that will be described each week. They're the best ships that have yet been designed. Experiment with and improve on them. Then, when the contest date rolls around, you'll be ready.

South Bryn Mawr Junior Auxiliary Presents Play

"Southland in Song and Story" was presented by the members of the junior auxiliary of the South Bryn Mawr Wednesday club at the Washington birthday meeting of that organization Friday at the Windsor Shore clubhouse, 7526 South Yates avenue. Mrs. D. P. Ruger, 7915 Constance avenue, directed the play. Mrs. C. R. Coombes, 7948 Euclid avenue, was the chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements for the affair.

WORLD TO HEAR PRESIDENT TAKE OATH OF OFFICE

Elaborate Plans Laid for Broadcast.

The inauguration of Herbert Hoover and Charles Curtis on March 4 will be broadcast to the entire world. Acting upon the belief that the ceremonies should be universally available, officials of the National Broadcasting company are laying elaborate plans for covering this most important of national functions.

The inaugural ceremonies will be sent through the air to potentially every home in the United States. It will also be sent on short wave length for international consumption. The five hour program, beginning at 11 o'clock in the morning and ending at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, will be the most ambitious broadcast in radio history. The number of pickups, microphones, announcers, and air reporters will exceed those used in any event previously put on the air.

Solemn and Light Moments.

It will be a brilliant and impressive function, indeed—the inauguration of the thirty-first President of the United States. The solemn moments on the capitol steps when President Elect Herbert Hoover is administered the oath of office. Equally solemn moments in the senate chamber when Vice President Elect Charles Curtis is sworn in with the new senate. Then the lighter, gayer moods of the parade. Its bands, its troops in dress uniforms, its dignitaries, its flags and bunting. A gamut of color, action, and thrills, with Washington, the city beautiful, as the background.

Microphones, thirty of them, will tell the story to those who cannot be present to witness it. And to tell it faithfully they must do more than merely record the speeches and addresses and the shouts of the crowd. They must paint a mammoth canvas, throwing into colorful relief the central theme—the ceremony on the capitol steps.

The story cannot be told too well. The N. B. C. is doing much with this thought in mind. It has augmented its Washington announcerial staff with announcers from New York including Graham McNamee, Milton J. Cross, John B. Daniel, and William S. Lynch. It has enlisted the aid of Washington observers, men familiar with the dignitaries from every part of the country taking part in the ceremonies. And it has acquired the talents of air reporters, men who are master craftsmen, who wield words pungently and fluently. It has been equally busy in other phases of the broadcast, perfecting the machinery of transmission, endeavoring to make the program a perfect whole, technically as well as artistically.

Senate Yields to Modernity.

Perhaps the most interesting mechanical phase of the work is the construction of a special soundproof booth in the senate chamber. For the first time in history that sanctuary of zealously guarded traditions, where the senate snuff box, the salt cellars with their drying sand, and other hallowed relics are preserved in their erstwhile places, has yielded to modernity. Lest the microphone embarrass the mellowed atmosphere of the chamber, however, it will be placed in a special booth, constructed in a corner and designed to fade into the general decors of the walls, to look, in fact, as though it weren't there at all.

In the booth, David Lawrence, nationally known political writer and analyst, will take his place before the microphone and describe the proceedings in the senate chamber, when the inaugural broadcast is opened with the swearing in of Vice President Elect Charles Curtis and the new senators.

The program will continue with the inauguration of the President, the progress of the presidential party back up Pennsylvania avenue to the White House with the parade in its wake. This will be followed by a two hour review of the parade as it passes the court of honor at the White House.

Senator Moses in Charge.

Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire, chairman of the joint inaugural board, is in charge of arrangements of the broadcast. The program will be available to the fifty-eight stations associated with the N. B. C. and others. Penetrating every corner of the country, a closeup of their own people in Washington will be sent to the folks back home. Through the other other links will be forged when the program is sent by short wave transmission to Europe and elsewhere, thus permitting the people of foreign nations to join with the American people in this most significant of national functions.

Clever Play Prevents Game in Auction Bridge Broadcast

The sixteenth of a series of twenty radio auction bridge games will be broadcast from W-G-N, The Chicago Tribune station on the Drake hotel, Tuesday, at 3:30 p. m.

The contestants will be R. L. Rutter of Spokane, Wash., a prominent bridge player of his home state, who is paired with Mr. Work against Miss Annie Blanche Shelby of Portland, Ore., another sterling player of the northwest, and Mr. Whitehead.

Following are the advance hands for game sixteen:

Mr. Work.
S—5, 4, 3.
H—K, 8.
D—9, 8, 5, 3, 2.
C—K, 8, 7.

Miss Shelby.
S—K, J, 10, 9, 2.
H—Q, J, 6.
D—A, K, J.
C—9, 2.

N.
W. E.
S.

Mr. Whitehead.
S—8, 7, 6.
H—10, 7, 4, 3, 2.
D—7, 6, 4.
C—4, 3.

Mr. Rutter [dealer].
S—A, Q.
H—A, 9, 5.
D—Q, 10.
C—A, Q, J, 10, 6, 5.

That even experts are helpless when the cards are against them and in the hands of equally skillful players was the rather comforting message which listeners carried away from Tuesday's radio bridge game, broadcast from Station W-G-N.

In this game, Mrs. Hamilton P. Jones, New Orleans, La., played with Mr. Whitehead against Mr. Work and Mr. R. F. Rode of Miami, Fla. The hands were:

Mr. Rode.
S—K, Q, J, 10, 5.
H—Q, 10, 5.
D—7, 6.
C—K, 5, 3.

Mrs. Jones.
S—4, 3.
H—A, J, 9, 8, 6, 4.
D—Q, J, 9.
C—J, 7.

N.
W. E.
S.

Mr. Whitehead.
S—9, 7.
H—K, 3, 2.
D—8, 4, 3.
C—A, Q, 8, 6, 2.

Mr. Work [dealer].
S—A, 8, 6, 2.
H—7.
D—A, K, 10, 9, 2.
C—10, 9, 4.

The bidding of the hand was obvious—one diamond by Mr. Work, dealer, in the south; a defensive bid of one heart by Mrs. Jones, west; one spade by Mr. Rode, north; and two hearts by Mr. Whitehead, east. Mr. Work, opening the second round of bidding, assisted his partner's call by bidding two spades, for which suit he had unusual support. Mrs. Jones was unable to go any further in hearts, as her hand was only strong enough for a following bid in the first place. The distinction between an initial bid and a following bid is that an initial or opening suit bid of one guarantees to the partner two quick tricks at least; but when an opponent has bid one of a suit, the following player may properly bid a five carder with less than two quick tricks. The reason is that it may be his last opportunity to show his suit to his partner. Should he pass, he may not have another chance to declare.

Contract, Two Spades.

After west's pass, Mr. Rode, north, of course passed. East also passed, as he could not expect game in hearts if his partner could not rebid after his assist, and it seemed quite possible that he and his partner could keep opponents from game.

As Mr. Rode, north, became declarer, Mr. Whitehead, in the east, had the initial lead, for which he chose his king of hearts. From Mr. Work's hand, which became dummy, declarer played the singleton 7 of hearts. This singleton caused Mrs. Jones, west, to stop and think before playing.

She saw no chance for making more than one trick in hearts, regardless of whether her partner or declarer held the queen. Dummy had ample trumps for ruffing, and five diamonds that one ruff would establish. Unless north had three diamonds, west, if she did not win the first trick, could not hope to obtain the lead at any time during the play. North could discard any losing clubs in his own hand on dummy's diamonds.

West saw but one chance to break declarer's game—and that was the immediate lead of clubs through any high clubs declarer might hold, up to any that east had in his hand. If east's side strength for his heart assist happened to be the ace-king or the ace-queen of clubs, east and west could take two club tricks, and west could ruff east's third lead of clubs.

Covers Partner's King.

Having thus analyzed the situation, Mrs. Jones, west, covered her partner's king of hearts with the ace, in order to lead a club. Mr. Rode, north, played the 5 of hearts.

Mrs. Jones led the jack of clubs; Mr. Rode, declarer, played the king, hoping to establish dummy's 10 on the third round, as he could do if the adverse clubs were split 4-3. Mr. Whitehead won with the ace of clubs; dummy played the 4.

Mr. Whitehead continued with the queen of clubs; dummy played the 9; Mrs. Jones the 7; declarer the 3. Mr. Whitehead then led the 2 of clubs; dummy played the 10; Mrs. Jones trumped with the 3 of spades; and Mr. Rode, declarer, had to follow suit with the 5 of clubs.

East and west had therefore taken four tricks and saved game before declarer could get started. Regardless of what Mrs. Jones led next, declarer could get in, exhaust the adverse trumps, and take the rest of the tricks. Therefore declarer scored for three-odd at spades—27 points for tricks and 90 for four honors in his own hand and fifth in his partner's.

Had Mrs. Jones, west, not won the first trick by overtaking her partner's king, nothing that east could have led could have prevented declarer from making game. Declarer would have won any card led by east except the ace of clubs, and that lead would have presented declarer with a club trick. In the latter case, the third trick would have been declarer's inevitably, and he would have exhausted the adverse trumps, established south's diamonds, used a trump in the south hand as entry, and discarded his own losing club on south's long diamonds.

The Bid at Contract.

The contract bridge bidding of this hand would be quite interesting. South would start with one diamond, just as in auction. West might be more timid about bidding the heart, but, in the opinion of Mr. Work, she should do so. Mr. Work finds that in contract players are too prone to abstain from following bids which they would unhesitatingly make in auction, and which in contract often prove to be valuable.

After west's one heart, north should bid two spades. The bid of the unnecessary number would be made to show real strength to south, and would be fully justified by the fact that south had bid initially. Without south's bid, one spade would be the most that north could declare.

After north's two spades, east would be placed in an embarrassing position. There is much to be said for his hand, and he could safely bid three hearts if his partner's had been an initial heart bid. However, the partner of a player who has made a following bid should be careful in assisting that bid because it has not shown the strength that an initial bid would guarantee. However, as east could not know that west did not have strength for an initial bid, and as west has a doubleton in one of the adverse suits, he probably would feel justified in risking the three heart bid, although of course he would be happier about it if north had bid only one spade, so that he could show his assistance by bidding two hearts.

As far as the determination of who is to be declarer and the size of the contract is concerned, it would not matter whether east bid or pass; in either event south would bid four spades. It is true that he has already announced his diamonds, but he has not shown his great strength in his partner's suit, nor the value of his hand in support of spades by reason of its having only a singleton of the adverse suit.

If east gave his heart assist, the play would be the same in both games; but if east were shut out by north's two spades, west might not feel justified in making her overtaking coup on trick one.

DE LUCA, PAPI IN JOINT CONCERT TOMORROW NIGHT

Picture music—an exhibition of old and new masters of composition designed to bring a series of romantic, heroic, or sentimental events vividly to the minds of listeners—is the underlying feature of the joint program to be presented by Guiseppe De Luca, Metropolitan opera baritone, and a concert orchestra directed by Genaro Papi, former conductor of the Metropolitan, during the family party tomorrow night over W-G-N, The Chicago Tribune station on the Drake hotel.

De Luca, leading baritone of the Metropolitan, is one of the remarkable interpreters of the poetry of song. His capacity for creating character in music has been recognized in all great opera and concert centers. From the age of twenty to the present time his appearances have been occasions for presentation of distinct, cameo-clear delineations of elemental human emotions in music. No matter what language he uses, the meaning of his songs is so strikingly presented that any listener may understand it. In the same way Papi has utilized the orchestra to dramatize music for his audiences.

REMOTE CONTROL BIG FACTOR IN RADIO IN BERLIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 16.—In addition to its studio microphones the Berlin broadcasting station is declared to have permanent broadcasting facilities in fifteen theaters, five hotels, seven sports arenas and race courses, five educational centers, and others in museums, cathedrals, churches, and public buildings.

EXPERTS FACED BY PROBLEMS IN TELEVISION

Optimism Out of Order Until They Are Solved.

Cambridge, Mass., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Practical television is confronted by three major problems, according to D. E. Replogle, radio engineer.

Until these are overcome, wholly or in part, he says, "undue optimism is out of order." He points out that television is a most complicated branch of engineering, involving an intimate knowledge of radio, electricity, mechanics, gaseous conduction, distortionless amplification, modulation and demodulation, photography and optics.

In outlining the three principal problems to be solved in television he says:

"Our first is that of detail. It is a most intricate one, involving dot elements, time coefficients, luminous intensity, accurate synchronization, and available wave channels. Because of the width of a channel required television is not possible on standard wave lengths.

Must Use Short Waves.

We are compelled to resort to short waves, which are by no means universal in their application. We shall have to utilize three separate but simultaneous short wave channels if we are to meet the peculiarities and requirements of urban, rural, and long distance reception.

"The width of the channel used, say 100 kilocycles, determines not only the dimensions of the television image but the amount of detail possible. Both high and low frequencies are essential. If we delete the lows we introduce extraneous shadows and change the tone of the picture. If we cut off the highs we eliminate sharp lines essential to good detail. Cutting off the highs also limits us to slow motion.

"Our second major problem is that of luminosity. We have accomplished wonders with present neon tubes of low candle power, but there still is room for a world of improvement. It seems probable that we shall have to develop a lamp capable of vastly greater illumination.

Synchronization Necessary.

"Our third problem is that of synchronization. Already speed controls with centrifugal governors making and breaking contacts across speed-control resistances have been developed. It seems probable, however, that the ultimate solution will be found in the use of breaking devices which will regulate the scanning disc by means of a definite frequency impressed on the television carrier wave along with the picture.

"The problem of a nation-wide television service is a most serious one. In the beginning at least we may make use of the so-called radio movies. The advantages of film pickup are numerous. The subjects may be filmed under ideal conditions. Positive prints may be widely distributed and broadcast by any station without special skill or expensive equipment. It is thus possible to effect a nation-wide hookup without the use of wire lines."

PLAN STATION IN IRELAND.

Because storms so frequently interrupt communication by wires, it is proposed to erect a powerful wireless station in northern Ireland.

EUROPE FACES A BIG TASK IN CLEANING UP AIR

Different Languages Add to Difficulties.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Radio officials and engineers, who will meet at Prague, Czechoslovakia, in April to assign wavelengths to European broadcasting stations, face an even more difficult task than that of allocation in the United States, experts here declare.

The demands for channels of more than 30 nations, the propinquity of countries speaking different languages and the short distances between many of the large cities in Europe, present a problem that calls for the highest engineering and diplomatic ingenuity, says Commander T. A. M. Craven, technical adviser to the federal radio commission.

Interest Grows Rapidly.

While the number of stations and listeners is less than in the United States, interest in broadcasting is growing rapidly. Europe has almost five times as many potential listeners as this country. Owing to the lack of unified control of broadcasting, the allocation problem is such as would obtain in this country if radio were under separate supervision by the states, Commander Craven says.

Europe has about 245 broadcasting stations as compared with more than 600 in the United States. Nearly all are government owned or operated under close governmental supervision. Operating expenses are defrayed by revenue from the tax paid by owners of receiving sets, and there are few commercially sponsored programs.

Two 40,000 Watters.

The majority of European stations range from 200 to 1,000 watts and only nine have power of 10,000 watts or more. RAI, Moscow, and a station at Lahitas, Finland, both using 40,000 watts, are the most powerful. There is a 30,000 watt station at Motala, Sweden, and a 25,000 watt transmitter at Hootwijk, Holland.

In addition to the 550 to 1,500 kilocycle band which is also used by broadcasting stations in this country, the European stations use the longer waves from 160 to 224 kilocycles.

Considerable attention is being given to synchonization, particularly in England, where several stations operate simultaneously by this method on the same wavelength.

TIBBETT, NASON GIVE KENT RADIO HOUR TONIGHT

Musical genius produced by the soft sunshine of California and the rockribbed coast of New England will be jointly responsible for the Atwater Kent Radio hour tonight when Lawrence Tibbett, baritone, and Harold Nason, pianist, provide the program, which will be broadcast by W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel at 8:15 o'clock.

SPEAKING of matters in the sports world, how about a little radio horse race this morning? Imagine that you're hearing this over the air:

Ar, there's the boots and saddles call already, summoning Frankie Boy and Waxwork to the post. It sure is a terrible day for a horse race. It's been drizzling all day, with fogs and mists scudding over the countryside, and only the dyed-in-the-wool racing fans have come out to see the show.

It's so drizzly that the two horses were led over here from the stables with light blankets covering them. The track is soggy and slow—there are pools of water along the rail in spots—and the spectators have been keeping under cover. Most of them are lingering down around the betting booths, in the arcade under the grandstands chatting after making their bets at the windows and eating hot dogs.

There aren't many of them out here standing around the paddock, and there's nobody leaning on the rail in front. It's kinda hazy over there on the back stretch. I'll bet the jockeys will be covered with mud after they've gone one furlong.

Here they come now—Sammy, the postboy, is leading 'em out on the track; there won't be much parading today—they're sloshing right down the muddy track to the starting post. Frankie Boy, ridden by Jockey Al Winter, has the rail; and Waxwork, with Jockey Red Kershaw up, is the other steed.

They're not very skittish; this weather has dampened their spirits. Now they're up behind the barrier, they're turned around—the starters are pulling 'em up to the tape. Frankie Boy and Waxwork—have you picked your winner yet? The crowd is silent now, and all gathered in the grandstand and clubhouse—waiting for that flash—gosh, look at what a solugh of mud that track is! Watch 'em; Watch 'em!

The start will be up here to our left.

They're off! Frankie Boy slips in the ooze as the barrier leaps up, and Waxwork is off to a lead of over a length—Frankie can't get going in the mud—he slips and slothers in the slime—and now, when he arches his back and convulses a little, he manages to start—here they come down the home stretch, and Waxwork is a length and a half in the lead! Waxwork slides over to the rail—can you hear that splashing in your radio horn? These babies are not mud hens, you can see that!

Feet flying out at all angles—look at them wallowing past us! There they go—and cruising 'round the first turn—Waxwork has better footing and he's stretching his lead as they're rounding the bend—they are bouncing like rocking horses — AND WAXWORK IS LEADING FRANKIE BOY BY TWO LENGTHS AT THE QUARTER DISTANCE! . . .

Kinda misty over yonder—they're sloshing into the back stretch—and Jockey Winter's face and silks are slathered with mud and slime. . . . Every yard splashes up a new coat of mud from the slipping hoofs of Waxwork. . . . The crowd is yelling, but its pretty hard to urge horses on in this weather. . . . Jockey Kershaw is getting better control over there on the back stretch—yep, he's coming up. . . . Frankie Boy is swimming up toward Waxwork—he's gaining—he's gaining—a length and a half behind, galumphing through the mire . . . he's getting close, getting closer to Waxwork. . . . FRANKIE BOY IS TRAILING/WAXWORK ONLY BY A LENGTH AT THE HALF DISTANCE. . . .

They seem to be learning how and they're moving a little faster now. . . . Waxwork on the rail, plowing through the mud and water, as they hit the turn. . . . Look at 'em sail around that curve. . . . AND FRANKIE BOY IS INCHING UP—INCHING UP ON THE TURN—KERSHAW'S BOOTIN' HIM HOME—THE HORSES' LEGS ARE SLIDING APART—and here they come swerving into the home stretch. . . . And they'll come squuushing toward us. . . . Frankie Boy creeping closer and breaking down the lead—BOY, he's MOVING NOW. . . . FRANKIE BOY ONLY A HALF LENGTH BEHIND AT THE THREE-QUARTER POLE.

Red Kershaw, up on Frakie Boy, is as black as a coal miner. . . . FRANKIE BOY'S OVERTAKING WAXWORK!—here they come!—jockeys close together now, and they look as tho' they were flaying each other with the whips. . . . NECK AND NECK THEY ARE. . . .

COMING HOME. . . . COMING ON. . . . Look at 'em—FRANKIE BOY UP WITH WAXWORK. . . . NECK AND NECK. . . . Here they are out here. . . FRANKIE DIVES AHEAD AND HE HOLDS HIS FOOTING. . . . THERE THEY GO. . . . FRANKIE BOY WINS BY A NECK FROM WAXWORK!

SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 24

The Children's Concert . . 5:30

ORDINARILY children and Sunday just don't get along. But the W-G-N Symphony Orchestra gets together each Sunday afternoon and spends half an hour playing nice, live music picked especially to amuse children. And for that half hour Pat Barnes forgets his dignified self and becomes a kid. He discusses the pieces and their composers, telling what kind of men they were and where they lived. For variety, Eleanor Jewett, who knows all about pictures, will tell you about a painting in today's roto section called "Adobe and Snow." It's a delightful picture of an Indian on his horse and his mud house behind him. Irving K. Manoir painted it. And the Funny Paper—Uncle Quin will read it, all eight pages, beginning at noon.

AND the mood changes to the mighty fullness of a symphony orchestra. It changes again; this time to a rollicking comedy, discarding the serious mask and lifting the corners of its mouth in mirth. Then another swift swerve in mood to the impatient tempo of the colorful African dance. LET'S SEE LINDY'S TROPHIES, BOYS OF CHICAGO ASK

Want Them Brought Here for World's Fair.

Bring Lindy's tropies and the Spirit of St. Louis to the World's Fair in 1933!

That is the rallying cry of the 790 youthful members of the Chicago Boys' club, No. 4, 6405 South Hermitage avenue, and the lads by the hundreds are signing petitions addressed to President Rufus C. Dawes of the World's Fair, asking that the exposition officials do everything in their power to bring the famous aviator's flying machine and his numerous medals and trophies here for exhibition.

"Few things have interested the boys more," said Mr. Cook, director of the club. Enthusiasm is at its highest over the possibilities of the Spirit of St. Louis being brought here, along with the Lindbergh trophies. They are not only signing the petitions here in the club but also are taking them to their schools for other signatures, and in a few days they will have thousands of them to present to the World's Fair people."

Launch Expansion Program.

The Chicago Boys' club, under the direction of General Superintendent John H. Witter and President George A. Hughes, is launching a program of expansion which will make it the greatest organization of its kind in the world. Backed by a board of leading business and professional men, it plans to combat crime and give the underprivileged boy a chance at normal, happy living by raising $5,000,000 for erecting and endowing twenty-five club buildings throughout the congested sections of Chicago. The program calls for the building of five club buildings a year for five years.

Without making much noise, the Chicago Boys' club has been developing throughout the years as one of the important institutions of the city for the care of neglected boyhood. In 1901, John F. Atkinson opened the first Chicago Boys' club in a rented second story room near Van Buren and State streets.

Started in 1916.

The South Side club was started in 1916 and now has a membership of 790 boys, with buildings at 6405 South Hermitage avenue.

The North Side club was opened in 1910 and has a splendidly equipped building and swimming pool, with all facilities for recreation, sports, industrial classes, study of art and music, and community center activities.

The West Side club was started in 1918 at 2801 South Ridgeway avenue, and has an up-to-date building and a membership of 800 boys.

A permanent camp site of 110 acres and fine buildings is owned at Winona Lake, Ind., where 1,600 boys each year have delightful outings. Mr. Witter has been superintendent since 1913.

Boys are admitted without regard to race or creed, and a boy who can't pay the small membership dues, is given an opportunity to "work his way through" the club like older boys do through college. The 25 new clubs are expected to take care of at least 60,000 under privileged lads.

COUNCIL OF P.-T. URGES INSIGNIA FOR ALL PATROLS

Frank C. Singleton, director of the bureau of safety of the board of education, has presented white Sam Browne belts to 41 members of the Eugene Field schoolboy patrol on behalf of the Parent-Teacher association. The presentation followed a recent recommendation by the safety committee of the Illinois Council of Parent-Teacher associations of district No. 1, Chicago, that the junior policemen be given new emblems.

The belts were given at the opening meeting of the semester for the Field association, and the program by the patrol boys included a salute to the flag, drill, and the patrol boys' song. Addresses were made by Ernest E. Cole, principal, and Miss Anna Steiner, assistant principal. The band of Sullivan Junior High school, under the direction of Charles Ostergen, played several numbers.

Mrs. George Blumenstock, president of the association and president of the North Side Council of Parent-Teacher associations, said that the white belt has become a nationwide symbol and is found more essential for the boys' own safety while on duty at dangerous crossings. The average motorist, she added, does not recognize anything except the white belt, and the cap and badge make the patrol boy feel more keenly his responsibility.

Roman Cemetery Yields Much Historical Data

SZEGEDIN, Hungary.—(AP)—A Roman cemetery, 1,800 years old, has been discovered at Szoereg, near here at a spot where an important Roman colony was situated. Eighty-two tombs containing the remains of Romans of the aristocratic class were discovered and inside were found flasks of balm, bronze mirrors, strings of pearls, other jewels and medical instruments.

Air Taxis Now Link England and France

CALAIS.—(AP)—Airplane taxis across the channel to Dover and back have been put in service by a French company. Small four seater planes are used, for which two seats must be guaranteed before departure. The fare is about $12 a seat. Light hand baggage is carried, but nothing heavier.

Britain May Postpone Date Set for Election

LONDON.—(AP)—There is growing opposition in the ranks of the government to the idea of a general election in June, and alternatively September, 1929, is suggested as the best time. Critics point out that an early summer election is difficult mainly because of the parliamentary business to be transacted.

MUSICAL ART FUND WILL SPONSOR OPERA PROGRAM TOMORROW

MRS. BERNARD NEUBURGER.

The Musical Art Fund society is sponsoring a musical interpretation program to be given tomorrow afternoon following the monthly luncheon of the society at 308 South Michigan avenue. Mrs. Bernard Neuburger, 3500 Sheridan road, and Mrs. Meyer Rosenberg, 1217 Rosemont avenue, are chairmen of the program. More than 25 north side women are actively interested in the society, which provides scholarships for artists of proved ability.

The story of the opera "Cavalleria Rusticana" and its author, Mascagni, will be given by Mrs. Robert Nathan, president of the society, preceding each part of the opera presented by the participating artists. The artists will be Mrs. Emanuel B. Phillipson, 666 Sheridan road, soprano; Eusebio Concialdi, baritone, accompanied by Miss Evelyn Freedman, violinist, and Miss Rezella Goldstine and Miss Maymie Stillerman, pianists.

Other north side women of the program committee are Mrs. Harry M. Fisher, 528 Belmont avenue; Mrs. Louis R. Lipstone, Shoreham hotel; Mrs. Lewis B. Berger, 511 Brompton place; Mrs. Max Monblatt, McCormick hotel; Mrs. A. I. Jacobson, 3520 Sheridan road; Mrs. H. L. Spitalny, 5708 Kenmore avenue; Mrs. Leon Waldman, Rogers Park hotel, and Mrs. Lewis Berger.

BUSINESS MEN OF ENGLEWOOD TALK OF RESTRICTIONS

Keep Up Good Work, Bankers Urge.

A plea for financial support from the business men of the community so that the restriction program could be obtained was made last week by three prominent bankers of the neighborhood at a meeting of the Englewood Business Men's association.

Frank C. Rathje, president of the Chicago City Bank and Trust company; James Hughes, president of the First Englewood State bank, and Henry F. Eidmann, president of the Halsted Street State bank, were the speakers.

The outstanding point in each of the three addresses was the fact that the present prosperity and future development of the community demanded the restriction of the territory against undesirables.

Restrictions Bring Stores.

Mr. Rathje, who was the first speaker, briefly outlined the history of the attempts at restriction which have been carried on by the Englewood Property Restriction association. He declared that the officials of the Wieboldt department store would not make plans for the erection of a huge building to house their south side store in Englewood if it were not for the fact that the officers of the restriction association convinced them that the territory had been effectively restricted.

He pointed out that the officials of the Becker-Ryan department store have also made plans to construct a new building, but he assured those present that those officials made plans for the new structure only after they had determined whether the territory was adequately restricted.

New Bank Building.

Mr. Rathje showed the business men present an architect's conception of the new bank building which will be erected to house the combined banking interests of the Chicago City bank and the Guarantee Trust and Savings bank, which merged a short time ago. He pointed out that the new building would never have been thought of if the officers were not sure that the neighborhood was restricted against undesirables.

The keynote of Mr. Eidmann's talk was a plea for financial support from the business men of the community to carry on the good work that has been done by the restriction association. He pointed out that the work had not been financed by taxing the small property owners but by asking and receiving large contributions from prominent business men who were interested in the welfare and future development of the neighborhood.

He urged the business men to protect the valuable territory of which Sixty-third and Halsted streets is the hub. He showed statistics that proved his theory regarding the tremendous reduction in property values if an invasion of undesirables was allowed.

Much Still Unsigned.

Mr. Hughes, who is also the treasurer of the restriction association, declared that 14,000 pieces of property were still unsigned, and that on the basis of other work in this connection the association would need $10,000 to complete its work of thoroughly restricting the territory from all undesirables.

He also stressed the fact that Englewood business men were not responding as they should, and argued that if they wanted to protect their property and business it was their duty to contribute to the work.

Following the talks a committee was appointed to interview each business man and property owner in the vicinity of Sixty-third and Halsted streets with the view to securing their financial support.

The following persons compose the committee: Charles W. Brown, Samuel Maling, Clarence Rosen, L. C. Smith, W. G. Tegtmeier.

German Submarine Hero Inspires New Monument

HERFORD, Germany.—(AP)—A bronze monument to Capt. Otto Weddigen, Germany's submarine hero, is to be erected on an island in the river Werra near this town. Weddigen played a brief but sensational part in the early months of the world war. He sank four British armored cruisers, but his submarine U-29 was sunk by a British ship and he and his crew perished.

BEAUTY CULTURE
A Field of Unlimited Opportunities

Although Beauty Culture has advanced remarkably in the past few years, its future development is certain to be even more pronounced.

Today the demand for operators who are WELL-TRAINED in the profession is great and daily becomes greater as new shops are opened and established shops enlarge their facilities for handling increased trade.

THOSE WHO ENTER THIS FIELD NOW ARE SEIZING THEIR CHANCE AT ITS MOST OPPORTUNE MOMENT.

Your mastery of the art of Beauty Culture is an asset that can never be taken from you, and SUCCESS comes only through PROPER TRAINING.

THE CHICAGO HAIRDRESSING ACADEMY was founded by five well-known European Specialists, all artists in the profession, and our methods of training are the result of YEARS OF THEIR EXPERIENCE.

It is only natural then that the better shops demand our graduates and recognize our Academy as offering one of the most THOROUGH AND PRACTICAL COURSES in Beauty Culture.

Stop in when in the loop. Visitors are ALWAYS WELCOME.

"ONE HOUR A DAY AMPLY SUFFICIENT," SAYS CHARLES G. NORRIS.

When Mr. Norris began his novel, "Brass," he chose Rio de Janeiro as the place to write it. He wanted to know something of the Portuguese language while there, so he decided to learn it at the Berlitz School. Here is what he says:

"I consider myself a very poor student, but I found the hour a day at your school was amply sufficient, due to the splendid method of instruction. After completing the short course, I found that I could converse readily in Portuguese and could maintain a conversation with not too much difficulty."

Will you accept our invitation to test this fascinating method? Come up any time for a free demonstration lesson in French, Spanish, German, Italian, etc.

BARBERS' COLLEGE
MAY SOON ASPIRE
TO JOIN "BIG SIX"

Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 24.—(AP)—A bill which would raise the standards of barbering in Nebraska and place barber colleges on a plane with institutions of higher learning was introduced in the senate today by Senator Brasda of West Point.

His measure would amend the present state barber law by providing that no school of barbering shall be approved unless all of its students are graduates of four year high school. It would also make it necessary for teachers or those filling any chair of instruction in barber colleges to possess a degree of doctor of philosophy, master of arts, or equivalent scholastic recognition from colleges and universities of recognized standing.

(Nearly every state in Union is passing similar laws.)

Salesmen, Solicitors, Etc.

A BIG MAN MENTALLY

A prominent Illinois corporation, whose operations are international in their scope, has grown so rapidly for the past two years that it has become necessary for us to promote a large number of star salesmen to executive positions.

We have interviewed hundreds of men to pick the highest class selling organization we believe has ever been assembled. We are not so much interested in salesmen as we are in men of an executive caliber. Our growth has been so phenomenal that our executive staff has not developed in keeping with our sales staff and we have a number of openings for exceptional men to spend a short period of time learning our business and then step into a bigger position.

We have approximately 400 men operating on our sales staff. Many of these men earn as high as $300 to $500 per week.

Many of our territories are worth $3,500 to $10,000 per year on repeat business alone. This enables us to select our men very carefully before we give them gratis this amount of commissions on previously worked up business.

We are not interested unless you have previously earned $6,000 per year or better; unless you can make contact with big men and talk to them on a basis of equality; unless you have a record of honesty and integrity; unless you are between the ages of 30 and 45. Please do not waste our time or yours unless you have the above qualifications.

You may phone the undersigned for an appointment, and, should you be able to interest us over the phone, we will give you a personal interview, or address C Y 299, Tribune.

MR. HILL,
SUPERIOR 0836.

A SALESMAN,

28 to 40 years old and married, to sell architects, builders, and building owners.

Only men with a good selling record and a desire for a permanent position will be considered. We will pay a substantial drawing account against a commission. Earning possibilities $3,600 to $6,000 a year.

Applicants must own an automobile. Territory in Chicago and suburbs. See MR. AEPINUS,

151 N. Michigan-av.,
10 to 12—1 to 4.

A LIFE POSITION.

The foremost tax information and trust service organization, whose customers include the leading banks, lawyers, accountants and corporations is looking for a young man, twenty-four or over, who is selling now or who believes he can sell, to grow with it in Chicago.

This young man should be well educated and have the appearance and ability to meet the executive on his own level. A legal training should be helpful, but not absolutely necessary. A liberal commission will be paid to the man qualifying for the position. Give sufficient information in your first letter to enable us to judge your qualifications for your work. Address C F 311, Tribune.

A PERMANENT POSITION.

This is not the usual type of ad that appears daily and we are not seeking floaters or high pressure men. It is an opportunity for men of more than average intelligence and ability. If you have a car and you are willing to work hard, irrespective of requirements, and of the type of man that can be trained into a responsible executive position within sixty days, see MR. DU BRUCE, 150 N. Wacker-dr. [formerly Market-st.].

WANTED—MALE HELP.
Salesmen, Solicitors, Etc.

A SPECIALTY SALESMAN WANTED.

WE PAY $8,000 TO $12,000 A YEAR AND UPWARDS!

There's no quick clean-up to this proposition, yet there is quick money in it and big money.

We have the proof that dozens of men in our employ have earned $8,000 to $12,000 a year and UPWARDS! And these earnings go on year after year!

A man experienced in first call Specialty Selling should find no difficulty in making $8,000 to $12,000 his first year, and if he is a good salesman he should make more!

Some of our men have made as high as $35,000 in a single year, and it's not at all unusual for a GOOD salesman to make $15,000 to $25,000 the year!

We are an old, staple, reliable concern, in business for the past twelve years with a very fine rating, and our relations with our salesmen are of the highest character. We pay what's due exactly when it is due—cheerfully and no discussion!

To that salesman whom we select we give intensive inside training of one week's time, teaching him the KNACKS and HOWS of this business! The salesman is then taken into the field by an able and experienced District Manager who will sell in front of him to prove to him it can be done!

An exclusive territory will be given under contract to the right man who can qualify.

The type of salesman we want has sold stocks, direct advertising, high grade books, mechanical specialties, bank services, etc. The one who knows first call selling is the one we want!

For personal interview write or phone F. H. Ford, Sherman Hotel, Sunday and Monday.

A REAL FUTURE. A POSITIVE OPPORTUNITY

Manufacturers of the famous Battle Creek Health appliances are building a national selling organization.

Our complete line of over 20 distinct internationally known health appliances is used in thousands of the finest clubs, sanitariums, institutions, and homes. Our national advertising program is extensive.

POSITIONS NOW OPEN IN MIDWEST TERRITORY.

One divisional wholesale representative, 2 metropolitan sales managers, 2 district sales representatives, 3 retail branch managers, 6 retail sales supervisors, 3 department managers, 6 retail sales representatives.

Rapid promotion to successful applicants. Progressive earnings. Liberal compensation basis to men of proven caliber. Manufacturers' offices and display rooms.

SANITARIUM EQUIP. CO.,
Suite 201-203 Medical and Dental Arts Bldg.,
185 N. Wabash-av.

A Golden Opportunity.

For you fellows who must have real money—important money—early and often. I have the real thing. The one deal that is fast, different, new never before on the boards. Get on a live one. Our new bulletproof setup enables you to once more bask in the affluent glow of spendable cash.

I want heavyweights, experienced, thoroughly seasoned money getters. Come in today and get the most pleasant surprise of your life. 115 LA SALLE, RM. 934.

A REAL OPPORTUNITY.

We have an opening for 3 live salesmen. If you have sold specialties or supplies to the apartment house and home owners or contractors and builders, you can earn an [illegible] future. We sell a NATIONALLY ADVERTISED electric refrigerator at prices that are about 50% lower than our competitors. Our busy season is just starting. We are only interested in live salesmen who will work hard.

Refrigerator Sales Corp.,
161 N. MICHIGAN-AV.

A-A-A $10,000 A YEAR MEN.

Any salesman of character and with the ambition to earn this amount, between the ages of 25 and 50, will you follow in my footsteps? I can put you in an executive position whereby you will be independent for life.

All I demand is that you have faith and confidence in yourself and willingness to follow my instructions. Address E P 261, Tribune.

A1 SALESMEN.

Business is good with us. Our men are making money. We are moving to larger and better quarters and can use two real estate brokerage salesmen with cars.
FRANK J. HINKAMP & SONS, INC.
[illegible] E. 53d-st. Fairfax 9500.

A1 SALESMEN.

Preference given to those with stock or bond experience; only high grade men need apply. Mr. Weaver, R. 5-D, Midland Club, [illegible] W. Adams-st.

A Sales Representative.

If you have a convincing record of success in closing sales to head executives you can make your experience and ability count for unusually high earnings in our sales organization.

We are the leading manufacturer of office communication systems; our product has enjoyed an international reputation for 25 years. Yet in Chicago alone we have barely scratched the surface of logical prospects. The average unit of sale is over a thousand dollars, on which the salesman receives a liberal commission.

Obviously the work calls for a high class man of fine personality who can meet executives on their own ground. Specialized experience is not required. One who has been a top-notcher in selling insurance, office specialties, educational service or investments should qualify. The main thing is ability to overcome sales resistance.

You may be the one to fill this position. Write us fully about your age, record and present earning ability. If your letter is complete and convincing an interview will be arranged. Address C F 307, Tribune.

A CHANCE TO SUCCEED NOW

OPEN FOR SIX AMBITIOUS MEN over 25 years of age.

Must be willing to work and want a permanent position. Large rate of commission, quickly paid. Liberal expense provision made.

I represent a financially responsible firm, well advertised in Chicago papers. If you have sales experience I can start you in this field at once. No traveling. I will also consider one or two beginners and teach them our method of salesmanship and give my personal help. This is an opportunity to connect with a live, well advertised firm selling the same line for more than a quarter of a century to thousands of satisfied customers. References exchanged. This is a sound conservative selling position with a good future. Apply in person only, Monday, Feb. 25 from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m.

H. J. KRANZ, Suite M49 Hotel Morrison.

A SALESMAN.

High grade, aggressive man over 27 years of age to cover exclusive Chicago territory. Knowledge of office methods and routine essential and a man of studious type who has an appreciation of detail will be given preference.

Successful applicant will be given an intensive training course in the application of our product and will receive compensation during training period.

If you are in earnest about wanting to grow and are looking for a worth while connection of permanency and opportunity for an unlimited future apply to ELLIOTT-FISHER DIVISION, G. O. E. C., 36 S. State.

A PERMANENT POSITION

AN OPPORTUNITY.

Large international organization has openings for several intelligent, neat appearing young men over 25 years of age, married preferred; good earnings, weekly pay, and fine chance for advancement. In reply give full particulars and phone number. Address F P 147, Tribune.

AN UNUSUAL OPPORTUNITY FOR SALES EXECUTIVES.

We want men to qualify for these positions:

12 Division Managers, $7,000-$12,000 per year.
3 Asst. Managers, $200 to $350 per month.
2 Traveling Supervisors, $300 to $450 per month.
16 Captains at $200 to $500 per month.

Every one of the above positions is now filled. Many of these men will be promoted, some will leave. New offices are also being opened. So we need other men coming along to fill similar positions as they become available.

Every man holding any one of the positions listed above secured that position and pay by promotion because of merit—some of them within thirty days after joining this organization.

Our General Manager and our Sales Manager, not included in the above list, were likewise originally members of the selling force after answering an ad similar to this.

The men holding these important places in our organization were formerly:

5 Machinists.
3 Vacuum Cleaner Salesmen.
1 Portrait Salesmen.
1 Express Agent.
1 Telegraph Operator.
2 Grocery Salesmen.
5 Mechanics.
1 Farmer.
1 Jeweler.
1 Building Supt.
2 Clothing Salesmen.
2 Brush Salesmen.
1 Carpenter.
1 Ball Player.
1 Laborer.
2 Electricians.
3 Clerks.
1 Physician.

Ours is an international organization. This is but one of many branches. We have probably made it possible for more men to secure comfortable earnings and permanent positions than any similar organization in the country.

Our Company, our product, our policy, and our methods will stand the closest scrutiny. Every phase of our business is on the "up and up." The work is dignified, permanent, and remunerative. We are members of the local Assn. of Commerce and the Better Business Bureau. Our product carries full page advertisements in Good Housekeeping, Ladies Home Journal, and Saturday Evening Post.

Our business is growing rapidly. This Branch is showing a 50% increase over last February and expects the greatest March in history. Six years ago we rented a small office in this same building. Today we occupy all of one floor and part of two others.

We can use ten men at this time. These men must be between 25 and 45, intelligent, married, neat and willing to work. Previous sales experience not necessary.

These ten men will be given a short complete training and an immediate earning possibility. We pay weekly—no delays—no reason why any man joining now should not receive a full pay envelope at the end of the week.

We require no investment. You start immediately to earn money. Reports show that including bonus no man in our selling organization earns less than $2.00 per hour. Beginners earn as much as $75.00 to $90.00 per week. A former Methodist Evangelist earned over $600 in January, and a former express agent received $700.

We don't want floaters. Many men with us now have been here from three to six years. The work and the pay are permanent and the opportunity improves.

This work is unique. Most men like it. Their families always do. It's enough different from anything else advertised to make investigation worth while.

Call 9 a. m. any morning at the office closest to you.

AN OPENING FOR 1 REAL ESTATE MANAGER.

Must be absolutely A1 and have good record. We will show you how to make $10,000 to $20,000 this year with one of the largest and most successful selling organizations in Chicago.

The property has fast transportation. Improvements, Building Campaign, Parks and Playgrounds, and is zoned to business, apartment, and residence. It is the only property in Cook Co. fronting 4 major highways. Many beautiful homes are already under construction.

You must have car and proven ability to close sales for your salesmen. We will soon start one of the biggest advertising campaigns ever run by a local firm. Business is good with us now, and will be good with us all year BECAUSE WE HAVE WHAT THE PUBLIC WANTS. We will gladly prove this fact to a real manager who can bring a few real salesmen with him. The development is Northwest. For interview address E L 531, Tribune.

AN OPPORTUNITY FOR SALESMEN

Starting Monday morning at 10 A. M., Room 1021 Bankers Building, 105 West Adams-st., begins the formation of a sales organization that when completed will be the greatest organization of its kind in any city in the United States, outside of New York.

A LARGE New York Financial House—associated and interested in the largest corporation of its kind in the World—are opening a Chicago branch and require a sales organization of this magnitude.

THIS IS NOT SUBDIVISION, REAL ESTATE, INSURANCE, or PUBLIC UTILITIES.

The type of salesmen desired, however, are those who have had real estate, subdivision, insurance, or organization experience, as this class of salesman will most readily adapt himself to our organization.

Our work requires the better or high class salesman who can interview prospects in a business such as ours and give an intelligent canvass.

This is a permanent position with wonderful opportunities to develop into District and State Managers.

Ideal salary and commission arrangements, together with wonderful co-operation and working conditions makes this, without question, one of the very best connections in Chicago.

If you are looking for an ideal, permanent connection, giving the most wonderful opportunities for the future, come at 10 o'clock Monday morning to

ROOM 1021

HERE IT IS!! THE JOB YOU'VE BEEN LOOKING FOR.

I want men—fifty of them who MUST HAVE MONEY RIGHT AWAY.

Men between the ages of thirty and fifty-five—not floaters—but serious-minded men with an object in life. Men who don't want promises, can't afford to wait and are willing to take off their coats—go to work and make big money. There are "no strings" to my offer. The jobs are here waiting for you if you want them.

I Can Make for You $140 a Week and All Expenses

in a high grade business with unlimited opportunity. Our product is the kind that is easy to sell. It is not sold by drudging, slaving, working days and nights. It is a product the people wouldn't even get enough of for the next ten years. I want to prove this to you and I want to show you that by our plan of compensation you can make more money than you have ever dreamed of making.

YOU CAN MAKE $100,000 IN FOUR YEARS

In addition to a comfortable living. Experience does not count, only good hard work. If you give me that, you can make many times $140 a week—you can become financially independent. This is not bunk as I can prove to you in one interview.

Call at My Office Monday at 2 p. m. Only.

SUITE 201,

SALESMEN.

THIS WEEK ONE MAN MADE $624.00 IN THREE DAYS. HE IS MAKING BETTER THAN $25,000.00 A YEAR. WE HAVE SEVERAL SIMILAR JOBS OPEN.

The salesman who just made $624.00 in the first three days of this past week expected to make about the same amount the last three days of the week. A new salesman just starting with us made over $400 his first week in the field.

We are manufacturers' distributors, selling the livest line of automotive equipment in the world to jobbers. One of our leaders is an extension trunk that fits any car and extends to any one of six different sizes. One factory invested a cold half million dollars this season to manufacture this trunk and we are already selling as high as three carloads a day.

We have openings for two or three men—One in Southern Illinois and Eastern Missouri—One in Iowa—One in Minnesota and North and South Dakota. We prefer men who know automotive jobbers. At least they must know automotive equipment, have made $10,000 per year or more and be capable of making $25,000 a year with a genuine opportunity. We are an old, well rated concern, but recently shaped our business so salesmen can make big money. Our work is on a straight commercial basis with settlements on the 10th of each month. We advance up to $75 weekly against commissions earned.

If you can qualify write, giving your experience and past earnings, or telephone Superior 7535 for appointment.

We have several openings for clean cut Junior Salesmen in Chicago territory, who can earn from $100 to $200 per week, and get training here for bigger jobs.

Saleswomen.

A GOOD POSITION

now open for ambitious women over 25 years of age, with good references. Remuneration for those who qualify.

Selling experience will help, but is not absolutely necessary, as I will show you our method based on 30 years of success. I represent a large, financially responsible firm, backed by public goodwill and extensive advertising. Plenty of repeat business and new live leads.

If you are willing to start with moderate salary and will follow my instructions you can rise more quickly and increase your earnings more in this business than in any other field I have knowledge about.

As I will be too busy working with my group of salesladies I will have no time for correspondence about this opportunity. YOU MUST APPLY IN PERSON. If you can sell me on the idea that you are sincere, ambitious, and willing to succeed, I will place you in a well paying position at once. Apply in person Monday only, Feb. 25, 10 a. m. to 5 p. m.
H. J. KRANZ,
SUITE M-49,
HOTEL MORRISON.

A-A-A

The Shoreline

2231 67TH-ST. EAST

Six and Seven Room Town Homes

NOT A CO-OPERATIVE BUILDING,

But large de luxe apartments, where expense has not been spared to create homelike quarters. 16 stories of Gothic architecture.

On cold blustery days our real wood burning fireplaces add a charm that cannot be approached by a feeble imitation log fire.

The view of Jackson Park's five hundred and twenty-one acres of natural wooded grounds bordered by the blue waters of Lake Michigan and continuing along the shore until the skyscrapers of the loop form a billion dollar background, cannot be equaled in Chicago.

Transportation

Fast, electric I. C. transportation together with surface cars, buses and the new outer drive which begins at 67th-st., furnish the best transportation to be had.

Service

Our own garage right in the building serviced by trained, courteous men is another convenience most desirable.

Free gas, refrigeration, and morning papers at your door is typical of SHORELINE service.

Well trained doormen and attendants on duty twenty-four hours assure safety and service seldom found in this country.

Come and inspect our Exhibition apartment (executed in the modern style by Carson, Pirie Scott & Co.).

Rentals move forward from $160.

WEST ELM
AT STATE STREET

Here you will find a home with an address that has all the distinction and advantages of Lake Shore Drive.

It is only a few minutes' walk to the center of Chicago's business district, yet you sacrifice none of the neighborhood exclusiveness for "close-in" location.

Each apartment is complete in home atmosphere, made up in units of 2 to 5 spacious rooms.

They are equipped with the very latest in all conveniences—electric refrigeration, forced ventilation, elevator service, gas included.

These spacious rooms feature all latest appointments. Living room walls are canvased, painted and stained, and ceilings are vaulted; choice of very fine paper for bedroom walls. All floors are covered with a beautiful raisin colored carpet.

Our rentals are the most reasonable and range from $85 TO $175.

WANT CLOSE IN?
CERTAINLY,
BUT YOU ALSO WANT LOW RENT.
THERE IS JUST ONE WAY
in which you can have both. You can purchase a 6 room, sun parlor, 2d floor apartment with 2 baths, large kitchen and butler's pantry, at 317 BELDEN-AV. [2400 north], at the edge of Lincoln Park, for $11,000, with a total monthly assessment of $90. This apartment, which will rent at $225 per month, has a 16 ft. ceiling, wood burning fireplace, and 3 rooms are arranged to be used as one large space for entertaining.

There is also a 4 room and sun parlor apartment in this building for $6,500 and $55 monthly assessment, renting for $125 a month.

At 3600 north, 1 block from Sheridan-rd., we have a 5 room apartment, arranged similar to a bungalow, for $8,000, with a monthly assessment of only $45.84.

Why live far out or pay high rent to live close in? Keep within your budget and at the same time enjoy the best to be had in the apartment home. Terms if desired. Phone for appointment.

Riverside.

RESIDE IN RIVERSIDE

Located on the banks of Des Plaines river with its picturesque scenery.

THE
HOMES

One of Chicago's most picturesque suburbs, with its winding roads, beautiful trees and artistic homes of architecture so varied as to suit each individual taste.

For those who prefer the apartment home there are some of unusual distinction in all types of buildings from 2 to 36 apartments.

If the prospective home owner wishes to plan his own home, several very desirable pieces of vacant property are available.

Riverside is an ideal spot for the Chicago business man and his family, only 11 miles from the loop. It is served by the C. B. & Q. railroad. A delightful drive by motor over boulevards. Its schools, churches, stores and shops are most satisfying to the community. In fact, the environment is conducive to happy home life.

BUSINESS CHANCES.

A NATIONAL CONCERN, WHICH IS ESTABLISHING local independent units of its business in several cities, is seeking connections with live, progressive parties in cities of 25,000 population and over in the central states—to become associated with a nation-wide chain handling a service and products which are already in large demand. This is not a new proposition and the parties selected will start doing business immediately. A small fully protected investment [not in corporation stock] will handle this business, which carries a wide margin of profit. To qualify, the party must be a live, smart business person who wants the opportunity of establishing his or her own business. Business women are qualifying as well as men. The business is strictly high class in every respect and is rapidly increasing in volume every year. Unless you are open and prepared to accept a proposition that appeals to you as your own business, do not answer. If you are, details will be promptly supplied. The field is wide and quick action is necessary. Write immediately for information and state your business experience. Address your inquiry to Department L, Room 1721, Tribune Tower, Chicago.

Sales Manager or Partner wanted by owner of a $25,000.00 plant, mfrs. of nationally known products. Partner to take entire charge of plant and sales. Factory running full time and always made money. $12,500 for ½ interest. Address C O 46, Tribune.

LATE MODELS

THAT WILL GIVE NEW CAR SATISFACTION

We have a number of '29s, '28s and '27s that can be obtained at a substantial reduction. Many of these cars have only been driven a few hundred miles and are not even broken in yet. Every one of them is backed by the famous Studebaker Used Car Pledge that guarantees five days' free driving trial.

OLDSMOBILE SEDAN. 1929 that was only used a few weeks. It's as close to 100% as any car can be. 4 whl. brakes, shock absorbers, spare tire, bumpers, etc. Offered at $400 discount.

CHEVROLET COACH. 1928, driven less than 1,000 miles. We believe this is the best Chev. value in Chicago. 4 whl. brakes, bumpers, spare tire, etc. Today, $485.

WILLYS-KNIGHT VICTORIA. 1929, with 4 whl. brakes, winter front, spare tire, bumpers, snubbers, etc. Trade after only 30 days use. Owner wanted a bigger car. Chance to save almost $500.

NASH BROUGHAM. 1929 Adv. Six Ambassador. One of the most remarkable buys today. Brand new in every respect. 4 whl. brakes, Houdaille shock absorbers, trunk, spare tire, bumpers, etc. Offered at a big reduction.

STUDEBAKER DICTATOR. Late 5 pass. sedan that was in storage for about a yr. Will give new car satisfaction today. 4 whl. brakes and a wealth of equipment. Only $785.

WHIPPET SEDAN. This late model never left the Chicago blvds. It's a neat looking car with snappy performance. 4 whl. brakes, snubbers, spare tire, seat covers, etc. Reduced to $385.

BUICK SEDAN. Master 6 with low mileage. Very clean throughout, tires are practically brand new. 4 whl. brakes, heater, bumpers, spare tire, etc. Only $645.

LOCOMOBILE ROADSTER. St. 8 that will give new car satisfaction. It's a beauty. Motor has a world of pep. Rumble seat, 4 whl. brakes, driving light, spare tire, snubbers, bumpers, etc. Today, $585.

LINCOLN SEDAN. Was chauffeur driven and today it will please you in every respect. It's a 7 pass. with shutter front, shock absorbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. $845.

AUBURN SEDAN. Late model str. 8. Finish is a beautiful brown, upholstery appears unused. 4 wheel brakes, shock absorbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. $685.

REO SEDAN. Original owner oiled and greased it every 500 miles. Spare tire, spotlight, bumpers, etc. $585.

STEARNS KNIGHT BROUGHAM. Unusually clean throughout. Excellent tires, has spotlight, bumpers, shutter front, spare tires, etc. Dandy mohair upholstery. $685.

HUPMOBILE BROUGHAM. 1927 Eight that looks as though direct from factory. Motor is smooth and powerful. 4 whl. brakes, 5 tires like new, heater, bumpers, snubbers, etc. Special, $845.

CHRYSLER SPORT COUPE. Model "72" with rumble seat. A handsome car with plenty of dash. You could never tell it was used. 4 whl. brakes, snubbers, spare tire, spotlight, etc. Just $985.

PONTIAC LANDAU SEDAN. Recent model with many valuable extras. In such fine condition no one could tell it was ever used. Only $595.

ESSEX COACH. Recent model; engine is smooth and quiet; snappy looking car; shutter front, snubbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. $485.

ERSKINE SEDAN. Late model, 4 whl. brakes, snubbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. It's a beauty. Excellent mechanically. $585.

PEERLESS COACH. One of our best buys. Dandy engine; beautiful appearance. 4 whl. brakes, trunk, snubbers, etc. $585.

OAKLAND COACH. Like new in every respect. Motor is A1. 4 whl. brakes, etc. $445.

MARMON COACH. Has a world of power and pep. Finish is beautiful; 4 whl. brakes, shock absorbers, bumpers, spare tire, etc. Tires are practically brand new. Only driven a few months. Now $985.

HUDSON BROUGHAM. Very recent model that looks and runs as though direct from the factory. Snubbers, bumpers, shutter front, 4 whl. brakes, etc. $785.

STUDEBAKER COUPE. Recent Commander 4 pass. big six Victoria; will satisfy the most exacting buyer. Has 4 whl. brakes, snubbers, spare tire, bumpers, etc. Finish is a beautiful tan. Motor is A1. In fact, every feature is like brand new. $850.

BIRD-SYKES tell you the story of every used car—simply—truthfully. The car's ability, its capacity, its speed, its unused mileage become an open page to you. To buy a used automobile on any other basis is nothing less than extravagance. Obtain the facts in advance; know what service you can expect from an automobile; know what you will receive before you buy. Today's offerings:

PAIGE 6-72 5 PASS. BROUGHAM. A lot of cars have been bought in the past on impression, a short demonstration, and a big hope for the best. We want people to know what they are getting before they buy, so we have set a standard which every guaranteed car must meet. This one is such a car. We suggest you step in this car, try its simple starting system, the security you feel when driving, the absence of vibration, the freshness after the trip. You'll find its appearance perfect, interior high grade, equipment A1, and that it has hydraulic 4 wheel brakes and all modern refinements. Many people are buying just this model Paige for the second or third cars in the family. It's truly economical, well built to last; because quoted for one like this, we believe quick action will be generously rewarded. $400.

STUDEBAKER STANDARD 6 VICTORIA COUPE. It is rarely that we are privileged to offer for sale a car in as fine condition as this one. We have made an examination of it, completed minor adjustments, and offered it to you with our guarantee; the original finish is well preserved; tires in almost new condition; car has late improvements, 4 wheel brakes, etc.; and one that presents an extremely smart appearance. If your requirements demand a 4 passenger closed car, here is one at a figure lower than any we have ever quoted in similar condition. $675.

GRAHAM-PAIGE "619" 4 DOOR SEDAN. Traded back to us on another Graham-Paige after having had but 4,605 miles of service. The owner was very particular as to its maintenance at all times, consequently from a mechanical standpoint it is better than when new. Its appearance is like new and of course, most completely equipped. Guaranteed mechanically. The car with 4 speeds forward. Try it for a real sensation. $1,225.

LOCOMOBILE JUNIOR 8 SEDAN, 5 PASS. We are offering this car for half any we have ever offered in this model, yet its condition we believe to be 'way above any you can buy anywhere. The finish, interior, and details are like new; and this includes the tires. The straight 8 motor is smooth and quiet and should appeal to those who appreciate a "kick" in mechanical performance. Only $550.

GRAHAM-PAIGE "629" SEDAN, 5 PASS. This is a type of car that is in great demand. This particular one is like new in every respect. Its appearance is perfect and mechanically it is as close to 100% as an automobile can be. Many extras included; has side mounts, fender wells, 6 practically new tires; cowl band and lights. The car with 4 speeds forward. Guaranteed. $1,550.

PEERLESS 1927 6-80 5 PASS. SEDAN. Those who know and have driven this particular model will tell you it more than comes up to standard. Mechanically it operates smoothly and quietly, and our inspectors who have checked it and actually driven it, both at moderate and faster speeds, say it does everything a high grade car should do. The finish, a dark green, is like new, tires very good, interior "clean"; has many extras. Where can you duplicate it. $595.

GRAHAM-PAIGE "610" 4 DOOR SEDAN. Was delivered very late in 1928 and turned in to us in almost new condition mechanically. Its appearance and general details are so good you could hardly distinguish it from new. Of course it is guaranteed. $750.

HUPMOBILE SEDAN, 4 DR., 5 PASS. Here's one of the smartest closed car creations, the favorite of the designers, and a type car rarely found in these columns. Was used but very little; its condition is 'way above the average; and all equipment on it, as well as shock absorbers. At the non-competitive price of $575.

ESSEX 1928 4 DOOR SEDAN. Its appearance is practically the same as the current model. We have gone to great pains to check it mechanically and it is without doubt one of the finest cars of this model to be found anywhere. Paint is special 2-tone, original, has side lights, bumpers front and rear, other accessories. There'll be waiting in line for this one. $475.

LINCOLN BARGAINS

LINCOLN 7 PASSENGER SEDANS.

We have available 2 Lincoln Sedan Demonstrators. These cars have been driven 2,000 to 3,000 miles. They are in such wonderful condition that we have them on our salesroom floor, as they cannot be distinguished from new cars, at a saving of $1,500 each, for value they cannot be equaled.

LINCOLN LE BARON 6 BRAKE SYSTEM, $2,250.

Custom built 4 or 5 passenger sedan. Comparable only to a brand new car in every detail. Cost new, $5,000, 5 new balloon tires and trunk in rear. Sold with 90 day free service.

LINCOLN SEDANS 5 AND 7 PASSENGERS, $500.

These cars are without a doubt the outstanding value of today. Never before have we offered high grade transportation like these for less than $900. In perfect condition and fully equip. Must be seen to be appreciated.

PIERCE-ARROW 80 5 PASSENGER SEDAN, $850.

Perfect condition. Formerly owned by a bank president and runs as good as the day it left the factory. Finer transportation cannot be equaled at this price. The upholstery appears unused, has practically new balloon tires, trunk and many other extras.

MARMON 6 SEDAN, $1,150.

This is one of the latest custom built 6 cylinder 7 passenger sedans, which cost new, $4,500. Does not show the slightest wear. 4 wheel brakes, balloon tires and many other extras. Must be seen to be appreciated. You will be disappointed if you miss this 100% bargain. Come in today.

LOANS.

Personal, Property, and Salary.

WE SAVE YOU NEARLY ⅓ ON Loans $10-$300

We Are Pleased to Announce a Sharp Reduction in Our Rates from 3½% TO 2½% PER MONTH.

You can now borrow from us at a saving of nearly one-third over our former rate and almost one-third less than the lawful rate.

HERE IS THE COST.
Under our new Reduced Rate on Loans payable in 20 equal monthly payments.

$ 50—Average monthly COST	$ .66
$100—Average monthly COST	1.33
$200—Average monthly COST	2.63
$300—Average monthly COST	3.94

Other amounts up to $300 at same proportionate rate. Loans can be paid in full at any time and you pay only for actual time you keep the money.

HOW WE MAKE LOANS.
We make loans up to $300 on household goods to men and their wives for domestic use. We do not require outside signers—signature of husband and wife all that is necessary. Employers, relatives, friends or tradespeople are not notified—no one need know.

Information Cheerfully Given.

2½% Loans

YOU SAVE ALMOST ONE-THIRD BY BORROWING FROM HOUSEHOLD.

This old established organization by reason of large volume, efficient management and ample capital, is now making a substantial reduction in the cost of loans up to $300 by lowering the interest rate from the legal maximum of 3½ per cent a month on unpaid principal balances to 2½ per cent.

UNDER OUR NEW REDUCED RATE ON LOANS PAYABLE IN 20 EQUAL MONTHLY PAYMENTS.

$ 50—Average monthly COST	$ .66
$100—Average monthly COST	1.33
$200—Average monthly COST	2.63
$300—Average monthly COST	3.94

Other amounts up to $300 at same proportionate rate.

Loans may be paid in full at any time and you will only be charged for the actual time you keep the money. You get the full amount in cash—no deductions of any kind. We do not notify your employer, neither do we make inquiries of your friends, relatives or tradespeople. If it is not convenient to call personally, phone the office nearest you and we will send a representative to your home.
